UNREDACTED VERSION OF DOCUMENT SOUGHT TO BE LODGED UNDER SEAL

HEARING DATE: July 2, 2018

HEARING TIME: 9:00 a.m.

DEPARTMENT 23

JUDGE: Hon. V. Raymond Swope

FILING DATE: April 10, 2015

TRIAL DATE: April 25, 2019

1 I, David S. Godkin, declare:

2 1. I am an attorney at law and a member of the Law Offices of Birnbaum & Godkin,
3 LLP, counsel for plaintiff Six4Three, LLC (“643”) in the above-captioned action.

4 2. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Michael Vernal
5 are attached hereto as Exhibit 1, including 52:9-53:12 (admits Facebook used a VPN app called 6 Onavo that it purchased in 2013 to track the downloads and popularity of competitive apps, like
7 WhatsApp, without notifying users that their data would be used in this way), 64:22-76:10 (admits
8 that a December 2013 privacy update shows that Olivan and Cox were tracking call and text logs
9 of Facebook users without obtaining approval from Facebook’s legal or privacy teams or the 10 consent of Facebook’s users and admits there was an ongoing debate about this topic between the 11 privacy team and Olivan and Cox’s organizations through 2015), 73:17-74:13 (authenticates that a 12 December 2013 privacy update states that Facebook deliberately ignored user privacy settings by 13 displaying relationships in its “People You May Know” feature that users wanted hidden), 82:7-14 83:4 (admits Facebook invited developers to use Facebook Platform to develop applications and 15 businesses), 84:10-18 (admits Facebook made the full friend list available in 2007 subject to user
16 consent and developer entering into contract with Facebook), 84:19-85:10 (admits Facebook made 17 friends permissions like friends photos available in 2009 or 2010 subject to user consent and 18 developer entering into contract with Facebook), 85:11-20 (admits that Facebook made its 19 newsfeed API available to developers in 2008 or 2009), 120:23-121:18 (admits that before April 20 2015 “there were many ways for users to prevent access to apps accessing their data”), 125:7-13
21 (admits Facebook benefited from Facebook Platform), 126:16-130:14 (authenticates Exhibit 15), 22 136:18-144:7 (admits he sent an email in November 2012 regarding the API restrictions to
23 Zuckerberg, presenting him with three potential options on restricting the APIs and notifying him
24 that “I think the ball is in your court, but let us know if you need any more data from us”), 140:25-

1 143:19 (defines categorical reciprocity as giving back same category of data, e.g. movies for
2 movies, versus full reciprocity as needing to give back all data a user could access if the developer
3 access any data at all), 148:11-149:16 (admits Zuckerberg responds on November 19, 2012
4 (Exhibit 47) with a decision that is “closest to the first option” but not identical to any of the 5 three), 151:6-153:10 (admits Zuckerberg wrote in the November 19, 2012 email (Exhibit 47) that
6 he wants to explicitly tie his final decision to implement “full reciprocity” to the API restrictions
7 (“I want to make sure this is explicitly tied to pulling non-app friends out of friends.get”), which is 8 the decision that shut down 643’s business), 168:5-169:1 (authenticates Exhibit 63, admitting he 9 described Zuckerberg’s full reciprocity as “kind of crazy”), 177:14-181:20 (admits he wrote an 10 email in November 2012 following up on Zuckerberg’s decision regarding full reciprocity that 11 Olivan “routinely beats us up” about not shutting down competitors more aggressively and that 12 Zuckerberg echoed the same concerns), 195:18-199:7 (admits that employees who work directly
13 for him were seeking final approval from Olivan and not him as to whether to shut down particular
14 companies’ access to public Platform APIs), 204:12-209:16 (admits Platform 3.0 included
15 removing the full friends list API and all the friends permissions APIs and that they had been 16 preparing a blog post to announce these API restrictions in November and December 2012 but
17 Zuckerberg provided feedback that advised against this), 214:13-217:11 (admits Zuckerberg’s
18 concept of full reciprocity was unworkable, citing an email by Charles Jolley that under 19 Zuckerberg’s full reciprocity “the developer is no longer in control except that they could opt
20 completely out of the graph. There’s no sense of investment matching reward” because a
21 developer has to give all its data to Facebook, which Facebook could then use to gain an unfair
22 competitive advantage against the developer), 226:2-228:3 (admits Purdy writes in 2013 that
23 Facebook made the decision to remove the friends list API and friends permissions APIs in 2012
24 (“As we work towards implementing the decisions that we made last year which are now known

1 as Platform 3.0..." (FB-01220345)), 228:9-232:5 (admits Facebook was implementing
2 "reciprocity" by April 2013 as a way to shut down competitors), 231:25-233:18 (admits Facebook
3 maintained a blacklist of competitors that Zuckerberg "personally reviewed" that specified their 4 level of access to Platform APIs and that any changes to the blacklist were "not permitted without
5 Mark level sign-off"), 252:2-254:13 (authenticates Exhibit 60 and admits he was upset when a
6 Facebook employee told Netflix their ability to share a movie recommendation with a friend was 7 going to break because they hadn't announced it yet and that Purdy told the entire Platform team
8 they are all fired if they share the upcoming changes and Vernal has to apologize again to Netflix),
9 257:20-258:14 (admits Zuckerberg made a host of decisions regarding competitive data
10 restrictions, including writing in January 2013 "Yup, go for it" when a Facebook employee asked
11 Zuckerberg if he should shut down access to the friends API to Vine, a popular video-sharing 12 application), 268:6-272:4 (admits Facebook needed developers to make money from their 13 applications if Facebook was going to convince developers to rely on Facebook Platform to help 14 accelerate Facebook's growth).

17 3. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Ali Partovi are 18 attached hereto as Exhibit 2, including 45:16-56:08, 75:21-79:20 (admits Facebook explicitly 19 promised it would manage and operate Platform as a level competitive playing field and that 20 developers would be able to rely on Platform to build businesses), 90:6-92:14 (Partovi felt at the 21 time that it was better to build a business on Facebook Platform than building a business from 22 scratch on your own or using another platform), 99:11-120:4 (admits Facebook made explicit
23 promises with respect to Platform being a level playing field to induce reliance and then privately
24 and repeatedly violated those promises to give its own products an unfair competitive advantage,
25 which "significantly harmed" iLike's business' because it could no longer make money; admits
26 that Zuckerberg violated his own explicit promises and contradicted representations made in

1 private meetings with iLike), 121:5-123:11 (admits Facebook's conduct caused an employee
2 exodus and made it impossible for iLike to recruit staff, business forecasts were slashed, and iLike
3 was forced to sell below its market valuation), 125:19-131:20 (Facebook threatens to shut iLike
4 down unless it sells to Facebook for "not very much"), 167:9-168:20 (authenticates Facebook
5 Platform FAQ (Exhibit 10) and admits Facebook's statements in the FAQ cohere with his 6 understanding of Facebook's affirmative representations of Platform), 188:23-189:15 (admits he 7 helped Facebook grow Platform at Facebook's request by encouraging other companies to build 8 businesses on Facebook Platform).

10 4. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Simon Cross
11 are attached hereto as Exhibit 3, including 14:25-15:14, 65:3-25, 70:2-71:13 (admits he hosted 20-12 30 conferences around the world where he "help[ed] developers understand how the Facebook
13 Platform worked and the types of applications they could build on that platform" and that there
14 were anywhere from 5 to 20 events in 2012 and 2013, which trained developers how to build
15 businesses using the APIs Zuckerberg already decided to shut down), 21:1-22 (admits "there was a 16 lot of talk...in the media and in the tech community about Facebook's Platform"), 21:23-22:2
17 (admits Facebook encouraged software companies to build their businesses on Facebook
18 Platform), 28:8-22 (admits he was part of an organization within Facebook the purpose of which 19 was to convince companies to build their businesses on Facebook Platform), 32:2-22 (admits he 20 represented to software companies that they should build their businesses using Graph APIs, 21 including the full friends list, friends permissions and newsfeed APIs that were documented on the 22 Facebook website), 35:2-23 (admits developers were required to enter into contract with Facebook
23 to access the APIs Facebook made available on its platform), 40:14-41:14 (admits the purpose of 24 enticing third party developers is that "people would use Facebook more"), 53:15-21 (admits the 25 APIs were not in fact rarely used ("I wouldn't count them as rarely used")), 53:22-54:17 (admits it
28

1 is possible that more than 100,000 companies used the Graph APIs Facebook shut down), 55:21-
2 56:3 (“We would have, at the time, done some analysis to determine the impact, the scale of the 3 impact of these changes”), 56:14-17 (confirms aware that “some applications would be affected by
4 the removal of these permissions”), 57:21-58:4 (admits to whitelisting companies), 59:2-61:4
5 (admits Facebook managed a program called “Operation Developer Love” focused on inducing
6 developers to build on Facebook Platform, and that Facebook published many blog posts on its 7 website to induce companies to build businesses on Facebook Platform dating back at least to 8 2011), 61:11-62:13 (admits Facebook’s developer blog never announced shutting down friends
9 list, friends permissions and newsfeed APIs until April 30, 2015), 73:7-74:20, 78:25-81:25.
10 (admits Facebook induced developers to build applications on Facebook Platform by representing 11 that Facebook’s graph would drive organic user growth without any requirement to purchase
12 advertisements), 82:8-94:1, 96:15-108:16 (admits Facebook published training videos on multiple 13 occasions throughout 2013 showing companies how to build apps using the full friends list API,
14 photos API, newsfeed APIs and other APIs that Zuckerberg already decided to shut down), 94:3-15 95:12 (admits that as early as 2011 and 2012 a Facebook user could prevent an application from 16 accessing their data through their friends even if they hadn’t downloaded the app), 122:14-123:06
17 (“It is possible that application developers may have built applications that relied on access -- that
18 expected access to information from a person -- an app user's friends. It is a developer's decision
19 whether or not they perceive that application to be viable in a world where they don't have -- 20 where they cannot expect access to that information. We at Facebook knew that there would be 21 some applications -- some developers who would make the determination themselves that their 22 apps were no longer viable.”), 123:20-125:08 (authenticates the “Apps Others Use” privacy screen
23 from 2011 demonstrating that a user can control what information their friends may or may not 24 make available to an application), 127:02-127:25 (admits “users have a way to control who sees

1 what information on Facebook”), 128:01-128:10 (“My understanding is that people have control,
2 varying levels of control, over who can see what, and those settings, as I understand it, would also
3 affect the ability of an app to access that information”), 129:06-131:23 (admits that an app could
4 only access a user’s photos if that user gave the app permission to access them), 134:13-135:20
5 (admits the list of developers he was asked to compile was for Zuckerberg), 145:03-145:17
6 (admits they categorized apps in the audit by PR risk, strategic value, competitive/not useful to
7 Facebook, major business disruption/kill, but not for spam, offensive content or privacy
8 violations), 147:21-148:12 (admits he identified over 40,000 apps that rely on the restricted APIs),
9 148:20-149:11 (admits they performed a more detailed analysis of the top 250 apps), 149:12-
10 150:12 (admits the audit began in August 2013 and entailed recommending to restrict the APIs
11 from entire categories of popular applications), 160:06-162:18 (admits Facebook had a number of 12 technical mechanisms to make “non-public api behaviors available to certain app developers,” and 13 confirmed he used these technical mechanisms to grant whitelist access to certain companies after 14 the April 30, 2015 Graph API 2.0 launch), 167:25-178:05 (admits they found a way for Tinder and 15 other whitelisted apps to continue to work by creating new private APIs as well as whitelisting
16 them to the privatized full friends list API), 187:13-188:16 (admits he is the author of an internal 17 engineering task from September 2013 noting that Facebook is going to have many more private 18 APIs after Graph API 2.0), 196:14-199:8 (admits Hootsuite was whitelisted to access the full
19 friends list API, photos API and newsfeed APIs, among others), 201:10-203:13 (admits Venmo
20 was whitelisted to access the full friends list API and that he oversaw a task to permit the full
21 friends list API to be accessed on a privatized basis), 207:21-209:12 (admits “deprecate” does not 22 mean “privatize” but instead “means a process by which you begin – you tell people that 23 something is no longer going to be available to them over time”), 218:8-219:18 (admits Nissan
24 was whitelisted in March 2015 for the friends photos API and other restricted APIs), 231:18-

1 233:24 (admitting Facebook “knew its conduct was going to affect applications and developers in
2 some way and that some of those applications, as I mentioned earlier, developers would consider
3 that -- that developers wouldn't consider viable after these changes were made”).

4 5. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Facebook’s
5 PMQ Allison Hendrix are attached hereto as Exhibit 4, including 17:15-21, 19:1-20:8, 23:15-25:5,
6 37:19-25 (admits Plaintiff never violated any Facebook policies; Facebook never communicated
7 any issues to Plaintiff about its app; Facebook never received any complaints about Plaintiff or its 8 app; Facebook never took action specifically against Plaintiff and that the actions that broke
9 Plaintiff’s app were part of data restrictions implemented under Graph API 2.0, which was known
10 internally at various times as Platform 3.0, P3.0, Platform Simplification, PS12N), 25:6-28:25;
11 119:7-16, 151:21-152:18 (admits Facebook stated the APIs being restricted were “rarely used,”
12 but also admits Vernal stated “the majority of the API surface” was deprecated and that the 13 Facebook engineer who tracked the usage of these APIs listed them as among the most widely 14 used), 38:13-40:21 (admits Facebook’s SRR never reserves rights to provide Platform APIs on an
15 unequal, privatized or special basis), 60:9-61:25 (authenticates Exhibit 10, Facebook Platform
16 FAQ, and admits Facebook affirmatively represented that it would not remove data access for 17 competitive reasons and would provide a level competitive playing field), 79:14-84:17 (admits
18 Zuckerberg and Olivan oversaw blacklisting of Twitter and YouTube from the same public
19 Facebook Platform APIs the removal of which shut down 643’s business), 86:4-93:16 (admits 20 Vernal wrote an email on October 30, 2012 stating that after months of discussion with 21 Zuckerberg, Facebook has decided to restrict access to the friends list API, friends permissions
22 APIs, and newsfeed APIs in order to stymie competitors), 102:7-103:14 (admits the APIs Vernal
23 states Facebook decided to restrict in his email of October 30, 2012 (Exhibit 45) are the very same
24 APIs that broke Plaintiff’s app and shut down its business and that Vernal does not mention any of

1 the privacy reasons Facebook announced in 2014 and 2015 as justification for shutting down these
2 APIs), 139:13-145:13 (admits Zuckerberg, Olivan, Lessin and Vernal pressured the Platform
3 policy team to shut down the Amazon Gifts application in June 2013 on the exclusive basis that
4 Facebook was hoping to launch its own gifting application and notwithstanding that Facebook had
5 approved the application and induced Amazon to invest in it only a few months prior, and Amazon
6 had in fact invested in developing the application in partnership with Facebook), 163:1-167:19
7 (admits that Doug Purdy, Director of Engineering for Facebook Platform, wrote to Facebook
8 employees in August 2013 that because of pressure from Zuckerberg, Olivan and Vernal “the truth
9 is that we are going to be under pressure to pull more and more user data from competitors
10 overtime,” particularly since Olivan “hates that we even give profile pics to competitive apps,” so 11 ultimately Facebook will land at a place where “no user data [is] given to competitors”), 183:11-
12 184:16 (admits Facebook employees understood whitelist access to require a strategic relationship
13 or nonstandard contract with Facebook, which could require purchasing advertising or other
14 financial consideration to Facebook), 191:22-193:14 (admits Lessin instructed employees to shut
15 down lifestyle apps because Facebook “is ultimately competitive with all of them”), 218:22-
16 219:19 (admits Lessin instructed employees in September 2013 to require that apps purchase
17 $250,000 per year in mobile app install (NEKO) advertisements in order to avoid having their API
18 access restricted), 222:23-224:25 (admits Zuckerberg, Cox and Lessin directed employees to shut
19 down Xobni, a contact management application that Facebook employees did not consider to be 20 competitive with Facebook), 225:1-226:16 (admits Lessin provided instructions to shut down
21 other types of applications, like contact management applications, because Facebook considers 22 itself to be competitive with them), 227:13-230:22 (admits Facebook maintained “many, many,
23 many” private API agreements and that a private API “would be understood to be, like, a 24 whitelisted API, meaning it’s not, like, publicly available to everyone” and requires a Private
27
28

1 Extended API Agreement, which is provided under the Facebook Platform policies and contract
2 and states that it “enables a developer to retrieve data or functionality...that is not generally
3 available under the platform”), 238:2-242:17 (admits that Royal Bank of Canada was given
4 whitelisted access to restricted APIs only after Facebook concluded that the bank had agreed
5 contractually to purchase “one of the biggest NEKO campaigns ever run in Canada”), 243:7-252:5
6 (admits that Facebook gave popular dating app Tinder whitelisted access to restricted APIs in 7 2015 and that Facebook attempted to use this whitelisted access to transfer a trademark Tinder
8 owned in the name “Moments,” as Facebook planned to and did in fact launch a photo sharing app
9 under that name in June 2015), 298:10-306:7 (states that Facebook only blacklisted Twitter and 10 YouTube but, once confronted with evidence of numerous other blacklisted companies, admits
11 that Snapchat, Amazon, Line, numerous messaging apps and other companies were also 12 blacklisted for competitive reasons but refuses to name them).

15 6. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Konstantinos 16 Papamiltiadis are attached hereto as Exhibit 5, including 22:17-23:12 (admits developers were 17 required to enter into contract with Facebook to access the APIs Facebook made available on its 18 platform), 26:1-29:4 (admits his job to this day encourages developers to build on Facebook
19 Platform, for instance, by hosting various events for developers), 42:17-45:10 (admits Facebook
20 still represents it manages an “open platform, so everybody has access to the same
21 information...To the best of my knowledge, we still have an open platform”), 49:18-50:5 (admits
22 developers were required to have contracts with their end-users under the terms of Facebook’s
23 SRR), 153:14-154:24 (admits the audit was prepared for the benefit of Zuckerberg and Lessin, and 24 that Lessin instructed him to shut down entire categories of apps because “we are ultimately 25 competitive with all of them”), 161:12-177:20 (admits he was tasked in August 2013 with auditing
26 40,000 apps that would break as a result of Facebook’s API restrictions), 174:7-177:20 (admits
28

1 643's app was included in the ongoing competitive audits of the 40,000 apps that would break and
2 that the app appears on page 622 of an almost 2,000 page spreadsheet including the name of the 3 app, its application ID, and select APIs the app accessed).

4 7. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Bernard Hogan
5 are attached hereto as Exhibit 6, including 45:4-21 (admits it was reasonable to interpret Section
6 9.8 of the SRR giving "all rights to APIs, data, code you receive from us" to mean that "if they
7 had offered it for me to use as a developer, then I could use it as a developer"), 57:4-63:5 (admits
8 that the SRR's "limit access to data" provision reasonably refers to limiting the volume or rate of 9 data transferred via the APIs – and not that Facebook could shut down entire categories of critical
10 APIs – and that if you abide by the rules "developers would be treated fairly, that they would be 11 able to access the data that is stipulated by Facebook as being accessible") 67:8-83:3 (describes at 12 length how Facebook's Graph API 2.0 harmed his applications and research and many other 13 developers), 98:10-99:4 (estimates the total monetary value of the harm caused to him by 14 Facebook at $200,000), 103:10-107:24 (admits that because of Graph API 2.0 his applications
15 "just couldn't work"), 108:1-111:13 (admits that in conversations with a Facebook employee, the 16 employee "well understood that these changes would inhibit my applications from working" and 17 the employee suggested he seek employment at Facebook to continue his work), 121:3-127:1, 18 172:18-176:4 (admits it is evident to an informed developer that some applications were 19 whitelisted to continue to access this data, citing Tinder as an example, because the applications
20 still function as they had before Graph API 2.0), 219:23-222:1 ("I had a pretty strong 21 understanding that the social network data would be consistently available for a long period of 22 time, and I certainly acted under the expectations that such core functionality – so core that it's in 23 the basic permissions – would still be available for a long time"), 360:2-25 (admits "most of what
26
27
28

1 was in [the complaint] was public knowledge,” including “claims that were advanced by Mark
2 Zuckerberg”).

3 8. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Ted Kramer are 4 attached hereto as Exhibit 7, including 162:13-163:16, 223:6-15 (643 did not receive notice from
5 Facebook until January 2015 that the app would no longer function), 205:17-25 (643 had raised
6 approximately $250,000 in seed capital, which was lost entirely as a result of Facebook’s bait and 7 switch scheme), 181:23-183:9, 195:25-196:16 (643 had contracts with 4,481 end users who had 8 downloaded its app during a trial period).

10 9. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Tim Gildea are 11 attached hereto as Exhibit 8, including 115-117 (admits he was aware of Facebook Platform for 12 many years before co-founding 643, likely first became aware of Facebook Platform in 2007, had 13 knowledge of various Facebook Platform APIs, including the friends APIs, and that Facebook
14 Platform was a “pretty common thing in the developer community, so it was something that just 15 about everyone who was developing applications was aware of”).

17 10. True and correct copies of the relevant portions of the testimony of Tom 18 Scaramellino are attached hereto as Exhibit 9, including 199:1-206:18 (admits 643’s entire 19 business plan relied upon Facebook Platform and Facebook’s representations regarding how it
20 would manage it, including the prior five years of Facebook’s conduct; admits he contacted
21 Facebook employee Michael Huang in person and over email and was refused any discussion
22 regarding how 643 could continue to operate after Graph API 2.0), 252 (admits he was aware of 23 and relied on the Facebook Platform announcement, the Facebook Platform FAQ, various 24 Facebook blog posts, Facebook’s Graph API 2010 announcement, various news articles regarding 25 speeches and public representations by Zuckerberg and others, and similar public materials when 26 determining whether 643 was a sound investment); 269:5-272:2 (admits 643’s last established
28

1 valuation was approximately $4 million and that this valuation was comparable to other startups at 2 this stage of development).

3 11. A true and correct copy of Exhibit 1 to Plaintiff's Fourth Amended Complaint,
4 Facebook's official Facebook Platform FAQ, is attached hereto as Exhibit 10.

5 12. A true and correct copy of FB-00845980 - FB-00845983 (May 2007 internal 6 Facebook email describing the launch of Facebook Platform as "providing access to a new kind of

19 developer] to know that profile links aren’t acceptable,” which would require “changing the 20 Platform policies.” Olivan then complains four weeks later that the apps still haven’t been shut
21 down and the policy team again responds that “they are meeting our policy requirements.” Vernal
22 then chimes in to carry Olivan’s water by disingenuously stating that the apps are “violating the 23 spirit of our policy.” The policy team then apologizes to Vernal, and Vernal emails back the 24 following, admitting that the policy team did nothing wrong but simply had to give in to the

1 slowly to stymie competition, and suggests unified permissions review, which Facebook
2 eventually launched in its new Login product on April 30, 2014, as a solution to stymie
3 competition once and for all: “every week I am hearing more stories of apps we didn’t realize
4 were doing XYZ, and we are just so incredibly slow to define and enforce competition. I might 5 suggest that if we are going down this route for platform we should move towards a world where 6 we ask developers for detailed descriptions of what they are doing up-front and pre-approve all
7 apps – I know that sounds distasteful, (I don’t much like it myself).” (FB-01389002 - FB-

21 2012 presentation circulated among Lessin, Vernal and other Facebook employees discussing that 22 Facebook will not make enough money if it simply charges for access to public Platform APIs and
23 that Facebook would be better off using its leverage to force companies to pay up and give all their 24 data to Facebook if they wish to avoid being shut down, describing the reciprocity policy and the

9 networks + require they have a deal with us, regardless of size. Maintain size-based thresholds for 10 all other developers to force business deals. Require data reciprocity for user extended info to 11 ensure we have richest identity” (FB-01369071); (2) describes the type of value Facebook can 12 extract from different partners by holding data hostage, e.g. user data from Twitter and Path,
13 forcing Spotify to use Facebook’s payments service, forcing Pandora to use Facebook’s ad
14 network, forcing Dropbox to integrate its file storage service with Facebook so Facebook can 15 access Dropbox files, and forcing Skype to buy ads to grow its user base, noting that “photo/social 16 needs data reciprocity, other categories like games, online video, music, commerce must agree to 17 deals with FB’s ad networks, payments products” (FB-01369074); (3) describes all of the API
18 restrictions implemented on April 30, 2015, noting that the impact of these restrictions is that it
19 eliminates the “growth channel used by 23% of all Facebook apps” and that 89% of the top 1,000
20 iPhone apps rely on the full friends list API and 75% of the top 1,000 iPhone apps rely on the 21 friends permissions APIs, both of which Zuckerberg decided to privatize under this reciprocity
22 policy framework (FB-01369082- FB-01369085); and (4) lists popular apps widely used by

19 Since friends.get will only return other TOSed users' data, that means we no longer need the 20 friend_* permissions. We are going to remove/whitelist access to the Stream APIs [Newsfeed
21 API].... We are going to limit the ability for competitive networks to use our platform without a

8 for the world,” it’s not “good for us” unless Facebook controls all the data shared by users on all
9 the apps and websites that rely on Facebook Platform: “I think we should go with full reciprocity
10 and access to app friends for no charge. Full reciprocity means that apps are required to give any 11 user who connects to FB a prominent option to share all of their social content within that service
12 (ie all content that is visible to more than a few people, but excluding 1:1 or small group
13 messages) back to Facebook.... The answer I came to is that we’re trying to enable people to share
14 everything they want, and to do it on Facebook. Sometimes the best way to enable people to share
15 something is to have a developer build a special purpose app or network for that type of content
16 and to make that app social by having Facebook plug into it. However, that may be good for the 17 world but it’s not good for us unless people also share back to Facebook and that content increases

13 employees discuss a document that "our team shares with [developers] frequently," noting that 14 "the language in here around friend permissions is very counter to our upcoming platform
15 simplification efforts" because it promises access to the full friends list API and so "feels against 16 the spirit of where we are headed," demonstrating clearly that Facebook continued to induce 17 developers to invest capital and labor building businesses around APIs Facebook already decided 18 to shut down) is attached hereto as Exhibit 59.

19 61. A true and correct copy of FB-00858137 - FB-00858140 (January 2014 email
20 discussion in which Facebook employee George Lee writes to Purdy and Vernal that Facebook's
21 "partner managers are still selling products that we ask them to sell, so when it comes to feed
22 integration we're still telling people to use [Open Graph]. The last f8 was all about implicit [Open
23 Graph], so while we may have decided amongst ourselves that this is no longer the future without 24 an alternative we don't have anything to tell current [developers] (so partners continue to tell them

2 attached hereto as Exhibit 60.

3 62. A true and correct copy of FB-01312769 - FB-01312773 (August 2013 discussion
4 between Vernal and Purdy where Vernal notes that the “Netflix thing seems completely fucked
5 up” because lower level Facebook employees communicated to Netflix that it “might not be a
6 good idea” to rely on certain APIs because they were being restricted, and Purdy writes that he just 7 showed Vernal’s message to “the entire core platform PM team and said we are all fired if you
8 have to send another one of these emails” (FB-01312772)) is attached hereto as Exhibit 61.

10 63. A true and correct copy of FB-01150813 - FB-01150820 (April 2013 email from 11 Vernal to Purdy in which Vernal communicates to Purdy that he is 100% certain that in late 2012
12 Zuckerberg decided on full reciprocity and not the more limited, categorical reciprocity that 13 Vernal had advocated (FB-01150813)) is attached hereto as Exhibit 62.

15 64. A true and correct copy of FB-00948246 - FB-00948251 (November 2012 email in 16 which Vernal notes that Zuckerberg defines total or full reciprocity as requiring that a company
17 share “every piece of content by that user that can be seen by another user. What Mark is saying is 18 he wants certain partners (I assume not all) to give us news feeds on behalf of their users, which is 19 kind of crazy” (FB-00948246), meaning that if a company wants to access public APIs from 20 Facebook, it has to feed all the data it has about users back to Facebook) is attached hereto as
21 Exhibit 63.

23 65. A true and correct copy of FB-00948264 - FB-00948268 (November 2012 email in 24 which Vernal responds to Zuckerberg’s full reciprocity decision by stating that he is “not really
25 sure why Pinterest or others would allow us” to “import everything they can see from another app
26 onto Facebook, e.g. all your friends’ pins” (FB-00948264), demonstrating how unworkable the 27 full reciprocity policy was, since it required a developer to give Facebook its most valuable data
28

1 and Facebook could feed all of that data to the developer's competitors or use the data itself to
2 crush the developer's business) is attached hereto as Exhibit 64.

3 66. A true and correct copy of FB-00908514 - FB-00908519 (June 2013 email in which 4 Facebook employee Chris Daniels points out that full reciprocity is not a workable policy because
5 Facebook will serve as a broker to share data across competitors, e.g. Company A gives all its data
6 to Facebook, Facebook then passes it to Company A's competitor, Company B, and vice versa,
7 such that the only company that wins at the end of the day is Facebook ("I think we should
8 consider dropping our requirement on data portability so that one developer doesn't fear FB being 9 a data passthrough to a competitor" (FB-00908517)) is attached hereto as Exhibit 65.

13 extract data or money if they want their apps to keep working; Purdy notes: "I am not a fan of per 14 partner opaque deals as this is counter to the notion of a platform that treats developers equally"

11 noting that 7% of those apps are photo or video sharing apps like 643’s app that require the 12 restricted APIs to function (FB-00061367 - FB-00061368); Chang and Papamiltiadis bucket the 13 apps into those that “may cause negative press,” those that provide “strategic value,” those that are 14 “competitive/not useful to FB,” and those that would experience a “Major Business

24 and further noting that removing access to the APIs seems “like an indirect way to drive NEKO 25 adoption”; Cross notes that there are “three whitelisting mechanisms” where apps that pay for 21 113. A true and correct copy of FB-00061393 - FB-00061395 (September 2011 email

22 from David Poll to all Platform engineers at Facebook in which Poll writes: “I was thinking about 23 the Platform 3.0 friend_list change a bit as I was using my Android phone tonight and realized that
24 two of the apps that most impact my day-to-day mobile experience will be completely, irrevocably
25 broken by this change.... In both of these cases, the apps are adding real value to my experience,
26 and in both of those cases, I have zero expectation that any of my friends will be using the app.
27 The fundamental problem I’m having with this change is that my friend list is my information –
28

1 it's part of who I am, and for Facebook to shut down this access primarily comes across to me as
2 FB intruding upon and shutting down my own access to my own information. No matter how you
3 slice it, this change is going to have a significant negative impact on my day-to-day smartphone
4 experience" (FB-00061395); a Facebook employee responds by suggesting they whitelist the two
5 apps Poll describes, but other employees then respond that based on feedback from Zuckerberg,
6 Lessin and Olivan and the "challenge of monitoring which 3rd party apps become competitors vs.
7 are ok," they need to "keep this pretty tied down," noting that Zuckerberg instructed them to shut
8 off Xobni and, given that, it is likely he would give the same instructions for these two apps (FB-

12 discussion between Sukhar, Purdy, O'Neil and Federov where Purdy describes bucketing all of the 13 audited apps into "three buckets: existing competitors, possible future competitors, developers that 14 we have alignment with on business models"; O'Neil responds that the "separation between those 15 categories doesn't feel clean to me – e.g. apps can transition from aligned to competitive and will 16 ultimately make us sad that we leaked a bunch of data to them when they were aligned.... Do you
17 consider Dropbox aligned? Or competitive?" Purdy responds: "Possibly competitive, could move
18 to aligned with a big deal between us"; Sukhar writes that he "feels like he is the only one taking a 19 principled stand" and that he just "spent the day talking to many dozens of [developers] who will 20 get totally fucked by this and it won't even be for the right reason.... Sorry to bring this up but my 21 engineers think this plan is insane and I'm not going to support an all hands [meeting] to convince 22 them otherwise") is attached hereto as Exhibit 113.

26 115. A true and correct copy of FB-01364691 - FB-01364694 (August 2013 email from 27 Bryan Klimt to Sukhar, Kevin Lacker and James Yu in which he writes: "I'm trying to write a post
28 about how bad an idea it would be to remove the api that lets you get a list of the user's friends

1 from Facebook Platform. In order to illustrate my point, I'd like to satirically suggest removing 2 some API that is so core to the developer experience that removing it would be ridiculous on its
3 face. For example, removing the Windows API method that lets you create a new window. Or 4 removing the Twilio API method that lets you send a text message. Both suggestions are utterly
5 insane. The problem is, for Facebook Platform, removing the method to let you get a list of friends
6 literally is already that ridiculous. I can't think of an example more ridiculous to parody it with.
7 Before we discuss it in more detail, I'd like to clear up some misconceptions about the 8 deprecation. I've heard some rumors floating around about why we are doing this. But many of 9 them are clearly pabulum designed to make engineers think this decision has solid technical 10 reasons. It does not. 1/ This API can be abused so we should remove it. False. That is a non-11 sequitur. Lots of our APIs can be abused. Our whole product can be abused. That's why we have 12 one of the best teams in the industry at detecting and stemming abuse. That team, plus Unified 13 Review, is more than sufficient to deal with any theoretical abuse coming from this API. Even if 14 this were true, who wants to be in that classroom where the whole class is punished for the 15 transgressions of a few? 2/ It's okay to remove because we've provided alternatives for the 16 common uses. False. If you think that's true, then I don't think you realize why developer
17 platforms exist. If we wanted to limit Facebook to the set of use cases we've already imagined, we 18 could just do that ourselves, and not even have a Platform. The purpose of a Platform is to let 19 people build new things on top of it. It's to enable the whole universe of ideas that anyone in the 20 world could think of. Developers out there will have all sorts of crazy ideas. We want them to 21 build those crazy ideas on top of Facebook. Do you know why Facebook was originally built for 22 the WWW instead of being part of CompuServe or AOL's proprietary networks? It's because the 23 web is an open and extensible platform. It lets developers make their craziest dreams become 24 reality.... So, if neither of those reasons explains why we are doing this, what's driving it? The

1 only reason I've heard that makes sense is that we are worried about people "stealing the graph".
2 We are doing this as a protectionist grab to make sure no one else can make a competing social
3 network by bootstrapping with our social graph. Okay, so let's assume for a minute that the social
4 graph does belong to us, and not to our users. And let's even go so far as to assume that this is a
5 real problem, although I'm not convinced it is. I mean, concerns that other companies will steal
6 our friend graph may just be paranoia. But for the sake of argument, let's say it's not. Then what?
7 We're removing the core API in our developer platform. Out of concerns that someone will steal
8 our social network product. That sends a clear message to developers: Facebook Platform comes 9 second to Facebook the Social Networking Product. This has been a criticism all along with our 10 Platform. When you go read the blog posts critical of our Platform, they all hit on this same point.
11 When our APIs are subjugated to the whims of our other products, they can't be stable. And an 12 unstable platform isn't really a platform at all. So then you are left with 2 big problems. 1/ How do
13 you convince external developers to build on a platform where the most basic core APIs may be
14 removed at any time? I mean, the only big value we bring to the table right now is in distribution
15 and discovery, and that's going to encourage developers to do only the most superficial integration
16 with Facebook. Basically, they're going to do just enough to be able to use Neko ads. 2/ How do
17 you convince internal developers to work on Platform knowing it's only ever going to play second 18 fiddle to the rest of the company? I mean why should any of us work on a product that could be 19 crippled at any time to benefit another team? If I worked on Platform, I would be seriously
20 reconsidering my options if this API gets deprecated" (FB-01364693 - FB-01364694); Lacker
21 responds to Klimt that he agrees with him but that his rant is not going to change the decision and
22 that "platform has been losing engineers for some time" (FB-01364691 - FB-01364692); Sukhar
23 agrees with Lacker and Klimt, stating he shares Klimt's concerns and notes that he talks "about 24 this in every single meeting" he has with Vernal, Purdy and Zuckerberg but that "lobbying to

1 reverse this particular decision is not the most productive thing we can do here” (FB-01364691))

7 think we all agree. I’m like, do we? And he’s like yeah. It’s all because of trust. I’m like what. No
8 it’s not, it’s all for competitive reasons. And he’s like no. it’s trust. I’m like eddie you should talk

14 Facebook: “The dialog won’t be FB-branded, to prevent user frustration with the Facebook brand.
15 That sucks!.... The rollout plan is also scary because this does seem like it’ll break apps. Basically,
16 if you do anything besides login, sharing through dialogs this update will fuck you over somehow.
17 We’ve even pre-planned that developers will hate it by making some of the UI non-facebook-
18 branded...sheesh...this way, user hatred will be directed at our developers, not at us” (FB-

25 noting that they “are just ratcheting down the openness of the platform and all these things are 26 small tactics in the overall goal”; Lacker responds that “the contract with [developers] is so far
27 from working,” and Sukhar agrees with him and suggests they try to find a path to get more

12 it are clearly bad” and it’s a “mess” that “just seems fucked,” noting that Facebook’s new position
13 on user data that was announced in April 2014 represented an abrupt reversal of a position

5 reviewed “with Chris Cox and co”) and FB-01235646 - FB-01235723 (“Content Production”
6 presentation noting that in late 2012 Facebook “did some extreme stuff to push re-shares –
7 significantly changing the composition of content and feed. We undid a bunch (but not all) of our 8 work in the first half of 2013 but YoY re-shares numbers are still very funky. To avoid being
9 misled by this funk, we’re going to use 2012 as our reference point” (FB-01235648); “Wall posts
10 declined by 63% since 2012,” a “terminal decline” due to “fewer profile visits and wall posts per 11 visit due to mobile migration and Timeline” (FB-01235657); undirected text posts “tanking” since
12 2012, down 26% because “hurt by migration to phones with cameras” (FB-012358); bulk photo
13 uploads “falling fast,” down 29% since 2012 because “mobile migration means fewer photo
14 albums” (FB-01235659); “Before phones, people would take their digital cameras out for special 15 events, vacations, etc. Then, they would post a bunch of photos at once – after uploading them to 16 their computer. With phones, people take and share more photos more often. They share them
17 individually (rather than waiting to upload a bunch at once)” (FB-01235714)) are attached hereto

19 153. A true and correct copy of FB-00600167 - FB-00600169 (October 8, 2014 email in 20 which Facebook engineer Alberto Tretti emails Archibong and Papamiltiadis notifying them that
21 entities with Russian IP addresses have been using the Pinterest API access token to pull over 3
22 billion data points per day through the Ordered Friends API, a private API offered by Facebook to 23 certain companies who made extravagant ads purchases to give them a competitive advantage
24 against all other companies. Tretti sends the email because he is clearly concerned that Russian

1 entities have somehow obtained Pinterest's access token to obtain immense amounts of consumer
2 data. Merely an hour later Tretti, after meeting with Facebook's top security personnel, retracts his
3 statement without explanation, calling it only a "series of unfortunate coincidences" without 4 further explanation. It is highly unlikely that in only an hour Facebook engineers were able to 5 determine definitively that Russia had not engaged in foul play, particularly in light of Tretti's
6 clear statement that 3 billion API calls were made per day from Pinterest and that most of these 7 calls were made from Russian IP addresses when Pinterest does not maintain servers or offices in 8 Russia) is attached hereto as Exhibit 153.

11 engineering task in which Papamiltiadis, Cross and O'Neil remove Pinterest's access to the 12 Ordered Friends API the day after Tretti informs Papamiltiadis that Russian entities are using 13 Pinterest's access token to obtain billions of data points per day about consumers without their 14 permission. The task notes admit that the Ordered Friends API is a "whitelist only API" and 15 "returns non app friends" after Facebook announced publicly that access to non-app friends had 16 been removed to all developers. Employees note that Netflix is also accessing the Ordered Friends
17 API and ask why Netflix can still access it, but not Pinterest. No explanation is given and the 18 Russian IP issue raised by Tretti the day before is not mentioned. It is highly reasonable to 19 conclude from this sequence of events that Tretti was correct when he stated that Russian IP
20 addresses were accessing billions of data points about consumers directly from Facebook and that 21 Facebook did not want employees to become aware of this fact and so cut off Pinterest's access 22 without notice but also without revealing the explanation for doing so. Otherwise, why would 23 Facebook shut off Pinterest's access the very next day without any notice to Pinterest and further 24 without any explanation to Facebook's own employees?) is attached hereto as Exhibit 154.

1 155. A true and correct copy of FB-00494207 - FB-00494213 (April 2012 chat string for
2 a task entitled “URGENT: Diageo / Alcohol Gating on Apps,” in which Facebook employees note
3 that a developer, Diageo, one of the largest global alcohol suppliers, launched a cocktail
4 recommendation app and has no ability to prevent users who are under the age of 21 from seeing
5 the cocktail recommendations because Facebook is failing to pass age and other privacy
6 information to Diageo via the Platform APIs. A Facebook employee, Arthur Rudolph, who helped 7 implement the developer APIs, explains that Facebook architected the APIs so as not to provide 8 this information and that it has been this way for five to six years. Rudolph digs up a note from 9 approximately five years prior and quotes it in the task chat string: “As a wise man once said, ‘for 10 better or for worse, age restrictions only apply to who can load canvas, not API visibility... Yes, I
11 completely forgot this and just found the above (terrifically wise) quote while investigating why
12 we weren’t doing this). This has been the implementation from day 1 of app restrictions, probably 13 5-6 years ago. I assume someone from legal knows about this, and I think they’ll be required to 14 get us to actually change anything here.” This comment from Rudolph demonstrates that 15 Facebook’s failure to provide privacy and age settings in its developer APIs was not a technical 16 bug or oversight due to negligence. The failure to respect privacy and age settings in developer
17 APIs was part of the initial design and persisted for many years. That engineers wishing to address
18 this glaring privacy violation would need to do so with Facebook’s legal department demonstrates 19 clearly that this was not a bug. In other words, Diageo showed tips on how to make alcoholic 20 beverages to minors because Facebook intentionally refused to adhere to even the most basic 21 privacy requirements in designing its Platform) is attached hereto as Exhibit 155.

26 156. A true and correct copy of FB-00552036 (August 2012 email in which a Facebook
27 employee, Philip Su, notes that one of his friends, a non-Facebook employee, attempted to use a
28 custom privacy setting for photos she uploaded but changing the setting did not work. Su attempts

1 to get to the bottom of the issue around why custom privacy settings for photos do not seem to
2 work) is attached hereto as Exhibit 156.

3 157. A true and correct copy of FB-00552033 (December 2014 email in which a
4 Facebook employee, Rohan Dhruva, notes that one of his friends, a non-Facebook employee,
5 attempted to set custom privacy on a photo and it did not work. Dhruva asks if this failure in 6 custom privacy settings is a bug more than 28 months after Philip Su first reported this same issue
7 and asked the same question (Exhibit 156). That 28 months elapsed without any effort to address a
8 significant privacy violation in the way Facebook architected its Platform demonstrates clearly 9 that this desire to make it more difficult for users to restrict and control content they upload was 10 not an unintentional bug, but rather part of the design of the Platform) is attached hereto as Exhibit 11 157.

12 158. A true and correct copy of FB-01368843 - FB-01368856 (January 20, 2013 email

14 (see chart below). We are now 5% of total Ads revenue and 21% of mobile ads revenues.” Lessin
15 responds: “The neko growth is just freaking awesome. Completely exceeding my expectation re
16 what is possible re ramping up paid products.” Liu also notes that “Wechat and other competitive
17 networks are no longer advertising on Neko based on policy. (Please contact me if you have any 18 questions).” This confirms that the agreement executives reached in Exhibit 143 to restrict the 19 advertising market to any companies blacklisted on Facebook Platform was in fact implemented as 20 an official Facebook policy and that companies were in fact prevented from participating in 21 Facebook’s advertising market if they failed to meet Facebook’s arbitrary requirements to access 22 its Platform APIs) is attached hereto as Exhibit 158.

5 even the revamp of Facebook Login was not made purely out of a commitment to user privacy but 6 instead was a pretext to ensure that Facebook could enforce the reciprocity policy up front to 7 ensure Facebook extracted business value from a company prior to permitting it to access APIs
8 Facebook claimed to have fully removed to all other developers. Purdy writes to Hagman,
9 Koumouzelis, O'Neil and Federov: "I have been thinking about the challenges around reciprocity
10 and competitive enforcement (friends.get, etc.) and fact that it is all post facto. The way we are 11 structured today, you build an app on FB and then launch and then we may just shut you down,
12 harming users and the developer. I wonder if we should move as quickly as possible to a model in 13 the product where all you get from platform is login (basic info) and sharing without approval. All
14 other APIs are available in development, but have to be approved before the app launches to real
15 users (basically all apps using friends.get have to have that capability approved). We are roughly 16 on course to deliver this as part of unified review, save for the more granular approval for things
17 like friends.get? What I love about this too is we could make our whitelists so much cleaner by 18 making each capability an approval thing. Marie: I think makes your "deprecations" much easier.

6 could continue to access the data. O’Neil writes: “With PS12n, Apps won’t get access to non-app
7 friends when calling /me/friends. However, Games on Canvas with Credits will automatically get
8 this. The other main use case for non-app-friends (NAF) is tagging, but we’re building a tagging
9 API to satisfy this case. Given that, there are VERY few cases where we want an app to have non-
10 app friends. This ability will be gated by the capability. However, we still want apps to be able to 11 request access to NAF, but not make this a core part of the developer experience”) is attached

23 Ads team has built tools for advertisers. And we didn’t really talk. Most of our developers were 24 also advertisers, but internally we were just focused on our silos – we weren’t thinking about how 25 all this worked, end-to-end. A year ago, we started on this project called Neko. The idea was to 26 combine our developer tools and our Ads system into a single product to help developers become 27 successful advertisers on mobile. It was hard. Most people thought it would fail. In December of 28

1 last year, we spent hours in that room (point to the Aquarium) debating whether to shut the whole
2 thing down. We almost did. Why throw good money after bad, people kept asking? Then
3 something happened. We hit a tipping point. We fixed that one last bug, and suddenly the entire
4 system start working. And it's been growing ever since.... It's grown from nothing to $1.75M/day
5 in nine months. That's a $600M business in less than a year. That's insane! And it didn't cost us

10 which Purdy summarizes the decisions Zuckerberg communicated in October and November
11 2012, writing: "The fundamental principle that governs Platform usage is a simple concept:
12 reciprocity. Reciprocity involves a equalible [sic] value exchange between a 3rd party developer
13 and Facebook. This value exchange involves one of the following from developers: high-quality 14 experiences that FB users can use to tell great stories to their friends and family on FB and/or 15 monetary value in the form of revenue sharing or direct payment. In return, Facebook offers a 16 developers [sic] access to our Platform. When considering the implications of reciprocity it is 17 important to note that a second order principle quickly emerges: competitive access. There are a
18 small number of developers whom no amount of sharing to FB or monetary value can justify 19 giving them access to Platform.... We maintain a small list of strategic competitors that Mark
20 personally reviewed. Apps produced by the companies on this list are subject to a number of

13 168. A true and correct copy of FB-00948130 - FB-00948136 (November 2012 email in 14 which Jolley, Vernal, Yao, Purdy and Federov discuss Zuckerberg’s reciprocity decision, which 15 includes the ability for Facebook to scrape data from any developer’s website in order to address a
16 “leverage imbalance” between Facebook and the developer, without mentioning that Facebook
17 itself created this leverage imbalance in how it designed its Platform in order to become the 18 world’s largest online service. Yao describes the data scraping aspect of reciprocity as follows:
19 “We also reserve the right to crawl the partner website for the user’s data. Partners cannot blacklist
20 or block Facebook from crawling your site or using the API. If they do, Facebook reserves the 21 right to block the partner from using our APIs.... The theory behind Action Importers was that we 22 needed to balance the leverage. You can call our APIs and access our data, as long as we can call
23 your APIs (if you have them) or crawl your web site (if not) and access your data. It’s one thing to 24 drag your heels, but if we’re the ones doing the work then we force you to make a decision –

1 either you allow us access to your data, or you block us. If you block us, then it's really
2 easy/straightforward for us to decide to block you.... What's Changed? When we first started
3 discussing this, we were talking about doing this only for top partners. I think a lot of folks
4 interpreted this as just a negotiation tactic – we'd just threaten to do this if they didn't
5 cooperate.... What's changed between then and now is that this is now very clearly not a
6 negotiation tactic – this is literally the strategy for the read-side of our platform”) is attached

4 businesses with beacon, etc.’” Yul Kwon then responds to alleviate that concern in writing: “Also 5 the Growth team is now exploring a path where we only request Read Call Log permission, and 6 hold off on requesting any other permissions for now. Based on their initial testing, it seems that 7 this would allow us to upgrade users without subjecting them to an Android permissions dialog at 24 competitors) is attached hereto as Exhibit 186.

1 187. A true and correct copy of FB-01353037 - FB-01353039 (October 2013 chat string
2 in which Sukhar writes that the “case is just not very convincing right now” for PS12N because at 3 first O’Neil, Purdy and Vernal told Sukhar they were restricting API access for competitive
4 reasons, and then later Sukhar finds out it is to boost the mobile ads business. He writes: “That we
5 changed both the problem statement (whatsapp -> ads) and the solution (app friends -> third party
6 ids) sniffs to me like we’re justifying a roadmap instead of doing the right thing. Kevin is right in
7 that it will hurt morale for our team because they’ll see that the Platform is moving in a direction
8 that Parse leadership doesn’t believe in. At best, I can just go along with this and our tight knit 9 team knows it when they see it”) is attached hereto as Exhibit 187.

11 188. A true and correct copy of FB-00080931 - FB-00080943 (April 2015 email and 12 attachment summarizing various privacy-related launches and demonstrating clearly that 13 Facebook is collecting data from non-users (FB-00080937) and is acquiring through data brokers
14 information that users explicitly chose not to share with Facebook (FB-00080939)) is attached
15 hereto as Exhibit 188.

17 189. A true and correct copy of FB-01363061 - FB-01363113 (December 2013
18 presentation on “Mobile Publishing” prepared by Facebook employee David Engelberg on how 19 Facebook expects to “prove that we can pick winners,” which are defined as “healthy NEKO
20 spenders,” demonstrating that the apps who win a market will be those who buy lots of Neko ads, 21 not the ones that people like and use the most as a fair and neutral platform would require) is
22 attached hereto as Exhibit 189.

23 190. A true and correct copy of FB-01363526 – FB-01363535 (December 2013 email
24 and attached presentation entitled “Identity apps: more than just friends” in which Papamiltiadis
25 notes that “dating apps are among the bigger spender on NEKO” and that other apps that provide 26 contact management, productivity, or calendar software have overlap significantly with “our own

1 Product roadmap that could compromise our success in those areas,” and explains to Sukhar and
2 Lacker that they are auditing all these apps to get them to meet the $250k spending requirement) is
3 attached hereto as Exhibit 190.

4 191. A true and correct copy of FB-01369295 (August 2012 email discussion in which
5 Facebook employee Matt Trainer notifies his superior Lessin that “our policies say that Platform
6 data can only be used ‘to improve the application experience’ but we don’t have a good definition
7 of what the boundaries on ‘application experience’ are.” Lessin commits to working with Purdy,
8 Vernal and Osofsky to fix this issue but never does) is attached hereto as Exhibit 191.

9 192. A true and correct copy of FB-01373074 (February 2015 email from Facebook
10 employee Mary Ku confirming that seven dating apps (e.g. Tinder) received special API access to 11 APIs so PS12N would not break their apps, effectively carving up the entire dating market for 7
12 companies that made exorbitant neko ad purchases since 2012) is attached hereto as Exhibit 192.

13 193. A true and correct copy of FB-01389969 (May 2012 email discussion in which Yao
14 tells Lessin, Rait, Selekman, Osofsky and Purdy that she “just got off a call with foursquare about 15 giving us all their data,” noting that “their biggest concern here is that we will use their data to 16 bootstrap our local product especially local offers or ads. Clearly this is part of their roadmap and 17 they have doomsday scenarios around us using their data to put them out of business. This goes 18 back to the idea around who owns the data, the user or the developer.” Rait responds: “I think we 19 should be as vague as we possibly can and not commit to anything. I’m pretty wary of 20 guaranteeing (even verbally) revshare if we monetize local as we’re clearly going to do this....”) is
21 attached hereto as Exhibit 193.

22 194. A true and correct copy of FB-00454612 - FB-00454614 (January 2015
23 engineering task with the subject “‘Apps Others Use’ privacy permissions do not persist after 24 turning Platform off/on.’” The task was created in October 2014, identifying an issue that at first

1 appears to be a bug but then Facebook employees note that the Platform team may have had “good
2 reasons” for architecting the Apps Others Use system this way. The issue was never addressed in 3 more than 18 months) is attached hereto as Exhibit 194.

4 195. A true and correct copy of FB-00580073 - FB-00580074 (April 2015 chat string in
5 which Facebook employee Connie Yang notes that when she sets a photo to “Only Me,” meaning
6 that only Yang is supposed to be able to view the photo, Facebook does not send that information
7 to developers and so Yang’s photo is visible by others in the developers’ app, violating her stated
8 privacy preference that others should not be able to see the photo. Yang asks: “isn’t this directly 9 violating what we tell users is ‘Only Me’?” O’Neil responds that the privacy settings were 10 designed in this manner because it benefits apps like Tinder, and that this is not in fact a bug) is
11 attached hereto as Exhibit 195.

12 196. A true and correct copy of FB-00574447 - FB-00574448 (October 2011 email
13 discussion in which Cross writes to O’Neil that the same issue described in April 2015 in Exhibit
14 195 regarding the failure to pass privacy settings to developers existed as far back as October 15 2011. Cross writes: “If I use The Guardian’s app, in the GDP I can set my reads to be visible to 16 only me. However, the app can’t see this setting and makes my reads visible to my other friends
17 who use the app within the app’s UI. They’re getting complaints about this – users expect the 18 privacy setting they set in the GDP to be respected in the app. Do we plan to make an action’s
19 privacy settings visible via the API? How should partners deal with this case?” From at least 2011
20 through 2015 Facebook deliberately managed its Apps Others Use privacy settings in a manner
21 that made it impossible for developers to respect user privacy; senior Facebook employees were 22 aware of this issue for at least 4 years and deliberately failed to correct it) is attached hereto as
23 Exhibit 196.

1 197. A true and correct copy of FB-01215116 - FB-01215118 (February 2009 email
2 from Hadi Partovi, the founder of the popular music application iLike, complaining that Facebook
3 is manipulating the newsfeed to benefit its own products over those of developers, which was 4 contrary to “the philosophy of newsfeed parity [which] was very specifically agreed to by 5 Facebook.” In an internal email discussion, Facebook employee Ruchi Sanghvi writes that “Hadi
6 has a right to be mad” because Facebook has “gone back on that goal” of promising parity
7 between developer apps and Facebook apps, copying Cox to the note. Vernal then responds: “I
8 think we should back down on a promise of ‘parity’,” and yet at no time did Facebook officially 9 announce that it had backed down on its promise of parity between Facebook and developer apps)
10 is attached hereto as Exhibit 197.

13 198. A true and correct copy of FB-00194154 - FB-00194155 (December 2013 email in 14 which Tera Randall, a Facebook public relations employee, emails David Swain and Jonny Thaw:
15 “In prep for Platform Simplification, we’re putting together a list of developers who we think 16 could be noisy and negative in press about the changes we’re making. Primarily we think it will be 17 a list of the usual suspects from past policy enforcements. We’d love to pull from your historic 18 knowledge on the topic. Is there anybody you’d add to the list below? We’re going to build plans
19 around how we manage and communicate with each of these developers. There are also comms 20 plans in the works for working with developers who are high ad spenders and friends of 21 Mark/Sheryl.” The list includes: iLike, Rock You, Zynga, Path, Flipboard, Slide, Social Fixer, 22 SocialCam, Viddy, BranchOut, Vince, Voxer, Message Me, Lulu, Anil Dash, Super Cell, Kabam, 23 Wash Post, Guardian WSJ, Jason Calacanis, Circle, Bang with friends, Tinder, Social Roullete, 24 App Wonder, Ark, Vintage Camera, Girls Around Me) is attached hereto as Exhibit 198.

27 199. A true and correct copy of FB-01193711 (January 2014 email from Zuckerberg to 28 Vernal and Stocky in which he writes: “I’ve been thinking a lot about Tinder and other people

1 recommendation apps since about 10% of people in many countries are using a Tinder now.
2 People recommendations seems like something that should be right up our alley, but it's currently
3 something we're not very good at. Tinder's growth is especially alarming to me because their 4 product is built completely on Facebook data, and it's much better than anything we've built for 5 recommendations using the same corpus.... I think this is a big and important space and it's 6 something we should have a team working on – probably to develop people recommendation
7 Hunch sections for now”) is attached hereto as Exhibit 199.

9 200. A true and correct copy of FB-00043600 (January 2015 email in which Vernal
10 directs O'Neil to add CoffeeMeetsBagel to the dating app list getting special API access along
11 with Tinder, Hinge, and others because they are getting high profile, e.g. they “turned down $30M
12 from Mark Cuban”) is attached hereto as Exhibit 200.

14 201. A true and correct copy of FB-01217135 - FB-01217135 (a January 2014 email
15 from Greg Badros introducing Sean Rad (Tinder CEO) to Vernal so they can get together for a 16 drink so Rad can give Vernal advance notice on a big product announcement) is attached hereto as
17 Exhibit 201.

19 202. A true and correct copy of FB-00477297 - FB-00477299 (February 2012 email
20 from Vernal to O'Neil, Sjogreen, Federov and Mosseri prior to Vernal being looped into the 21 discussions between Zuckerberg, Sandberg, Rose, Olivan, Lessin, Bosworth and others around the 22 Platform Business Model. Vernal writes: “I think we should allow some friends_* permissions
23 here. It seems strange to have a social platform and not allow some friends_permissions.
24 Personally, I think we should make this include [list of a variety of friends_* permissions]”) is
25 attached hereto as Exhibit 202.

27 203. A true and correct copy of FB-00483662 - FB-00483665 (June 2012 chat string
28 between O'Neil and Vernal prior to them being made aware of the Platform Business Model

1 changes in which O'Neil writes: "I think apps in the ecosystem are better if we let them read data
2 from us." O'Neil then discusses with Vernal a meeting with Apple, noting that Apple is "willing 3 to let us whitelist read+write," and we would "grant basic / friends / email / birthday, they would 4 like to list those explicitly") is attached hereto as Exhibit 203.

6 204. A true and correct copy of FB-00569937 - FB-00569938 (August 2012 email from
7 O'Neil to Federov and another Facebook employee, Jennifer Taylor, prior to O'Neil being made
8 aware of the Platform Business Model changes. O'Neil writes: "The API improvements include:
9 1/ adding "field expansion" to the Graph API. This makes it easier for developers to read
10 properties from objects and connections in the graph. For example, developers building mobile
11 apps can read properties from a user, their friends, and their friends' photo albums in a single 12 request to the Graph API. This makes it much easier for developers to get exactly the data they 13 need for their mobile apps." Federov clarifies: "The privacy check is a NOP for these as it is just a 14 new way to access existing data. There is no new data exposed") is attached hereto as Exhibit 204.

16 205. A true and correct copy of FB-00190690 - FB-00190692 (February 2014 email
17 from public relations firm, The Outcast Agency, confirming that Facebook is paying them $45,000
18 per month strictly for public relations work associated with the changes to Facebook Platform and 19 Graph API) is attached hereto as Exhibit 205.

21 206. A true and correct copy of FB-00189010 - FB-00189020 (April 2014 internal news
22 summary circulated among Facebook employees listing articles Facebook helped place in the 23 media to cement its fraudulent narrative, including an article published on April 7, 2014 by The 24 Information, a media outlet owned by Jessica Lessin, the wife of defendant Sam Lessin, entitled
25 "Facebook Courts Developers with New Approach to Platform," arguing that Facebook's changes
26 will "draw software makers closer to its booming mobile business") is attached hereto as Exhibit 27 206.

1 207. A true and correct copy of FB-00026998 - FB-00027002 (February 2015 email in 2 which Facebook works with The Outcast Agency to develop proactive and reactive messaging to 3 control the news cycle ahead of shutting down Graph API with the goal, as communicated by 4 Facebook public relations manager Johanna Peace, of making this a “non-news item when April 5 30 comes” and tens of thousands of apps break) is attached hereto as Exhibit 207.

7 208. A true and correct copy of FB-00025985 - FB-00025992 (April 2015 email from 8 Facebook public relations manager Johanna Peace to The Outcast Agency in which Peace writes:
9 “As you know, April 30 is the Login/API migration date and we’ve already started seeing one-off 10 inquiries from press spurred by developers who are communicating to their users about the 11 upcoming changes (e.g. the Fusion story about the Tobii app, etc.). We’d like to do some proactive 12 press activities early next week, with the goal of (1) reminding and educating reporters on what’s 13 going to happen, (2) telling the big-picture story of why we’re making the changes (protecting 14 people’s information), and (3) generating some neutral/positive coverage that hits on our 15 messaging, giving us something to point back to after April 30 in case reporters notice apps
16 breaking, etc.”) is attached hereto as Exhibit 208.

19 209. A true and correct copy of FB-00025853 - FB-00025857 (April 27, 2015 email
20 from Facebook public relations manager Johanna Peace to the Outcast Agency in which she edits
21 substantially the draft language on the announcement shutting down the Graph “to focus more on 22 the people-first and control messages and...slightly less on the scary ‘things are changing’ aspect
23 ☺”) is attached hereto as Exhibit 209.

25 210. A true and correct copy of FB-00025847 - FB-00025848 (April 29, 2015 email
26 from one day before the Graph API closing went into effect from Kacie Thomas, a public relations
27 professional at The Outcast Agency to Johanna Peace, noting that “in preparation of a backlash
28 from developers who are negatively impacted by the change, recommend having a few

1 positive/happy developers (Runtastic) in our back pocket who can neutralize this for the media...if
2 this starts to bubble up.” Peace responds: “We definitely do expect some further complaints from 3 vocal developers in the next few days/weeks as the migration rolls out – we’re not out of the 4 woods yet!”) is attached hereto as Exhibit 210.

6 211. A true and correct copy of FB-00026028 - FB-00026036 (email discussion from 7 November 2014 to April 2015 between Kacie Thomas (The Outcast Agency) and Facebook public
8 relations managers, Johanna Peace and Eliza Kern, in which they prepare positive news coverage
9 in advance of shutting down tens of thousands of software applications, including in November
10 2014 obtaining and substantially editing a draft of articles for Entrepreneur.com, the online
11 affiliate of Entrepreneur Magazine. The edited article copies and pastes various statements
12 directly from Facebook’s primer to reporters, such as: “Facebook is a developer’s best friend 13 because you can build and monetize your apps” (FB-00026034 - FB-00026036)) is attached hereto
14 as Exhibit 211.

16 212. A true and correct copy of FB-01312032 (August 2013 chat string between Purdy
17 and Vernal in which they discuss Purdy’s decision to leave the company due to platform
18 mismanagement. Purdy laments that he was not able to work on the original developer platform
19 vision with Bret Taylor (FB-01312054); complains he has spent his time at Facebook “shutting off
20 developers” (FB-01312051); notes that when his team tried to build tools that helped developers, 21 Vernal told him it was “all wrong” and shut it down (FB-01312054); and describes the many 22 strategy meetings with Zuckerberg on the bait and switch scheme known internally as “PS12N” as 23 “a joke.” (FB-01312048) Vernal describes how he battled for “the past year fighting for space so
24 that we could make sane decisions about the future of platform without external randomizing
25 influences” (FB-01312049). Purdy describes Zuckerberg as “a master of leverage” that he could 26 have learned more from; Purdy and Vernal repeatedly point fingers at one another for the chaos
28

1 and complete lack of morale in the platform team because of PS12N; Vernal gives Purdy his
2 performance review in which the first reason listed for his bonus is “Neko + Payments doing
3 really well” (FB-01312063)) is attached hereto as Exhibit 212.

4 I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

23 REPORTED BY: HOLLY THUMAN, CSR No. 6834, RMR, CRR

24 (BO-137291)

25

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation; 10:09:02
2 calls for speculation. 10:09:04

3 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:09:05

4 Q. Do you know why Facebook acquired 10:09:05
5 WhatsApp? 10:09:06

6 A. I mean, I believe at the highest level, it 10:09:10
7 is a successful social product, and Facebook -- and 10:09:15
8 aligned with Facebook's mission. 10:09:19

9 Q. Do you know whether Facebook used Onavo to 10:09:23
10 track the success of WhatsApp? 10:09:29

11 A. I would -- I would need to speculate, 10:09:35
12 but -- 10:09:39

13 Q. Well, you see on this -- this chart, this 10:09:40
14 document, the horizontal axis is entitled "Onavo 10:09:43
15 Reach," and then it says, "iPhone, cellular"? 10:09:49

16 A. Yes. 10:09:52

17 Q. Does that suggest that the person who 10:09:53
18 prepared this document was using data from the 10:09:56
19 Onavo product to track WhatsApp reach versus 10:09:59
20 engagement? 10:10:07

21 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for 10:10:08
22 speculation and lacks foundation. 10:10:08

23 THE WITNESS: Because the word is "Onavo" 10:10:13
24 there, I would speculate that it is Onavo, but I do 10:10:15
25 not know what the units of the reach axis are. 10:10:18

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

10:10:22

2 Q. Does this refresh your recollection as to
3 whether Facebook used Onavo to track competitors'
4 apps?

10:10:22

10:10:24

10:10:27

5 A. Well, as I said, I believe that Facebook
6 used a -- sort of a variety of means to keep track
7 of popular apps on the market.

10:10:29

10:10:33

10:10:38

8 Q. Did Facebook use Onavo to do that?

10:10:41

9 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation
10 and calls for speculation.

10:10:45

11 THE WITNESS: I would presume so, but I
12 did not directly work on it.

10:10:49

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

10:10:51

14 Q. Do you see in the second paragraph here,
15 it says, "Bad news -- for same reach, competitors
16 have more engagement"?

10:10:51

10:10:53

10:10:57

17 A. Yes.

10:10:59

18 Q. And the only competitor that's -- that's 19 described on this page in the chart is WhatsApp.
20 Correct?

10:11:00

10:11:07

21 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
22 calls for speculation.

10:11:07

10:11:08

23 THE WITNESS: It is -- it is the only
24 other app that I see listed.

10:11:11

10:11:12

1 Q. You have no knowledge one way or the
2 other?

3 A. I don't believe anyone in this group
4 reported to me, and I have never seen this email
5 before, so I would be speculating based on what's 6 written here.

7 Q. While you were working at the company, do
8 you recall any discussions within Facebook about 9 Onavo and concerns that people were worried about 10 if they found out how Facebook was using the Onavo
11 app?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Compound.

13 THE WITNESS: I don't recall any 14 conversations on this topic, at least that I was a 15 part of.

16 MR. GODKIN: Okay. Let's mark as the next
17 exhibit Facebook 01188663 through -665.

18 (Deposition Exhibit 6 was marked for
19 identification.)

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. We've placed in front of you Exhibit 6, 22 Mr. Vernal. This one you were on the email. If 23 you'd take a minute to review it.

24 A. (Examining document.) Okay.

25 Q. First of all, is this an example of a chat

1 using the Facebook Messenger system that we talked 10:37:35
2 about earlier? 10:37:39

3 A. I believe so. 10:37:40

4 Q. So this is the kind of thing you told me 10:37:41
5 about that you can sign into your Messenger account 10:37:44
6 and produce things that look like this? 10:37:46

7 A. I believe the way it works is, this isn't 10:37:54
8 how it looks when using either the web product or 10:38:00
9 the mobile product. I believe this is how it works 10:38:03
10 for sort of document retention purposes. 10:38:06

11 Q. Okay. And in any event, you were on 10:38:08
12 this -- you were in this chat string -- correct? -- 10:38:11
13 because your name is there. 10:38:15

14 A. Yes. 10:38:16

15 Q. And so in the first paragraph, it starts 10:38:17
16 with Mr. Michael LeBeau writing. 10:38:20

17 Do you see that? 10:38:24

18 A. Yes. 10:38:24

19 Q. And do you know who Mr. LeBeau is? 10:38:25

20 A. Yes. 10:38:27

21 Q. Who is he? 10:38:27

22 A. I believe he was either an engineer or a 10:38:29
23 PM, I can't recall which, on a team in New York. 10:38:33

24 Q. And he -- he says in the first paragraph 10:38:39
25 that the growth team -- the growth team was the one 10:38:42

1 you mentioned earlier that is what Mr. Olivan runs 10:38:47
2 or ran at the time. Correct? 10:38:50

3 A. Yes. 10:38:52

4 Q. -- is going to -- does he say that they're 10:38:55
5 going to track the call logs of people who are 10:38:58
6 using Facebook on Android phones? 10:39:00

7 A. I do not believe that that's what he says. 10:39:06

8 Q. Well, he says, "the growth team is 10:39:08
9 planning on shipping a permissions update on 10:39:10
10 Android." Right? 10:39:12

11 A. I believe he says, "They are going to 10:39:17
12 include the 'read call log' permission, which will 10:39:19
13 trigger the Android permissions dialogue on update, 10:39:22
14 requiring users to accept the update." 10:39:25

15 Q. And then he says that: 10:39:27

16 "They will then provide an in-app opt-in 10:39:28
17 NUX for a feature that let you continuously 10:39:33
18 upload your SMS and call log history to 10:39:37
19 Facebook to be used for improving things like 10:39:41
20 PYMK, coefficient calculation, feed ranking, 10:39:44
21 et cetera." 10:39:49

22 Right? 10:39:49

23 A. Yes. 10:39:49

24 Q. What is NUX? 10:39:50

25 A. I believe it stands for new user 10:39:52

1 experience.

10:39:54

2 Q. And PYMK is --

10:39:54

3 A. People you may know.

10:39:57

4 Q. So isn't what he's referring to here that 5 Facebook -- the growth team of Facebook is going to 6 track call logs of people using it on an Android
7 phone?

10:39:59

10:40:01

10:40:08

8 A. I believe what he is saying is that
9 Facebook was going to launch a feature that users
10 can opt into to improve the Facebook experience by 11 leveraging the -- sort of the people you
12 communicate with most and helping you find them and 13 prioritize their content on Facebook.

10:40:09

10:40:11

10:40:15

10:40:20

10:40:25

14 Q. Okay. And then he goes on to say, "This
15 is a pretty high-risk thing to do from a PR
16 perspective but it appears that the growth team
17 will charge ahead and do it."

10:40:28

10:40:31

10:40:38

18 Do you see that?

10:40:40

10:40:40

20 Q. What is your understanding of why it was a 21 pretty high-risk thing to do from a PR perspective?

10:40:43

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
23 calls for speculation.

10:40:47

10:40:47

24 THE WITNESS: Well, I believe this was the 25 opinion of either a PM or an engineer. And based

1 on sort of the subsequent conversation, it appears 10:40:57
2 it was not an opinion that I shared at the time. 10:41:03

3 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:41:06

4 Q. And Mr. LeBeau says in his third paragraph 10:41:07
5 that he's concerned about stories appearing along 10:41:11
6 the lines of, quote, "Facebook uses new Android 10:41:16
7 update to pry into your private life in ever more 10:41:20
8 terrifying ways -- reading your call logs, tracking 10:41:23
9 you in businesses with beacons, et cetera." 10:41:27

10 Do you see that? 10:41:35

11 A. Yes. 10:41:36

12 Q. And then he refers to Gravity. 10:41:36

13 Do you see that? 10:41:38

14 A. Yes. 10:41:39

15 Q. And what was Gravity, or what is Gravity? 10:41:41

16 A. I believe it was the -- it was a code name 10:41:44
17 for a project that he was working on. 10:41:49

18 Q. And do you know what the nature of that 10:41:51
19 project was? 10:41:52

20 A. It was -- it was an experience for when 10:41:53
21 you walked into a small business, sort of a small 10:41:58
22 local business, that you could easily sort of find 10:42:02
23 that business's page within the Facebook app and 10:42:06
24 interact with that business. 10:42:09

25 Q. Okay. And then you write on page -64, the 10:42:11

1 next page, "I acknowledge but tend to be less 10:42:19
2 concerned about this risk than you guys are." 10:42:24

3 A. Yes. 10:42:26

4 Q. Why were you less concerned about the 10:42:27
5 risk? 10:42:29

6 A. Because I felt that -- well, I felt that 10:42:33
7 Michael was taking a -- an extreme point of view 10:42:39
8 around -- he had a project that he was working on, 10:42:51
9 and he wanted to -- he wanted to minimize -- he 10:42:54
10 wanted to clear the path for his project to be 10:42:59
11 successful and I felt was being hyperbolic about 10:43:01
12 other projects as a way of clearing the path for 10:43:06
13 his project. 10:43:08

14 Q. Do you think that people who use Facebook 10:43:10
15 know that Facebook is tracking their call logs? 10:43:14

16 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation; 10:43:17
17 misstates the document and testimony; calls for 10:43:17
18 speculation. 10:43:24

19 THE WITNESS: I mean, I -- so I first have 10:43:24
20 no idea if this feature was ever launched or not. 10:43:27
21 So I think here, this conversation is one group 10:43:31
22 talking about what another group may or may not do, 10:43:34
23 and so I don't know if it ever launched. 10:43:38

24 As described here, it seems like a feature 10:43:40
25 that has -- that users could affirmatively opt into 10:43:46

1 with a new user experience to improve your Facebook
2 experience. So I would have to speculate about,
3 one, whether this ever launched; and two, what the 4 experience was. But it seems like this was an
5 opt-in experience to improve the Facebook
6 experience for uses.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. While you worked for the company, did
9 Facebook ever track the call logs of its users?

10 A. I have no knowledge of that.

11 Q. And then further down on page 2 is some 12 entries by Yul Kwon.

13 Do you see that?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. And is that a he or a she?

16 A. It's a he.

17 Q. He writes:

18 "Also, the Growth team is now exploring a
19 path where we only request Read Call Log 20 permission and hold off ongoing any other
21 permissions for now.

22 "Based on their initial testing, it seems
23 that this would allow us to upgrade users
24 without subjecting them to an Android
25 permissions dialog at all."

1 What is your understanding of what that 10:44:51
2 means? 10:44:53

3 A. I do not know. 10:44:54

4 Q. Does it mean that Facebook will be able to 10:44:58
5 track call logs of Android users without having to 10:45:02
6 ask them permission when they upgrade the app? 10:45:06

7 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation, 10:45:09
8 calls for speculation. 10:45:10

9 THE WITNESS: I would be speculating, but 10:45:13
10 that is not what I think it means. 10:45:14

11 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:45:16

12 Q. What do you think it means? 10:45:16

13 A. I -- so again, I have no idea if this 10:45:20
14 feature ever launched, and I don't think I've ever 10:45:27
15 seen this feature. But my interpretation of the 10:45:29
16 first paragraph of this conversation refers to sort 10:45:33
17 of an in-app opt-in user experience where people 10:45:40
18 can turn this feature on. 10:45:45

19 And so the term "in app" in this context I 10:45:47
20 think refers to a new user experience within the 10:45:50
21 Facebook app; and "opt-in" in this context I think 10:45:53
22 refers to an experience where users affirmatively 10:45:57
23 decide to turn this on. 10:46:00

24 And so I don't see anything here that 10:46:02
25 would change my interpretation of that first 10:46:04

1 paragraph. 10:46:05

2 Q. Did Facebook ever implement any SMS log 10:46:07

3 tracking for users on Android phones, do you know? 10:46:12

4 A. I have no knowledge of that. 10:46:16

5 Q. What about iPhone phones? 10:46:17

6 A. I have no knowledge of that. 10:46:19

7 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark as the next 10:46:38

8 exhibit a document with Facebook's numbers 89734 10:46:40

9 through -742. 10:46:45

10 (Deposition Exhibit 7 was marked for 10:46:46

11 identification.) 10:46:48

12 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:47:03

13 Q. I've handed you Exhibit 7, Mr. Vernal. 10:47:05

14 Take a moment to look at it. I'm going to ask you 10:47:08

15 mostly about the second page. 10:47:11

16 And it's the first full little section of 10:47:58

17 the second page, starting "A researcher flagged and 10:48:01

18 publicized..." 10:48:06

19 A. (Examining document.) Okay. 10:48:10

20 Q. So Exhibit 7 is a -- appears to be a 10:51:19

21 weekly privacy update. 10:51:22

22 Do you see that? 10:51:24

23 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation 10:51:25

24 and calls for speculation. 10:51:26

25 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I was not -- I don't 10:51:28

1 believe I was on the recipient list for this, so I 10:51:30
2 don't think I've seen this before. So I would 10:51:33
3 speculate given the subject line, but I have no 10:51:36
4 direct knowledge. 10:51:39

5 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:51:40

6 Q. Well, that's what I was going to ask you, 10:51:40
7 because on the first page, you see there is an 10:51:42
8 email from Matt Scutari on December 11th, 2013, and 10:51:45
9 he says, "Hi everyone." 10:51:50

10 A. Yes. 10:51:53

11 Q. So my question is, do you know who this 10:51:54
12 weekly privacy update was generally sent to? 10:51:55

13 A. I do not. 10:51:59

14 Q. Do you think it was not sent to you? 10:52:01

15 A. I don't recall getting these, but I could 10:52:07
16 be wrong. 10:52:09

17 Q. All right. And if you turn to the second 10:52:12
18 page, the entry entitled "PYMK Friends List 10:52:13
19 Visibility," PYMK is the people you may know that 10:52:21
20 you've talked about earlier? 10:52:25

21 A. Yes. 10:52:27

22 Q. And that's basically used to suggest 10:52:29
23 potential friends that you might want to connect 10:52:34
24 with on Facebook? 10:52:35

25 A. I believe so. 10:52:38

1 Q. Does this -- this little section here, it 10:52:42
2 says, "This is an intended behavior designed to 10:52:45
3 maximize the relevance of PYMK suggestions for new 10:52:49
4 users." 10:52:56

5 Do you see that? 10:52:57

6 A. I see it. 10:52:58

7 Q. Does that suggest that Facebook was 10:52:59
8 ignoring privacy settings on users' lists? 10:53:02

9 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation, 10:53:09
10 calls for speculation, argumentative. 10:53:09

11 THE WITNESS: I have no direct knowledge 10:53:13
12 of either this broader email or this specific, sort 10:53:15
13 of, row. 10:53:21

14 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:53:22

15 Q. Was there a group at Facebook called 10:53:22
16 "Privacy"? 10:53:32

17 A. There was a -- I do not believe there was 10:53:34
18 a singular group called "Privacy." 10:53:36

19 Q. Was there some sort of a -- some kind of a 10:53:39
20 group that addressed privacy-related issues? 10:53:41

21 A. I believe there was a sort of privacy XFN 10:53:47
22 group, XFN standing for cross-functional, that 10:53:51
23 incorporated a number of constituents. 10:53:56

24 Q. Okay. Do you know in 2013 who was part of 10:53:59
25 that? 10:54:01

1 A. I do not.

10:54:01

2 Q. If you will turn to page -38. I'm
3 referring to the Bates numbers at the bottom.

10:54:08

10:54:11

4 A. Yep.

10:54:15

5 Q. There's an entry there called "Onavo app
6 lookalike targeting."

10:54:16

10:54:18

7 Do you see that?

10:54:21

8 A. Yes.

10:54:22

9 Q. And it -- the text is:

10:54:24

10 "Proposed test with a few advertisers,
11 where Onavo would pass ad identifiers for 12 devices that have an advertiser's app
13 installed to Facebook. Facebook would create 14 a lookalike audience that would allow
15 targeting of people who are demographically
16 similar to those who have the app installed."

10:54:25

10:54:28

10:54:31

10:54:35

10:54:38

10:54:41

10:54:43

17 Do you see that?

10:54:47

18 A. Yes.

10:54:47

19 Q. So does that suggest that Facebook was 20 considering using Onavo to target advertising to 21 people who were similar to the Facebook users?

10:54:48

10:54:54

10:55:01

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation
23 and calls for speculation.

10:55:06

10:55:07

24 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I have no direct
25 knowledge either of this broader email or this

10:55:11

10:55:13

1 particular row, so I would just be speculating. 10:55:15

2 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:55:18

3 Q. All right. Turn to page -40, then. 10:55:19

4 There's an entry there called "Use of Call Log 10:55:24

5 Data," and then it starts: Product wants to use 10:55:28

6 call log data (e.g. duration/frequency -- bless 10:55:31

7 you -- recency of incoming/outgoing calls/text, to 10:55:36

8 generate PYMK suggestions following contact import. 10:55:41

9 Do you see that? 10:55:46

10 A. Yes, I see it. 10:55:47

11 Q. And product, was that a group within 10:55:49

12 Facebook, the product group? 10:55:51

13 A. No, not really. 10:55:55

14 Q. Well, what is your understanding of what 10:55:56

15 the word "product" here is referring to? 10:55:59

16 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation, 10:56:03

17 calls for speculation. 10:56:04

18 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I would -- I think 10:56:08

19 this is probably a shorthand for the sort of -- the 10:56:10

20 product/engineering/design group within some org. 10:56:18

21 I don't know which org. 10:56:24

22 BY MR. GODKIN: 10:56:25

23 Q. Were you aware that somebody within 10:56:26

24 Facebook wanted to use call log data in this 10:56:29

25 fashion? 10:56:32

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation. 11:02:36

2 THE WITNESS: So I was not in the employ 11:02:39

3 of the company at the time, but I believe that 11:02:42

4 Facebook was making available its platform for 11:02:44

5 people to use. 11:02:47

6 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:02:48

7 Q. And at the time you joined Facebook, did 11:02:49

8 you -- did it come to your attention that Facebook 11:02:53

9 was actually encouraging developers to build 11:02:56

10 applications and businesses on the platform? 11:02:59

11 A. I believe that Facebook was making its 11:03:03

12 platform available to developers and informing them 11:03:07

13 about it, yes. 11:03:10

14 Q. But are you saying they -- Facebook was 11:03:12

15 not encouraging people to use the platform to build 11:03:13

16 applications and businesses? 11:03:17

17 MS. MILLER: Objection. Argumentative. 11:03:19

18 Go ahead. 11:03:21

19 THE WITNESS: I -- I do not know if there 11:03:21

20 is a specific definition to "encouraging." I would 11:03:24

21 say that we -- Facebook made a platform available 11:03:27

22 to folks and was informing and -- informing the 11:03:30

23 community about that platform. 11:03:34

24 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:03:35

25 Q. And was informing the community about the 11:03:36

1 platform because it wanted people to actually use 11:03:39
2 it to develop applications and businesses. 11:03:41

3 Correct? 11:03:44

4 A. Presumably, yes. 11:03:46

5 Q. There would have been no other reason do 11:03:48
6 that, would there? 11:03:50

7 MS. MILLER: Objection. Argumentative. 11:03:51

8 THE WITNESS: It is -- I -- the platform 11:03:53
9 existed as a way for developers to sort of 11:03:59
10 integrate with Facebook. 11:04:03

11 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:04:04

12 Q. Is it true that starting in 2007, at least 11:04:05
13 until early 2014, Facebook was representing to the 11:04:12
14 public that developers had access to Graph API 11:04:17
15 data, including the full friends list, friends 11:04:25
16 permissions, and News Feed APIs? 11:04:27

17 MS. MILLER: Objection. Compound. 11:04:31

18 THE WITNESS: It is -- there are multiple 11:04:34
19 questions in there, and I believe that the 11:04:37
20 Graph API did not come into existence, or at least 11:04:39
21 public access, until sometime in the 2010 time 11:04:43
22 frame. 11:04:45

23 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:04:46

24 Q. But as of the 2007 time frame, is it true 11:04:46
25 that Facebook was representing to the public that 11:04:51

1 developers would have access to the full friends 11:04:55

2 list, friends permissions, and News Feed APIs? 11:04:57

3 A. I do not believe that question as stated 11:05:03

4 is true. 11:05:05

5 Q. What is not true about it? 11:05:05

6 A. Multiple parts. 11:05:07

7 Q. What parts? 11:05:08

8 A. Can you break down the question so that I 11:05:09

9 can answer it singularly? 11:05:10

10 Q. Sure. Is it true that beginning in 2007, 11:05:12

11 Facebook represented to the public that developers 11:05:15

12 had access to the full friends list? 11:05:19

13 A. I believe that in 2007, Facebook made 11:05:25

14 available an API via which users could grant an 11:05:29

15 application access to their friend list subject to 11:05:38

16 the user's consent and the developer's acceptance 11:05:41

17 of Facebook policies and a handful of, you know, 11:05:46

18 sort of footnotes. But yes. 11:05:49

19 Q. Okay. Same question regarding friends 11:05:52

20 permissions. 11:05:55

21 A. I do not believe friends permissions came 11:05:56

22 into existence until perhaps 2009 or 2010. 11:06:00

23 Probably 2010. 11:06:06

24 Q. But as of the date it came into existence, 11:06:07

25 it's true that Facebook was representing to the 11:06:11

1 public that developers had access to friends

11:06:13

2 permissions. Correct?

11:06:16

3 A. When that launched, which -- when

11:06:21

4 friends permissions, as I interpret -- as I

11:06:25

5 interpret what you mean, came into existence, I --

11:06:30

6 I believe that -- again, developers could ask a

11:06:37

7 user to grant them access to -- could grant them

11:06:41

8 those permissions, subject to the user's consent

11:06:50

9 and the developer's acceptance of the terms and the 11:06:53

10 like.

11:06:56

11 Q. When did the News Feed API come into

11:06:56

12 existence?

11:06:59

13 A. I believe either late 2008, or maybe

11:07:01

14 sometime in 2009.

11:07:10

15 Q. As of the date that it came into

11:07:12

16 existence, did Facebook represent to the public

11:07:14

17 that developers had access to the News Feed API?

11:07:17

18 A. Again, I believe that -- I believe that

11:07:23

19 developers could ask users to grant them access to 11:07:29

20 this API.

11:07:35

21 Q. Starting in 2007, did Facebook represent

11:07:36

22 to developers that they would have a level

11:07:39

23 competitive playing field to build their business?

11:07:42

24 A. I was not in the employ of Facebook at the 11:07:47

25 time, and so I would be speculating.

11:07:51

1 management team weigh in at all? 11:48:30

2 A. I believe so, yes. 11:48:32

3 Q. What was Mr. Zuckerberg's view? 11:48:33

4 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague as to time 11:48:38
5 and compound. 11:48:39

6 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't know if there 11:48:41
7 was a single view. I imagine there were multiple 11:48:42
8 views, and that they evolved over time. 11:48:45

9 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:48:48

10 Q. What was Sheryl Sandberg's view? 11:48:48

11 MS. MILLER: Same objections. 11:48:51

12 THE WITNESS: Same answer. 11:48:52

13 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:48:53

14 Q. Cox? 11:48:53

15 MS. MILLER: Same objections. 11:48:54

16 THE WITNESS: Same answer. 11:48:55

17 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:48:56

18 Q. Schroepfer? 11:48:56

19 A. Mike Schroepfer -- 11:48:58

20 MS. MILLER: Same objections. 11:48:59

21 THE WITNESS: Sorry. Same answer. 11:49:00

22 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:49:01

23 Q. So now focus your attention on before 11:49:05

24 April 30 of 2015. So in other words, before this 11:49:10

25 change was implemented. 11:49:14

1 Is -- was it possible for a user of 11:49:16
2 Facebook to prevent a developer app from accessing 11:49:21
3 My Photos, or the user's photos, on an app that was 11:49:26
4 installed? 11:49:34

5 MS. MILLER: Objection. 11:49:38

6 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:49:39

7 Q. In other words, was there something a user 11:49:39
8 could do to make sure that these apps did not have 11:49:41
9 access to data such as photos? 11:49:43

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague as to what 11:49:46
11 "these apps" are. 11:49:47

12 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:49:48

13 Q. Any app. 11:49:49

14 A. There is -- I feel like it is a nuanced 11:49:50
15 question. 11:49:53

16 I think the short answer is, yes, there 11:49:54
17 were many ways for users to prevent access to apps 11:49:56
18 accessing either their data -- their data. 11:50:03

19 Q. So let's talk about photos for now. 11:50:07

20 It's true that there was a box that could 11:50:09
21 be checked that, you know, the user could check it 11:50:11
22 if they didn't want access to be shared of, let's 11:50:15
23 say, their friends' photos that were on the site? 11:50:21

24 A. I believe the -- the exact manifestation 11:50:24
25 of this evolved over time, but I think generally 11:50:27

1 A. Well, I believe that people could do it on 11:53:37
2 the app themselves, or they could do it on another 11:53:40
3 app like a Twitter or an Instagram or a WeChat or a 11:53:44
4 WhatsApp or the like. 11:53:49

5 So I think there are many platforms for 11:53:50
6 sharing information with friends. 11:53:53

7 Q. Did Facebook benefit from enticing 11:53:54
8 developers to develop apps on Platform? 11:53:59

9 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague, compound, 11:54:03
10 argumentative. 11:54:05

11 THE WITNESS: I -- I believe that both 11:54:07
12 developers and Facebook benefited by sort of the 11:54:11
13 use of Platform. 11:54:17

14 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:54:19

15 Q. It helped Facebook grow dramatically, did 11:54:20
16 it not, having all these developers writing apps 11:54:23
17 for the Facebook platform? 11:54:27

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague and 11:54:28
19 ambiguous, calls for speculation. 11:54:29

20 THE WITNESS: It is not clear that it 11:54:31
21 helped -- the answer is not clear. 11:54:32

22 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:54:33

23 Q. Okay. Let me dig out another document 11:54:35
24 here. I wish Facebook could develop something to 11:54:38
25 make my eyesight better. 11:54:55

1 Let's mark as the next document Facebook 11:55:05
2 document with the numbers 927553 through -56. 11:55:09
3 (Deposition Exhibit 9 was marked for 11:55:13
4 identification.) 11:55:15
5 BY MR. GODKIN: 11:55:35
6 Q. I've placed in front of you Exhibit 9, 11:55:35
7 which is a February 2013 email from Purdy to you -- 11:55:37
8 or it's not an email. It's one of these chat 11:55:45
9 things -- 11:55:47
10 A. Yes. 11:55:48
11 Q. So just take a minute to look at it. 11:55:48
12 A. Okay. (Examining document.) 11:55:51
13 Q. And I'm just going to ask you about 11:56:28
14 something on the first page. 11:56:30
15 A. Okay. 11:58:04
16 Q. So on the first page of Exhibit 9, there's 11:58:05
17 a bunch of your entries here. One of them starts 11:58:09
18 with number 3. And you wrote, "When we started 11:58:13
19 Facebook Platform, we were small and wanted to make 11:58:17
20 sure we were an essential part of the Internet." 11:58:20
21 Do you see that? 11:58:23
22 A. Uh-huh. 11:58:24
23 Q. And then, "We've done that -- we are now 11:58:25
24 the biggest service on earth." 11:58:27
25 So in 2013, when you wrote this, what did 11:58:29

1 you mean, "we are the biggest service on earth"? 11:58:32

2 A. I -- presumably, what I meant was that we 11:58:36
3 had the most number of engaged monthly active users 11:58:41
4 of any Internet-accessible service. 11:58:45

5 Q. About what was that number at the time you 11:58:49
6 wrote this? 11:58:51

7 A. I conjecture 1.1 billion, only because I 11:58:52
8 mention it up above. 11:58:56

9 Q. And what is it today? 11:58:57

10 A. I don't know. It is on -- I don't know if 11:58:58
11 it's hit 2 billion yet. It's on the order of 2 11:59:01
12 billion. 11:59:05

13 Q. Okay. And then you wrote, "When we were 11:59:05
14 small, apps helped drive our ubiquity." 11:59:07

15 Do you see that? 11:59:11

16 A. Yes. 11:59:12

17 Q. What did you mean by, "apps helped drive 11:59:13
18 our ubiquity"? 11:59:16

19 A. So I -- stepping up one level -- I don't 11:59:20
20 have the full context for this thread. But what -- 11:59:26
21 the way I am interpreting this is, it looks like I 11:59:30
22 am giving feedback to Doug on how to -- how to tell 11:59:32
23 a certain story. I don't know the audience for 11:59:39
24 that story; I don't know if it was internal or 11:59:41
25 external or the like. 11:59:43

1	And so I -- I think -- I think what I'm	11:59:44
2	saying here is that when we were small, sort of,	11:59:49
3	the integrations that we offered -- specifically,	11:59:58
4	things like Facebook login helped to drive, sort	12:00:02
5	of, just general awareness of Facebook. And I	12:00:05
6	think now, at this point, Facebook probably has	12:00:08
7	good brand awareness. Like ubiquitous brand	12:00:13
8	awareness.	12:00:19

9	Q. So what you're saying, then, is, when	12:00:20
10	Facebook was a smaller company, encouraging all of	12:00:22
11	these third-party app developers to develop apps on	12:00:27
12	the platform is one of the things that helped the	12:00:29
13	company grow. Correct?	12:00:31

14	MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the	12:00:33
15	testimony.	12:00:35

16	BY MR. GODKIN:	12:00:35
----	----------------	----------

17	Q. To the point of ubiquity.	12:00:35
----	------------------------------	----------

18	A. I think it -- I think what I'm saying, it	12:00:38
19	is one of what I think is likely many things.	12:00:40

20	Q. But that's the only one you wrote about	12:00:45
21	here.	12:00:46

22	A. Given the context of the email, yes.	12:00:47
----	---	----------

23	Q. Is it fair to say that a social network	12:00:52
24	like Facebook would have different business	12:00:58
25	priorities when it had, say, 10 million users	12:01:01

1 versus when it has 1 billion users? 12:01:05

2 A. It is likely fair to say that. 12:01:10

3 Q. Then you go on to say, "Now that we are 12:01:14

4 big," then in parentheses, "(many) apps are looking 12:01:16

5 to syphon off our users to competitive services. 12:01:20

6 We need to be more thoughtful about what 12:01:24

7 integrations we allow, and we need to make sure 12:01:27

8 that we have sustainable, long-term value 12:01:30

9 exchanges." 12:01:32

10 Is that what you wrote? 12:01:33

11 A. I believe that's what I wrote. 12:01:35

12 Q. And when you say "sustainable, long-term 12:01:36

13 value exchanges," what do you mean by that? 12:01:42

14 A. I believe that -- effectively, what it 12:01:47

15 says. But where we have apps developing on the 12:01:56

16 platform, the value exchange between the app and 12:01:58

17 Facebook and users needs to both be sustainable 12:02:01

18 and -- sustainable in that instance and sustainable 12:02:07

19 over a period of time. 12:02:13

20 Q. So when Facebook was a smaller social 12:02:14

21 network, the value exchange was, allowing all these 12:02:17

22 third-party developers to develop apps was going to 12:02:21

23 help the company grow. Correct? 12:02:24

24 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the 12:02:26

25 testimony and the document. 12:02:27

1 THE WITNESS: I don't think that was 12:02:30

2 the -- it certainly wasn't the only, and I don't 12:02:31

3 think it was even the primary, value exchange, no. 12:02:35

4 BY MR. GODKIN: 12:02:38

5 Q. So you're saying -- your testimony here 12:02:39

6 today is that you don't think allowing third-party 12:02:42

7 developers to develop apps on the platform gave 12:02:44

8 something to Facebook in the form of helping the 12:02:49

9 company grow rapidly to being one of the biggest 12:02:53

10 companies on the planet? 12:02:57

11 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the 12:02:58

12 testimony. 12:02:59

13 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't believe that 12:03:00

14 was my testimony. 12:03:00

15 MR. GODKIN: Okay. All right. Let's mark 12:03:01

16 as the next exhibit Facebook 943406 and -07. 12:03:20

17 (Deposition Exhibit 10 was marked for 12:03:28

18 identification.) 12:03:29

19 BY MR. GODKIN: 12:03:49

20 Q. I've handed you Exhibit 10, Mr. Vernal, 12:03:50

21 which is an email or a series of emails involving 12:03:53

22 Andrew Bosworth and you and a variety of other 12:03:55

23 people dated in December of 2012. 12:03:59

24 A. Okay. Should I review it? 12:04:03

25 Q. Well, you're free to review it, and I'll 12:04:07

1 Q. But you, obviously, can't testify about 12:13:16
2 conversations that Mr. Zuckerberg had with 12:13:18
3 Mr. Bosworth that you weren't present for. 12:13:19
4 Correct? 12:13:21
5 A. Presumably not. 12:13:23
6 Q. Nobody ever told you about discussions 12:13:23
7 that they were having privately? 12:13:25
8 A. Not that I know of. 12:13:26
9 MR. GODKIN: Okay. Let's mark as the next 12:13:27
10 exhibit Facebook 948764 and -65. 12:14:01
11 (Deposition Exhibit 11 was marked for 12:14:04
12 identification.) 12:14:07
13 BY MR. GODKIN: 12:14:28
14 Q. I've handed you Vernal Exhibit 11, 12:14:28
15 Mr. Vernal. Take a minute to look at it. 12:14:33
16 A. Okay. (Examining document.) 12:14:37
17 Okay. 12:15:43
18 Q. So Exhibit 11 is a chat string that you 12:15:43
19 sent to Mr. Zuckerberg, Mr. Lessin, Mr. Rose, and 12:15:48
20 Mr. Purdy on November 16th, 2012. Correct? 12:15:53
21 A. Yes. 12:15:56
22 Q. And it looks like you're addressing it to 12:15:57
23 Mark. Correct? 12:16:00
24 A. Yes. 12:16:01
25 Q. That's Mr. Zuckerberg? 12:16:01

1 A. Yes. 12:16:03

2 Q. And then you -- go down to the bottom of 12:16:04

3 the first page. The very bottom entry, it says, 12:16:11

4 "And, obviously, there is the PBM conversation." 12:16:14

5 Do you see that? 12:16:18

6 A. Yes. 12:16:19

7 Q. So PBM stands for Platform business model? 12:16:19

8 A. I presume so in this context. 12:16:24

9 Q. Well, you wrote it, so -- 12:16:26

10 A. Yeah. 12:16:27

11 Q. -- do you think that's what it stands for? 12:16:28

12 A. As I said, I presume so in this context. 12:16:30

13 Q. All right. I just don't really like it 12:16:33

14 when you presume, especially when it's your own 12:16:35

15 writing. But that's fine. 12:16:38

16 And you say there are three options here. 12:16:40

17 Free friends is one of them. 12:16:42

18 Do you see that? 12:16:47

19 A. Uh-huh. 12:16:47

20 Q. Yes? You just need to say "yes" -- 12:16:48

21 A. Yes. 12:16:51

22 Q. -- because otherwise the court reporter 12:16:51

23 can't write it down. 12:16:53

24 A. Well, I think for precision, then, the 12:16:54

25 first option says: free friends, comma, paid 12:16:57

1 coefficient and total reciprocity for all. 12:17:00

2 Q. Well, aren't those the three choices? 12:17:03

3 A. I don't believe so. 12:17:06

4 Q. So -- 12:17:07

5 A. I mean, I think there's two more traces on 12:17:09
6 the next page. 12:17:12

7 Q. I see. All right. So then, what do you 12:17:13
8 mean when you say free friends? 12:17:15

9 A. So I don't -- so I don't recall 12:17:29
10 specifically. I think we were having a kind of 12:17:32
11 freewheeling brainstorm about the Platform business 12:17:37
12 model, and these were three options we were 12:17:41
13 considering at the time. I don't believe we went 12:17:44
14 with any of these options. 12:17:47

15 Q. All right. So the first of the three 12:17:49
16 options was, free friends, paid coefficient, and 12:17:51
17 total reciprocity for all. Correct? 12:17:57

18 A. Yes. 12:17:59

19 Q. And so when you used the term "free 12:18:01
20 friends" as part of that first option, does that 12:18:04
21 mean the full friends list, or non-app friends? 12:18:07
22 What does it mean? 12:18:12

23 A. I don't think -- I doubt it was at that 12:18:14
24 level of specificity. 12:18:20

25 Q. Okay. When you say, "paid coeff" -- that 12:18:21

1 stands for coefficient? 12:18:27

2 A. Yes. 12:18:29

3 Q. Does that mean an API that would recommend 12:18:30
4 a limited number of non-app friends? 12:18:33

5 A. I don't think so. That's not how I word 12:18:37
6 it. That's not how I interpret it. 12:18:41

7 Q. Well, what did you mean when you wrote 12:18:47
8 this? 12:18:49

9 A. So coefficient was -- the way I recall 12:18:49
10 coefficient was, it was a system that helped you 12:18:52
11 sort or rank your friends by, effectively, which 12:18:55
12 one were your top friends. You know, which friends 12:18:59
13 were you most engaged with. 12:19:01

14 And so I think here the question was, 12:19:06
15 should we offer coefficient in some paid form to 12:19:09
16 developers? 12:19:13

17 Q. Okay. And then when you say total 12:19:14
18 reciprocity for all, what does that mean? 12:19:17

19 A. So I believe at the time we were talking 12:19:23
20 about the -- the right user model for users to use 12:19:26
21 apps. And in particular, we were concerned about 12:19:38
22 apps that only let users bring data from Facebook 12:19:43
23 into the app but didn't offer users the ability to 12:19:48
24 then share data back to Facebook. 12:19:52

25 And so we were contemplating ways to make 12:19:53

1 that relationship symmetric. And I think total
2 reciprocity in this case meant that if you were 3 accessing data from Facebook, you gave people the 4 ability to also share that same kind of data back
5 to Facebook.

12:19:58
12:20:02
12:20:04
12:20:10
12:20:12

6 And let me caveat that all by saying, this
7 is my recollection, best of recollection.

12:20:14
12:20:17

8 Q. That's fine. So is it fair to say,
9 Mr. Vernal, that the topic of this document is 10 these -- you know, in rough form, these changes
11 that were implemented and announced -- strike
12 that -- were announced in April of 2014 and 13 implemented in 2015?

12:20:20
12:20:22
12:20:27
12:20:32
12:20:34
12:20:38

14 A. No, I don't think that is fair to say.

12:20:40

15 Q. Well, you were talking here about some 16 potential changes to, you know, how you were going
17 to allow developers to access data on the Facebook
18 platform. Correct?

12:20:42
12:20:45
12:20:50
12:20:53

19 A. We are -- so I think your question was 20 something to the effect of, is it fair to say that 21 this document is about the changes that were being 22 made in --

12:20:56
12:20:59
12:21:03
12:21:05

23 Q. That's not what I meant to ask. Let me
24 ask it begin.

12:21:06
12:21:08

25 Is it fair to say that the general topic

12:21:09

1 of this document is a discussion about potential
2 changes to the platform that culminated in an
3 announcement that was made in April of 2014?

4 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague.

5 THE WITNESS: It's not how I would
6 characterize the document.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Well, would you agree with me that you are 9 talking about potential changes to the platform
10 here. Correct?

11 A. It is one of a multitude of topics in the
12 document.

13 Q. Right. And one of them is this PBM, or 14 Platform business model, conversation. Correct?

15 A. That is one of the topics, yes.

16 Q. All right. So then on the top of the 17 second page, you've got option number 2, which is 18 free friends, paid coefficient, categorical
19 reciprocity for all, and total reciprocity for big 20 guys/competitors. Correct?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. And so by categorical reciprocity, what 23 did you mean?

24 A. Again, I am -- to the best of my
25 recollection -- this was a long time ago -- I

12:22:06

12:22:07

12:22:11

12:22:12

12:22:17

1 believe I was drawing a distinction between, sort 12:22:20
2 of, all data or categorical data. 12:22:25

3 So I think with categorical data, the idea 12:22:28
4 was -- so at the time, Facebook had an API or a 12:22:37
5 sort of set of APIs called Open Graph. And within 12:22:39
6 Open Graph, there were, sort of, categories of 12:22:44
7 data, like music data, for instance. 12:22:47

8 And so I believe categorical reciprocity 12:22:49
9 meant, if you were -- if you gave a user -- as a 12:22:55
10 developer, if you gave a user the option to, sort 12:22:59
11 of, read music data out of Facebook, you also would 12:23:04
12 need to give the user the ability to share music 12:23:09
13 data back to Facebook. 12:23:13

14 Q. All right. So -- 12:23:15

15 A. But perhaps not -- but on a 12:23:15
16 category-by-category basis. 12:23:18

17 Q. So to use another example, let's say you 12:23:20
18 were talking about Netflix. And Netflix has -- a 12:23:22
19 category of data is movies that a Netflix user 12:23:26
20 likes. 12:23:31

21 If you're sharing that kind of data, 12:23:31
22 you -- if you're getting that kind of data out of 12:23:34
23 Facebook, you would have to return to Facebook the 12:23:36
24 same kind of data. 12:23:39

25 A. You would have to give the user the option 12:23:41

1 to share that kind of data into Facebook. 12:23:44

2 Q. Okay. 12:23:47

3 A. And again, just for clarity, I think this 12:23:48

4 was all brainstorming, sort of speculative 12:23:51

5 conversation. I don't recall what, if anything, we 12:23:56

6 actually ever shipped. 12:24:00

7 Q. And then total reciprocity would be if a 12:24:03

8 developer is getting data from the Facebook 12:24:07

9 platform, it would have to return all data back to 12:24:11

10 the Facebook Platform. 12:24:14

11 A. It -- I believe it was if -- if a -- if a 12:24:17

12 developer gave the user the option to read data 12:24:23

13 from Facebook, then the developer also needed to 12:24:27

14 give the user the option to effectively share the 12:24:30

15 social data that you were generating in that app to 12:24:38

16 Facebook. 12:24:43

17 And my guess is, this was probably -- 12:24:44

18 probably centered on, like, the user's profile and 12:24:46

19 their profile picture and stuff like that. 12:24:50

20 Q. Okay. So at the end of describing these 12:24:52

21 three possibilities, you say, "I think the ball is 12:24:56

22 in your court on this one." 12:24:58

23 And you're saying that to Mr. Zuckerberg. 12:25:01

24 Correct? 12:25:03

25 A. Yes. 12:25:03

1 Q. And by the "ball is in your court," did 12:25:04
2 you mean that the next step in the process was you 12:25:07
3 wanted to hear from him what his thoughts were on 12:25:10
4 this topic? 12:25:12

5 A. Again, I am guessing as to the context 12:25:14
6 from a while ago, but I was likely waiting to hear 12:25:18
7 his feedback on this topic. 12:25:23

8 Q. Did he ever make a decision about whether 12:25:26
9 he wanted to go with one of these three possibility 12:25:32
10 or something else? 12:25:35

11 A. I -- 12:25:38

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague. 12:25:38

13 THE WITNESS: I don't recall or believe 12:25:40
14 so. I think he -- procedurally, I think he would 12:25:45
15 have given us feedback and we would have iterated 12:25:50
16 on it. 12:25:54

17 BY MR. GODKIN: 12:25:54

18 Q. Okay. Is this one of the documents that 12:25:54
19 you reviewed to prepare to come and testify here 12:25:56
20 today? 12:25:58

21 A. I don't believe so. 12:25:59

22 (Discussion off the record.) 12:26:09

23 THE VIDEO OPERATOR: Going off the record, 12:26:14
24 the time now is 12:26. 12:26:15

25 (Recess from 12:26 P.M. to 1:18 P.M.) 12:26:17

1 interpret my response and try to extrapolate from 13:26:56
2 that probably how I felt. 13:27:01

3 And I think the first sentence of my 13:27:05
4 response is, "I'm general really happy with this 13:27:07
5 direction." 13:27:10

6 I think at the highest level, I had one 13:27:11
7 view on what we should be doing, and I think many 13:27:15
8 people in the room had other views, and I was 13:27:18
9 trying to align everyone towards my view. And I 13:27:21
10 took this as Mark slowly moving towards my view. 13:27:25

11 Q. Okay. So he says that -- now I'm looking 13:27:29
12 at the fourth paragraph of the first page of his 13:27:40
13 email that starts, "The answer I came to." 13:27:46

14 Do you see that? 13:27:53

15 A. Uh-huh. 13:27:53

16 Q. Yes? 13:27:54

17 A. Yes. 13:27:54

18 Q. So he's basically saying that sometimes 13:27:55
19 the best way for people to share something is to 13:27:57
20 have a developer build a special-purpose app or 13:28:00
21 network and then make that app social by having 13:28:03
22 Facebook plug into it. 13:28:07

23 Do you see that? 13:28:08

24 A. Yes. 13:28:10

25 Q. So wasn't that kind of the idea of 13:28:11

1 Facebook Platform at the beginning? 13:28:12

2 A. I don't know if I would characterize it as 13:28:21
3 the way that you did. But I -- I think one of the 13:28:23
4 uses of Facebook Platform that I believe was 13:28:28
5 imagined -- again, it was before I joined the 13:28:33
6 company -- was to enable people to build apps for 13:28:35
7 sharing -- you know, for specialized forms of 13:28:38
8 sharing. 13:28:40

9 Q. But then Mr. Zuckerberg goes on to say, 13:28:41
10 "That may be good for the world, but it's not good 13:28:43
11 for us," meaning Facebook. Correct? 13:28:47

12 A. That's my interpretation of "us." 13:28:50

13 Q. "... unless people also share back to 13:28:52
14 Facebook and that content increases the value of 13:28:54
15 our network." Correct? 13:28:57

16 A. That is how I read that sentence. 13:29:01

17 Q. Then if you turn to page -93, the next 13:29:13
18 page, it's a lengthy email, so I'm not going to 13:29:15
19 cover the whole thing. But he says, "There's more 13:29:19
20 nuance to this opinion, though." 13:29:22

21 Do you see that? 13:29:24

22 A. Sorry, no. Can you point out -- yes, I 13:29:24
23 do. 13:29:27

24 Q. It's sort of two-thirds of the way down? 13:29:27

25 A. Yes. 13:29:29

1 A. I interpreted that as probably primarily 13:30:53
2 some kind of invitations product, because he 13:31:00
3 mentions invite at the -- sort of the second clause 13:31:04
4 of that sentence, as well as potentially ad 13:31:06
5 products or other things. 13:31:12

6 Q. And then he goes on to say at the top of 13:31:13
7 the next page, "We also need to figure out how 13:31:15
8 we're going to charge for it. I want to make sure 13:31:18
9 this is explicitly tied to pulling non-app friends 13:31:21
10 out of friends.get." 13:31:24

11 Do you see that? At the very top of 13:31:27
12 page 4 of his email. 13:31:31

13 A. Yeah. Let me read that. 13:31:33

14 Yes. 13:32:02

15 Q. And so is he saying there that Facebook 13:32:02
16 needs to build a tool that it was going to charge 13:32:05
17 developers to use in order -- that would be used 13:32:12
18 for inviting non-app friends to download or 13:32:16
19 authorize the app? 13:32:20

20 A. Not exactly. 13:32:22

21 Q. What am I -- where am I wrong? 13:32:23

22 A. My interpretation of the paragraph is that 13:32:26
23 the -- the use case -- the primary use case for 13:32:30
24 non-app friends was for developers to build their 13:32:34
25 own invitation flows. We used to call them 13:32:38

1 multi-friend selectors, or MFSSs. 13:32:42

2 And my interpretation of the paragraph is, 13:32:45
3 he's saying, if we -- if we change the system to 13:32:47
4 only be app friends, we need to build an 13:32:51
5 invitations product that works for developers, and 13:32:53
6 that that product needs to be launched at the same 13:32:56
7 time as we make the change. 13:32:59

8 Q. And it's going to be a paid product. 13:33:01
9 Right? 13:33:03

10 A. I mean, I -- I think he is proposing here 13:33:03
11 that it is a paid product. I think we eventually 13:33:08
12 launched it, and I'm quite certain, if we did 13:33:11
13 launch it, that it was not paid. 13:33:14

14 Q. But what he says is, that's basically 13:33:15
15 explicitly tied to removing the developer's access 13:33:17
16 to the full friends list. Correct? 13:33:21

17 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the 13:33:24
18 document. 13:33:25

19 BY MR. GODKIN: 13:33:25

20 Q. Well, he says it's explicitly tied to 13:33:25
21 pulling non-app friends out of friends.get. 13:33:29

22 A. Well, my interpretation of the document is 13:33:33
23 that he is saying that the launch of an invitations 13:33:35
24 product is -- needs to happen at the same time as 13:33:38
25 pulling non-app friends out of friends.get. I -- 13:33:40

1 Q. So since this is Mr. Zuckerberg's lengthy 13:33:43
2 email, would he be the best person for me to ask 13:33:46
3 what he meant when he wrote this? 13:33:49

4 A. I feel like I am competent to interpret 13:33:51
5 it, and my interpretation stands. 13:33:53

6 Q. But you don't know exactly what he meant, 13:33:56
7 do you? 13:33:59

8 A. I can -- I can interpret the sentence as I 13:34:01
9 think the primary recipient of it, and I feel like 13:34:04
10 my interpretation is pretty clear. 13:34:08

11 Q. So if developers had free access to the 13:34:10
12 full friends list, do you think they'd be 13:34:14
13 interested in paying for a service that gave them 13:34:17
14 access to the full friends list? 13:34:19

15 A. I didn't get that. 13:34:26

16 Q. In other words, at the time this email was 13:34:28
17 written, developers had free access to the full 13:34:29
18 friends list. Correct? 13:34:32

19 A. They -- yes, assuming they signed up 13:34:37
20 through the terms of service, et cetera. 13:34:39

21 Q. And this was -- 13:34:42

22 A. And to clarify, they had the ability to 13:34:43
23 grant a user to grant access to the friends list. 13:34:45

24 Q. Right. But they weren't being asked to 13:34:47
25 pay Facebook for the ability to use that service. 13:34:50

1	send us their feed, it would be awkward to	13:57:39
2	take away our own feed at the same time."	13:57:41
3	Do you see that?	13:57:45
4	A. Yes.	13:57:45
5	Q. And then you respond at the top of the	13:57:45
6	page, "I don't think that's how Mark defines total	13:57:47
7	reciprocity."	13:57:53
8	Do you see that?	13:57:53
9	A. Yes.	13:57:54
10	Q. And again, that's Mark Zuckerberg?	13:57:54
11	A. I believe so.	13:57:57
12	Q. And you say, "he defines it as every piece	13:57:58
13	of content by that user that can be seen by another	13:58:01
14	user."	13:58:04
15	Do you see that?	13:58:05
16	A. Yes.	13:58:05
17	Q. And then you go on, "What Mark is saying	13:58:06
18	is he wants certain partners (I assume not all) to	13:58:08
19	give us news feeds on behalf of their users, which	13:58:13
20	is kind of crazy."	13:58:16
21	Do you see that?	13:58:19
22	A. Yes.	13:58:19
23	Q. And then you say, "He mentioned it once	13:58:19
24	before, and I'm not sure of the backstory here."	13:58:22
25	Do you see that?	13:58:25

1 A. Yes. 13:58:25

2 Q. So you say he mentioned the concept of 13:58:26

3 total reciprocity once before. Correct? 13:58:28

4 A. That is not how I interpret it in that 13:58:32

5 context. 13:58:35

6 Q. Do you interpret "it" to mean the 13:58:36

7 definition as you describe it in the second 13:58:39

8 paragraph there? 13:58:42

9 A. No. I interpret "it" as Mark saying that 13:58:43

10 he wants certain partners to give us news feeds on 13:58:46

11 behalf of their users. 13:58:50

12 Q. Right. Which is what's in your second 13:58:51

13 paragraph. Correct? 13:58:53

14 A. Sorry. Maybe I misunderstood your 13:58:54

15 question. 13:58:56

16 Q. Okay. So you're saying back to Mr. Rose 13:58:56

17 that Mark had said that to you at least once 13:58:59

18 before. Correct? 13:59:03

19 A. That he is mentioned the concept of having 13:59:06

20 certain partners give us news feeds on behalf of 13:59:09

21 their users. 13:59:13

22 Q. Correct? That's what he mentioned. 13:59:14

23 A. Yes. That's my interpretation. 13:59:17

24 Q. So where you say "which is kind of crazy," 13:59:25

25 why was that kind of crazy? 13:59:30

1	A. Again, I don't recall.	14:09:00
2	Q. Mr. Olivan?	14:09:02
3	A. Again, I don't recall.	14:09:03
4	Q. Mr. Cox?	14:09:05
5	A. Again, I don't recall.	14:09:06
6	Q. Ms. Sandberg?	14:09:08
7	A. Again, I don't recall.	14:09:09
8	MR. GODKIN: All right. Let me mark as	14:09:20
9	the next exhibit. This is Facebook 1201989	14:09:21
10	through -91.	14:09:25
11	(Deposition Exhibit 17 was marked for	14:09:27
12	identification.)	14:09:29
13	BY MR. GODKIN:	14:09:45
14	Q. So Exhibit 17 is again another follow-up	14:09:45
15	to Mr. Zuckerberg's lengthy email from you on	14:09:48
16	November 20th, 2012.	14:09:52
17	If you could take a minute to review your	14:09:56
18	cover email, top email.	14:09:59
19	A. Yep.	14:10:03
20	Q. So you say, "One of the things that Javi	14:10:04
21	routinely beats us up for (perhaps validly) is our	14:10:10
22	enforcement."	14:10:13
23	Is Javi Mr. Olivan?	14:10:15
24	A. I believe so, yes.	14:10:17
25	Q. And he was in charge of the growth group.	14:10:18

1 Is that right? 14:10:20

2 A. Growth and analytics, right. 14:10:21

3 Q. Growth and analytics. He says, "we don't" 14:10:23

4 -- "He is concerned we don't have enough 14:10:25

5 strategic-oriented people looking at our usage 14:10:27

6 dashboards and finding things that might be abusive 14:10:31

7 or competitive and acting on them." 14:10:34

8 Did I read that correctly? 14:10:37

9 A. I believe so. 14:10:38

10 MS. MILLER: I'll just say for the record, 14:10:43

11 we'll stipulate that you can read documents 14:10:44

12 correctly, if there's not going to be any follow-up 14:10:46

13 questions. 14:10:49

14 MR. GODKIN: I can't answer -- I can ask 14:10:50

15 follow-up questions, but I can't always read them 14:10:52

16 correctly -- 14:10:53

17 MS. MILLER: We're willing to stipulate 14:10:54

18 the document says what it is, if you want to skip 14:10:55

19 some of the reading things out loud to preserve 14:10:58

20 time. 14:11:01

21 BY MR. GODKIN: 14:11:01

22 Q. And then he says -- you are asking a 14:11:01

23 question, "Who do you think owns tackling this 14:11:03

24 problem?" Right? 14:11:05

25 A. Yes. 14:11:06

1 Q. And then one of the things Mark flags
2 below -- referring to Mr. Zuckerberg's email.
3 Right?

4 A. Uh-huh.

5 Q. Is getting more aggressive on the 6 enforcement side. Right?

7 A. Yep.

8 Q. So when you said Mr. Olivan routinely
9 beats us up on this, what did you mean by that?

10 A. I believe that he is frequently concerned
11 and perhaps critical to me about -- about how 12 closely we're paying attention to, sort of, the 13 enforcement of our Platform policies.

14 Q. And you say that Mr. Zuckerberg is 15 basically saying the same thing in his lengthy 16 email, correct, about the need to pay more
17 attention to enforcement?

18 A. I haven't -- didn't reread Mark's email
19 right now, but I believe somewhere in the thread he 20 says that we should be more aggressive on the 21 enforcement side.

22 Q. So do you know whether Mr. Olivan and 23 Mr. Zuckerberg had private conversations about that 24 topic that you weren't present for?

25 A. I think in the -- the broad Platform

1 business model conversations, Javi's viewpoint was 14:12:18
2 frequently that we needed to be more rigorous about 14:12:23
3 the enforcing of our Platform policies. And so I 14:12:30
4 think that was a repeated theme from his feedback. 14:12:33

5 Q. But do you know for a fact whether 14:12:37
6 Mr. Zuckerberg and Mr. Oliván had private 14:12:41
7 conversations on that subject that you weren't 14:12:44
8 present at? 14:12:47

9 A. I -- again, I -- I think that particular 14:12:48
10 point was in some senses a subpoint of this entire 14:12:54
11 conversation, and so the most likely forum for that 14:12:58
12 conversation would have been in the group 14:13:01
13 conversations that I was leading. But I do not 14:13:02
14 know for a fact what was discussed in private 14:13:06
15 conversations. 14:13:08

16 Q. And it's possible, is it not, that the two 14:13:09
17 of them did have conversations on that topic that 14:13:11
18 you weren't privy to. Correct? 14:13:13

19 A. I mean, as stated before, I think the most 14:13:17
20 likely forum for any of those conversations would 14:13:20
21 have been in the conversation -- the group 14:13:22
22 conversations that I was leading around this topic, 14:13:24
23 but I cannot state for a fact what people said in 14:13:26
24 private conversations. 14:13:29

25 Q. And so it is possible that they discussed 14:13:32

1 it without you being there? 14:13:33

2 MS. MILLER: Objection. Asked and 14:13:35

3 answered. 14:13:35

4 THE WITNESS: Yeah. As previously stated, 14:13:36

5 I think the most likely forum for any of these 14:13:38

6 conversations would have been the group 14:13:41

7 conversations around the Platform business model 14:13:42

8 that I was leaving -- leading, but I can't say for 14:13:44

9 certainty what people did or did not say in private 14:13:47

10 conversations. 14:13:50

11 BY MR. GODKIN: 14:13:50

12 Q. Do you know whether Mr. Zuckerberg and 14:13:50

13 Mr. Olivan had a private conversation that involved 14:13:53

14 discussions of the full friends list, the friends 14:13:57

15 permissions, and the News Feed APIs? 14:14:01

16 A. Again, I think the most likely forum for 14:14:05

17 these conversations would have been the group 14:14:07

18 conversations that we had around the Platform 14:14:09

19 business model, but I can't say for certain what 14:14:10

20 people did or did not say in private conversations. 14:14:15

21 MR. GODKIN: Okay. Why don't we mark as 14:14:18

22 the next exhibit Facebook 899796 and -97. 14:14:30

23 (Deposition Exhibit 18 was marked for 14:14:36

1 Do you see that? 14:37:26

2 A. Yes. 14:37:26

3 MS. MILLER: Again, we'll stipulate that 14:37:28

4 you can read paragraphs into the record accurately. 14:37:29

5 MR. GODKIN: Thank you so much, Laura. 14:37:32

6 MS. MILLER: I'm just saying, this is your 14:37:33

7 time. If you want to keep reading things into the 14:37:35

8 record, we're not going to make Mr. Vernal 14:37:37

9 available again based on that delay. 14:37:40

10 MR. GODKIN: Well, we'll see about that, 14:37:44

11 won't we? 14:37:46

12 So let me mark as the next exhibit a 14:38:00

13 document with the Facebook Bates numbers 01218365 14:38:03

14 and -66. 14:38:09

15 (Deposition Exhibit 20 was marked for 14:38:11

16 identification.) 14:38:12

17 BY MR. GODKIN: 14:38:26

18 Q. Exhibit 20 is a set of emails, one of 14:38:30

19 which is from you on Friday, September 27th, 2013. 14:38:36

20 Take a minute to look at it. 14:38:43

21 A. Sure. (Examining document.) Okay. 14:38:44

22 Q. And so the subject of these emails is 14:40:00

23 "PS12N meeting with Javi." 14:40:01

24 A. Yes. 14:40:05

25 Q. And that PS12N is Platform Simplification, 14:40:05

1 is it not? 14:40:11

2 A. I believe so. 14:40:12

3 Q. And in the middle of the first page, it's 14:40:13

4 an email from Doug Purdy to Ilya Sukhar, copying a 14:40:15

5 couple of people. Correct? 14:40:19

6 A. I believe so. 14:40:21

7 Q. And he says, "Sam has a ton of context." 14:40:21

8 Is that Sam Lessin? 14:40:24

9 A. I believe so. 14:40:26

10 Q. And then, "Mike used to work for him." 14:40:26

11 Is that you? 14:40:29

12 A. Yes. I believe so. 14:40:30

13 Q. And the key thing that Sam wanted to talk 14:40:33

14 about was the timeline, which was not in the 14:40:35

15 slides. 14:40:37

16 Do you see that? 14:40:38

17 A. Yes. 14:40:38

18 Q. And then he says: 14:40:39

19 "Javi has been more than clear on what he 14:40:40

20 doesn't like about Platform to Mike and I on 14:40:43

21 more than one occasion (if it were up to him, 14:40:46

22 there would likely be no platform)." 14:40:49

23 That's Javi Olivan? 14:40:52

24 A. I believe so. 14:40:54

25 Q. Did you agree with Mr. Purdy that if it 14:40:55

1 was up to Javi, there would be no platform? 14:40:57

2 A. I believe Doug is being hyperbolic here, 14:41:01
3 but, you know, I -- I do not agree with Doug's 14:41:06
4 characterization, but I understand the emotion 14:41:08
5 behind what he's saying. 14:41:13

6 Q. And this email was forwarded to you by 14:41:14
7 Vlad Fedorov. Correct? 14:41:17

8 A. Correct. 14:41:20

9 Q. And then you say, "Remind me of why you 14:41:20
10 forwarded this?" 14:41:23

11 Why did you ask him that question? 14:41:24

12 A. At the time, I think there was some -- 14:41:26
13 there was some tension between Doug and Vlad in 14:41:32
14 terms of, kind of, who was leading what. And I 14:41:35
15 was -- I was trying to avoid side email 14:41:38
16 conversations and instead just have everyone talk 14:41:47
17 about it as a group. 14:41:50

18 And so the "Remind me why you forwarded 14:41:55
19 this" was likely a, please don't forward me side 14:41:57
20 conversations. If we have an issue, let's all get 14:42:01
21 together and discuss it as a group. 14:42:04

22 Q. So you interpreted Vlad's forwarding this 14:42:07
23 email as kind of telling on Mr. Purdy, basically -- 14:42:09

24 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates 14:42:14
25 testimony. 14:42:16

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

14:42:16

2 Q. -- words to that effect?

14:42:16

3 A. I interpret his email as complaining about
4 the -- complaining about some back and forth here.
5 And I am just saying, I would just let them sort of 6 move on with it.

14:42:18

14:42:21

14:42:26

14:42:35

7 Q. And so Mr. Purdy in his email says, "This 8 plan addresses that, but I want to make sure he 9 agrees."

14:42:36

14:42:39

14:42:43

10 And by "he agrees," he's referring to Javi
11 Olivan. Correct?

14:42:44

14:42:48

12 A. I believe so, from context.

14:42:50

13 Q. So Mr. Purdy reported to you. Correct?

14:42:53

14 A. At the time, I believe so, yes.

14:42:57

15 Q. He didn't report to Javi.

14:42:58

16 A. No.

14:43:01

17 Q. So why was he making sure that Javi agreed
18 with something without going to you?

14:43:01

14:43:05

19 A. I think in the broadest terms, as I said
20 before, decision-making was not unilateral and 21 singular; it was a process of consensus building.
22 And so I think it was getting Javi's feedback on 23 the plan.

14:43:10

14:43:14

14:43:17

14:43:19

14:43:24

24 And you had sort of a secondary question
25 in there. Sorry.

14:43:29

14:43:30

1 Q. My question was, why is Purdy concerned 14:43:31
2 about getting Javi to agree with something and not 14:43:34
3 going to you, who was his boss? 14:43:38

4 A. Oh, I don't think this is at the exclusion 14:43:40
5 of me. I think this was, again, a form of building 14:43:42
6 consensus amongst interested parties and getting 14:43:46
7 feedback. 14:43:49

8 Q. Did Mr. Purdy and Mr. Fedorov and 14:43:49
9 Mr. O'Neil and Mr. Sukhar know about the potential 14:43:55
10 changes to the platform at this point in time? 14:43:59

11 A. Can you clarify -- 14:44:05

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague. 14:44:06

13 THE WITNESS: Sorry. Can you clarify what 14:44:07
14 potential changes? 14:44:09

15 BY MR. GODKIN: 14:44:10

16 Q. The changes that were ultimately announced 14:44:11
17 on April 30, 2014. 14:44:13

18 A. So, I mean, I -- 14:44:16

19 MS. MILLER: I'll object as vague, because 14:44:17
20 there was a number of changes that were made on 14:44:18
21 that date. 14:44:21

22 THE WITNESS: So within the context of 14:44:22
23 this thread, I -- I believe the Platform 14:44:24
24 Simplification term came to encapsulate the 14:44:28
25 simplifying of Platform, and the -- sort of the 14:44:34

1 Q. And at this point in time, you reported to 14:51:13
2 Sam Lessin. Correct? 14:51:15

3 A. Yes. 14:51:16

4 MR. GODKIN: I'm going to ask the reporter 14:51:39
5 to mark Facebook 947595 through -606. 14:51:41

6 (Deposition Exhibit 22 was marked for 14:51:46
7 identification.) 14:51:48

8 BY MR. GODKIN: 14:51:58

9 Q. I have handed you Exhibit 22. If you 14:51:59
10 would take a moment to review it. 14:52:03

11 A. (Examining document.) Okay. 14:52:06

12 Q. So Exhibit 22 is in November of 2012, a 14:57:40
13 little bit earlier in that month than the lengthy 14:57:47
14 Mr. Zuckerberg email about total reciprocity that 14:57:53
15 we have talked about today. Correct? 14:57:57

16 A. I would need to check the chronology. My 14:57:59
17 sense is that this came -- comes after Mark's 14:58:02
18 feedback, but I would need to look at the dates. 14:58:06

19 Q. All right. Well -- 14:58:08

20 A. I could be -- I don't know. 14:58:10

21 Q. Well, starting on page -602 at the bottom, 14:58:12
22 if you open to page -602, there's an email there 14:58:18
23 from David Swaine to Sam, Mike, and Doug. 14:58:22

24 A. Yeah. 14:58:27

25 Q. And that's Sam Lessin, you, and Doug 14:58:28

1 Purdy? 14:58:31

2 A. I believe so. 14:58:32

3 Q. And then at the top of the next page, he 14:58:33

4 refers to "a hypothetical blog post to help 14:58:35

5 conceptualize how some of the decisions we're 14:58:39

6 considering could be positioned to developers." 14:58:44

7 Do you see that? 14:58:47

8 A. Yes. 14:58:47

9 Q. And then he says, Dan says -- Dan would 14:58:48

10 like to show -- David says, "Dan would like to 14:58:50

11 show" -- see, I don't always read them correctly. 14:58:54

12 "Dan would like to show something to Zuck 14:58:56

13 later today." 14:58:59

14 Zuck is Mark Zuckerberg. Right? 14:59:00

15 A. I believe so. 14:59:01

16 Q. And then there's this draft hypothetical 14:59:02

17 blog post about some of these changes that you were 14:59:04

18 all starting to discuss at the time. Correct? 14:59:09

19 A. Uh-huh. 14:59:12

20 Q. Yes? 14:59:13

21 A. Yes. 14:59:13

22 Q. So then -- and then at the top of 14:59:18

23 page -602, there's an email from Dan Rose to you 14:59:24

24 and Mr. Purdy, copying Sam Lessin. And at the 14:59:29

25 bottom, he says, "in the broader announcement so 14:59:35

1 that we package all of the platform changes 14:59:39
2 together at once for developers." 14:59:41

3 Do you see that? 14:59:44

4 A. Yes. 14:59:44

5 Q. And then you respond on page -601, on 14:59:47
6 Monday, November 19th, and you say, "I have been 14:59:53
7 bucketing all these changes into something I'm 14:59:58
8 calling 'Platform 3.0.'" 15:00:01

9 Do you see that? 15:00:04

10 A. Yes. 15:00:04

11 Q. And that includes the paid developer 15:00:04
12 model; removing a bunch of APIs (e.g., all the 15:00:08 13 friend ones). 15:00:14

14 Do you see that? 15:00:15

15 A. Yes. 15:00:15

16 Q. That means the full friends list and 15:00:15
17 friends permissions. Is that right? 15:00:18

18 A. I presume so. 15:00:21

19 Q. So that's something you were already 15:00:22
20 talking about doing in November of 2012. Correct? 15:00:24

21 A. I presume so. 15:00:27

22 Q. And a data reciprocity policy. Correct? 15:00:30

23 A. Uh-huh. 15:00:34

24 Q. And that's yes? I'm sorry. 15:00:35

25 A. Yes. Yes, yes. 15:00:37

1 Q. That's this concept of reciprocity that 15:00:38
2 we've been talking about that Mr. Zuckerberg wrote 15:00:42
3 his long email about. Correct? 15:00:46

4 A. I don't think that that is what he wrote 15:00:48
5 his long email about, but it was mentioned in that 15:00:50
6 email. 15:00:52

7 Q. Well, he starts it off by talking about, I 15:00:52
8 think, total reciprocity is the way to go, did he 15:00:54
9 not? 15:00:58

10 A. I would need to go back and look at it, 15:00:58
11 but I think as that email on feedback on the 15:01:00
12 Platform business model, not as being about data 15:01:03
13 reciprocity per se. 15:01:07

14 Q. And then you also include in Platform 3.0 15:01:09
15 new invitations model on iOS and Android, et 15:01:11
16 cetera. Right? 15:01:20

17 A. Yes. 15:01:21

18 Q. Removing non-TOSed friends? 15:01:21

19 A. Yes. 15:01:24

20 Q. Is that Terms of Service -- 15:01:25

21 A. Yes. 15:01:27

22 Q. Is that TOS? What did you mean, removing 15:01:27
23 non-TOSed friends? 15:01:31

24 A. We used as a shorthand -- when a user 15:01:32
25 authorized an application, logged into an 15:01:37

1 application, for historical reasons, in the code, 15:01:40
2 it was referred to as I think a TOS event, to mean 15:01:43
3 they were accepting the Terms of Service for the 15:01:48
4 app. And so we sometimes used -- we drew a 15:01:50
5 distinction between TOSed users and non-TOSed 15:01:53
6 users. 15:01:56

7 Q. And API charging above a certain usage 15:01:57
8 threshold. 15:02:00

9 Was that a reference to charging 15:02:01
10 developers money to use APIs above a certain 15:02:03
11 threshold, usage threshold? 15:02:07

12 A. I believe -- I believe so. 15:02:10

13 Q. And the action importer spec. Correct? 15:02:14

14 A. Yes. 15:02:20

15 Q. That was what we referenced a few minutes 15:02:21
16 ago: a way of getting data out of an app into 15:02:23
17 Facebook? 15:02:28

18 A. A way for users to be able to bring their 15:02:31
19 actions from other apps onto their Facebook 15:02:35
20 profile. 15:02:37

21 Q. And the last one is, potentially, in 15:02:38
22 parentheses, one premium service, just to set the 15:02:40
23 tone for premium services. 15:02:43

24 By premium service, were you referring to 15:02:46
25 something that cost money? 15:02:47

1 A. I believe so in this context.

15:02:51

2 It may be worth noting that I think a
3 majority of these bullet items never launched, so I
4 think just as context.

15:02:59

5 Q. So the draft or hypothetical blog post at 6 the end of this document was never released to the 7 public, was it?

15:03:07

8 A. Not that I know of. I very much doubt it.

15:03:14

9 Q. And Facebook did not publicly announce
10 that the friends APIs were going to be removed 11 until that April 30th, 2014, developer f8.
12 Correct?

15:03:19

13 A. I don't know exactly when it was 14 announced, but I know -- I believe it was discussed
15 at that f8, but I don't know when it was first 16 announced.

15:03:32

17 Q. Then if you turn to page 600, there's an 18 email there from Justin Osafsky to you, Mr. Rose, 19 Mr. Purdy. And he starts off, "A quick note to 20 ensure that we're coordinated in preparing for next 21 week's discussion."

15:03:40

22 Do you see that?

15:03:57

23 A. Yes.

15:03:58

24 Q. And down at the bottom of that page, he 25 says, under "Enforcement":

15:03:59

15:04:01

1 some feedback from him on his note live. But I 15:08:41
2 don't know the precise chronology. 15:08:44

3 Q. Do you recall whether there was a slide 15:08:46
4 presentation made at a meeting with Mr. Zuckerberg 15:08:48
5 on that Monday, which would have been, you know, 15:08:50
6 the week of Thanksgiving, 2012? 15:08:56

7 A. I do not recall. 15:09:00

8 Q. I take it you didn't review a slide 15:09:05
9 presentation on this subject as one of the 15:09:07
10 documents you looked at to prepare for coming here 15:09:09
11 today? 15:09:13

12 A. No, I don't think so. 15:09:14

13 Q. And then if you flip back to page -596, 15:09:16
14 there's an email in the middle of the page from 15:09:20
15 Charles Jolley. 15:09:22

16 Who was Mr. Jolley? 15:09:24

17 A. He was a PM, product manager -- or 15:09:26
18 potentially a product manager lead; I can't 15:09:34
19 recall -- who reported to Doug Purdy, I believe. 15:09:36

20 Q. Do you know whether he still works for 15:09:43
21 Facebook? 15:09:45

22 A. I do not believe he does. 15:09:46

23 Q. Do you know when he left? 15:09:47

24 A. I don't know precisely, but my sense is, 15:09:49
25 his tenure was brief. 15:09:52

1 Q. And do you know where he is -- where he 15:09:54
2 works now? 15:09:56

3 A. I believe he was -- ironically, I believe 15:09:57
4 he was the founder and CEO of a startup called 15:10:02
5 Ozlo, which Facebook very recently announced its 15:10:05
6 intention to acquire. But he is not joining 15:10:08
7 Facebook as a part of that transaction, so I 15:10:11
8 believe he is off to do another startup. 15:10:13

9 Q. And Mr. Jolley writes: 15:10:17

10 "Have we thought about/talked through the 15:10:19
11 complexity and risk we are placing on our 15:10:23
12 developers?" 15:10:25

13 He goes on: 15:10:28

14 "We are asking developers to potentially 15:10:29
15 take on a lot of work in order to integrate 15:10:31
16 with us in the first place, but my concern is 15:10:34
17 that a broadly scoped definition (i.e., 'any 15:10:36
18 action you take that is visible to other 15:10:40
19 people') seems like it would introduce a lot 15:10:41
20 of risk for the developer in that they would 15:10:46
21 never know exactly what we might define as in 15:10:49
22 scope/out of scope." 15:10:51

23 Do you see that? 15:10:55

24 A. Yes. 15:10:55

25 Q. What did you understand him to mean when 15:10:57

1 he was talking about this risk that Facebook was
2 placing on its developers?

3 A. My interpretation, based on the broader 4 context, is that he was pushing back on sort of the 5 concept of action importers and probably the 6 concept of reciprocity broadly. Or he was -- to 7 clarify, I think he was flagging that there may be 8 some complexity and risk associated with that, and 9 we should talk about it. But --

10 Q. And then on -- turning back to page -595,
11 it's at the very beginning of this exhibit,
12 Mr. Jolley writes, "The other one issue is with 13 requiring full reciprocity -- as I understand it,
14 means that if you are ready" -- if you ready --
15 what do you think he --

16 A. I believe it's a typo. I believe it
17 should be "read."

18 Q. "... if you read any of our social graph
19 then you must publish back all social actions."
20 Then he says:

21 "In this sense, the developer is no
22 longer in control except that they could opt
23 completely out of our graph. There's no
24 sense of investment matching the reward. I
25 have a potentially high up-front cost to get

1 anything out of Facebook. I don't have a 15:12:15
2 good framework to think about how this will 15:12:16
3 impact adoption yet; but it seems like a high 15:12:19
4 risk." 15:12:21

5 Did you have discussions with Mr. Jolley 15:12:23
6 about his concerns that he expressed to you? 15:12:25

7 A. I can't recall if I had separate 15:12:29
8 conversations, but I think he is -- he is flagging 15:12:32
9 a reasonable risk, and one of the reasons that I 15:12:36
10 think we never implemented either reciprocity or 15:12:39
11 the, sort of, action importer concept more broadly. 15:12:41

12 MS. MILLER: And I'll state again for the 15:12:46
13 record that we spent several hours discussing 15:12:47
14 something that was never implemented and doesn't 15:12:50
15 have any relevance to this case. 15:12:52

16 Can we take a quick break? 15:12:54

17 MR. GODKIN: I don't think you're the 15:12:56
18 judge here, Laura, so we'll let the judge decide 15:12:58
19 what's relevant and what's not relevant. 15:13:00

20 And yes. To answer your second question, 15:13:03
21 we can take a break. 15:13:05

22 THE VIDEO OPERATOR: Going off the record, 15:13:06
23 the time now is 3:13. 15:13:07

24 (Recess from 3:13 P.M. to 3:24 P.M.) 15:13:13

25 THE VIDEO OPERATOR: Back on the record, 15:24:13

1 Okay. 15:40:45

2 Q. So on the first page of Exhibit 25 on the 15:40:45

3 bottom, towards the bottom, there's a subheading 15:40:47

4 "Changes to Permissions and APIs." 15:40:49

5 Do you see that? 15:40:53

6 A. Yes. 15:40:53

7 Q. And then the second one at the bottom of 15:40:53

8 the page is "Friends Data." Do you see that? 15:40:55

9 A. Uh-huh. Yes. 15:40:58

10 Q. And it says: 15:40:59

11 "We will reduce the scope of the friends' 15:40:59

12 data that a developer can request and access 15:41:01

13 from users. Specifically, we will change the 15:41:04

14 /friends Graph API connection to only return 15:41:09

15 the user's friends that are already connected 15:41:12

16 to the app. In addition, we will no longer 15:41:15

17 support friends_* permissions or data 15:41:18

18 access." 15:41:23

19 Correct? 15:41:24

20 A. I see that, yes. 15:41:24

21 Q. And then if you turn to page -347, it 15:41:25

22 says -- there's a section in the middle of the page 15:41:32

23 called "Platform 3.0 Rules of the Road." 15:41:36

24 Do you have that in front of you? 15:41:39

25 A. Yes. 15:41:41

1 Q. And it says, "As we work towards 15:41:41
2 implementing the decisions that we made last year 15:41:44
3 which are now known as Platform 3.0" -- and I'll 15:41:48
4 stop quoting there. 15:41:53

5 Did Mr. Purdy write this document? 15:41:54

6 A. I believe so. 15:41:57

7 Q. And so Mr. Purdy says that some decisions 15:41:58
8 were made last year. Correct? 15:42:01

9 A. That is what he says. 15:42:04

10 Q. And that's now referring back to the 15:42:05
11 November 2012 time period that we talked about with 15:42:08
12 a bunch of exhibits earlier this afternoon. 15:42:12
13 Correct? 15:42:14

14 A. I presume so, yes. 15:42:15

15 Q. And so according to Mr. Purdy in this 15:42:17
16 document, these were decisions that the company 15:42:22
17 made in late 2012. Right? 15:42:24

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the 15:42:28
19 document. 15:42:28

20 THE WITNESS: I believe -- sorry. Can you 15:42:31
21 repeat the question? 15:42:32

22 BY MR. GODKIN: 15:42:33

23 Q. According to Mr. Purdy, who wrote this 15:42:34
24 document, he's referring to decisions that the 15:42:36
25 company made in 2012 which are now known as 15:42:39

1 Platform 3.0. Correct? 15:42:44

2 A. I believe that is what he is 15:42:47

3 optimistically trying to say here. 15:42:50

4 Q. And then he -- on the same page, -347, 15:42:54

5 there are a number of principles that he 15:42:59

6 articulates. 15:43:01

7 Do you see that? 15:43:02

8 A. Yes. 15:43:04

9 Q. And he says in the beginning, "The 15:43:04

10 fundamental principle that governs Platform usage 15:43:06

11 is a simple concept: reciprocity." 15:43:09

12 Do you see that? 15:43:13

13 A. Yes. 15:43:13

14 Q. And then he says, "Reciprocity involves an 15:43:13

15 equitable value exchange between a third-party 15:43:16

16 developer and Facebook." Correct? 15:43:19

17 A. I see that. 15:43:22

18 Q. And then at the beginning of the next 15:43:24

19 paragraph, he says, "When considering the 15:43:26

20 implications of reciprocity, it is important to 15:43:28

21 note that a second order principle quickly emerges: 15:43:31

22 competitive access." Correct? 15:43:36

23 A. I see that. 15:43:37

24 Q. So he's basically saying that reciprocity 15:43:38

25 is tied in some fashion to competitive access. 15:43:42

1 Right?

15:43:45

2 A. I think he is saying that. I am not sure
3 I agree with his -- his exact line of reasoning,
4 but that appears to be what he's saying.

15:43:49

15:43:52

15:43:57

5 Q. Right. Well, he sent this document to 6 you. Right?

15:43:59

15:44:01

7 A. As a draft of a proposal, yes.

15:44:01

8 Q. All right. Did you make comments on it?

15:44:03

9 A. I don't recall.

15:44:05

10 Q. When you were preparing to come here to 11 testify, did you see a document that you wrote in 12 which you commented on what Mr. Purdy wrote here?

15:44:07

15:44:09

15:44:13

13 A. I did not.

15:44:17

14 Q. And then he goes on to say, "There are a 15 small number of developers whom no amount of 16 sharing to Facebook or monetary value can justify 17 giving them access to Platform." Correct?

15:44:18

15:44:21

15:44:23

15:44:27

18 A. Yes. I believe that is what it says.

15:44:32

19 Q. So do you know what -- what developers
20 Mr. Purdy was referring to?

15:44:33

15:44:37

21 A. I presume he was referring to Google and 22 Twitter.

15:44:39

15:44:43

23 Q. So just two?

15:44:44

24 A. I can't recall if there were any others,
25 but those were the two primary ones.

15:44:46

15:44:48

1 Q. And is that because Facebook considered 15:44:51
2 Google and Twitter to be competitors at the time 15:44:54
3 that he was writing this document? 15:44:58

4 A. In broad brushstrokes, I believe it was 15:45:06
5 because -- yes, I think they were viewed as trying 15:45:09
6 to build a fundamentally competitive service to 15:45:11
7 Facebook, as opposed to participate in a sort of 15:45:14
8 equitable way. 15:45:16

9 Q. Did Facebook restrict access to data to 15:45:18
10 Google and Twitter? 15:45:21

11 A. I believe that when -- I believe that when 15:45:24
12 those companies expressed an interest in using the 15:45:35
13 API in some form that became a partnership 15:45:38
14 discussion, we were never able to reach an 15:45:41
15 agreement that made sense for both of us. 15:45:44

16 Q. And so did Facebook prevent Google and 15:45:47
17 Twitter from having access to data? 15:45:51

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague. 15:45:54

19 THE WITNESS: Yes. So I think the way 15:45:56
20 that these kinds of things typically work for large 15:45:57
21 companies is, you get people to go talk to each 15:46:01
22 other and decide if you can sort of find a way to 15:46:03
23 work together. And I think in this case, we did 15:46:06
24 not find a way to work together. 15:46:08

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

15:46:10

2 Q. So when you say "find a way to work
3 together," you're referring to money?

15:46:11

15:46:13

4 A. No. I'm referring to some kind of 5 equitable value exchange.

15:46:14

15:46:17

6 Q. Well, other than money, what kind of 7 equitable value exchange did you have in mind?

15:46:19

15:46:21

8 A. I don't think money was ever on the table.
9 I think it would have been some form of sharing or 10 some form of product integration/product
11 partnership.

15:46:25

15:46:27

15:46:38

12 Q. Can you think of any other company other
13 than Google and Twitter whom Facebook prevented
14 having access to data for competitive reasons?

15:46:39

15:46:42

15:46:47

15 A. Not with certainty.

15:46:56

16 Q. What about -- what's your best memory of 17 whether there were any others other than Google and 18 Twitter?

15:46:59

15:47:01

15:47:04

19 A. I mean, I think that there were some 20 concerns about major messaging apps. And only
21 because it showed up in a prior document, WeChat
22 may have been one of them, but I don't recall
23 whether or not we actually restricted any access on 24 WeChat.

15:47:04

15:47:09

15:47:12

15:47:18

15:47:20

15:47:23

25 And I think WhatsApp may have been one of 15:47:23

1 them as well prior to Facebook's acquisition.

15:47:25

2 But again, my sense was that the -- the
3 list of companies in this bucket were single digit 4 and probably on the order of two to four or two to 5 five, my best recollection.

15:47:28

15:47:31

15:47:37

15:47:42

6 Q. And turn the page to page -348. There's a
7 section in the middle of the page called
8 "Application."

15:47:43

15:47:50

15:47:53

9 Do you see that?

15:47:54

10 A. Yes.

15:47:55

11 Q. And Mr. Purdy writes, "The following 12 outlines the application of the above principles to 13 the various kinds of platform services," and the 14 first one is "Strategic competitors."

15:47:55

15:47:58

15:48:03

15 Do you see that?

15:48:05

16 A. Yes.

15:48:06

17 Q. And he says, "We maintain a small list of 18 strategic competitors that Mark personally
19 reviewed."

15:48:06

15:48:09

15:48:12

20 Is that Mark Zuckerberg?

15:48:13

21 A. I presume so.

15:48:14

22 Q. "Apps produced by the companies on this
23 list are subject to a number of restrictions
24 outlined below."

15:48:15

15:48:23

15:48:25

25 And then he finishes, "Any usage beyond

15:48:26

1 that specified is not permitted without Mark level 15:48:29
2 sign-off." 15:48:32

3 Do you see that? 15:48:33

4 A. Yes. 15:48:33

5 Q. And again, that's Mark Zuckerberg? 15:48:34

6 A. I presume so. 15:48:36

7 Q. So does that mean that Mark Zuckerberg 15:48:37
8 personally reviewed this small list of strategic 15:48:38
9 competitors, and that he personally had to sign off 15:48:42
10 on whether or not these strategic competitors would 15:48:45
11 have access to data? 15:48:50

12 A. Yes. I believe so. 15:48:53

13 Again, to clarify, there -- as I recall, 15:48:55
14 there were two companies on this list. There may 15:48:58
15 have been three or four. But it was a substantial 15:49:00
16 enough conversation around, if and how we partner 15:49:03
17 with Google or if and how we partner with Twitter, 15:49:09
18 that Mark would have been involved. 15:49:12

19 Q. And then turn to the next page, so it's 15:49:15
20 page -349. 15:49:19

21 And then in the middle of the page, he's 15:49:22
22 got a paragraph that begins, "During app review." 15:49:25

23 Do you see that? 15:49:28

24 A. There are two paragraphs that begin that 15:49:28
25 way. 15:49:31

1 Q. Okay. Well, that's good. 16:20:08

2 And a lot of this document has references 16:20:10

3 to a Netflix thing. 16:20:13

4 A. Yeah. 16:20:16

5 Q. Do you know what that refers to? 16:20:16

6 A. I think -- so I think this is a good 16:20:18

7 example of why we try to be organized in our 16:20:21

8 communication with developers, because if we 16:20:27

9 aren't, we randomize them. 16:20:29

10 And so in this case, it seems like what 16:20:31

11 happened was, the Netflix team was working on some 16:20:33

12 kind of integration with Facebook for sharing a 16:20:39

13 movie recommendation or something like that, and 16:20:43

14 the -- it seems -- my interpretation of this is 16:20:46

15 that someone on the Platform partnerships team told 16:20:51

16 them that what they were doing was sort of no 16:20:55

17 longer going to be allowed, and that they needed to 16:20:59

18 do this other thing, and that the Netflix team had 16:21:01

19 spent a lot of time investing in this, and that the 16:21:05

20 thing that they communicated to them was not even 16:21:09

21 finalized yet. 16:21:11

22 And so my interpretation is, I was 16:21:12

23 frustrated that we were not more organized in our 16:21:15

24 communication with developers and was trying to -- 16:21:18

25 was expressing that frustration. 16:21:21

1 Q. So in other words, if -- you think that 16:21:23
2 somebody said something to Netflix before the 16:21:26
3 company had made the announcement in April of 2014 16:21:30
4 about the changes to the platform? 16:21:34

5 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the 16:21:36
6 document. 16:21:37

7 THE WITNESS: My interpretation is that 16:21:38
8 someone miscommunicated with Netflix and caused 16:21:40
9 randomization, which is one of the reasons we try 16:21:45
10 to be organized with our communication to 16:21:48
11 developers. 16:21:51

12 BY MR. GODKIN: 16:21:52

13 Q. And you say on page -71 that you had to 16:21:52
14 send a long apology to Cameron at Netflix. 16:21:58

15 What is Cameron's last name? 16:22:04

16 A. I don't recall, unfortunately. 16:22:06

17 Q. Was he -- do you remember what his 16:22:08
18 position was at the time? 16:22:09

19 A. I assume he was a -- either a product or 16:22:12
20 an engineering leader at Netflix. I don't recall 16:22:14
21 his exact position. 16:22:18

22 Q. At the top of page -72, Mr. Purdy writes, 16:22:26
23 "I just read this message to the entire core 16:22:29
24 platform PM team and said we are all fired if you 16:22:32
25 have to send another one of these emails. We are 16:22:36

1 debugging this right now." 16:22:39

2 And he was referring to the email you sent 16:22:41
3 to Cameron at Netflix? 16:22:43

4 A. I presume so, yes. 16:22:45

5 Q. And why was he saying that everybody was 16:22:46
6 going to be fired if you had to do this again? 16:22:48

7 A. One, I think he was being hyperbolic. 16:22:51

8 Two, I think I was expressing my 16:22:54
9 frustration that we were not better organized with 16:22:57
10 our communication to developers, and that 16:23:00
11 communicating the wrong information to developers 16:23:03
12 caused unnecessary churn and work, and that we 16:23:06
13 needed to be more organized. 16:23:12

14 Q. Was Mark Zuckerberg aware of this problem 16:23:17
15 with Netflix? 16:23:20

16 A. Oh, I do not know. 16:23:22

17 Q. Had he asked that these potential changes 16:23:24
18 to the platform not be communicated to anyone in 16:23:29
19 advance of the corporate announcement? 16:23:32

20 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague as to what 16:23:34
21 "these changes" are. 16:23:35

22 BY MR. GODKIN: 16:23:37

23 Q. The changes that were announced in April 16:23:37
24 of 2014? 16:23:39

25 MS. MILLER: Again, vague as to what those 16:23:40

1 "Twitter launched Vine today which lets 16:26:20
2 you shoot multiple short video segments to 16:26:24
3 make one single 6-second video. As part of 16:26:26
4 their NUX, you can find friends via Facebook. 16:26:30
5 Unless anyone raises objections, we will shut 16:26:34
6 down their friends API access today." 16:26:37

7 Do you see that? 16:26:41

8 A. Yes. 16:26:41

9 Q. So that was in January of 2013. Correct? 16:26:42

10 A. It appears so. 16:26:48

11 Q. And then at the bottom of this chat, 16:26:49

12 Mark Zuckerberg says, "Yup, go for it." 16:26:52

13 Do you see that? 16:26:54

14 A. Yes. 16:26:55

15 Q. So he was being asked for approval -- his 16:26:55

16 approval of shutting down the friends API for 16:26:59

17 Twitter? 16:27:02

18 A. Yeah -- for Vine, which was a product that 16:27:05

19 was launched by Twitter. 16:27:08

20 Q. And what was the basis for shutting down 16:27:10

21 Twitter's friends API in January of 2013? 16:27:13

22 A. Well, this was previously discussed. I 16:27:19

23 think there was a very short list of competitive 16:27:21

24 apps, which I believe was Google and Twitter, for 16:27:25

25 which we -- for which we felt we needed to have a 16:27:28

1 partnership in place for -- in order to use 16:27:33
2 Facebook Platform. And in this case, Twitter was 16:27:35
3 launching an app that was using Platform that we 16:27:38
4 did not have a partnership in place, so we were 16:27:41
5 shutting it down. 16:27:44

6 Q. Was this Vine app violating Facebook's 16:27:47
7 policies in some fashion? 16:27:50

8 A. I -- 16:27:52

9 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for a legal 16:27:53
10 conclusion, lacks foundation, calls for 16:27:54
11 speculation. 16:27:56

12 THE WITNESS: I would need to look at the 16:28:00
13 exact policies, but I am fairly certain that we had 16:28:01
14 a fair deal of discretion on this matter. 16:28:05

15 BY MR. GODKIN: 16:28:11

16 Q. Okay. All right. 16:28:13

17 So let's mark as the next exhibit Facebook 16:28:42
18 01215536 through -38. 16:28:45

19 (Deposition Exhibit 31 was marked for 16:29:06
20 identification.) 16:29:08

21 BY MR. GODKIN: 16:29:09

22 Q. And Exhibit 31 is some emails -- now we're 16:29:09
23 going back in time to 2008. So if you take a 16:29:12
24 moment to review them. 16:29:16

25 A. (Examining document.) Okay. 16:29:19

1	MR. GODKIN: Let's mark as the next	16:47:09
2	exhibit Facebook Document 01233837 through -40.	16:47:10
3	(Deposition Exhibit 32 was marked for	16:47:19
4	identification.)	16:47:21
5	BY MR. GODKIN:	16:47:38
6	Q. We have placed in front of you Exhibit 32,	16:47:39
7	which appears to be a chat between you and	16:47:41
8	Mr. Cheever in March of 2008.	16:47:46
9	Would you take a look at it, please?	16:47:52
10	A. Sure. (Examining document.) Okay.	16:47:54
11	Q. So at this point, March 2008, I think you	16:52:46
12	told me this morning that Charlie Cheever was in	16:52:48
13	charge of the Platform?	16:52:51
14	A. He was in charge of the Platform	16:52:52
15	engineering team.	16:52:54
16	Q. And you reported to him?	16:52:55
17	A. Yes.	16:52:57
18	Q. And so he's writing a Platform vision	16:52:57
19	statement, and a draft of it appears starting on	16:53:00
20	the second page of the exhibit. Correct?	16:53:05
21	A. Uh-huh.	16:53:07
22	Q. Yes?	16:53:07
23	A. Yes.	16:53:08
24	Q. And he starts off by saying, "Facebook	16:53:09
25	Platform should replace the web as the best way to	16:53:12

1 make consumer software applications." Correct? 16:53:16

2 A. That is what he says. 16:53:19

3 Q. And by consumer software applications, 16:53:20

4 he's referring to what we've been calling apps 16:53:23

5 today. Right? 16:53:28

6 A. Yeah. I mean, I think he is saying 16:53:33

7 consumer software applications in a sort of a 16:53:34

8 broad -- broad sense. 16:53:37

9 Q. And then it -- toward the bottom of that 16:53:39

10 page, he -- there is a sentence that starts, "If we 16:53:42

11 do it right" -- do you see that? 16:53:47

12 A. Uh-huh. 16:53:48

13 Q. It says, "the Facebook Platform can 16:53:49

14 provide some of these kinds of ingredients and 16:53:52

15 effect another paradigm shift -- where the critical 16:53:55

16 mass of consumer applications and services moves 16:53:58

17 from the plain old vanilla web to the socially 16:54:00

18 enabled web." 16:54:05

19 Is that right? 16:54:06

20 A. That's what he appears to say. 16:54:07

21 Q. So that was his vision, if you will, in 16:54:09

22 March of 2008? 16:54:11

23 A. Well, I think it is a rough draft of his 16:54:13

24 vision. And it seems like it was produced in 16:54:16

25 response to the fact that there was a gentleman 16:54:20

1 name Chamoth, which he mentions in the sort of 16:54:25
2 preamble, who I think nominally ran the Platform 16:54:28
3 marketing organization and was trying to run a 16:54:34
4 process here. 16:54:36

5 And so my interpretation is, Charlie was 16:54:37
6 trying to draft something that's kind of important 16:54:39
7 to that process. 16:54:44

8 Q. And was what Charlie was writing 16:54:45
9 consistent with what Mr. Zuckerberg had stated 16:54:47
10 publicly about Facebook Platform up until that 16:54:50
11 point in time? 16:54:55

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague and 16:54:56
13 compound. 16:54:57

14 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't feel equipped 16:54:57
15 to -- I don't know. 16:55:00

16 BY MR. GODKIN: 16:55:05

17 Q. And then if you turn to page -37, there's 16:55:06
18 an email from you to Mr. Cheever. Correct? 16:55:08

19 A. Yes. 16:55:10

20 Q. And in the middle of the page, you say, 16:55:11
21 "If that's true," referring to your earlier notes, 16:55:18
22 "I think the mission of Facebook Platform should 16:55:22
23 be, help users share information more efficiently 16:55:25
24 by enabling external developers to build 16:55:29
25 applications for interacting and sharing data using 16:55:32

1 the social graph." Correct?

16:55:37

2 A. That's what I appear to say.

16:55:41

3 Q. And external developers is the same thing
4 as what we've been calling third-party developers
5 today?

16:55:42

16:55:45

16:55:47

6 A. I presume so, yeah.

16:55:48

7 Q. And then you go on to say, "If that's the 8 mission, then the strategy for Platform would look
9 something like" -- and you have a 1, 2, and 3
10 there.

16:55:54

16:55:59

16:56:02

16:56:06

11 Do you see that?

16:56:06

12 A. Yep.

16:56:08

13 Q. And then you go on to say, "For the 14 developer ecosystem to flourish, we need to make 15 sure that developers can build sustainable 16 businesses to support the applications that they 17 build."

16:56:08

16:56:11

16:56:14

16:56:16

16:56:19

18 Do you see that?

16:56:19

19 A. Yes.

16:56:20

20 Q. And again, you're talking about 21 third-party developers?

16:56:20

16:56:22

22 A. Yes.

16:56:24

23 Q. And what did you mean by "sustainable 24 businesses to support the applications that they 25 build"?

16:56:24

16:56:27

16:56:29

1 A. I mean, I think my -- the next sentence is 16:56:32
2 probably my clarification, which is that we need to 16:56:35
3 -- we need to make sure that they can make money 16:56:39
4 from their applications. 16:56:42

5 MR. GODKIN: Okay. Let's mark as the next 16:56:44
6 exhibit Facebook 01139282 through -291. 16:57:01

7 (Deposition Exhibit 33 was marked for 16:57:08
8 identification.) 16:57:10

9 BY MR. GODKIN: 16:57:25

10 Q. Exhibit 33 is something called "Kangaroo," 16:57:25
11 and it appears to be last updated on April 7th of 16:57:30
12 2008. 16:57:33

13 A. Okay. 16:57:35

14 Q. Are you familiar with this document? 16:57:37

15 A. I -- I don't recall. But it seems like -- 16:58:03
16 I'm trying to figure out if this is something that 16:58:13
17 I wrote. It seems plausible that I would have 16:58:15
18 written it, but I haven't seen this in a very long 16:58:18
19 time. I'm impressed by its length. 16:58:21

20 Q. What is it about it that leads you to 16:58:25
21 believe that you might have written it? 16:58:27

22 A. Some mix of writing and formatting style. 16:58:31

23 Q. Do you recall something called Kangaroo? 16:58:40
24 Was that a project or a code name or something like 16:58:43
25 that at Facebook in '08? 16:58:45

1 look at Exhibit 3.

2 MR. LERNER: And just to be clear, you
3 want this to be both Exhibit 7 to Hendrix and 4 Exhibit 3 to this deposition?

5 MR. GODKIN: Yes. I mean...

6 MR. LERNER: All right.

7 MR. GODKIN: It's not the first time --

8 MR. LERNER: It's your record. I
9 understand.

10 MR. GODKIN: Yeah.

11 (Pause.)

12 MR. GODKIN: Q. Have you had a moment to 13 review Exhibit 3?

14 (Pause.)

15 THE WITNESS: Yeah.

16 MR. GODKIN: Q. If you look at the bottom
17 of the first page of Exhibit 3, you see a URL which 18 is facebook.com, then some additional information?

19 A. Yeah.

20 Q. Do you recall ever reading this on 21 Facebook's website?

22 A. I can't say exactly whether I recall
23 reading this. However, there's nothing here that I
24 haven't -- that looks unfamiliar to me. I feel like
25 I've seen this information in some form before.

1 Q. Did you from time to time go to Facebook's
2 website and read what was posted on the website?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. And do you recall going to the website
5 from time to time to read announcements made by 6 Facebook about its platform?

7 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad.

8 THE WITNESS: Yes.

9 MR. GODKIN: Q. If you focus for a moment
10 on the second paragraph of Exhibit 3, do you see 11 that there's a statement differentiating between 12 applications people use on Facebook and the core of 13 the site? Do you see that?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. And then it goes on to say, "Applications
16 are things like Photos, Notes, Groups and Events"?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. Do you see that? Do you recall coming to 19 any understanding about what Facebook meant when it 20 was differentiating between applications and the 21 core of its website?

22 MR. LERNER: Calls for speculation.

23 THE WITNESS: Well, yes. Between this,
24 what you just pointed out, but also the language in 25 the fourth paragraph says it more overtly, where it

1 says, "we've made it so that any developer can build
2 the same applications that we can." What I
3 understood that to mean was that Facebook's own
4 features would -- would be built as applications
5 using the same platform and using the same APIs that 6 third-party applications would.

7 And there was a example unveiled at the F8
8 event, which was the Video application, and that's 9 in the last paragraph of this -- of this document.
10 That was sort of a symbolic example where Facebook
11 was unveiling a significant new feature, and it was 12 unveiled in the form of an application that had -- 13 had no inherent advantages over third-party
14 applications --

15 MR. GODKIN: Q. What --

16 A. -- on the platform.

17 Q. Was that concept important to your 18 company, iLike, the concept that Facebook would be 19 building applications using the same tools and would 20 have no inherent advantages over third-party
21 applications?

22 MR. LERNER: Leading, compound, and lacks
23 foundation.

24 THE WITNESS: That was very important to 25 us.

1 MR. GODKIN: Q. Why was that very
2 important to you?

3 A. Because it suggested that there would be a 4 level playing field where a third party could 5 compete not only with other third parties, but even 6 with Facebook's own capabilities, and could 7 accumulate customers based on merit and not based 8 on, you know, special advantages within the --
9 within Facebook.

10 Q. Was that concept something you and your 11 company were aware of back in April, when you
12 decided to go ahead and build an app on the Facebook
13 Platform?

14 MR. LERNER: Overbroad, calls for
15 speculation.

16 THE WITNESS: I don't think I was. I
17 wasn't. I don't know if others within the company
18 were.

19 MR. GODKIN: Q. Did you become aware of 20 that at the F8 in May of 2007?

21 MR. LERNER: Overbroad.

22 THE WITNESS: Yes.

23 MR. GODKIN: Q. And the Face -- was 24 Facebook's demonstration of its new Video app an 25 illustration of that concept?

1 MR. LERNER: Same objection.

2 THE WITNESS: It was.

3 MR. GODKIN: Q. Was it your understanding
4 that Facebook was using its new Video app in order
5 to communicate to third-party developers that there
6 would be a level playing field out there?

7 MR. LERNER: Calls for speculation, it's 8 overbroad, and it's leading.

9 THE WITNESS: That was my understanding.

10 MR. GODKIN: Q. And that was important to 11 you why?

12 MR. LERNER: Misstates the testimony.

13 THE WITNESS: I've already answered that.

14 MR. GODKIN: Q. Okay. I'll withdraw
15 that, then. Do you see in the third paragraph the 16 term "social graph" is used?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. Did you have an understanding of what 19 Facebook meant when it referred to the social graph?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. What was your understanding?

22 MR. LERNER: Calls for speculation.

23 THE WITNESS: A graph is a computer
24 science term, where you have nodes, which you could
25 think of as dots, and then you have connections

1 between the nodes, which you can think of as lines
2 connecting them. And the social graph meant the 3 interconnections between people, where each person,
4 each human, is a node, and each friendship is a line
5 connecting two nodes or two people.

6 MR. GODKIN: Q. And in the fourth
7 paragraph, do you see there's a reference to 8 "written FQL," and then in parentheses it says
9 "Facebook Query Language"? Do you see that?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Do you know what that means?

12 MR. LERNER: Same objection.

13 THE WITNESS: Broadly. There were two new
14 languages, FQL and FBML, which is Facebook Markup
15 Language -- sorry -- Facebook Markup Language. And 16 these were -- essentially these were both extremely 17 similar to existing standard languages, but modified
18 to enable specific Facebook capabilities. And FQL
19 provided abilities for the -- for an application to 20 get information from Facebook. So as part of the 21 APIs that I mentioned before.

22 So as an example, if an app wanted to find 23 out what are the favorite music of a consumer, they 24 could submit an FQL query using the Facebook Query
25 Language to look up that consumer's favorite music.

1 MR. GODKIN: Q. And when you're using the
2 term "language," are you talking about a computer
3 programming language?

4 A. Sorry. Yes.

5 Q. Okay. All right. Put that one aside.

6 Let me ask the court reporter to mark as
7 the next exhibit another document.

8 (Whereupon Exhibit 4 was marked for
9 identification.)

10 MR. GODKIN: Q. I've placed in front of 11 you what we've marked as Exhibit 4, Mr. Partovi. If 12 you could take a moment to review it.

13 A. Mm-hmm.

14 Q. It's entitled "F8 Event and Facebook
15 Platform FAQ" at the top. Do you see that?

16 A. Mm-hmm.

17 Q. You need to say "yes" or "no."

18 A. Yes.

19 Q. Have you seen this document before?

20 A. This does not look familiar to me.

21 Q. Do you see in the very first paragraph,
22 under the heading "What is F8," and then it says,
23 "F8 was an event held at the San Francisco Design
24 Center on May 24th --

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. -- 2007, during which Mark Zuckerberg
2 unveiled the next evolution of Facebook Platform."
3 And it talks about a Hackathon, as well.

4 A. Yeah.

5 Q. Does this refresh your recollection that
6 the F8 in 2007 took place on May 24, 2007 --

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. -- at the San Francisco Design Center?

9 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered. He's
10 already testified this document's not familiar.

11 THE WITNESS: So on the third paragraph, I
12 might have seen this, because this is the --
13 "opportunity to build a business" at the end is a
14 thing that I remember pointing out to you
15 specifically was important to me.

16 MR. GODKIN: Q. All right. And so you're 17 referring to the third paragraph that's entitled 18 "What is Facebook Platform," correct?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And in that paragraph, it also refers
21 to -- this is in the last sentence -- "deep
22 integration into the Facebook website."

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to 25 whether you read this document before?

1 A. That one, not as much. "Opportunity to
2 build a business" is something that I remember
3 reading. And I think I remember Mark Zuckerberg
4 saying it on stage, as well. And it wasn't in this
5 document, so therefore, maybe I read it here.

6 Q. When you say "it wasn't in this document,"
7 are you referring --

8 A. It wasn't in Exhibit 3.

9 Q. Exhibit 3. Okay. And if you refer down
10 to -- down towards the bottom of the first page,
11 there's a section called "Why did Facebook launch 12 Facebook Platform?" Do you see that?

13 A. Yeah.

14 Q. And it says, "Our engineers have created
15 great applications for Facebook, but we recognize 16 that third-party developers can help us make 17 Facebook an even more powerful social utility." Do
18 you see that?

19 A. Yeah.

20 Q. Does reading that refresh your
21 recollection as to whether or not you heard
22 Mr. Zuckerberg or someone else talk about
23 third-party developers making Facebook a more
24 powerful social utility?

25 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered, and

1 mischaracterizes the testimony.

2 THE WITNESS: The term "more powerful
3 social utility" doesn't ring a bell.

4 MR. GODKIN: Q. Okay. And then the last
5 sentence of this paragraph states, "Developers also 6 benefit from Facebook Platform as it gives them the 7 potential to broadly distribute their applications
8 and even build new business opportunities." Do you
9 see that?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to 12 whether you recall Mr. Zuckerberg or someone else
13 talking about Facebook Platform and providing new 14 business opportunities to developers?

15 MR. LERNER: Same objections, and 16 mischaracterizes the prior testimony.

17 THE WITNESS: That language I definitely
18 recall hearing from Facebook, but I don't recall
19 whether it was in this document or from Zuckerberg
20 on stage or various other Facebook communications.
21 But to broadly distribute applications and build new 22 business and opportunities were definitely things
23 that Facebook in multiple different ways was touting
24 as the benefits of the platform for developers.

25 MR. GODKIN: Q. And was that one of the

1 things that you considered in deciding to go ahead
2 and build an application on the Facebook Platform?

3 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered, and it's
4 vague as to time.

5 THE WITNESS: I think we saw that as
6 marketing. The things I said earlier were more
7 critical to us, namely the ability to communicate
8 with customers and build lasting customer
9 relationships.

10 MR. GODKIN: Q. Then if you turn to the 11 third page of Exhibit 4, at the top there's a 12 section entitled "How will Facebook deal with 13 applications that compete with one another or even 14 compete with Facebook-built applications?" Can you
15 read that section quickly.

16 (Pause.)

17 THE WITNESS: Yeah.

18 MR. GODKIN: Q. Do you recall reading
19 this paragraph before?

20 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered.

21 THE WITNESS: I don't recall reading it in 22 this document, but I recall it being an explicit 23 promise from Facebook that applications from 24 third-party developers would have a level playing 25 field with applications built by Facebook, and that

1 third-party applications and Facebook's native
2 applications would compete for consumer attention
3 based on merit. Those are things I said, you know,
4 ten minutes earlier.

5 MR. GODKIN: Q. Right.

6 A. So I recall those things being explicit
7 promises, but I don't recall whether I saw them in 8 this document itself.

9 Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Zuckerberg made 10 that point when he gave his speech at the F8 in 11 2007?

12 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered --

13 THE WITNESS: I don't remember that.

14 MR. LERNER: -- for about the tenth time.

15 MR. GODKIN: Q. Did anybody else other
16 than Mr. Zuckerberg make speeches at the F8?

17 MR. LERNER: That's --

18 MR. GODKIN: Q. -- in 2007?

19 MR. LERNER: -- also asked and answered
20 multiple times.

21 THE WITNESS: I don't remember. I think I
22 said "probably."

23 MR. GODKIN: Q. Right.

24 A. It's just very hazy.

25 Q. Well, to the extent that it's possible

1 And I believe Facebook themselves was amongst the 2 different groups that we borrowed machines from.
3 Although I wasn't the one doing that, so my memory
4 of that is a bit hazy.

5 Q. How many -- do you recall how many users
6 of the Facebook app iLike had at its peak?

7 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad.

8 THE WITNESS: It's an estimate. I would
9 say 25 million, but that could be significantly off.
10 It could be -- it could be 20 or it could be 30.

11 MR. GODKIN: Q. Somewhere between 20 and 12 30?

13 A. It was in the tens of millions.

14 Q. And do you recall approximately when the 15 peak was achieved time-wise?

16 A. 2009.

17 Q. So at the bottom of page -- you see 18 there's some page numbers, page 3 of 14, at the 19 bottom?

20 A. Yeah.

21 Q. On page 3 of 14, you answered a question
22 by stating that you pushed and pushed with Facebook
23 asking for some sort of exclusive relationship. Do
24 you see that?

25 A. Yeah.

1 Q. And what was the -- what sort of exclusive
2 relationship were you pushing for?

3 A. So we had hoped to have a partnership with 4 Facebook where we'd have a contractual commercial
5 relationship with them. And, you know -- and one
6 where we would be the exclusive provider of music,
7 music-related features on Facebook.

8 Q. And what did Facebook respond?

9 A. I mean, this is what I remember, is they 10 weren't interested in doing any exclusive -- or 11 even -- or contractual relationship, and -- and 12 instead wanted us to build -- build an app on the
13 platform.

14 Q. And at the top, on page 4 of 14, you 15 answered the question by saying that, "They 16 repeatedly said they won't do an exclusive
17 relationship, but would rather create a level
18 playing field where we could compete with other 19 third parties." Do you see that?

20 A. Yeah.

21 Q. And by "they," do you recall any
22 individual people who you were talking to Facebook
23 about this potential exclusive relationship?

24 A. I was speaking to Allison Rosenthal.

25 Q. Do you know what her job was within

1 Facebook?

2 A. I don't remember the title, but it was
3 business development. Maybe director of business
4 development or manager of business development. I
5 believe she had a specific focus on music, music
6 services or the music category, but I don't remember
7 for sure.

8 Q. Do you happen to know whether she still 9 works for Facebook?

10 A. I don't think she does.

11 Q. Is she somebody that you've stayed in 12 touch with over the years?

13 A. Minimally.

14 Q. Do you happen to know where she works
15 today?

16 A. I should, but I've forgotten.

17 Q. And the phrase "level playing field"
18 appears in that sentence, as well. Is that 19 something that Allison Rosenthal said to you?

20 A. I don't recall.

21 Q. Do you remember anybody else at Facebook
22 using the phrase "level playing field"?

23 A. Matt Cohler.

24 Q. Can you spell his last name?

25 A. C-O-H-L-E-R.

1 Q. What was his title at the time he had that
2 conversation with you?

3 A. I think chief product officer, but I
4 might -- I might be mistaken on that, as well.

5 Q. And do you recall how many times you spoke
6 with Matt Cohler about this topic of a level playing
7 field?

8 A. I --

9 MR. LERNER: Mischaracterizes the
10 testimony.

11 THE WITNESS: The only conversation that I
12 remember clearly was at F8, at the F8 conference. I
13 remember him saying that the Video app that Facebook
14 had built using their own platform was -- was not 15 just a one-off. It was that -- it was indicated
16 that henceforth Facebook's new capabilities and 17 features would be built on the platform using the 18 same -- you know, on the same level playing field as 19 third-party apps.

20 So, for example, I remember him suggesting 21 that if a third party built a better video app than 22 Facebook's own Video app, the third party could 23 conceivably have -- reach more consumers than 24 Facebook's own Video app.

25 MR. GODKIN: Q. Was what -- was this a

1 speech that he was making in front of the group?

2 A. No. This was a one-on-one conversation.

3 Q. With you?

4 A. Yes.

5 Q. With anybody else besides the two of you,
6 Mr. Cohler and yourself?

7 A. I think my brother, Hadi, was there, but I
8 don't remember for sure.

9 Q. Did Mr. Cohler -- do you recall, was he 10 involved in making a presentation to the F8 on the 11 subject of this Video app Facebook had built?

12 A. I don't remember.

13 Q. All right. Other than Mr. Cohler and 14 Allison Rosenthal, do you recall anybody else from 15 Facebook talking with you about this concept of a 16 level playing field?

17 MR. LERNER: Mischaracterizes the
18 testimony.

19 THE WITNESS: I don't. Sorry. This fell
20 off. I don't.

21 MR. GODKIN: Q. So at the bottom of 22 page -- on page 4 of 14, the interview asks you,
23 "What made iLike think that Facebook Platform would 24 be a big deal?" Do you see that?

25 A. Yes.

1 and efficiencies and capabilities that it -- that it
2 offered to developers, would be superior to ordinary
3 web development, would be the preferred place for 4 people to build websites and services rather than 5 just on the open web.

6 Q. Okay. And then on the page 12 of 14, at 7 the bottom of the page, you respond to the question
8 by stating, "What I'd say is that anybody who is 9 currently involved in building a consumer-facing 10 website should be thinking about whether they should 11 be building a Facebook app instead." Why did you
12 think that?

13 A. I don't see it. This is on page 12?

14 Q. At the very bottom of the page.

15 A. Ah.

16 Q. You're asked a question, and then you
17 respond --

18 A. Right.

19 Q. -- "what I'd say." Do you see that?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. So why did you make that statement?

22 A. Because I believed that the -- all the 23 benefits that one could have of building a website
24 could be enjoyed within a Facebook app, and plus
25 additional benefits that were not available for a

1 stand-alone website, such as access to the various
2 APIs that Facebook provided and access to the social
3 graph.

4 Q. And so do I understand correctly that you
5 were basically saying you thought, given these 6 additional features, the Facebook Platform was a
7 better place to build a website than an ordinary
8 website, correct?

9 MR. LERNER: Leading, mischaracterizes the
10 testimony.

11 THE WITNESS: I -- I remember thinking it
12 was a better place to build a service or to build a
13 business than on a stand-alone website.

14 MR. GODKIN: Q. In addition to the 15 Facebook Platform, are you aware of any -- anything
16 else that Facebook did in the 2007 to 2009 time
17 frame that encouraged third-party app developers to 18 build businesses on Facebook?

19 MR. LERNER: Overbroad, calls for
20 speculation.

21 THE WITNESS: Am I aware of anything else
22 Facebook did that encouraged -- I mean, in addition
23 to Facebook Platform, a lot of things that they did,
24 I would say, fall under the umbrella of the term
25 "Facebook Platform," but in case you don't count it

1 under that, there was a different set of APIs called
2 Facebook Connect, which I can't remember whether it
3 officially was considered part of Facebook Platform
4 or separate, but these were capabilities for apps
5 that -- sorry -- for websites that were not housed
6 within Facebook, nevertheless to have access to some 7 of the same services and data and comparable APIs as 8 if -- compared to apps that were housed within
9 Facebook.

10 And so essentially the benefits of 11 building an app entirely within Facebook, some of 12 those benefits were now offered to websites that 13 were not housed within Facebook, but could connect
14 to Facebook from the outside, so to speak.

15 MR. GODKIN: Q. Did iLike take advantage
16 of Facebook Connect on the iLike website portion of 17 its business?

18 A. No, we did not.

19 Q. Are you aware of any other companies that 20 you were involved with or consulting with at the 21 time who took advantage of Facebook Connect?

22 A. I don't remember specifically.

23 Q. Are you familiar with something called 24 Facebook Fund?

25 A. Ah, yes.

1 MR. LERNER: Just -- just so it's clear
2 for the record, we're going to designate this 3 portion of the transcript "Confidential." And 4 Mr. Partovi, at a break we'll ask you to sign the 5 undertaking that's attached to the protective order
6 in this case, which relates to documents marked
7 "Confidential" that are shown to people. So we 8 can -- with that understanding, we can go ahead with 9 this document.

10 THE WITNESS: Okay.

11 MR. GODKIN: Q. So you have Exhibit 6 in 12 front of you. If you'd just turn to the last page
13 of the exhibit, which is an e-mail from you to Adam 14 D'Angelo, cc: your brother, Hadi Partovi, on 15 August 7th, 2007. Do you have that in front of you?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Was Adam D'Angelo a Facebook employee at 18 the time?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And what was the reason that you -- strike
21 that.

22 It looks like you say, "Thanks for your 23 time yesterday." Did you have a meeting with him or 24 a phone call? Do you remember?

25 A. I think I met with him.

1 Q. Do you recall what the nature of his job
2 was at Facebook?

3 MR. LERNER: Calls for speculation.

4 THE WITNESS: I think he was the chief
5 technical officer.

6 MR. GODKIN: Q. And do you recall the 7 reason that you met with him?

8 A. You know, this particular e-mail, the 9 particular date, I don't recall specifically, but he
10 and I met on more than one occasion, and I can't 11 remember whether I would already have said I was 12 friends with him beforehand or became friends
13 through the process, but I currently consider him a 14 friend.

15 And during this period -- this was summer
16 of 2007 -- I made frequent visits to the Facebook
17 office to talk about things impacting our app in 18 particular and the platform in general. So this 19 must have been one of those meetings.

20 Q. When you say "frequent visits to 21 Facebook," about how many times did you visit
22 Facebook in 2007?

23 A. In all of 2007? Ten times. I don't
24 remember. It could have been five times. You know,
25 between visits and phone calls and e-mails, there

1 was a lot of communication, so I can't remember the
2 number of times.

3 Q. In addition to the visit that prompted
4 this e-mail, do you recall some of the other reasons
5 why you went to Facebook to meet with them in 2007?

6 A. For a period of time, we were very, very
7 excited about what the Facebook Platform could do,
8 not only for our business, but also for the web in 9 general. So at one point we visited basically to 10 give gifts to Facebook's employees. So we printed
11 hundreds of T-shirts and gave them -- T-shirts with 12 the iLike logo on them, and handed them out at 13 Facebook to -- you know, for free to their 14 employees. So that was one visit I recall.

15 And I remember, you know, a lot of 16 Facebook employees contacting me afterwards saying,
17 "Thanks for the free T-shirt." So -- and there
18 might have been some subsequent visits, you know, to 19 give T-shirts to people who had been missed.

20 So, for example, Facebook Co-founder
21 Dustin Moskovitz contacted me saying could he get a 22 second T-shirt for his girlfriend. So it was a very 23 friendly relationship between the companies and 24 between me and the people at Facebook.

25 At the same time, we were also very

1 frustrated that the decisions they were making
2 around the enforcement of their terms, or rather,
3 the lack of enforcement of their terms, were making
4 it a unhealthy environment for consumers, first and
5 foremost, but therefore, also an unhealthy
6 environment for businesses that were trying to cater
7 to those consumers on the platform.

8 And so we were trying to convince Facebook
9 to enforce its own terms and to prevent the -- some 10 of the abusive behaviors that other third-party apps
11 were conducting on the platform.

12 Q. What types of abusive behavior are you
13 referring to?

14 A. So the terms of service at the time said
15 that apps were not allowed to deceive or mislead
16 users, they were not allowed to spam users, meaning
17 to send unsolicited messages to users, and also that 18 they were not allowed to violate third-party
19 copyrights. And different apps were doing all -- 20 you know, all three of those things. The most 21 common was what I would say was deceptive spamming,
22 where an app would, without a user's permission,
23 send notifications to that user's friends telling
24 them that the user has invited them to use the app.

25 Q. And this document that's in front of you,

1 Exhibit 6, is a reference to deceptive apps, and it
2 also uses the term "spammy apps." Do you see that?

3 A. Yep.

4 MR. LERNER: Leading.

5 MR. GODKIN: Q. Is that what you're
6 referring to by these abusive behavior by others?

7 MR. LERNER: Mischaracterizes the
8 document.

9 THE WITNESS: Yes. This is -- these are
10 some examples. This was in August, and other types
11 of abusive behaviors happened earlier, and others
12 happened later, but these are -- this is, you know,
13 characteristic.

14 MR. GODKIN: Q. Did -- and -- strike
15 that.

16 Was iLike engaging in deceptive spamming
17 or that kind of behavior that you were concerned
18 about?

19 A. No. We -- we always viewed it as -- our 20 relationship with the consumer as one that was a 21 branded relationship, and it was important for our 22 own brand not to do something that would be
23 perceived as reflecting negatively on the iLike
24 brand.

25 And so -- so even though it resided within

1 Facebook, we were trying to create a branded
2 relationship, as I said, where it was a relationship
3 between the consumer and iLike, and so we wanted to 4 build trust. And so for that reason, we never did
5 anything that was not with the permission of the 6 consumer. And we held ourselves, I guess, to our 7 own bar, regardless of what the terms or conditions
8 of Facebook were.

9 Q. And so your meeting with Adam D'Angelo was 10 concerning this issue of deceptive or spammy apps,
11 correct?

12 MR. LERNER: Leading, mischaracterizes the
13 testimony.

14 THE WITNESS: I think it was one of the 15 topics. And I would say I met with Adam, as well as 16 many other people at Facebook over a period of 17 months to talk about, as I already said earlier,
18 abusive behavior by other third-party apps. Dave 19 Morin was another person I met with frequently. And 20 then Dave was replaced by Chamath, and then Chamath
21 was replaced by Ben Ling, and then Ben Ling was 22 replaced by, I think, Josh Elman.

23 So there was a -- this was all in the 24 course of, I think, one year. There was a revolving 25 door of representatives that we would speak to and

1 voice our concerns and, you know, listen to what
2 they had to offer or say. So this meeting was just
3 one of -- one of many. It's hard for me to remember
4 exactly the subject of this meeting.

5 MR. GODKIN: Q. Sure. But in addition to 6 this issue regarding deceptive apps, spammy apps,
7 what were some of the other issues that you went to 8 meet with Facebook about?

9 MR. LERNER: Mischaracterizes the
10 testimony.

11 THE WITNESS: The -- we would also meet
12 with them from time to time to tell them about what 13 features we were anticipating creating. I forgot to 14 add Owen Van Natta as another person I met with.

15 MR. GODKIN: Q. Can you spell his last 16 name?

17 A. V-A-N, space, N-A-T-T-A. He was the COO
18 at the time. He was the predecessor to Sheryl 19 Sandberg.

20 So we also from time to time had meetings
21 where we would voluntarily present to them what our 22 plans were for future features we were going to add.
23 And I think we would also suggest to them ways that 24 we could help Facebook generate more revenue or 25 suggestions for what features we hoped that they

1 would create, or features -- new APIs that we hoped
2 that they would build for -- for the platform.

3 Q. How did Facebook respond to this e-mail,
4 which is Exhibit 6, on the -- you know, on the topic
5 of deceptive apps and spammy apps?

6 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad as to
7 Facebook.

8 THE WITNESS: So I think -- I mean,
9 reading this e-mail, I can read it back to you, but 10 I can tell you what I recall from that period was,
11 broadly speaking, there were many apps that 12 flagrantly violated Facebook's terms of service.
13 And when I say "flagrantly," it was visible to the 14 public, it was documented in articles written by,
15 you know, mainstream publications, and these 16 violations were, you know, public knowledge.

17 And we encouraged Facebook to enforce its 18 terms, including its, you know, explicit right to 19 disable those apps. And we encouraged them to do so
20 as a deterrent to send a message to everybody else
21 to -- you know, to non-abusive developers that, you
22 know, abuses won't be tolerated and that abuses
23 would be punished.

24 Facebook, generally speaking, chose a
25 different path, and Facebook, rather than employing

1 a deterrent, meaning rather than subjectively
2 picking -- you know, rather than identifying 3 individual abusers by hand and disabling those 4 abusers, Facebook instead chose to try to develop
5 algorithms to detect abuse and block it, or more
6 kind of bluntly disabling entirely the APIs which 7 were most frequently targeted by abusers.

8 So if a certain notification API or 9 request API had been exploited by, you know, enough
10 abusers, that API might be modified or disabled
11 altogether, ostensibly to prevent further abuse.

12 MR. GODKIN: Q. Was iLike -- was the 13 iLike Facebook app affected by Facebook's actions
14 with regard to disabling or modifying APIs?

15 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad.

16 THE WITNESS: Yes, it was. It was 17 significantly harmed.

18 MR. GODKIN: Q. Explain to me how it
19 was --

20 A. So the --

21 Q. Let me finish the question, just so the 22 record's clear. Explain how iLike -- the iLike
23 Facebook app was significantly harmed by actions
24 taken by Facebook.

25 MR. LERNER: Lacks foundation.

THE WITNESS: ILike had already built a business on its own dot-com website that consisted of attracting new consumers and then retaining communications with them via e-mail. And on Facebook, on our Facebook app, we used the APIs as a new way to attract consumers, and also as a new way to retain communication with them via the Facebook notification system rather than via e-mail. And over time, our abilities to attract new consumers were reduced and practically eliminated by the changes in the platform. That reduced the advantages that the Facebook Platform offered over the stand-alone website that we had built.

21 And so that second part had been a
22 prerequisite for us because we wanted to have a 23 business, and critical part of that business was the 24 ability to have a direct channel of communication
25 with our customers. And other apps used that

1 communication channel in abusive ways, you know,
2 sending unsolicited messages. Our app used it, for
3 example, to notify you that there's a Tom Petty
4 concert in your zip code next month. And when we 5 lost that ability to notify you of that, that 6 significantly reduced our value proposition to the 7 consumer and also our ability to make money.

8 MR. GODKIN: Q. So what change did
9 Facebook make, as best you can recall, that 10 interfered with your ability to communicate with 11 your customers?

12 MR. LERNER: Lacks foundation.

13 THE WITNESS: So the time of this e-mail
14 is just one point in this process. I would say over 15 the period of a year, the term Facebook used was 16 "deprecating." "Deprecate" means to -- basically to 17 retire certain features or to reduce features or to 18 eliminate them altogether. And so over time,
19 Facebook deprecated various APIs that we used to 20 either communicate with our own customers or to 21 allow those -- allow our customers to communicate
22 with their friends about us.

23 So they -- while I don't remember the 24 names of the specific APIs, I think there was a
25 notification API with actually several sub- --

1 subtypes of notifications, direct app-to-user
2 notifications or user-to-friend notifications, and 3 those notification APIs were one example of how we
4 communicated with consumers.

5 There was the News Feed API and there was 6 a Request API, and over time, all of these APIs were
7 deprecated. And so what started out as a very open 8 range of offerings to enable us to communicate with 9 our own customers and to enable our customers to 10 evangelize our services to their friends was 11 significantly restricted.

12 And several of those APIs were directly
13 linked to our revenue, and so our ability to make 14 money was gradually reduced and pinched because of 15 the deprecation of these APIs.

16 MR. GODKIN: Q. Do you recall the time
17 frame over which these APIs were deprecated?

18 A. I think around the time of this e-mail is 19 when it began. So I think for the first -- June, 20 July, August -- for the first three months or so was 21 a period of a lot of abusive behavior by third-party
22 apps and not a lot of response by Facebook. And 23 then from August of 2007 to August of 2008 is -- and 24 into -- actually, into 2009. I'd say there was a
25 two-year period where Facebook was generally

1 deprecating APIs.

2 Q. Did you have communications with Facebook
3 about your concerns as a result of deprecating the 4 APIs?

5 A. We did. I don't remember whether it was 6 myself or my twin brother or a different individual
7 at iLike. You know, we would often huddle between 8 us on our side and discuss, and then we would choose
9 who should send what message to whom about it. And,
10 you know -- and raise the issue and ask for, you
11 know, them to change their mind or things like this.

12 We would sometimes get advanced notice
13 that an API was going to be deprecated, and so we 14 would e-mail them protesting and saying, "Please
15 don't do this," or, "There's a different way to 16 accomplish your goal," and so on.

17 Q. Do you recall the names of anybody at 18 Facebook that you communicated with to express your 19 concerns about deprecating APIs?

20 A. Besides the ones I mentioned, Ari
21 Steinberg. It's a maybe. I don't know for sure
22 whether I communicated with him on that topic.
23 There was a woman who reported to Ben Ling, whose 24 name I'm forgetting right now. No one else jumps to 25 mind right now.

1 Q. Did you communicate with Mr. Zuckerberg
2 about this?

3 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered.

4 THE WITNESS: Matt Cohler I mentioned. So
5 it's possible. We held a meeting with Mark
6 Zuckerberg and Chamath in fall of 2007, and the main
7 topic of the meeting wasn't the deprecation of APIs.
8 It was Facebook's plan to create their own music
9 services and their own pages for artists, both of 10 which were functionality that our app provided. And 11 we were -- we had been made aware in confidence that 12 Facebook intended to offer the same features, but 13 not on a level playing field via the platform,
14 rather as part of the Facebook core, so to speak.

15 And so the main topic was us expressing
16 our frustration that Facebook was essentially 17 rendering a lot of our functionality into a sort of 18 second-class status, and, you know, less effective
19 than Facebook's proposed new features, and that it
20 was no longer a level playing field.

21 But it's quite possible that at the same
22 time we had -- we might have in the same meeting
23 discussed the deprecation of features. I don't -- I
24 don't remember how much API deprecation had happened
25 by then, so -- so that's why I don't remember

1 whether we discussed it at the time.

2 MR. GODKIN: Q. What did Mr. Zuckerberg
3 say during that meeting?

4 MR. LERNER: Asked and answered.

5 THE WITNESS: I remember him saying that 6 they had already built these features and 7 wouldn't -- wouldn't reconsider changing them.

8 So one specific feature was enabling
9 artists to have their own profiles that included
10 music and to play back music. And that was a key 11 thing that we had enabled. And likewise, the 12 ability for consumers to then add a song to their 13 profile from -- you know, to share with their 14 friends.

15 And Facebook had built their own music
16 player, not as an app, but as -- you know, as a core
17 feature. And so this was in contrast to the Video 18 app that they had said, "From now on we'll build our 19 own new features on" -- "on our own platform." Now
20 the music -- this new music player app was -- was 21 not built on a platform. It was automatically
22 available to all users without an installation
23 process.

24 And so we were asking Facebook to consider
25 not releasing its own music player, and essentially

1 to shelve that technology or to release it as a
2 stand-alone app on a level playing field with our 3 music player. And I remember him saying that they
4 wouldn't consider doing that.

5 MR. GODKIN: Q. Did you -- were you of 6 the view that Facebook was not abiding by the 7 promises it had made when it released the Facebook
8 Platform to have a level playing field with 9 third-party app developers?

10 MR. LERNER: Lacks foundation, and calls
11 for a legal conclusion as to "promises."

12 THE WITNESS: I felt that Cohler had --
13 Matt Cohler had explicitly promised that, going 14 forward, Facebook's own features would be built on 15 the same platform that third-party apps would. And 16 I felt that that promise was not upheld in more ways
17 than one, but one example was this music player.

18 MR. GODKIN: Q. What other examples in 19 addition to the music player?

20 A. Well, the salient one is the Video app
21 itself. In 2007, the ability to post a video on 22 Facebook or to share it to your friends required
23 installing a separate Video app as if it's a 24 third-party app, just that happened to be made by 25 Facebook. And at one point they made the Video app

7 So that's -- you know, that was the 8 specific salient example that they put forward at 9 the time. And then -- so this promise that their 10 own future development would be limited to the 11 platform was partly articulated by using Video, as 12 an example. And then Video itself changed, and it
13 was no longer a part of the platform.

18 MR. LERNER: Vague, overbroad, lacks
19 foundation, and leading.

25 MR. GODKIN: Q. What features can you

1 think of?

2 A. So, actually, it's mentioned here.
3 SuperWall and Advanced Wall, and there was another
4 one called FunWall. Those were third-party apps,
5 all variations of a multimedia wall.

6 And when I say "wall," in context,
7 Facebook in 2007 allowed any user to post a comment
8 on another user's profile, and that was called "on 9 their wall." So I can write on your wall, meaning I
10 could write text on your wall. "Your wall" meant
11 your profile, and it was limited to text.

12 And these third-party features -- these 13 third-party apps enabled multimedia, meaning I could 14 write not only text, but add photos and video. And 15 so if you installed the FunWall or SuperWall or 16 Advanced Wall app, now your friends could post video 17 on your wall or they could post graphics on your 18 wall.

19 And these capabilities were not available
20 within Facebook's own profiles. Today they are, and 21 they don't require installing any -- any app.

22 Q. Can you think of any other examples of 23 things that Facebook did that were inconsistent with 24 representations that had been made at the F8 in 25 2007?

1 MR. LERNER: Lacks foundation,
2 mischaracterizes the testimony, and it's leading.

3 THE WITNESS: I mean, let me -- --
4 building a music player and artist pages that
5 competed with iLike's own music player and iLike's
6 artist pages, I think I already mentioned that.

7 But this language from this Q and A, which
8 Exhibit 4, was language that -- although I don't 9 recall reading it in this Q and A, was language that 10 I recall hearing, perhaps in this Q and A, but 11 hearing in communication from Facebook, that said
12 that applications from third-party developers are on 13 a level playing field with applications built by
14 Facebook.

15 So having a music player and a -- and
16 artist pages that were not on a level playing field
17 was a breach of what I would say was that promise.
18 And -- you know, and what that enabled was for 19 Facebook to go to artists and say, "You should put 20 your music on our Facebook," you know, "Facebook's
21 official music pages rather than on the iLike pages,
22 because ours are," you know, "superior and theirs
23 are," you know, "inferior."

24 While I wasn't there for Facebook -- I
25 wasn't there to witness Facebook saying those

1 things, it put them in a position to say things like
2 that. And we would hear back from various artists,
3 artists who told us that they had heard that kind of 4 a thing from Facebook, and that Facebook was telling
5 them to, you know, essentially migrate their
6 presence from iLike onto Facebook's own pages
7 because it was going to be superior. So that is not
8 a level playing field.

9 And then another thing that was a feature
10 of our application was the -- we had a button that 11 was present all over our application that was called 12 the "iLike" button, and you could click that button
13 to designate that you liked a song or an artist or a 14 concert. And then it would be inserted into the 15 News Feed so that your friends could see, you know,
16 Dave has iLiked this concert or this artist.

17 And Facebook later built a similar feature
18 with a button called "Like." And the Facebook
19 feature did not require an app to be installed. It
20 was built into the Facebook core rather than on the 21 platform. And I would say, again, that was an 22 example of not being a level playing field. It was 23 much easier for consumers to discover these native
24 "Like" buttons that were part of the Facebook core
25 vis-a-vis the "iLike" buttons that required an app

1 to be installed.

2 MR. LERNER: And I'm just going to object
3 to all the hearsay.

4 MR. GODKIN: Q. Do you know approximately
5 when Facebook added its own "Like" button?

6 MR. LERNER: Mischaracterizes the
7 testimony, and lacks foundation.

8 THE WITNESS: I would -- I would have to 9 consult -- I'd have to do a search. I remember
10 clearly when we found out that it was happening. It
11 was no small deal for us. I just don't remember
12 whether it was early -- mid 2008 or late 2008 or 13 2009.

14 MR. GODKIN: Q. Was it before or after 15 you sold the company to MySpace?

16 A. I think it was before, but even that's a
17 hazy memory.

18 Q. Did you communicate with Facebook once you
19 found out that they had added their own "Like"
20 button?

21 A. They communicated with us in advance that 22 it was coming. It was from Dan Rose to my brother.
23 I don't remember how or if we communicated back.

24 Q. What was the impact on your company,
25 iLike, by all of these changes that Facebook was

1 making, including deprecating APIs, as you testified
2 about, the "Like" button, and the other examples?

3 MR. LERNER: Vague.

4 MR. GODKIN: Q. How did that affect your
5 company?

6 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad, and it's
7 asked and answered.

8 THE WITNESS: It became clear to us that 9 there was no way to maintain the business we had 10 built on our Facebook app, and so it became clear to 11 us that whatever business we had in our Facebook app
12 was short-lived, and that we should re- -- reorient
13 ourselves to the parts of our business that were 14 elsewhere that were unrelated to Facebook.

15 And this was a dire situation for us
16 because most of our business at this point was on 17 our Facebook app. So essentially the most 18 significant part of our business, we realized, was 19 unlikely to last very long. And that's because most 20 of the things we relied on, both for consumer
21 engagement and for revenue, had either disappeared
22 or were on their way to being deprecated.

23 Furthermore, Facebook was competing with 24 our own features directly. So -- and not on a level
25 playing field. And so it was, you know, gradually

1 adding customers faster than we were, and we foresaw
2 that it was, you know, unlikely for us to be able to
3 retain those customers since it was not a level
4 playing field.

5 MR. GODKIN: Q. When did you sell the 6 business to MySpace?

7 A. Fall of 2009. I think September 2009 is 8 when it closed.

9 Q. And what was the sale price?

10 A. I'm not sure if I'm allowed to disclose
11 because it's confidential.

12 Q. Okay.

13 MR. LERNER: It's not.

14 MR. GODKIN: It's not confidential?

15 MR. LERNER: I can look it up on the 16 Internet for you right now.

17 MR. GODKIN: Yeah.

18 THE WITNESS: I can tell you the public
19 reported numbers --

20 MR. GODKIN: Q. That's fine.

21 A. -- were in the neighborhood of
22 $20 million.

23 Q. To your understanding, did the amount for 24 which you were able to sell the company, was that 25 amount affected one way or the other by all of these

1 changes that Facebook was making?

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. How?

4 A. So the biggest factor is that it -- they 5 significantly impeded our ability to retain or 6 attract employees. So our staff collectively was 7 either quitting or threatening to quit, and it was 8 very difficult for us to recruit any new staff.

9 But also, the products that we sold were 10 disappearing. So one of our means for revenue would 11 be to approach a touring artist, such as, to use
12 your example, Tom Petty, although specifically, I
13 mean, actual examples were U2, Coldplay, other major 14 artists. And we would offer to promote their 15 concert more aggressively than what we already did
16 in return for cash.

17 So our app for free would notify all U2
18 fans within a five-mile radius that "There is a U2
19 concert coming up near you in the next two months."
20 But if U2 would pay us extra money, we would notify 21 all fans in a 20-mile radius or 50-mile radius to 22 reach a larger audience of, you know, prospective
23 concert ticket buyers. And in return for cash, we 24 would send those notifications to those fans.

25 Our ability to do that and to collect that

1 money required us to have an ability to notify these
2 fans, and these fans, who were our users of our app,
3 we did have that ability to notify them until that 4 ability was deprecated and we lost that ability to 5 notify those fans. And so we lost the ability to do
6 the thing that paying customers were paying us to 7 do.

8 So our business forecasts had to be 9 slashed because one of our most lucrative sources of 10 revenue disappeared. So that impacted the 11 valuation.

12 Q. Was the Facebook application -- strike
13 that.

14 Was iLike's Facebook app still functioning
15 at the time the company was sold to MySpace?

16 A. It was, yes.

17 Q. And you stayed with MySpace for a period
18 of time?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. What was your job at MySpace?

21 A. I became VP of business development at 22 MySpace.

23 Q. And how long did you stay at MySpace?

24 A. Full-time, about six months, maybe seven
25 months, and then I remained as a consultant maybe

1 clear, the -- I have the protective order that's in 2 place in the case, and I believe it -- hang on. Let 3 me just check.

4 MR. LERNER: We can go off the record to 5 do this.

6 MR. GODKIN: It will just take me a
7 second.

8 MR. LERNER: Let's go off the record so we 9 can cover this.

10 MR. GODKIN: All right.

11 MR. LERNER: You need to agree.

12 MR. GODKIN: No, I think you're right. So
13 I'm agreeing with you.

14 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Off the record at 15 12:35.

16 (Discussion off the record.)

17 THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the record at 18 12:35.

19 MR. GODKIN: Q. Mr. Partovi, do you know,
20 or to your knowledge, did Facebook ever make a
21 public announcement that third-party apps would not
22 be on a level playing field with Facebook apps?

23 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad.

24 THE WITNESS: Certainly not in 2007. Did
25 they sometime later than that do so? Nothing comes

1 to mind. What I would say is that when they
2 announced this so-called Great Apps program, which I
3 think might have been mid 2008, it inherently
4 implied it's not a level playing field because there
5 are Great Apps and then there are other apps, and
6 that the Great Apps are somehow superior -- you
7 know, given benefits not available to the rest.

8 So that public announcement, at least in 9 between, you know, apps, suggested that the playing 10 field was not level. I don't think there was any 11 explicit statement saying that Facebook's own core
12 features would be even a higher level of capability,
13 although it was -- by then it was already, you know,
14 in practice and kind of obvious.

15 MR. GODKIN: Q. Did you ever -- strike
16 that.

17 I think you testified earlier this morning
18 about some conversations you had with at least one 19 person who was in corporate development for 20 Facebook, and I can't remember the name of the 21 person. Do you remember what you told me? Or I can 22 look at my notes.

23 A. Dan Rose was in corporate development. I
24 don't remember if Allison Rosenthal was. Allison
25 Rosenthal was in business development, but -- I

1 don't understand -- I don't know what you're asking.

2 Q. Maybe I've used the wrong -- sorry, I
3 might have used the wrong term. I meant to ask, was 4 there somebody that you talked to or met with who
5 was in business development at Facebook?

6 MR. LERNER: Vague and overbroad.

7 THE WITNESS: Allison Rosenthal. And that
8 was in the pre-platform, you know, 2006, early 2007
9 time frame. There were others. Dan Rose was a 10 person that I did not communicate with so much. My 11 brother had more communications with Dan Rose. And 12 I believe he was the -- if I'm not mistaken, head of 13 business development, but I'm not sure his official
14 title. It might have been head of corporate 15 development.

16 MR. GODKIN: Q. And so I'm focusing now
17 on meetings that you personally had --

18 A. Okay.

19 Q. -- with business development people. Can
20 you identify or do you recall any specific meetings
21 that you had with business development people?

22 MR. LERNER: Lacks foundation.

23 THE WITNESS: There were many over the 24 course of the years, but the -- if we're talking now
25 about post F8, after our app had gone through this,

1 you know, period of, you know, success and then
2 having features deprecated, we -- we were trying to
3 sell the company. And I met with a team at Facebook
4 that was led by Ethan Beard, and he was an ex-Google
5 guy. I forget if he was in corporate development or 6 business development, but, you know, he was 7 relatively new at Facebook, if I remember correctly,
8 and we were -- I'm sorry. Take it back. I think
9 that -- I take it back. He was not in corporate 10 development or business development. I think
11 actually he had become the head of the platform
12 team. Forgive me, because it's so long ago, and the 13 titles I don't remember.

14 And I remember another name now. Elliot
15 Schrage, Schrage. Schrage, Schrage. So I think in 16 that sequence I told you before, after Josh Elman
17 came Elliot Schrage, and then Elliot Schrage either 18 moved to a different role or to a higher role, and 19 then Ethan Beard came in maybe under him.

20 So in that earlier succession of people
21 who we interacted with was Elliot and then Ethan.
22 And Ethan, I think, was head of the platform, but we 23 had a conversation with him relating to the 24 possibility of Facebook acquiring the company.

25 MR. GODKIN: Q. Approximately when did

1 that conversation take place?

2 A. I think in 2009.

3 Q. And who attended? Was it a meeting or a
4 telephone call?

5 A. It was a meeting.

6 Q. Who attended the meeting?

7 A. I don't remember the other attendees. It
8 was -- there were more than one people.

9 Q. From --

10 A. Sorry. There were multiple people.

11 Q. From Facebook?

12 A. From Facebook. I think I might have been 13 the only one from iLike.

14 Q. Was the meeting at Facebook's
15 headquarters?

16 A. It was.

17 Q. And tell me everything you can remember
18 about the discussion at that meeting.

19 A. I mean, the most salient thing I remember
20 was that there -- Ethan said at some point, you
21 know -- you know, that, "We," meaning Facebook,
22 "could acquire you, but not for very much." And I
23 remember asking, "Why not for very much?" and him
24 saying, "Because we could just shut you down."

25 And the reason this, you know, has stuck

1 in my memory is because I took it as somewhat of a
2 threat, and I -- I don't know whether he intended it
3 to be conveyed as a threat or just a, you know,
4 passing observation on his part, but I remember
5 immediately notifying other people on my team that
6 now Facebook has articulated this explicit threat.

7 I don't -- it had never been articulated
8 before, that they could -- or that they would 9 consider arbitrarily shutting us down. And, you
10 know, when you're threatened, it only takes once.
11 You don't forget it. So from that point on, we 12 lived under that threat.

13 Q. Who on your team did you communicate what 14 had been said to --

15 A. Definitely my brother, Hadi, and I'm 16 pretty sure Nat Brown.

17 Q. Back in the 2007-'8 time frame, were you 18 familiar with Facebook's privacy settings and 19 controls?

20 A. I was. They've changed so many times that 21 I don't remember right off the top of my head what 22 they were then.

23 Q. Do you recall at that time, 2007-2008,
24 were -- were Facebook users able to control what
25 information was accessible to other Facebook users?

1 MR. LERNER: Overbroad and calls for
2 speculation.

3 THE WITNESS: You know, my recollection of 4 this is hazy, but with that giant disclaimer, what I
5 remember is that at the time that the platform first
6 opened up, meaning the first F8, the controls
7 offered to consumers were not very much, and --
8 some, but not very much.

9 And in particular, what I remember as
10 pertains to our discussion is that third-party apps 11 like ours could, through one user, see the data of 12 that user's friends, as I mentioned earlier, as long
13 as though the one who was our customer himself or 14 herself could see those -- his friends' information.

15 So if our customer's John, and his friend
16 is Mary, if John can see Mary's birthday, then we 17 could also see Mary's birthday, as long as John gave 18 us permission. At some point I think that ability
19 was restricted, but I don't remember when or exactly 20 what the new restriction was.

21 MR. GODKIN: Q. Now, fast-forward to like 22 2014. In 2014, did you have anything -- any 23 knowledge of the Facebook Platform at that time
24 vis-a-vis any of the businesses you invested in or 25 consulted for?

1 conference called F8, right?

2 A. Yeah.

3 Q. And your testimony was that iLike had
4 already taken an investment from all the VC
5 investors at least prior to F8, right?

6 A. Correct. The main investors were Khosla
7 Ventures and a strategic investment from 8 Ticketmaster.

9 Q. And you have testified a little bit today
10 about what you called some promises. And I have a 11 question for you, which is, are you testifying that 12 anyone at Facebook actually promised you that
13 Facebook would only develop its products after F8
14 like other app developers as apps?

15 MR. GODKIN: Objection.

16 THE WITNESS: I don't remember whether the 17 word "promise" was used. I remember it more in the 18 realm of, "We will not do this," or, "We will only 19 do that." So --

20 MR. LERNER: Q. Is it your testimony that 21 anybody even represented to you that Facebook would 22 never develop core products after F8?

23 MR. GODKIN: Objection.

24 THE WITNESS: So the way the FAQ here
25 states jives with what I remember the

1 representations from Facebook executives in person,
2 which was applications from third-party developers
3 would be on a level playing field with applications
4 built by Facebook.

5 MR. LERNER: Q. Do you see anything there
6 about Facebook core products there?

7 MR. GODKIN: Objection.

8 THE WITNESS: So no, not in that FAQ. I
9 remember Matt Cohler representing to me at F8 that 10 Facebook's own new features would be built using the 11 platform.

12 MR. LERNER: Q. And so your testimony is 13 that Mr. Cohler represented to you that from that 14 date forward, all Facebook new features would be 15 built as apps on the platform?

16 A. More or less. You know, when you say
17 "all," if they had made -- you know, if they had 18 made modest changes to the other parts, we would not 19 have been surprised, but dramatic changes, we would 20 have been surprised and we were surprised.

21 Q. Okay. Let's back up. I just -- I want to 22 get to not more or less, but exactly what you claim
23 Mr. Cohler represented to you. Did Mr. Cohler
24 represent to you that from that day forward,
25 Facebook would never develop its own core products

1 Plaintiff's representations in this complaint, you
2 were neither a advisor with an agreement nor
3 yourself initially a shareholder, correct?

4 MR. GODKIN: Objection.

5 THE WITNESS: I was a shareholder at this
6 point.

7 MR. LERNER: Q. Understood. But you only
8 became a shareholder after your brother transferred 9 shares to the entity that you and he share, correct?

10 A. Yes. All of that was prior to 2007,
11 though. I think that was in 2005 or '6.

12 Q. Okay.

13 A. So at the time of this Q and A, I was a
14 shareholder. At the time of F8, I was a
15 shareholder. Whether I was an advisor or not is a
16 semantic. I was -- I was helping my brother help
17 them. He was a formal advisor, and -- you know, and 18 I was informally.

19 Q. Okay.

20 A. You didn't ask, but I'll say that the word
21 "induce" here is not how I would describe my role at 22 all.

23 Q. How would you describe your role?

24 A. So what it says here was that I, as an 25 ally -- you know, in my capacity as an ally of

1 Facebook, was committed to helping them grow their
2 platform and to induce developers to participate.
3 While I was a shareholder of Facebook, my main
4 allegiance was to my own corporation, iLike, and I
5 was committed to helping iLike build its business.
6 To the extent that the platform on its face had
7 benefits that everybody could see, I was touting
8 those benefits, but not with any inducement goal in 9 mind.

10 And, you know, it wasn't -- I would never 11 have described it as saying I was committed to 12 helping them -- helping Facebook grow that operating 13 system or to induce anyone to doing anything. I was 14 committed to helping iLike grow.

15 Q. Indeed. As you testified, you tried to 16 get an exclusive deal, right?

17 A. That's correct. Before the platform
18 launched, yeah.

19 Q. Right.

20 A. Which is, frankly, what any company would 21 do.

22 Q. Right. You understand there were risks in 23 depending on Facebook, correct?

24 A. Did I understand at the time? Yes.

25 Q. And you understood very well by, for

25 Job No. 10037047

1 spell it I can spell it for you, but it will require
2 me to get out my phone.

3 Q. That's all right. It's not that
4 important. Is that a he or a she?

5 A. It's a he.

6 Q. Did you report to him for the whole time
7 you were the partner engineer?

8 A. Yes. There was a period between me moving
9 from being a partner engineer -- in between being a
10 partner engineer to becoming a strategic partner
11 manager, there was a period of around six months where 12 I was, I guess, technically a developer advocate for 13 Facebook. My duties were essentially the same, but in 14 that six-month period I reported to a different
15 person.

16 Q. Who was the different person?

17 A. A man called James Pearce.

18 Q. Do you recall when the six-month period
19 was?

20 A. Not precisely from memory, no.

21 Q. When is your best memory of when it was 22 approximately?

23 A. Around late 2012, so probably Q4 2012 at 24 some point.

25 Q. Was one of your duties as either a partner

1 engineer or developer advocate going to conferences
2 and making presentations?

3 A. That's correct.

4 Q. About how many of those conferences would 5 you attend and make presentations at?

6 A. In the period I was developer advocate,
7 something around 20 to 30, but I can't be certain.

8 Q. And these are all around the world?

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. Just briefly describe, what did you do at 11 all these developer conferences?

12 A. My role is to help developers understand
13 how the Facebook Platform worked and the types of 14 applications they could build on that platform.

15 Q. When you held those roles from 2010 to 16 2013, did you have people reporting to you?

17 A. There was a period of around six months
18 when I was developer advocate where I had one person
19 reporting to me, but otherwise, no.

20 Q. All right. Who was the person who
21 reported to you when you were developer advocate?

22 A. A man named Conor Treacy.

23 Q. Could you spell his last name for the 24 record?

25 A. T-r-e-a-c-y.

1 Q. How did you become aware that it was
2 possible to develop an app on the Facebook Platform?

3 A. Around 2007, 2008, there was a lot of talk
4 about -- in the media and in the tech community about 5 Facebook's Platform.

6 Q. What do you recall hearing about it?

7 A. I recall understanding that you were able 8 to build applications that lived inside Facebook on 9 the web and that those applications would have access
10 to certain information about people in order to 11 provide a social experience.

12 Q. What kinds of information did you learn 13 that these applications would have access to?

14 A. I don't remember the full range of 15 information that the applications had access to at 16 that time, but it certainly included the information
17 about people who chose to use those applications.

18 Q. Do you recall any of the types of 19 information you could have access to?

20 A. You can have access to some of the 21 information about that person's friends and that 22 person's own interests.

23 Q. Did Facebook, to your knowledge, encourage 24 developers to develop applications on the Facebook
25 Platform?

1 A. Facebook certainly encouraged developers
2 to build applications on the Facebook Platform, yes.

3 Q. What kinds of things did Facebook do, to 4 your knowledge, to encourage developers to build
5 applications on its platform?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
7 calls for speculation.

8 THE WITNESS: I don't recall what Facebook
9 was specifically suggesting to developers they build.
10 BY MR. GODKIN:

11 Q. You don't recall anything?

12 A. Nothing specific.

13 Q. What about later? What about 2009/2010
14 time frame up until the time you joined Facebook as an 15 employee?

16 A. Facebook had a vision that if applications
17 were social, they would be more valuable to people and 18 better, and that I remember being the overriding theme
19 of their view at that time.

20 Q. What did you understand Facebook meant by 21 using the word "social"?

22 A. That when you used an application, you
23 would be able to see some of your friends who also 24 used that application and interact with them in some 25 way.

1 represented to developers that they would have a level
2 competitive playing field to build their businesses?

3 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
4 calls for speculation.

5 THE WITNESS: I don't recall understanding
6 or hearing that message.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Okay. All right. Now let's focus on when 9 you actually joined the company, starting in 2010.

10 At that time, did Facebook encourage developers
11 to build applications on the platform?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
13 calls for speculation.

14 THE WITNESS: Typically, when a company
15 has a developer platform, it will ask -- suggest 16 developers build applications for it.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. And was that true in the case of Facebook?

19 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

20 THE WITNESS: I was part of an
21 organization that would have suggested to developers
22 that they build on the Facebook Platform, yes.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. And why, to your knowledge, did Facebook
25 suggest to developers that they should build

1 joined the company in September of 2010.

2 Did you represent to the public that developers
3 would have access to the Full Friends List?

4 MS. MILLER: Objection; asked and
5 answered.

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. You can answer.

8 A. If access to a user's Full Friends List
9 was available at that time, I would likely have 10 represented to developers that that was available at 11 that time.

12 Q. Did you represent to developers that they
13 would have access to Friends Permissions?

14 A. If the Friends Permissions were available
15 at that time, I would have likely represented to 16 developers that those permissions were available at 17 that time.

18 Q. Did you represent to developers that they
19 would have access to the News Feed API?

20 A. If the News Feed API was available at that 21 point, I would have represented to developers that 22 they would have access to the News Feed API.

23 Q. Do you know when the News Feed API became
24 available?

25 MS. MILLER: Objection; asked and

1 entire document at that time.

2 Q. When you joined the company in September
3 of 2010 and were speaking with partners and speaking
4 at developer conferences and the like, did you ever
5 speak about the Statement of Rights and 6 Responsibilities?

7 A. When you're working with developers, you
8 make it clear to them that by integrating with 9 Facebook's Platform, they are agreeing to certain
10 terms and conditions, which include the SRR, yes.

11 Q. Did you encourage them to read it?

12 A. We would generally have made sure that 13 developers were aware that those documents were what 14 they were agreeing to when they build against the 15 Facebook Platform.

16 Q. Did you make them aware that they would 17 have to click through or click-indicate their 18 agreement to the document when they became a 19 developer?

20 A. Every developer -- my understanding at 21 that time was that in order to be classified as a 22 developer, to build an application, you would have had 23 to click through and agree to that document.

24 Q. Did Facebook require platform developers
25 to have an end-user license agreement for their own

1 counting applications or people or companies,
2 for example.

3 Q. All right. Let's say you're counting
4 applications. Approximately how many were there in 5 2014?

6 A. I don't have a way of giving you an
7 estimate of that number.

8 Q. What about if you're counting people?

9 A. I can say it's probably more than a
10 hundred thousand, but I couldn't give you an accurate
11 sense of what that number actually was.

12 Q. All right.

13 A. I don't recall.

14 Q. To your knowledge and understanding, did
15 Facebook benefit from having all of these third-party
16 application developers developing apps on the Facebook
17 Platform?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
19 calls for speculation and vague.

20 THE WITNESS: I don't have insight into 21 the specific benefits of Facebook -- I can't speak on 22 behalf of Facebook overall at this point. I know
23 that --

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. Okay -- go ahead. Finish your answer.

1 A. My personal view is that I was involved in
2 building applications that, because they were
3 integrated with the Facebook Platform, were better for 4 people.

5 Q. Were they better for Facebook?

6 A. Facebook is -- when people find value in 7 using Facebook or using applications that are 8 integrated with Facebook, my personal view is that 9 that's likely good for developers, good for people,
10 and good for Facebook.

11 Q. In what ways was it good for Facebook?

12 A. People -- my personal view, again, is that 13 people would potentially use Facebook more and use the 14 applications that were integrated with Facebook more.

15 Q. Did it help the company grow?

16 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
17 calls for speculation.

18 THE WITNESS: I don't have a way of 19 answering that question in particular.

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Did you ever make representations at a 22 developer conference about how applications were 23 helping Facebook?

24 A. I remember talking to developers about how 25 Facebook was helping developers grow.

1 A. We were talking about Facebook Login.

2 Q. What is Facebook Login?

3 A. Facebook Login is the product that
4 application developers can implement to allow somebody
5 to log in to the app with two taps instead of a
6 standard registration flow.

7 Q. When Facebook announced that the Full
8 Friends List, Friends Permissions, News Feed APIs were 9 being removed, do you recall whether it stated that 10 these APIs were being removed because they were rarely
11 used?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound, vague.

13 THE WITNESS: I don't recall that.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. To your knowledge -- strike that.

16 Were those APIs -- the Full Friends List,
17 Friends Permissions, and News Feed APIs, would you
18 characterize those as "rarely used" by developers?

19 A. I wouldn't count them as rarely used.
20 I also wouldn't count them as universally or heavily
21 used.

22 Q. Do you know, can you approximate how many 23 developers used those APIs?

24 A. What do you mean by the term "developer"?

25 Q. Third-party application developers who

1 were developing apps or have apps on the platform.

2 A. Help me understand. Do you mean
3 applications or do you mean people or do you mean
4 companies?

5 Q. Let's say applications.

6 A. It would have been some thousand-number of 7 applications. I don't recall the specific number. It
8 would have depended upon which permissions were being 9 accessed.

10 Q. So more than a thousand, less than a
11 hundred thousand?

12 A. That range seems somewhat reasonable to 13 me. I don't recall the specific numbers.

14 Q. Could it have been more than a hundred
15 thousand?

16 A. It's possible it could have been more than 17 a hundred thousand. I don't know the specifics.

18 Q. When Facebook announced that these APIs
19 were being -- would no longer be available, did it use
20 the term "removed" or "deprecated"?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound, vague.

22 THE WITNESS: I remember us using a range
23 of terms to describe how we would implement these 24 changes.

25 ///

1 available, did Facebook ever prevent certain companies
2 from accessing them for competitive reasons?

3 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
4 calls for speculation, vague.

5 THE WITNESS: Can you help me understand
6 what you mean?

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Yes. Did Facebook ever decide that for 9 certain companies, it was not going to make those
10 permissions available because Facebook was concerned
11 about the applications being competitive with
12 Facebook?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
14 calls for speculation, vague.

15 THE WITNESS: It's possible that that may 16 have happened. I don't recall being involved in any 17 specific decisions to remove particular permissions
18 from particular applications. That wasn't my role at 19 the time.

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. After these permissions were removed in 22 April 2015, did Facebook permit companies to use them
23 on a whitelist basis?

24 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound, calls
25 for speculation, lacks foundation.

1 THE WITNESS: It's likely that some
2 applications may have had access to some of that
3 information, either on a temporary basis or on a
4 longer-term basis.

5 MR. GODKIN: I'm going to ask the court
6 reporter to hand you Exhibit No. 1.

7 THE WITNESS: Could I take a bathroom
8 break at this point?

9 MR. GODKIN: Yes. Let's take a
10 five-minute break.

11 (Off the record at 1:14 p.m.)

12 (On the record at 1:20 p.m.)

13 (Cross Exhibit 1 marked for
14 identification.)

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. Can you identify Exhibit No. 1, Mr. Cross?

17 A. Exhibit No. 1 appears to be a blog post
18 from our developer website.

19 Q. And the website was referred to --
20 or strike that.

21 What is Operation Developer Love?

22 A. "Operation Developer Love" is a term that 23 is used by us, by Facebook, at the time, by the 24 Facebook developer team at the time to refer to a
25 range of activities about improving the developer

1 experience on the Facebook Platform.

2 Q. Was the purpose of Operation Developer
3 Love to encourage developers to invest time and money
4 making applications on the Facebook Platform?

5 A. No.

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
7 calls for speculation.

8 Go ahead.

9 THE WITNESS: No. No. Operation
10 Developer Love was entirely focused on making the 11 people who are developing for the Facebook Platform
12 happy to be doing so.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. Do you see on the left side -- strike
15 that.

16 This appears to have been written by Sean
17 Quinlan and there's a date of May 22, 2013 on the 18 left.

19 Do you see that?

20 A. I do see that.

21 Q. Then there is a column "Developer News"
22 immediately under the date.

23 Do you see that?

24 A. I see that.

25 Q. Then there is a reference to an archive

1 with dates going back to 2011.

2 Do you see that?

3 A. I see that.

4 Q. Do you know what type of information was 5 included in the archive?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
7 vague as to time.

8 THE WITNESS: Typically, a blog doesn't 9 have an archive as such. A blog just is a record of 10 all of the blog posts posted on that blog over time.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. Do you know whether this archive included
13 blog posts from the various years that are listed
14 there?

15 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

16 THE WITNESS: It's likely that there would
17 have been articles for some of those years, yes.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. Were these articles written by Facebook
20 employees?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

22 THE WITNESS: The majority --

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. If you know.

25 A. The majority of articles on this blog

1 would have been written by Facebook employees. It's 2 conceivable that some of the articles may have been 3 written by others, but I have no specific knowledge of 4 this system or this process.

5 Q. All right. Do you know how many posts
6 were written approximately each year, from 2011
7 through to 2017?

8 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

9 THE WITNESS: I have no idea.

10 BY MR. GODKIN:

11 Q. To your knowledge, did Facebook ever post
12 on its developer website before April of 2015 that 13 the Full Friends List, Friends Permissions, or 14 News Feed APIs were going to be completely removed 15 from the Facebook Platform?

16 A. My understanding is that the changes to 17 the Facebook Platform were announced on April 30,
18 2015.

19 Q. And so the answer to my question is no?

20 A. My understanding is that the changes to 21 the platform that you're referring to were announced
22 on April 30, 2015.

23 Q. That's not my question, Mr. Cross.

24 My question was, to your knowledge did Facebook
25 ever post on its developer website, before April 2015,

1 that it was going to be removing the Full Friends
2 List, Friends Permissions, and News Feed APIs from the
3 platform?

4 A. I think I answered that question
5 originally.

6 Q. What's the answer now; yes or no?

7 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks -- asked and
8 answered.

9 THE WITNESS: My understanding is that
10 before April 30, 2015, that was the first moment that 11 the changes you're referring to were announced.
12 Therefore, my understanding is that they were not 13 announced before that on the blog.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. To your knowledge, did any of the posts on 16 the Facebook Developer website, before the 17 announcement was made, continue to encourage 18 developers to use the Full Friends List, Friends
19 Permissions and/or News Feed APIs?

20 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound, vague as 21 to time, lacks foundation.

22 THE WITNESS: I don't have specific
23 knowledge of every blog post ever posted on that blog.
24 It's possible that the blog post referred to the 25 features that were available in the API at the time

1 number.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. All right. Facebook also hosted training
4 events for developers, correct?

5 A. We would have held events that helped
6 people understand what they could do with the Facebook
7 Platform, but those would have taken many forms.

8 Q. All right. What kinds of forms did those 9 events take?

10 A. If you could -- like, if I was working 11 with a particular company, then I may have visited 12 that company's office and helped them understand what 13 they could build against the Facebook API. That 14 might be considered by some to be a training session.

15 Occasionally we might publish a video on the 16 Internet which was a tutorial into how to use these 17 APIs. That might be considered a training session.
18 It depends on the definition of "a training session."

19 Q. All right. What was the reason that 20 Facebook hosted these events?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

22 THE WITNESS: My role was often to help
23 developers understand what they could/could not build
24 on the Facebook Platform using the features available
25 at that time.

1 educational seminars.

2 Q. So was Facebook providing education to 3 third parties about how to develop applications on the
4 Platform?

5 A. That would have been the purpose of this
6 event, yes.

7 Q. And in the hackathon portion of it, were 8 they actually allowed to work on applications at the 9 event itself?

10 A. If developers -- we created a space for 11 developers to work on things. If they wanted to do
12 so, then they absolutely could.

13 Q. Did Facebook employees assist developers
14 in developing their apps at these events?

15 A. We would have had people who would have 16 helped developers if they had questions, that is
17 correct.

18 Q. I think you said this was part of a --
19 the World Hack was -- strike that.

20 The World Hack took place in more than one
21 location; is that right?

22 A. There were a number of events that make up
23 the World Hack series, yes.

24 Q. Did they all take place in 2012?

25 A. I don't recall exactly when they all took

1 place. They were around the period 2012, 2013.

2 Q. Did you attend all of them?

3 A. I did not.

4 Q. Do you know how many there were?

5 A. I don't recall the specific number. It
6 was likely less than 20, likely more than five, but 7 I don't recall the specific number.

8 Q. And how many did you attend?

9 A. I recall attending something like five or 10 six of these events.

11 Q. So these were around the world, as the 12 name would imply?

13 A. That's correct.

14 Q. Do you know how many developers attended
15 each event approximately?

16 A. The number of developers attending these 17 events would vary between 40 and 150 typically.
18 Something like that. It very much depends on the 19 city.

20 Q. Turn to page 2C, if you would.

21 A. I am.

22 Q. This is, again, a photograph or a
23 screenshot of you, correct?

24 A. The younger, slimmer me, yes.

25 Q. You were explaining to the attendees what

1 of your speech, October 2012?

2 A. It was likely accurate, depending on how,
3 like -- depending on how that number was calculated.

4 Q. Turn to the next page, 2E. Do you have 5 that page in front of you?

6 A. 2E, yes.

7 Q. Is it correct that on this portion of your
8 talk, you indicated that a key part of the Facebook
9 Platform was for apps to be able to share stories with 10 Facebook and for Facebook to drive traffic to apps?

11 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound.

12 I'm also going to object to this exhibit
13 to the extent it's just a set of selected screenshots
14 from a talk without any of the actual video, audio, or 15 transcript of the talk.

16 You can answer.

17 THE WITNESS: That's what the logo
18 suggests, and it matches my recollection of why
19 developers were interested in building for the 20 Facebook Platform.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. When you talked about driving traffic,
23 were you referring, at least in part, to being able to 24 publish actions to the News Feed or the Wall?

25 MS. MILLER: Objection; misstates the

1 document.

2 THE WITNESS: Typically, developers would
3 build applications that gave people who use them tools
4 to share content and information back to Facebook.
5 Facebook would make that -- would sometimes make that 6 information or those posts visible to a person's 7 friends, and sometimes those friends would click on 8 the stories and would either land on the app
9 developer's website or sometimes in the developer's
10 app itself.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. Were those features important to enable 13 the applications to gain more users and to grow in 14 popularity?

15 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
16 calls for speculation.

17 THE WITNESS: My understanding is that one
18 of the reasons why developers build for the Facebook
19 Platform is that it would help them reach new 20 audiences.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. Turn to the next page, please, 2F. Is it
23 correct that at this portion of your speech, you were 24 discussing a number of different platforms, including 25 iOS that's reflected here? Do you see that?

1 screenshot would have been to help developers
2 understand that if somebody published a run to 3 Facebook and somebody saw that in News Feed and
4 clicked on it and did not have the Endomondo app
5 installed, then Facebook would direct the user to the 6 App Store to download the Endomondo app.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Okay. Turn to the next page, 2K. Do you
9 have that in front of you?

10 A. I do.

11 Q. In this screenshot, is it true that you
12 represented to developers that in the last 30 days
13 Facebook had sent users to a native App Store
14 150 million times?

15 A. That's what the text seems to suggest.

16 Q. Do you recall that that's what you said to 17 the developers who attended?

18 A. It's likely that if that was on the slide,
19 I may have said those words or something to that 20 effect.

21 Q. What did you mean by "native App Store"?

22 A. My understanding is that "native
23 App Store" refers to Google Play and the Apple
24 App Store.

25 Q. Was the purpose of this slide that you

1 showed developers to represent to the developers that 2 they could potentially grow their app businesses by
3 using the platform?

4 A. I think that is a fair representation of 5 what we were -- what we would have suggested to 6 developers and what developers would have understood
7 some of the value of the Facebook Platform being to 8 them.

9 Q. Did the developers have to purchase
10 advertising in order to do that?

11 A. No.

12 Q. Do you understand what the phrase "organic
13 distribution" means?

14 A. I would love to understand what you think
15 it means.

16 Q. Well, do you have an understanding? I'm 17 more interested in what your understanding is, not my 18 understanding. Is it a term you've used?

19 A. It's a term I've heard before. I have a 20 personal definition for what it means.

21 Q. What is that?

22 A. My personal definition, as I understand
23 it, is that that is the distribution an app developer
24 may get from a person's friend -- from somebody
25 sharing information to Facebook that results in a

1 referral or a click to an app developer.

2 Q. Were you, by showing this slide and making
3 this talk at this point in time, telling developers
4 that by using the Facebook Platform, their apps could 5 grow organically as opposed to having to pay for 6 marking and advertising and the like?

7 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound.

8 THE WITNESS: I don't recall the specifics
9 of what I said. The slide does not suggest that that 10 stack refers to organic or paid distribution.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. All right. If you turn to the next
13 page, 2L. Do you have that in front of you?

14 A. I do.

15 Q. The slide behind you says:

16 "So, what's the Facebook Platform for?"

17 And then:

18 "For developers - it's a global growth
19 machine."

20 Do you see that?

21 A. That's what the slide says, yes.

22 Q. Did you use that term, "global growth
23 machine," in your talk?

24 A. If it's on the slide, it's possible that 25 I would have said those words.

1 Q. Possible or probable and likely?

2 A. You can make up a definition of
3 "probability" yourself.

4 Q. What did you mean by "global growth
5 machine"?

6 A. At the time, Facebook was a product, an 7 application used in many countries in the world, and 8 if developers enabled the people who used their apps
9 to share content to Facebook, then it's possible that 10 they would have been able to reach an audience outside
11 of the territory where they built their application.

12 Q. Turn to the next page, 2M. Do you see 13 that in front of you?

14 A. I do.

15 Q. It appears behind you that you were 16 discussing building, distributing, and promoting apps
17 on the Platform?

18 A. That's what those three words on the slide
19 are, yes.

20 Q. What did you mean by "distribute"?

21 A. My recollection of what the term
22 "distribute" meant in this context was the ability for 23 apps that gave their people that used them the power
24 to share information to Facebook could potentially 25 grow the number of people using that application.

1 Q. Turn to the next page, 2N.

2 A. Yes.

3 THE WITNESS: I'm really sorry, can I just
4 pop to the bathroom again?

5 (Off the record at 1:52 p.m.)

6 (On the record at 1:54 p.m.)

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. So do you have exhibit -- 2N in front of 9 you?

10 A. That's right.

11 Q. Do you recall that this was a slide that 12 you showed the audience at the Moscow event?

13 A. I recall this being a slide I would have 14 shown, yes.

15 Q. Is it correct that you were walking
16 developers through different components of the 17 Facebook Platform?

18 A. Part of the value of an event like this to 19 developers is that they can begin to understand how 20 the Facebook Platform works and its various components
21 and how they fit together.

22 Q. One of the components is Open Graph, which 23 is at the bottom left there.

24 Do you see that?

25 A. I see that on the slide, yes.

1 Q. What did you mean by "Open Graph"?

2 A. My recollection of the term "Open Graph"
3 was a phrase that Facebook used at the time to define
4 a way of apps sharing structured -- sorry -- of people
5 using apps, and those apps able to share structured
6 information back to Facebook about people's activity
7 in those apps.

8 Q. You included some different buckets there,
9 including places, events, photos, friends, et cetera.

10 Do you see that?

11 A. I see those on the slide.

12 Q. Then turn to the next page, 20. Do you
13 see that?

14 A. I do, yes.

15 Q. Is it true that on this slide you were 16 demonstrating to developers how to query the Full
17 Friends List at the code level?

18 A. I --

19 MS. MILLER: And I'll object that this 20 exhibit is blurry.

21 THE WITNESS: Yes, this exhibit's pretty
22 blurry. What it seems to suggest is I was showing the 23 developers how to call the friends edge of the Graph
24 API.

25 ///

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. Am I correct that you're looking at -- do
3 you see on the left there, it says "Graph API" and 4 then "FQL Query"?

5 A. I do see that.

6 Q. Immediately under that, it says "Get" and 7 there's a dropdown menu there?

8 A. I do see that.

9 Q. Then immediately to the right, do you see
10 the "slash, friends" after some numbers, correct?

11 A. I do see that. Well, those numbers are my 12 Facebook user ID.

13 Q. All right. So you were demonstrating how 14 to query your friends list, correct?

15 MS. MILLER: Objection; asked and
16 answered.

17 THE WITNESS: I was demonstrating how to 18 call the friends edge of the Graph API.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. And by calling the friends edge of the 21 Graph API, what does that do for a developer?

22 A. What that edge returns depends today on 23 the version of the Graph API they're calling.

24 Q. At the time you made this demonstration,
25 what did it accomplish?

1 A. My recollection is that calling the
2 friends edge of the Graph API would have returned an
3 array of objects, and those objects would represent
4 all of the friends that the calling user had on
5 Facebook.

6 Well, actually, not all of the friends. Up to 7 all of the friends.

8 Q. And explain the reason for that
9 qualification.

10 A. The Facebook Platform has always included
11 settings for people who could opt out of having their 12 information admitted by the API. So it's possible and 13 has always been possible, to my understanding, that an 14 API such as this would not necessarily return the 15 user's complete Friend List.

16 Q. Because some of the friends might have 17 opted out, correct?

18 A. That's correct.

19 Q. Turn to the next page, 2P. You're 20 continuing your demonstration here, correct?

21 A. It seems so.

22 Q. And you're showing developers all the 23 different kinds of data they can access about a user's
24 friends, and that's the dropdown menu that we see on 25 the left there?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection; misstates the
2 document.

3 THE WITNESS: What this document shows is 4 that I was most likely showing developers some of the 5 information they could access about an app using a
6 person's friends.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. And the information includes things like
9 music, notes, locations, and photos, correct?

10 A. Actually, I just want to re-answer the 11 previous question. It's unclear from this document
12 whether or not I am actually showing the access to an 13 app-using person's friends' photos or the app-using 14 person's photos. It's not clear to me from this 15 screenshot which of those it is. Just to be clear.

16 Q. All right. Then if you turn to the next
17 page, 2Q.

18 A. That's correct.

19 Q. Were you walking the developers through 20 the process of requesting different permissions here?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection.

22 THE WITNESS: It appears that that's the 23 case, but from -- mostly from memory, that photo is 24 extremely blurry, but it's likely that that represents 25 me showing developers the permissions that were

1 grantable via the API at that time.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. Was one of the permissions grantable
4 manage_friendslists?

5 A. It's possible that that permission was 6 listed at the time. I just want to refer to my 7 previous answer, my previous statement, that, like,
8 that permission is often misrepresented as to its
9 behavior and value and use.

10 Q. Misrepresented by whom?

11 A. There have been cases where I have had to 12 explain to developers that that permission does not 13 refer to the Friends List.

14 Q. What does it do? What does it --

15 MS. MILLER: Objection; asked and
16 answered.

17 THE WITNESS: I think I answered that 18 question earlier. Facebook had at the time the 19 concept of Friends Lists as distinct from the Friend
20 List.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. Okay.

23 A. And this permission allowed an application
24 to manage the user's Friends Lists. I'm sorry if 25 that's pedantic. I want to make sure I'm accurate for

1 the record.

2 Q. Do you have 2R in front of you?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. Did you then walk developers through the 5 publish_actions permissions?

6 A. It's likely that that permission was 7 something we surfaced to developers, yes.

8 Q. What did the publish_actions permission
9 do?

10 A. It allowed the -- the publish_actions
11 permission is a permission that a user could grant an 12 application. Once granted, it would allow that 13 application to publish Open Graph actions back to
14 Facebook.

15 Q. And -- strike that.

16 Turn, if you would, to the next page, 2S.

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. There is a reference at the top of this 19 slide, behind you, to SDK. Do you see that?

20 A. I do.

21 Q. What is an SDK?

22 A. An SDK is a package of software that helps
23 a developer to interact or integrate with a
24 third-party API.

25 Q. Is it related to an iPhone app?

1 A. One of those SDKs was for iOS. It's
2 represented by the second icon from the left.

3 Q. Okay. Were you explaining to developers
4 that they could build their apps and they would work
5 on different platforms, including the iPhone?

6 A. We were representing to developers that
7 there was an SDK that Facebook provided for developers
8 on these various platforms, and that SDK would help
9 them interact with a Facebook Platform; for example,
10 granting permissions and calling API methods.

11 Q. And it would help them access all of the 12 data that we've been discussing previously about this
13 exhibit?

14 A. These SDKs help developers call the API.

15 Q. Turn to the next page.

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. It appears to be two different people 18 speaking at this presentation. Do you know who they 19 are?

20 MS. MILLER: I'll just object that this is 21 a compound exhibit. This appears to be a different
22 video with different dates.

23 THE WITNESS: Yes, that's a good point.
24 This appears to be a different video. I cannot tell
25 from the screenshot who these people are with complete

1 certainty.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. Well, on the left side of the page, it
4 says it was originally recorded at the Facebook World
5 Hack Moscow, September 2012. Isn't that the same
6 event that the previous slides were recorded at?

7 A. It appears to be a video from the same
8 event, yes.

9 Q. But you don't know who these people are?

10 A. I said I cannot identify them with 11 complete certainty.

12 Q. Is one of them Conor Treacy?

13 A. It's possible.

14 Q. Do you recall attending a presentation
15 made by Mr. Treacy and another person at the same
16 event in Moscow?

17 A. At these events, I have a varying range of 18 responsibilities. So it's possible, potentially even 19 likely, that I wasn't actually even physically present
20 for this talk. I was dealing with my other duties at 21 the event.

22 Q. All right. Turn to the next page, 2U.

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. Do you see that in front of you?

25 A. I do.

1 Q. You see the screenshot there is "Select
2 Permissions" and there is a reference to "Friends Data
3 Permissions" in the middle that's highlighted?

4 A. I do.

5 Q. And then all of the Friends Permissions
6 appear underneath it?

7 A. This is a set of the Friends Permissions
8 that were available at the time, yes.

9 Q. Is the friends_photos one of the 10 permissions that's listed here? Friends_photos in 11 the middle column?

12 A. I can see that, yes.

13 Q. So if I was a developer of an app and 14 I checked that box, what would that do for me in my 15 app?

16 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague.

17 THE WITNESS: Developers don't grant
18 permissions; users grant permissions.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. All right. So if I'm understanding, you
21 are saying this is a page where a user would check one 22 or more of these boxes if he or she wanted to,
23 correct?

24 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

25 He has already testified he doesn't know

1 whether or not he attended this presentation.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. Let me back up then.

4 Did you ever see this dropdown menu on the 5 Facebook Developer website in your capacity as the 6 person who trains people in how to use it?

7 A. This screenshot represents a tool that
8 I am familiar with, yes.

9 Q. All right. So based on your familiarity
10 with it, these boxes would be checked by a user of 11 Facebook or by a developer of an app on the Facebook
12 Platform?

13 A. So I need to be clear here. This is a
14 tool that helps developers understand how to access
15 the API. When using this tool, the person is both a 16 developer and a user; so they are developing 17 applications, but by using this tool, they are 18 essentially granting this tool access to their own
19 information.

20 Q. So if I am a user of Facebook but not a 21 developer of an app on Facebook, would I ever have to 22 see this screen and check something off?

23 A. No. This tool, to my knowledge, is only 24 available to people who are classified as -- users who 25 are classified as developers.

1 Q. All right. So if a user who is classified
2 as a developer checked the friends_photos box, what
3 would that do for him or her?

4 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague, lacks
5 foundation.

6 THE WITNESS: This tool is about helping
7 developers understand what information is available
8 via the Graph API.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. Do I understand correctly that these are 11 permissions that the developer could check off, some 12 or all of them if he or she wanted to?

13 A. Again, this tool is a tool for developers
14 to understand what information may be available via 15 the Graph API. By using this tool, they are granting 16 the permissions against their own account.

17 Q. All right. So if the developer checked
18 off the friends_photos permission, what would that 19 accomplish for the developer?

20 MS. MILLER: Objection; asked and
21 answered.

22 THE WITNESS: The developer would then be 23 able to see, via this tool, a representation of the 24 information that's available via the Graph API on 25 behalf of the application, granted that permission on

1 their account.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. Do users of Facebook have any way of 4 preventing developers from accessing their photos if 5 they wanted to prevent it?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague as to time.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. At the time that this presentation was
9 made in 2012.

10 A. My recollection is that there were two 11 mechanisms in place. The first --

12 Q. What were the two?

13 A. The first mechanism was that a user, when 14 they logged into an application, was able to grant the 15 permissions or choose to not grant the permissions.

16 Q. What was the second?

17 A. As a user of Facebook, there were settings
18 in your account that prevented -- that allowed you to 19 prevent your information being admitted to 20 applications by friends of yours who use those 21 applications and granted the Friends Permissions.

22 Q. So any user, if he or she wanted to, could 23 prevent people from seeing their photos in the same
24 time frame, correct?

25 A. My recollection is that there was a way

1 for people to choose for their information to not be
2 admitted via the API if a friend of theirs had granted
3 a Friends Permission.

4 Q. Have you ever heard of a section of 5 Facebook's Privacy page called "Apps Others Use"?

6 A. That is familiar to me.

7 Q. Is that what you have just referred to in
8 your previous couple of answers, about how a user
9 would prevent people who are developing apps from 10 accessing things like photos if they wanted to?

11 A. That's my understanding of what that set
12 of settings was for.

13 Q. Turn to the next page, if you would. At 14 2V, as in Victor.

15 Does this page refresh your recollection as to 16 whether you were in attendance while these two 17 gentlemen were making the presentation?

18 A. It doesn't refresh my recollection. This 19 is a slide presentation I have seen before. It was 20 likely given at other talks as well. I don't recall 21 being there necessarily when this was presented in 22 Moscow on the dates specified.

23 Q. Do you recall being present at any of 24 these world events at which this slide was presented?

25 A. It's likely that I was -- I have been at

1 events where this slide was presented, yes.

2 Q. All right. Do you recall that when this
3 slide was presented, what was represented was that the 4 Open Graph was available across a range of different
5 platforms?

6 A. That's one of the things this slide
7 represents.

8 Q. Including native iOS apps, or native apps
9 on the iPhone?

10 A. By referring to "native apps" here, in 11 general that means iOS and Android.

12 Q. All right. Turn to the next page, 2W.
13 That's you in the picture, is it not?

14 A. It's that younger, slimmer me again.

15 Q. Right. Is this another presentation that 16 you made or video that you recorded that was put on 17 the Facebook website?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound, lacks
19 foundation.

20 THE WITNESS: This slide seems to 21 represent a video that I recall being involved in 22 producing that was uploaded to YouTube.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. It indicates that it was from the Facebook
25 Open Graph series. Do you see that?

1 A. It suggests that this video is helping
2 developers to help them build their first Open Graph
3 application.

4 Q. Do you recall that Facebook had a series
5 of videos that it put on its developer website called
6 the Open Graph Series?

7 A. I guess you could characterize it as an 8 Open Graph series. It was a number of videos that 9 I was involved in producing, which, together, you
10 could frame as a series.

11 Q. All right. Well, it says "from Facebook
12 Open Graph Series." Do you see that?

13 A. That's what it says.

14 Q. It says it was published on February 28,
15 2013. Do you see that?

16 A. That doesn't look correct to me. I can't 17 see the date and time in this printout. It's too
18 fuzzy.

19 Q. Maybe you have a worse copy than I am
20 looking at here, so I apologize for that.

21 In any event, was the purpose of this video for 22 you to train developers on building apps on the Open
23 Graph?

24 A. My recollection is that this video was 25 about helping developers how to build their first Open

1 Graph application against Facebook's APIs.

2 Q. Understanding that you can't read the
3 date, do you recall when this was published on 4 YouTube?

5 A. I don't recall. I remember it being in 6 either 2012 or 2013. Some of these slides make it
7 look like it was 2012. Some of them make it look like
8 it was 2013.

9 I don't recall the specific date, I'm afraid.

10 Q. All right. Turn to the next page, 2X.

11 A. Got it.

12 Q. That's a screenshot from the same video,
13 is it not?

14 A. It --

15 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

16 THE WITNESS: It's hard to guarantee that.
17 It looks like it probably is.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. And you were talking about designing your 20 Timeline aggregations?

21 A. That's what the slide says that the 22 presenter was talking about; again, presuming if I was 23 the presenter of that slide.

24 Q. Do you recall presenting a slide in which
25 it's stated, "design your Timeline aggregations"?

1 A. It seems reasonable that that's a slide
2 I would have presented.

3 Q. What did you mean by "design your Timeline
4 aggregations"?

5 A. My understanding is that Timeline
6 aggregations were a way for developers to curate the 7 information that they had published -- that their
8 users had published to Facebook on those users'
9 timelines.

10 Q. And did that help the -- was the intent 11 for that to help the developer's application grow its 12 number of users?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
14 calls for speculation.

15 THE WITNESS: Developers use Timeline
16 aggregations for a number of reasons.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. Including to help grow their number of
19 applications?

20 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

21 THE WITNESS: That may have been one of 22 the reasons that developers use Timeline aggregations.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. Turn to the next page of 2Y. Do you have 25 that open in front of you?

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Do you have it in front of you?

3 A. Yes. Sorry. Yes, 2Y.

4 Q. Do you recognize who this person is on the 5 video?

6 MS. MILLER: I'll just state for the
7 record, this, again, appears to be a separate video.

8 THE WITNESS: Yes. This appears to be a
9 separate video. I do recognize the gentleman.

10 BY MR. GODKIN:

11 Q. Who is it?

12 A. I recall that to be Jason Clark.

13 Q. And do you recall -- strike that.

14 Can you read on the document? It says on the 15 bottom left: "As presented at Facebook Mobile
16 Developer Day" in November 2012?

17 A. I can see those words, yes.

18 Q. What was the Facebook Mobile Developer
19 Day, if you know?

20 A. My recollection is that it was an event
21 where we invited mobile developers to spend time with 22 us and help them understand how to integrate their 23 mobile applications with the Facebook Platform and 24 Facebook Mobile SDKs.

25 Q. Where did that event take place?

1 A. I recall there being potentially a number
2 of Facebook Mobile Developer Days. I remember the 3 first being in Facebook's Menlo Park headquarters.

4 Q. Do you recall attending some or all of 5 these?

6 A. I do not recall attending the Facebook
7 Mobile Developer Day.

8 Q. Did Facebook publish this on its developer
9 website on March 1, 2013?

10 MS. MILLER: Lacks foundation.

11 THE WITNESS: I can't speak for Facebook,
12 and the picture is blurry. It looks like this video
13 was uploaded to YouTube.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. Did Facebook Developer website have access
16 to videos, mainly videos of this nature that could be 17 clicked on by developers who wanted to watch them?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague as to time,
19 and compound.

20 THE WITNESS: It's possible that these
21 videos were embedded on the Facebook Developer
22 website, although I cannot be sure which ones, where,
23 or when.

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. Turn to the next page, 2Z.

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Now what is being depicted on this page,
3 this screenshot?

4 A. It's hard to discern from the image. My 5 recollection is that this was part of a slide that 6 represented the connections between people.

7 Q. All right. Turn to the next page, 2AA.

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. On page 2AA, there is a screenshot and the 10 highlighted item is "Post Photo." Do you see that?

11 A. I think so.

12 Q. Was the person who made this presentation
13 explaining to developers how to use their app to post
14 photos in the app or on the --

15 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

16 THE WITNESS: This seems to be a still 17 from a screenshot at an event which I don't think 18 I was present at. So it's hard for me to know exactly
19 what was being discussed.

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. All right. Do you recognize what is 22 depicted on this screenshot, the page which says "Post
23 Status Update," "Post Photos," "Pick Some Friends,"
24 et cetera?

25 A. To me, this slide represents a screenshot

1 of a computer. That computer is showing X code and on
2 that -- and inside X code is what probably is an
3 application. It's unclear to me if that's exactly
4 what it is. Even if it is, it's unclear to me whose 5 application is actually being shown here. I wasn't at 6 the event, as far as I recall.

7 Q. Turn to the next page, 2AB.

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. Do you --

10 A. I want to call out again this seems like a 11 different video published on a different day.

12 Q. This indicates that it was published on 13 June 20, 2013, correct?

14 A. Again, I can't see that from the exhibit
15 in front of me.

16 Q. All right. What is shown here, though, is 17 a page of your computer? Do you see your picture
18 there and your name, Simon Cross?

19 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

20 THE WITNESS: It looks like this is a
21 screenshot that was taken from a website that I was 22 logged into. I can't determine from this exhibit if 23 this was, like, a video that I was presenting, but it
24 seems to represent a screenshot of a website that 25 I was logged into.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. Well, if I represent to you that the audio
3 of this particular presentation is your voice, does
4 that refresh your recollection as to whether you ever
5 made this presentation and had it posted on YouTube
6 for access to developers?

7 MS. MILLER: I'll just say objection;
8 lacks foundation.

9 Your representation can't refresh his 10 recollection, but --

11 MR. GODKIN: Ms. Miller, a fig leaf can be 12 used to refresh recollections, so I disagree with you 13 on that.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. But you can answer the question.

16 A. I cannot guarantee what this exhibit in 17 front of me actually represents. It is reasonable,
18 possible, likely that this is a video that I helped 19 produce. I just want to be clear that, like, it's 20 not -- I cannot a hundred percent guarantee that 21 that's what I'm seeing in front of me. It's likely.

22 Q. All right. Turn to the next page,
23 page 2AC. Do you have that in front of you?

24 A. I do.

25 Q. Were you explaining to developers how to

1 access a user's Full Friends List?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

3 THE WITNESS: What I see here is a
4 screenshot that shows that I am demonstrating --
5 again, assuming it's me demonstrating it -- that an
6 application --

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. That's still your picture in the upper 9 right, is it not?

10 A. It is my picture in the upper right.
11 I want to be clear that that doesn't necessarily mean
12 that this is a video that I am presenting. It's 13 possible that somebody else presented the video using 14 screenshots or video that I had recorded. I just want
15 to be clear that that's -- you know, with this piece
16 of paper in front of me, those caveats exist.

17 Q. All right.

18 A. Again, assuming that this is a video that 19 I am presenting, what the screenshot seems to show to 20 me is that I am demonstrating to the viewer how an 21 application would access the public profile and friend
22 list, which are the words written on the page.

23 Q. At the time in 2013, was that the Full
24 Friends List?

25 A. Again, it's possible. Like, at the time

1 my recollection is that that API would have
2 returned -- would have included friends who had not
3 used the app, but the term "Full Friends List," as 4 I think you mean it, is potentially misleading given
5 that it's possible that that API call did not include
6 every friend of that user on Facebook because of the 7 opt-outs we discussed earlier.

8 Q. All right. Turn to the next page, 2AD.

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. Do you see that in front of you?

11 A. I do.

12 Q. Do you see the "Get" query on that page?

13 A. I do.

14 Q. Then the boxes that are checked underneath
15 it?

16 A. I do.

17 Q. Do you recall demonstrating how a
18 developer could utilize this portion of the developer
19 website?

20 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

21 THE WITNESS: It seems reasonable to me
22 that that's what this represents.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. Is it accurate that under "Picture," there
25 is a check mark for height and a check mark for width?

1 Do you see that?

2 A. That's what I see in front of me.

3 Q. Does that allow the developer to format
4 the size of the photo that is going to appear, in this
5 case to be 200 pixels high and 100 pixels wide?

6 A. This seems to represent to me that you
7 could specify the height and width of the profile
8 picture that the API was going to return to represent
9 the people returned by this API.

10 Q. Why did Facebook allow developers to 11 specify the height and width of the profile picture?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

13 THE WITNESS: My understanding is that
14 developers built applications on various platforms and 15 made use of these assets in various ways, and it was 16 valuable to them to specify the size and aspect ratio
17 of the images that they would want to show in their 18 applications.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. Then if you turn to the next page, 2AE.
21 Do you see that?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. Is this an example of you showing the 24 developers a photo of one of your friends that is 200
25 pixels high and 100 pixels wide?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

2 THE WITNESS: This document shows an image
3 of a person. It may have been a friend of mine. It's 4 hard to tell; it's blurry. And it may be 200-by-100
5 pixels. Again, it's hard to tell, but that's a
6 reasonable suggestion of what this depicts.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Turn to the next page, 2AF, if you would.

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. Is it fair to say that here you were 11 demonstrating to developers how to publish to the News
12 Feed?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

14 THE WITNESS: This suggests to me that 15 I was showing developers how to publish a story, on 16 behalf of one of their users, to Facebook.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. And the message that you were using as 19 part of your demonstration of the Graph API is 20 "awesome" followed by two exclamation points?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

22 THE WITNESS: I'm surprised they didn't
23 use three exclamation points, or one. But yes, it
24 looks like lower case T, "the Graph API is awesome" --
25 (Reporter interruption.)

1 longer?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection; incomplete
3 hypothetical, lacks foundation.

4 THE WITNESS: I can't answer that question
5 directly. It's possible that some applications --
6 like my personal understanding is that it is possible
7 that some applications were built to rely/expect
8 access to such information, and it is a developer's
9 decision whether or not they believe that experience
10 or that application to be viable in a world where that 11 information -- where access to that information cannot 12 be expected.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. So are you saying that you are aware that 15 there were some applications that would simply not 16 function any longer as a result of these changes?

17 MS. MILLER: Same objections, and 18 misstates the witness's testimony.

19 THE WITNESS: I'm not saying that.
20 I would refer back to what I previously said. It is 21 possible that application developers may have built
22 applications that relied on access -- that expected
23 access to information from a person -- an app user's
24 friends. It is a developer's decision whether or not 25 they perceive that application to be viable in a world

1 where they don't have -- where they cannot expect
2 access to that information.

3 We at Facebook knew that there would be
4 some applications -- some developers who would make
5 the determination themselves that their apps were no
6 longer viable.

7 MR. GODKIN: All right. Let's take
8 another short break at this point. About five
9 minutes, if that's okay.

10 THE WITNESS: Sure.

11 (Off the record at 2:46 p.m.)

12 (On the record at 2:55 p.m.)

13 MR. GODKIN: Back on the record. I'm
14 going to ask the reporter to mark Cross Exhibit 3.
15 For the record, this has Facebook's Bates numbers
16 01206324 through 328.

17 (Cross Exhibit 3 marked for
18 identification.)

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. I've had placed in front of you Exhibit 3, 21 which is a series of emails or messages from the 22 January 2011 time frame. I really wanted to focus you
23 on the last page of the exhibit, if you can turn to
24 that.

25 Do you recognize this page as a screen from the

1 Facebook website at about the date of this exhibit,
2 2011?

3 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

4 THE WITNESS: I can't confirm the date or
5 time range when this screenshot was taken. It does
6 seem to me -- it does look to me to be a dialogue
7 which would have been part of the Facebook website at 8 one time which allowed people to control the 9 information that was made available to apps, games,
10 and websites if their friends used them.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. Just so that I'm clear, this is for apps
13 that a particular user had not installed, correct?

14 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

15 THE WITNESS: Not -- there are caveats to
16 that.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. What are the caveats?

19 A. So in general, this is used for a person,
20 let's call them user A, to control which information
21 one of their friends, let's say user B, gave to an 22 application. I possibly recall that -- I'm not 23 entirely sure what the behavior was if user A actually 24 used the web- -- no, this is before.

25 Okay, sorry. My apologies.

1 Q. Sure.

2 A. Yes. This dialogue generally is used for 3 a person to control the information that one of their 4 friends may or may not make available to an
5 application.

6 Q. But it was for apps that the user had not
7 installed, correct?

8 A. In general, yes.

9 Q. All right. Was this a screen, or 10 something similar to this, available on the Facebook
11 website from 2011 until, say, 2014?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

13 THE WITNESS: I cannot be sure when this 14 dialogue became available or when it became 15 unavailable. I don't have -- I don't recall that 16 information.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. But did it become unavailable at some 19 point?

20 A. I can't be sure of that.

21 Q. All right. When this screen was 22 available, could a user choose to allow or deny a
23 friend access to her birthday through a developer app?

24 A. The purpose of this dialogue was to allow 25 a person to restrict the ability for an application to

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. All right. Just so that I'm understanding
3 this correctly, Facebook users can set their privacy
4 settings for their data, such as photos, birthday,
5 et cetera, correct?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague.

7 THE WITNESS: In general, people have
8 privacy controls for their information.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. Do I understand that these privacy
11 controls are different from developer permissions?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague.

13 THE WITNESS: My understanding is that
14 there are several privacy concepts that are important
15 here. One of those privacy concepts is app
16 permissions. The other is -- another one are privacy
17 settings available to people on Facebook.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. So privacy settings -- and I'm using your 20 English pronunciation of that word --

21 A. Thank you.

22 Q. -- are what other Facebook users can see,
23 right?

24 A. Yes. In general, users have a way to 25 control who sees what information on Facebook.

1 Q. But the privacy settings don't control
2 what app developers can see, right?

3 MS. MILLER: Objection; incomplete
4 hypothetical.

5 THE WITNESS: That doesn't match my
6 understanding. My understanding is that people have 7 control, varying levels of control, over who can see
8 what, and those settings, as I understand it, would 9 also affect the ability of an app to access that 10 information.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. So before Graph API 2.0, when a Facebook
13 user uploaded a Graph object, like a photo, to 14 Facebook, do you recall what the various privacy
15 settings the user could select were?

16 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague.

17 THE WITNESS: My recollection is that
18 there were several privacy settings that a person
19 could use when they -- my understanding is that people
20 had several privacy options available to them when 21 they uploaded content to Facebook. They included but 22 were not limited to Public, Friends, and Only Me.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. What about Friends of Friends, was that 25 one of them?

1 A. That is a setting that may have existed
2 for some pieces of information, but my recollection is 3 that that privacy setting was not necessarily
4 available for all pieces of information as somebody
5 uploaded to Facebook.

6 Q. Does privacy settings apply to other
7 Facebook users but not to developers, app developers,
8 correct?

9 A. My --

10 MS. MILLER: Objection; vague.

11 THE WITNESS: No. My understanding is 12 that -- let me back up.

13 Giving people control over their
14 information on Facebook is one of the most important
15 things we, as a company, can do. It's extremely 16 important to us, and let me be clear, is the 17 foundation for many -- the foundational reason for 18 many of the changes we have made to our platform over
19 time.

20 To answer your specific question, my 21 understanding is that the privacy settings that were 22 available to people on Facebook did, would and should 23 have affected the information available via 24 applications.

25 ///

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. So if a person who had set a privacy
3 setting to Only Me, and we are talking about before
4 Graph API 2.0, a developer could still access that
5 photo as long as I had granted the developer the user
6 photo permission, correct?

7 A. My understanding --

8 MS. MILLER: I was going to say,
9 objection; incomplete hypothetical, and vague.

10 THE WITNESS: My understanding of how
11 the user_photos permission worked is that would grant
12 an application access to that user's photos, which 13 would, therefore, by definition, include the photos
14 that that person had marked as Only Me.

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. All right. So as long as the user had 17 granted the permission for the photo, even if the user
18 had set the privacy setting to Only Me, the user was,
19 in effect, giving permission for app developers to use
20 or see those photos, right?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection; misstates the
22 testimony, vague as to time and incomplete
23 hypothetical.

24 THE WITNESS: My understanding is that if 25 a user granted the user_photos permission to an

1 application, an application would then get access to
2 that user's photos.

3 There were many use cases where it was
4 valuable to people -- my understanding is that there
5 are many use cases, several use cases where it was 6 valuable to people to grant an application access to 7 their photos on Facebook.

8 One example is if I want to print out a
9 family album, I could log into a website that printed
10 family albums and then choose from the photos I had 11 uploaded to Facebook, including those that I marked as 12 Only Me, for the purposes of creating that family
13 album.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. But you would have had to grant the 16 developer the permission for accessing photos in that 17 hypothetical, correct?

18 A. Yes. It's important to note that in 19 general we want to give people control over the 20 information they share with apps, and so a person
21 would have had to grant an application access to the 22 user_photos permission in order for the application to 23 have access to their photos.

24 Q. And we are still talking about before
25 Graph API 2 .0. Did Facebook make available to

1 friend's photo that was uploaded to Facebook with 2 the Only Me permission would not then be available via
3 the API to an application because of somebody granting 4 the user_friends permission -- the friends_photo
5 permission.

6 MR. GODKIN: I will ask to be marked as
7 Exhibit No. 4 a document with Facebook Bates number
8 61650 through 52.

9 (Cross Exhibit 4 marked for
10 identification.)

11 (Off-the-record discussion.)

12 BY MR. GODKIN:

13 Q. Okay. If you turn to page 652, Mr. Cross,
14 you will see that you appear on these emails, starting
15 on that page. Actually, starting on 651.

16 Do you see that?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. So if you turn to page 652, that is an 19 email from Ime Archibong to you and KP. Mr. Archibong
20 is asking the two of you for a comprehensive review of 21 the Platform APIs, FQL calls, and permissions that 22 will be impacted by Platform 3.0.

23 Do you see that?

24 A. I do see that.

25 Q. Was "Platform 3.0" another term that was

1 used for what eventually became the Graph API 2.0?

2 A. "Platform 3.0" was one of the terms used
3 in general around these efforts to simplify and 4 stabilize the developer API platform.

5 Q. What he is asking you for is a break-out
6 of private/whitelisted APIs and the public APIs that
7 will be impacted by Platform 3.0 changes.

8 Do you see that?

9 A. I see that.

10 Q. As well as a list of developers -- this is 11 on slide 2 -- and partners that are using the 12 private/whitelisted APIs and the public APIs, correct?

13 A. I see that, yes.

14 Q. On the next page, he says:

15 "Chris is interested in getting a simple
16 framing like this pulled together to share with Zuck
17 and others."

18 Is "Zuck" Mr. Zuckerberg?

19 A. That's a term that we sometimes use to 20 refer to Mark, yes.

21 Q. And "Chris" is Chris Daniels?

22 A. That's who I understand "Chris" to be
23 referring to in this context, yes.

24 Q. What was Mr. Daniels' role at this time,
25 at the time of this email, 2013 in August?

1 A. That's probably what "plus Simon" probably
2 means, yes.

3 Q. Then at the bottom of page 69, Jackie
4 Chang is describing, among other things, Platform 3.0
5 risk assessment. Do you see that?

6 A. I do.

7 Q. And the types of risk are PR risk,
8 strategic value, competitive/not useful to Facebook,
9 major business disruption/kill.

10 Do you see that?

11 A. I do.

12 Q. Does she include a tab for spammy apps?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
14 calls for speculation.

15 THE WITNESS: I'm not sure what that 16 means, and I don't see any evidence of that in front
17 of me.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. All right. Have you never heard the 20 phrase --

21 A. Can you say that again? You froze.

22 Q. Have you never heard the phrase "spammy
23 apps"?

24 A. I've heard the phrase "spammy apps," yes.

25 Q. Is that a phrase that is used or ever been

1 used at Facebook?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation.

3 THE WITNESS: It may have been used at 4 Facebook. I've heard that phrase used in many
5 contexts, inside and out of Facebook.

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. Did she include, under Risk Assessment
8 tabs, a tab for apps that violated Facebook's
9 policies?

10 A. I have no idea.

11 MS. MILLER: Objection; document speaks
12 for itself.

13 THE WITNESS: Yeah.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. Did she include a tab for apps that 16 violate user trust?

17 MS. MILLER: Objection; document speaks
18 for itself.

19 THE WITNESS: I can't answer that
20 question.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. She does include a tab for competitive
23 apps, does she not?

25 document.

1 THE WITNESS: If you're referring here to
2 tabs of a spreadsheet, I can only answer that question
3 if the spreadsheet is in front of me, otherwise I'm 4 going on a recollection of a spreadsheet from four 5 years ago. I can't give you reliable answers to those
6 questions.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. All right. So what was your understanding
9 by what Ms. Chang was trying to accomplish with her
10 audit and these various buckets that she was 11 including?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection; calls for
13 speculation, lacks foundation.

14 THE WITNESS: It's hard for me to say
15 without seeing the analysis that you're referring to.

16 MR. GODKIN: All right.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. If you go back to page 67. Do you see
19 that?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. That's where KP added you. Then in his 22 second paragraph, he says:

23 "Simon managed to pull a list of 40k+ apps that 24 request and make use of the friends_permissions."

25 Do you see that?

1 A. I do.

2 Q. Is that true? Did you pull together a
3 list of more than 40,000 apps that requested and made
4 use of Friends Permissions?

5 A. I recollect pulling together an analysis
6 of the applications that we at the time saw making use
7 of the Friend Permissions and the API calls related to 8 them.

9 Q. And do you recall that there were 40,000
10 apps, more than 40,000 apps on that list?

11 A. That seems like a reasonable number.
12 I don't recall the number exactly.

13 Q. Then did you undertake an analysis of 14 those 40,000 apps?

15 A. We didn't individually analyze 40,000
16 apps, no. We took an -- like, I recall us
17 investigating some of those apps, a sample of those 18 apps to understand in more detail how these 19 applications might be using that information.

20 Q. The language that KP used here is "having 21 reviewed the top 250 apps."

22 Do you see that?

23 A. I do see that in the document here.

24 Q. Is that the analysis that you undertook to 25 perform?

1 A. I recall us -- that may be one of the ways
2 we decided to look at the 40,000. As you can imagine,
3 40,000 applications is a large number, and this is a
4 relatively small team. It's likely that we did look
5 at applications filtered or ranked by some metric, and 6 it's reasonable that 250 was how we -- is a number 7 that we have actually looked at.

8 It's not clear from this document, or from my 9 memory, what the word "top" refers to, and it's not 10 clear that those 250 apps were necessarily reviewed to 11 the same degree.

12 Q. Did you and KP do this analysis or were 13 other people involved?

14 A. There were likely other people involved.
15 I don't recall exactly who.

16 Q. Then do you see KP describes the results
17 of the analysis a little further down on page 67 and 18 spilling over to 68?

19 A. I do.

20 Q. And then he makes -- he ascribes
21 percentages to various types of apps, including games,
22 in-house app, mobile, et cetera.

23 A. I do see that here.

24 Q. He makes various recommendations, keep 25 access, remove access, et cetera.

1 Do you see that?

2 A. I see those words, yes.

3 Q. Did you work with KP to come up with those 4 recommendations?

5 A. It's possible I was involved in some way.
6 It's also important to note that this exercise is 7 being carried out in roughly August 2013, which is 8 significantly before when any of these changes were 9 introduced, and you can clearly see the thinking here
10 being somewhat early in our analysis of both how to 11 categorize applications and also how to handle their 12 transition to the new platform systems.

13 Q. How did you come up with your 14 recommendation about what to do with these apps as 15 reflected here?

16 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
17 calls for speculation, misstates the document and
18 testimony.

19 THE WITNESS: I don't recall the specific 20 criteria we used. As you may expect, this exercise is 21 initially done from the point of view of somebody with 22 experience managing a diverse ecosystem of 23 applications and an understanding of the developer
24 ecosystem and our emerging understanding of people's 25 expectations as regards to their use of the Facebook

1 their app as a result.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. Do you know what percentage of Facebook's
4 revenue today is from NEKO advertising?

5 A. I do not know those numbers, I'm afraid.

6 Q. Turn back to page 37. Here is an email
7 that you wrote on September 5, 2013. Then you say:

8 "... for now, just list out the 9 capabilities/Gks/Sitevars."

10 Can you tell me what those are?

11 A. Those are technical mechanisms by which 12 Facebook makes non-public API behaviors available to 13 certain app developers.

14 Q. And is "whitelist" another word for that;
15 to make non-public APIs available to certain app
16 developers?

17 A. In general, that's what whitelists tend to 18 be. They are a list of applications that have 19 access -- in this context, applications that have 20 access to non-public API behaviors.

21 Q. Why does Facebook have three different
22 mechanisms for whitelisting?

23 A. Because Facebook -- I mean, my 24 understanding -- that's ultimately a question that our 25 infrastructure team should answer. They are different

1 mechanisms for use in different parts of our
2 infrastructure for guarding access to different types
3 of information.

4 Q. Do you know -- and just tell me if you
5 don't -- but do you know which internal tools Facebook
6 would use to enable the capability?

7 A. My understanding is there is a tool called
8 the Capability Tool which is used to administer
9 capabilities.

10 Q. And the same for Gatekeeper, is there a
11 tool called the Gatekeeper tool?

12 A. There is a tool called Gatekeeper which is 13 used to administer gatekeepers, and gatekeepers are 14 sometimes used to control the rollout of features on 15 Facebook and in the Facebook API.

16 Q. Is there also a tool called the Sitevar
17 tool?

18 A. There is a tool called the Sitevar tool
19 which allows our engineers to set certain sitevars
20 which affect the behavior of all kinds of products in 21 the Facebook system.

22 Q. Is there something called the Talent tool?

23 A. My understanding is that the Talent tool
24 is another name for the Capability tool.

25 Q. Have you ever heard of something called

1 the Hendrix tool?

2 A. To me, the word "Hendrix" may refer to 3 several things. I don't recall something called the 4 Hendrix tool, no.

5 Q. Okay. Did you ever use one of these tools
6 to give a developer an extension to access the Full
7 Friends List, Friends data or the News Feed API after 8 April 30, 2015 in order to mitigate harm to their
9 business?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection; compound.

11 THE WITNESS: I can't answer that full 12 question in one go. I can say that I was involved in 13 using these tools, or my team were involved in using 14 these tools to grant access to those APIs to some 15 developers when they were removed from the public
16 surface area of the platform.

17 We did that for varying but very -- for 18 varying but clear-to-us reasons.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. How many developers did Facebook grant
21 such access to?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
23 calls for speculation.

24 THE WITNESS: I can't answer that
25 question, first of all because of the definition of

1 A. I can't be specific about individual
2 applications. I remember there were some. I do
3 remember that we granted access to a small number of 4 applications for a limited extension, and we only did
5 so because we determined -- we made a determination
6 that without an additional period of access, we were
7 going to harm the user experiences of people in a way
8 that we didn't feel was acceptable.

9 An example of such an application is I recall
10 an application that had been built by a developer
11 called Nuance for Fiat Automotive. This, again, was 12 essentially a Facebook Replacement Client, but unlike 13 a mobile application that had been updated very 14 quickly, this was software baked into the firmware of 15 an automobile. It's very hard for developers to 16 update that software. So had these changes been 17 applied to those applications, then there physically 18 would not have been enough time for the developers to 19 react to those changes.

20 So we decided to grant them an extension in 21 order to give them more time to upgrade the firmware
22 on those devices to no longer use the APIs and 23 permissions which were to be removed from the public
24 surface area of our platform.

25 Q. Did you agree to give Tinder access to

1 certain APIs after they were no longer publicly
2 available?

3 A. I don't recall us granting access to the 4 APIs that were removed from the public surface area
5 past the April '15 deadline. I do remember that there
6 were use cases which Tinder and other applications
7 had, which we considered to be valuable, and our users
8 considered to be valuable, and we found technical ways
9 to enable those use cases to continue to exist without 10 Tinder having to have full access -- well, somewhat 11 full access to information from an app-using person's 12 non-app-using friends.

13 MR. GODKIN: You can put Exhibit 6 aside,
14 and I'm going to ask the reporter to mark as Exhibit 7
15 the document with Facebook's Bates numbers 47134
16 through 40.

17 (Cross Exhibit 7 marked for
18 identification.)

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. Exhibit 7, Mr. Cross, is an email string
21 in January 2015 about Tinder. If you turn to the 22 bottom of page 35, there's an email from KP to you and
23 some others, which is asking if it's okay to whitelist
24 Tinder for a period of time to access the Full Friends
25 List.

1 Do you see that?

2 A. I do.

3 Q. Then in the middle of that same page, you
4 respond in the second bullet:

5 "I'm not sure we should do this."

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. Do you see that?

8 Then at the top of that page, KP responds to 9 you, in the second paragraph:

10 "They told me ['they' referring to Tinder] told
11 me there are financial implications here for them not 12 meeting their goals..."

13 I will stop quoting there. Do you see that?

14 A. I do.

15 Q. Then at the bottom of page 34, you say:

16 "This is frustrating [for] them. If we can put 17 a time limit on this, I'm OK doing it."

18 Correct?

19 A. I see that, yes.

20 Q. Then Eddie O'Neil at the top of that page
21 agrees that it is okay. He says:

22 "It's better than... [number] 2/ starting an 23 email thread with Mark..."

24 Followed by a little smiley face. Do you see
25 that?

1 A. I do.

2 Q. And "Mark" is Mark Zuckerberg?

3 A. You'd have to ask Eddie if he was actually
4 referring to Mark.

5 Q. Well, who did you understand he was
6 referring to when he sent you this email?

7 MS. MILLER: Objection; calls for
8 speculation, lacks foundation.

9 THE WITNESS: It's hard to remember an
10 email from five -- well, four -- three years ago.
11 It's possible that he was referring to Mark
12 Zuckerberg.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. Is there any other Mark that it's possible
15 he was referring to?

16 A. There's lots of Marks who work at
17 Facebook.

18 Q. Can you think of any other Mark that he 19 was -- he might have been referring to when he wrote
20 this?

21 A. You should ask Eddie O'Neil who he was
22 referring to.

23 Q. Okay. So this email was after the 24 Graph API 2.0 had been publicly can announced,
25 correct?

1 A. That is correct.

2 Q. If you look at the bottom of page 39,
3 there is an email from Sean Rad. Did you know he's 4 the founder and CEO of Tinder?

5 A. I do.

6 Q. He says:

7 "[It] seems like our Graph access isn't working
8 and we had no idea."

9 Do you see that?

10 A. I do see that.

11 Q. So that's how long after Graph API 2.0 was 12 announced?

13 A. Graph API 2.0 was announced on April 30,
14 2014.

15 Q. And it was implemented on April 30, 2015?

16 A. We began the migration of applications
17 from v1 to v2 on April 30, 2015.

18 Q. But he says in January of 2015 that it
19 isn't working. That's quite a few months before
20 April 30, 2015, correct?

22 document.

23 THE WITNESS: What this refers to is that
24 they perceived on that date that the API behavior had 25 changed for them. Hopefully by this point you have a

1 detailed understanding of the migration behavior from
2 API v1 to API v2.

3 What happened here, in my recollection, is
4 that Tinder -- let me back up.

5 As of April 30, 2015, developers could
6 opt/could choose to call API v2.0 at any moment after 7 that. When I say the migration began on April 30,
8 2015, I was referring to our, Facebook's, forced 9 migration of developers. Developers could begin their 10 own migration as of the morning, PST, on April 30,
11 2014.

12 At some point around December or January,
13 Tinder released a version of their app which had been
14 upgraded to call version 2.0 of the API.

15 (Reporter clarification.)

16 THE WITNESS: At some point around
17 December -- well, clearly December or very early 18 January, Tinder released a version of their app which 19 had been updated to call version 2.0 of the Graph API.
20 They made a mistake in understanding how the API
21 migration behavior would work.

22 That's what triggered, in my recollection,
23 this email. The rest of the thread, as I read it
24 here, is about us initially helping them to understand
25 that they'd made a mistake and that the API was

1 working, as you'll see by my quote earlier -- late --
2 earlier in the pages of the document, later in the 3 thread, the API -- so if you look at page ending 135,
4 my section there, I'm explaining how the API behavior
5 would work. At the bottom it says:

6 "Net, they shouldn't have upgraded to use
7 v2.0" --

8 "v2.x" is our nomenclature for 2.0 and 9 beyond.

10 "...until they were ready to handle
11 app-friends only..."

12 So they made a mistake releasing a version
13 of the application which had been coded against 14 version 2 of the API before they were ready --

15 (Reporter clarification.)

16 THE WITNESS: -- releasing a version of 17 the application which had been coded against version 2
18 of the API and they began to experience what they 19 considered unexpected behavior. Because they 20 considered it unexpected behavior, it was negatively
21 affecting the experience of people using their
22 application.

24 Q. Did Facebook grant Tinder whitelist access
25 to any of the discontinued APIs after April 30, 2015?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
2 calls for speculation.

3 THE WITNESS: I don't recall the
4 specifics. I do recall our strong intent was to not
5 do so. The reason we -- my recollection as per these 6 emails is that we were discussing granting them an 7 extension during the migration period, before the 8 forced migration began, so that they could rectify
9 their mistake.

10 MR. GODKIN: Okay. You can put that one
11 aside.

12 Let me ask the reporter to mark as 13 Exhibit 8 a document with Facebook's Bates numbers
14 27003 through 08.

15 (Cross Exhibit 8 marked for
16 identification.)

17 THE WITNESS: Actually could we take
18 another break?

19 MR. GODKIN: Just a short one because I'm 20 trying to plow through here.

21 (Off the record at 4:13 p.m.)

22 (On the record at 4:19 p.m.)

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. Do you have Exhibit 8, Mr. Cross?

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. Exhibit 8 is a string in February 2015 on
2 the subject of the v2.x XFN migration. What does XFN
3 stand for?

4 A. Cross-functional. In this context, there
5 was a cross-functional team of people involved in 6 managing the migration of our developer platform to 7 API 2.x.

8 Q. All right. Turn to the page with 05 at 9 the bottom.

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. There is a section there, "The 12 Ecosystem/Product Updates" and then "Simon Cross."

13 Do you see that?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. Then in the second bullet point, you refer
16 to approval to launch the Hashed Friends API. You
17 say:

18 "This is a whitelist-only API for Tinder,
19 JCrush, etc, to let them know the shape of the social 20 graph without knowing the identities of the people
21 within."

22 First of all, what is a Hashed Friends API?

23 A. The Hashed Friends API was an API we built
24 that allowed certain use cases that were previously
25 enabled by an app having access to the Full Friends

1 List for those use cases to continue without
2 necessarily having access to the identities of a
3 person's non-app-using friends.

4 Q. So how could these apps work without
5 knowing the identities of the non-app-using friends?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; calls for
7 speculation, lacks foundation, and compound.

8 THE WITNESS: My understanding of what is 9 meant by the word "hash" is a technical mechanism by 10 which you create a string of numbers or characters,
11 which is stable for a given input but is not usable in 12 any other way.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. What does it mean to know the shape of the 15 graph without knowing the identities?

16 A. For example, if two people used an 17 application and had three friends in common but those 18 friends did not use the application, the Hashed
19 Friends API would allow a developer/an application to 20 know that two of their app-using people had three 21 friends in common, but it would not know who those 22 people were.

23 Q. This was an API that was given to Tinder,
24 as you write here, correct?

25 A. As this document is written, at this point

1 we had legal and privacy approval to ship such an API.
2 It is unlikely we had given it to Tinder, for example,
3 at this time.

4 Q. Did you ever give it to Tinder?

5 A. My recollection is that this API was 6 eventually made accessible to Tinder and others.

7 Q. How many others?

8 A. I couldn't give you a specific number.

9 Q. What's your best approximation?

10 A. It's hard for me to give you an accurate
11 number. I don't know what it is today. I do not 12 recall what it was then.

13 Q. Was it given to JCrush?

14 A. I can't be certain that it was. It's 15 possible that it was.

16 Q. Can you identify any other companies that 17 were given this whitelist-only API?

18 A. I can't guarantee to -- I can't give you
19 with certainty the names of other companies that had 20 access to this API.

21 Q. All right. Why would these companies want
22 such an API, to your knowledge?

23 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
24 calls for speculation.

25 THE WITNESS: My understanding of certain

1 types of apps, specifically around dating, is that
2 they help people find other people, and one of the 3 mechanisms that they use to draw these recommendations
4 is an understanding of who those people know in 5 common.

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. Did Tinder pay Facebook money to obtain
8 access to this whitelist-only API?

9 A. No, not that I understand.

10 MR. GODKIN: You can put that one aside.
11 Let me ask the reporter to mark as Exhibit 9 a
12 document with Facebook's Bates numbers 597229
13 through 33.

14 (Cross Exhibit 9 marked for
15 identification.)

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. Okay?

18 A. Yes.

19 Q. Exhibit 9 is an email string in November
20 of -- well, it starts in November -- or October of 21 2014 and continues after that, regarding Flipboard.
22 You're involved in this string. Do you see that?

23 A. I'm involved in part of it.

24 Q. If you turn to page 31, you were added to 25 it by Eddie O'Neil on October 31, 2014.

1 read_stream. That's my recollection of why I asked
2 him for information about how to respond to this 3 request.

4 MR. GODKIN: You can put that one aside.
5 Let me ask the reporter to mark as Exhibit 11 a
6 document with Facebook Bates numbers 431352 and 353.

7 (Cross Exhibit 11 marked for
8 identification.)

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. Let me know when you have that in front of 11 you.

12 A. I do. And she does too.

13 Q. This, Exhibit 11, is a task document that 14 you created, and it's dated September 2013; is that 15 right?

16 A. That's what I see, yes.

17 Q. Under the description you write that:
18 "With PS12N..."

19 And that's short for "platform simplification,"
20 right?

21 A. That's what I understand PS12N to mean,
22 yes, which is another name for API v -- Platform 3.0.

23 Q. "... we're moving to a world where we'll 24 have many more private APIs than we have today."

25 And then:

1 "We're also moving to gate access to all these
2 private APIs using the Talent tool rather than GKs or 3 their own sitevars."

4 So how many more private APIs does Facebook
5 have today than it had when you wrote this document?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
7 calls for speculation.

8 THE WITNESS: I can't give you a precise
9 number. It's hard to know how we account for an API.
10 What I was referring to here is that at this time, it
11 looked to us that we were going to be removing some 12 APIs from the public surface area, and we were under 13 the assumption that they would be moved into the 14 private or whitelist surface area of our platform,
15 thereby increasing the number of private APIs that we 16 deemed to exist.

17 At this time, it's not -- it's hard for me
18 to know or say whether or not all of the things that 19 were removed from the public surface area still exist
20 in the private surface area.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. Does your job today involve managing the 23 private APIs in any way?

24 A. No, it does not.

25 MR. GODKIN: You can put that one aside.

1 Facebook's counsel to search for it, and if that
2 can be located, to turn it over.

3 You can put that aside, and let's mark as 4 the next exhibit, Exhibit 14, a document with
5 Facebook's Bates numbers 31245 through 61.

6 (Cross Exhibit 14 marked for
7 identification.)

8 BY MR. GODKIN:

9 Q. Let me know when you have it in front of 10 you.

11 A. I have my copy.

12 (Off-the-record discussion.)

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. Exhibit 14 is an email string in March and 15 April of 2015 regarding a company called Hootsuite.
16 It concerns access to whitelisted permission.

17 If you turn, if you would, to page 58 at the 18 bottom. On that page, you wrote at the top that 19 Hootsuite has been approved for a number of 20 permissions and you listed them all there.

21 Do you see that?

22 A. I do.

23 Q. It includes read_friendlists, user_photos,
24 publish_actions, and a number of others, right?

25 A. I do see that.

1 Q. Then if you turn to page 49 at the bottom,
2 on that page Monica Tsang writes to Hootsuite that
3 their legal agreement regarding access to whitelisted
4 permissions is ready to sign.

5 Do you see that?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. Do you know how many whitelist
8 agreements -- were they also known as private extended
9 API agreements?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
11 calls for speculation.

12 THE WITNESS: Can you ask -- there were 13 two questions in your statement. Can you ask them
14 separately for me, please?

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. Yes. I'll start over.

17 Do you know what a private extended API
18 agreement is?

19 A. My understanding is that that is a legal 20 document that we generally sign with developers in 21 order to grant them access to APIs that are not
22 available in the public surface area of our platform.

23 Q. Do you know how many of those types of 24 agreements Facebook has entered into with developers
25 after April 30 of 2014?

1 A. I do not know.

2 Q. Are you aware of any, other than
3 Hootsuite?

4 A. There are likely to be more than just with 5 Hootsuite. I could not tell you which companies or 6 how many.

7 Q. You can't identify any other companies?

8 A. Not that I can be sure were granted
9 extended API agreements.

10 Q. Did you ever work with developer companies
11 on getting a private extended API agreement put in 12 place other than Hootsuite?

13 A. I would have worked with other companies,
14 yes.

15 Q. But you can't recall a single name of any
16 of those companies?

17 A. I don't want to give a name that I can't 18 be a hundred percent confident was in play.

19 Q. So your testimony is you can't remember a 20 single company that you worked with to get a private 21 extended API agreement in place, other than Hootsuite?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection; misstates the
23 testimony.

24 THE WITNESS: My testimony is that I don't 25 want to give you the name of a company which I cannot

1 be sure was granted access to an extended -- was
2 granted access to private APIs under an extended API
3 agreement.

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Do you have a good-faith memory of any
6 companies that you worked with to get a private
7 extended API agreement put in place?

8 A. I honestly can't be sure.

9 MR. GODKIN: Okay. Let's put this one
10 aside.

11 Let's mark as Exhibit 15 a document with
12 Bates number 00510421.

13 (Cross Exhibit 15 marked for
14 identification.)

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. Once again, let me know when everybody is 17 ready.

18 A. Yes, we're good.

19 Q. Exhibit 15 is a task that you prepared on 20 March 20, 2014, and the subject is "Fully deprecate
21 (not privatize) Checkins and Location APIs and
22 Permissions."

23 Do you see that?

24 A. I do.

25 Q. So Checkin was an API?

1 MR. GODKIN: All right. You can put that
2 one aside, and let me ask the reporter to mark as 3 Exhibit 16 a document with Facebook's number 00456587.

4 (Cross Exhibit 16 marked for
5 identification.)

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. And let me know when you're ready.

8 All set?

9 A. All set.

10 Q. This is a task that you created on 11 February 3, 2014 to gain access to non-app friends by 12 a capability.

13 Do you see that?

14 A. I do.

15 Q. Then the description of the app, in the 16 second paragraph, you write:

17 "Some apps have a valid use case to access
18 non-app friends."

19 You give a couple of examples of Venmo and 20 Bing.

21 Do you see that?

22 A. I do.

23 Q. In the sentence next to Bing, you wrote:

24 "Bing needs this to display public data from 25 your friends which they acquired via the firehose."

1 What does that mean, "firehose"?

2 A. My understanding is that the firehose is a
3 specialized API that was built to allow us to work
4 with Bing to ensure that public data about people
5 you're friends with on Facebook was returned as part
6 of their Bing search engine.

7 Q. Was the Firehose API, did it have a
8 different name or was it called the Firehose API?

9 A. As I understand it, we called it the 10 Firehose API.

11 Q. Was that API granted to anybody other than 12 Bing?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
14 calls for speculation.

15 THE WITNESS: It may have been.
16 I couldn't tell you for certain who it was granted to 17 or how many people there were.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. Then you write:

20 "As such, we will need a new capability:
21 'can_read_non_app_friends.'"

22 Do you see that?

23 A. I do.

24 Q. And then with that capability, you write
25 at the bottom of page 87 that Facebook will give the

1 app to -- "including to friends who have not TOS'd
2 this app."

3 Do you see that?

4 A. I do.

5 Q. Does TOS stand for terms of service?

6 A. It does. That's a phrase that's used
7 internally to represent when a user has chosen to log
8 into an app using Facebook Login.

9 Q. So when you wrote "friends who have not 10 TOS'd the app," you're referring to people who had not 11 downloaded the app, correct?

12 A. No. I'm referring to people who have not
13 logged into an app with Facebook.

14 Q. Oh, with Facebook. I understand. Okay.

15 MR. GODKIN: You can put that one aside.

16 Let me mark as Exhibit 17 a document with
17 Facebook's Bates numbers 510070 through 71.

18 (Cross Exhibit 17 marked for
19 identification.)

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. All right. Exhibit 17 is another task
22 that was created by Harshdeep Singh on December 3,
23 2013, and you are subscribed to this task. Do you see
24 that?

25 A. I do.

1 tasks for things you might or may need to do. That
2 does not mean every task gets executed as written. My 3 recollection is that this permission was removed from 4 the API surface area because it's useless in a world
5 where apps don't have access to the Full Friends List.

6 Q. That was going to be my next question.

7 After April 30, 2015, are you saying that a
8 developer could not access non-app friends because 9 this had been removed?

10 A. My understanding is that this permission
11 was removed from the public API surface area because 12 it makes no sense to grant developers the ability to 13 manage a friend list when they don't have access to 14 the full content of those friend lists.

15 MR. GODKIN: All right. Put that one
16 aside, and let's mark as Exhibit 19 a document with
17 Facebook 00482145.

18 (Cross Exhibit 19 marked for
19 identification.)

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Let me know when you're all ready.

22 A. I think we have an email header with no
23 context. Yes.

24 Q. It has a subject which is regarding tasks
25 with a number, and then the text is "[deprecate]

1 privatize friends_* permissions."

2 Do you see that?

3 A. I do see that.

4 MS. MILLER: And I'll object again on the
5 record that the substance of this task is in a 6 separate document that was produced and is not being
7 shown to the witness.

8 BY MR. GODKIN:

9 Q. What is your understanding of what this
10 task involved?

11 A. It's hard for me to understand what this 12 task involves from three words of a subject and a task
13 from three and a half years ago.

14 Q. To your knowledge, was this task
15 completed?

16 MS. MILLER: Same objection.

17 THE WITNESS: I couldn't tell you if it
18 was or not. I refer to my previous answer, whereby 19 it's common practice at Facebook to create tasks for 20 things that you think you might want to do. Just 21 because a task exists, it does not mean the task was 22 completed, closed or actioned.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. What does the word "deprecate" mean to 25 your understanding?

1 A. Could you help me understand the context
2 you mean -- the context in which you want me to give
3 you my understanding?

4 Q. The context as it appears on this
5 document, Exhibit 19.

6 A. It's hard to understand exactly what the 7 context is because the rest of the task is not visible
8 to me.

9 In general, the word "deprecate" means a
10 process by which you begin -- you tell people that 11 something is no longer going to be available to them
12 over time.

13 Q. Does it mean the same thing as privatize?

14 A. No.

15 MR. GODKIN: You can put that one aside.
16 Let's mark as Exhibit 20 a document with Facebook's
17 Bates number 569387.

18 (Cross Exhibit 20 marked for
19 identification.)

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Let me know when you're all ready.

22 A. Yes, I have that.

23 MS. MILLER: And I'll make the same
24 objection; that the substance of this task was 25 produced in a separate document that's not being shown

1 referring to my previous answer, Nissan had likely
2 built a Facebook Replacement Client that was baked
3 into car dashboards, and they were physically unable 4 to update that integration in the timeline that we
5 gave to developers.

6 Q. Could Nissan access friends_photos after
7 April 30, 2015?

8 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
9 calls for speculation.

10 THE WITNESS: It's possible, given what's 11 discussed in these threads.

12 BY MR. GODKIN:

13 Q. Do you know for what period of time Nissan
14 was granted access to friends_photos?

15 A. I do not know what period of time. It's 16 likely that the period of time was defined at the 17 point we granted them an extension and likely written
18 into a contract.

19 MR. GODKIN: You can put that one aside.
20 Let's mark as Exhibit 23 a document with Facebook's
21 Bates numbers 61393 through 395.

22 (Cross Exhibit 23 marked for
23 identification.)

24 MS. MILLER: We're good to go.

25 THE WITNESS: We're good.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. Exhibit 23 is an email exchange in
3 September of 2013, which you and Mr. Archibong and 4 Mr. Daniels and others are discussing a comment
5 written by David Poll, who is a Facebook engineer. Is 6 that right?

7 A. That's what I see.

8 Q. Mr. Poll's comment appears on pages 94 and
9 95. Do you see that?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. When you read this, what did you
12 understand was the nature of Mr. Poll's comment?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection; lacks foundation,
14 calls for speculation.

15 THE WITNESS: My understanding, that this 16 is his opinion.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. What was your understanding of the opinion
19 he was expressing?

20 MS. MILLER: Same objections, and the 21 document speaks for itself.

22 THE WITNESS: I think it's pretty clear
23 from the words in front of me what his opinion is.

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. Mr. Rose forwarded Mr. Poll's comment to

1 Q. And then you say:

2 "We're already thrashing developers really hard
3 in an effort to clean up the API, so we need to be 4 careful about any additional value we remove from the 5 API surface area."

6 What did you mean by "we are already thrashing
7 developers really hard"?

8 A. My recollection from this time in March 2
9 is at this point we were 28 days away from beginning
10 the forced migration of API v1 to v2. As this effort
11 is hopefully clear to everybody by now, it was 12 something we took a lot of time over and knew was 13 going to affect applications and developers in some 14 way and that some of those applications, as I
15 mentioned earlier, developers would consider that -- 16 that developers wouldn't consider viable after these 17 changes were made.

18 The set migrations are understandably
19 significant and required a lot of effort from 20 developers. So by "thrashing developers really hard,"
21 that's what I mean.

22 Q. What did you mean by:

23 "Facebook should be careful about any
24 additional value we remove from the API surface area"?

25 A. My recollection is at this point, the

1 events team, who own the Events API, wanted to remove
2 additional functionality from the Events API because
3 those APIs were no long -- those APIs were connected
4 to products that the events team were planning to 5 deprecate inside Facebook itself.

6 I was concerned at this point, if my
7 recollection serves correctly, that making these 8 additional removals on behalf of the events team, at 9 the same time as migrating our developer ecosystem
10 from API v1 to v2, would be complicated and confusing
11 to developers.

12 In my role as the product manager for developer
13 experience, my job was to manage this transition as 14 simply and cleanly and transparently as possible.

15 (Reporter clarification.)

16 THE WITNESS: Quickly, I think I said.
17 Quickly and cleanly as possible.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. So the Full Friends List was removed from 20 the platform effective April 30, 2015, correct?

21 A. As I've said in previous answers, we began 22 to force-migrate apps to API v2.0 beginning on
23 April 30, 2015.

24 Q. Same question for the News Feed API?

25 A. From what I'm reading here, this is

1 jogging my memory. It suggests that read_stream was 2 still in the -- still a permission developers could 3 request at that time but that we had decided or we 4 were planning at this point to deprecate that
5 permission as part of the next API version, API v2.4,
6 in June -- that we announced in June 2015.

7 Q. Let me just -- I'm changing the topic a
8 little bit now, just so it's clear. I want to talk
9 just talk for a few minutes about the Full Friends
10 List, the Friends Permissions, and the News Feed API.
11 Do I understand correctly that those three APIs were 12 removed effective April 30 of 2015? Is that right?

13 A. I think that's incorrect.

14 Q. What's incorrect about it?

15 A. From what -- this is helping me jog my 16 memory. The read_stream permission, which is the 17 permission developers needed to access the News Feed,
18 was still a part of API v2.0, v2.1, v2.3, until API
19 v2.4 was announced in June 2015.

20 The other permissions, access to the Full
21 Friends List and the friends_* permissions, were 22 deprecated as part of the removal of API v1.0, which 23 we began to force/migrate public developers away from
24 on April 30, 2015.

25 Q. When would you say Facebook made the

1 Section 32 of the SRR.

2 Q. Okay. Did your work from 2012 to 2015
3 involve evaluating policy violations by apps?

4 A. Absolutely.

5 Q. And complaints about apps?

6 A. What do you mean by complaints?

7 Q. If someone made a complaint about an app that
8 was functioning on the Facebook platform, did your job
9 involve dealing with those complaints?

10 A. Only as needed.

11 Q. All right. Are you aware of any policy
12 violation notices that Facebook sent to the plaintiff
13 in this case, Six4Three, between 2012 and 2014?

14 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

15 THE WITNESS: No.

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. Are you aware of any complaints against 18 Six4Three sent from anyone to Facebook during that same
19 time period?

20 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

21 THE WITNESS: No.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. Are you aware of any communications regarding 24 Six4Three between any Facebook employees between 2012
25 and 2014?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

2 THE WITNESS: No.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. Are you aware that Six4Three -- or strike
5 that.

6 Have you read the complaint -- the complaints
7 that have been filed in this case by Six4Three?

8 A. I read a letter.

9 Q. Okay. Have you read the complaints, the 10 actual pleadings?

11 A. I can't remember.

12 Q. Are you aware that Six4Three alleges that its 13 application broke on April 30th, 2015, when it could no
14 longer access users' friends lists and friends' photos
15 data?

16 A. Say that one more time?

17 Q. Six4Three alleges in this case that its 18 application broke on April 30th, 2015. Are you aware 19 of that?

20 A. I believe that's their position.

21 Q. And the reason it broke is because it could no
22 longer access from Facebook a user's friends list and 23 friends' photos data.

24 Are you aware of that?

25 A. The friends' photos, yes. Friends list, no.

1 Q. Are you aware of Facebook taking any action
2 around April 30th, 2015, specifically against Six4Three
3 that would not also have impacted other app developers?

4 A. So may I restate what I think you're asking
5 me?

6 Q. Sure.

7 A. Am I aware of any -- of any -- that -- did
8 Facebook treat Six4Three different than any other
9 developers?

10 Q. That's a good restatement.

11 A. In terms of the friends' photos endpoint, I'm 12 not aware of that.

13 Q. Okay. Did Facebook target Six4Three on 14 April 30th, 2015, specifically to disable Six4Three's
15 access?

16 A. I'm not sure what you mean by "target," and 17 I'm not sure when they went through the breaking change
18 process where they would -- so I'm not sure.

19 Q. You're aware that April 30th, 2015, is a 20 significant date, are you not?

21 A. Yes. The --

22 Q. And why do you think that's a significant 23 date?

24 A. That's the date that the developers would need 25 to go -- you would no longer be able to access the

1 friends' photos.

2 Q. All right. So did -- my question, then, is,
3 on that date, did Facebook take any action specifically
4 directed at Six4Three that it did not also direct at 5 other app developers?

6 A. Not that I'm aware of, because I'm just not 7 quite sure precisely what you mean by taking any 8 action.

9 Q. Is it fair to say that applications other than 10 Six4Three's application lost access to the user friends
11 list on April 30th, 2015?

12 A. Some of them did, yes.

13 Q. How many do you think did?

14 A. I don't have an idea as to the precise number,
15 but it was a rolling -- you know, ultimately, we got 16 everybody off, but we had to roll. Otherwise, we'd 17 break the -- my perception, not being an engineer, is 18 that you can't do that all at once without really 19 hurting the platform itself, from a technical 20 standpoint.

21 Q. So what is your understanding of the total?

22 You had an understanding that it was rolling.
23 What was the total number whose access was denied?

24 A. That depends on the scope of your question,
25 because there was a number of changes that were made in

1 connection with moving into the new version of the
2 platform.

3 Q. Limiting it to the denial of access to the 4 user friends list, how many app developers were 5 affected?

6 A. So we didn't -- to this day, you can still get 7 the users' in-app friend list. That's what I want to 8 make sure.

9 Q. You say "in-app friend list." What does that 10 mean?

11 A. What that means is, if you are the app
12 developer, and I'm going to go to your app, and Laura 13 and I are friends on Facebook, and then she goes to 14 your app, you have the technical ability to know that 15 we are connected on Facebook to help improve our user
16 experience within our app, to the extent -- like, I
17 have a control. I can say, I don't want you to see my 18 friend list, and so then you won't be able to see that.

19 But you can still see those people in your app
20 who are connected on Facebook.

21 Q. Only if they also have the same app.

22 A. Right. They need to come to you and give you
23 the rights to see their information.

24 Q. About how many other applications lost access
25 or lost the ability to function because they could no

1 has the Bates numbers FB_75 through 95 -- 96, I'm
2 sorry.

3 Could you turn to the page with Bates number
4 77 at the bottom? The third page of the exhibit.

5 A. I'm here.

6 Q. And towards the middle of the page, there is a
7 section entitled "A More Stable Platform with 8 Versioning and Graph API 2.0."

9 Do you see that?

10 A. I do.

11 Q. Is that an official announcement of Graph API
12 2.0 on Facebook's public website?

13 A. Yes. This is a description of the stability
14 update.

15 Q. Was Graph API 2.0 the change that removed 16 access to friends' lists, friends' photos, and other
17 types of data on April 30th, 2015, which Six4Three
18 alleges broke its app?

19 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague and ambiguous.

20 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I agree with my counsel.

21 I -- it's hard to answer that question.

22 So the changes -- like the removal of the 23 friend endpoint is associated -- so let me restate.

24 With Graph API 2.0, the friend endpoints are 25 not -- are no longer available.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. And that's what Six4Three alleges caused its
3 app to no longer function. Correct?

4 I know you disagree with that. But that's
5 what is alleged in the lawsuit. Correct?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation.

7 THE WITNESS: I believe they think that their
8 app wouldn't work anymore.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. Okay. Was Graph API 2.0 variously referred to 11 internally by Facebook employees as Platform 3.0,
12 Platform Simplification, and PS12n?

13 A. In the context of the conversations on how 14 Platform needed to change as we moved into a mostly 15 mobile environment, there were different titles of --
16 thrown out there internally until we landed on -- I
17 think ultimately people were referring to it as 18 Platform Simplification. And then part of the 19 simplification is announcing the versioning and the 20 commitment to the stability of the platform.

21 Q. Was it referred to as Platform 3.0 from time
22 to time internally at Facebook?

23 A. Some people said that.

24 Q. And PS12n, is that just a kind of code for 25 Platform Simplification?

1 A. I believe so.

2 Q. Because there's 12 letters between the PS and
3 the N?

4 A. I -- it makes me think of 5 "internationalization," isn't it. So yeah, probably.

6 Q. Does this section of Exhibit 3 that we're 7 looking at, starting at the bottom of page 77 and 8 continuing over to the very top of 78, state
9 specifically that Facebook is removing access to the 10 full friends list and the photos list?

11 A. So I'm on the third page of the announcement.

12 Q. Page 77 at the bottom?

13 A. Right. So of the doc that said the new 14 Facebook login and graph API 2.0, we go into detail
15 about what we're doing.

16 The specific pages that you've asked me if we 17 call out friend endpoints --

18 MS. MILLER: I'll say -- objection. The 19 document speaks for itself. But go ahead.

20 THE WITNESS: This part of the announcement
21 does not state that.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. Okay. And at the very top of the page with 24 the Bates number 78, there's a statement, "In addition
25 to the above, we are removing several rarely used API

1 endpoints."

2 Do you see that?

3 A. Oh, yes. So without the word "friend," but 4 yeah, the endpoints is referred to right here.

5 Q. Were the friends list and friends' photos
6 among the endpoints that Facebook included in the 7 phrase "several rarely used API endpoints"?

8 A. The friend endpoints went away. I didn't 9 write this, so I don't know -- I don't know if that 10 would be the case. I believe it to be true.

11 Q. Well, it says, "visit our changelog for 12 details." Correct?

13 A. Right.

14 Q. And the changelog is part of Exhibit 3.
15 Correct.

16 If you'll turn to page 94, the Bates number
17 94 -- let me know when you have that in front of you.

18 Do you see the Bates numbers at the bottom?

19 A. I do. I'm just scanning. Okay. I'm at 94.

20 Q. And this is part of a changelog. Correct?

21 A. Yes. It's part of the changelog document.

22 Q. And on that page, it says, "all friends
23 permissions have been removed."

24 Do you see that in the middle of the page?

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. And then there's a list of all the friends
2 permissions. Correct?

3 A. Friends endpoints. Yes.

4 Q. Friends endpoints. And that includes friends
5 lists and friends' photos?

6 A. It includes friends' photos. I don't see
7 friends lists, and it shouldn't. I know the friend
8 list changed, but -- so I don't see friends list here.

9 Q. All right. Is it true that Facebook is 10 characterizing these friends endpoints as,
11 quote/unquote, "rarely used"?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Asked and answered.

13 THE WITNESS: I don't know. I don't know if 14 that was -- I believe that to be true. I'm not 15 certain.

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. Well, go back to page 78, which we just read.
18 At the very top of the page, it says, "We are removing 19 several rarely used API endpoints." Correct?

20 A. Correct.

21 Q. And then it goes on to list those endpoints,
22 and included in them is all of the friends permissions,
23 including photos. Correct?

24 A. Correct.

25 Q. So Facebook is characterizing these as rarely

1 used endpoints. Correct?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection. Asked and answered.

3 THE WITNESS: It's possible.

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Well, that's what it says, does it not?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
7 document.

8 BY MR. GODKIN:

9 Q. It's not just possible.

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
11 document.

12 THE WITNESS: I -- I want to make sure I'm 13 being a hundred percent accurate with you in my 14 responses.

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. I appreciate that.

17 A. I believe the friend endpoints were rarely
18 used based on my understanding of -- but I'm not sure.

19 Q. All right. Let's move on.

20 Did the announcement of Graph API 2.0 that 21 we've just been looking at, page 77 and 78, state that 22 Facebook was privatizing these APIs?

23 Did you see the word "privatizing" anywhere?

24 A. I don't see the word "privatizing" on 77 or 25 78.

1 A. I do.

2 Q. "You will not directly or indirectly,"
3 et cetera?

4 A. Correct.

5 Q. Does it prohibit a developer from selling
6 Facebook's user data?

7 A. No. 7.

8 Q. Yeah.

9 A. 9.2.7 says, "You will not sell user data."

10 Q. Does it prohibit a developer from accessing 11 more data than is required for the application to 12 function?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection. The document speaks
14 for itself.

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. And look at 9.2.1, if that helps you.

17 A. 9.2.1 says, "You will only request data you
18 need to operate your application."

19 Q. Okay. Are you aware of Facebook ever
20 notifying Six4Three from 2012 to 2014 that Six4Three
21 had violated any of the subsections of paragraph 9?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope and
23 calls for speculation.

24 THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of us having any 25 enforcement communication with Pikinis.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. Thank you.

3 Do you see, if you turn now to the next page,
4 which has the Bates number 21 at the bottom, and 5 there's subsection 19 of the same part that we were 6 just looking at, where it states, "We can create
7 applications that offer similar features or services to 8 or otherwise compete with your application."

9 Does it say that?

10 A. It does.

11 Q. And "we" means Facebook there. Correct?

12 A. I believe so.

13 Q. Does Facebook reserve its rights anywhere in 14 Section 9 to take actions that might give Facebook's
15 applications an unfair advantage when competing with 16 other applications?

17 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for a legal
18 conclusion. Argumentative.

19 THE WITNESS: Could you restate that question?

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Yes. Does Facebook reserve its rights in 22 subsection 19 or anywhere in Section 9 to take actions
23 that might give Facebook applications an unfair
24 advantage when competing with other applications?

25 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

1 THE WITNESS: 19 says, "We can create
2 applications that offer similar features and service to
3 or otherwise compete with your application."

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Do you recall see anything in any other
6 subsection of this Section 9 that we've been looking at 7 where Facebook reserves its right to give its own
8 applications an unfair advantage over other
9 applications?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for a legal
11 conclusion and argumentative.

12 MR. GODKIN: "Do you see it?" I'm not sure
13 how that calls for a legal conclusion or is 14 argumentative.

15 Q. Do you see it? "Yes" or "no."

16 MS. MILLER: I'll say same objections.

17 THE WITNESS: I don't see the words "unfair
18 advantage." I also don't like the question.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. Then if you look up to paragraph 8, still on 21 page 21, where it says, "We" -- and that means
22 Facebook. Correct?

23 A. I believe so, yes.

24 Q. "We give you all right necessary to use the 25 code, APIs, data, and tools you receive from us."

1 Do you see that?

2 A. I do.

3 Q. Did Facebook reserve its rights in 4 paragraph 8, or subparagraph 8, or any section -- any 5 subparagraph of Section 9 to provide data on terms that 6 are unequal to developers?

7 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for a legal
8 conclusion.

9 THE WITNESS: I don't understand what you
10 mean. Can you restate that?

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. Do you see any -- do you see the words
13 "Facebook reserves its rights" anywhere in this section
14 that we've been looking at?

15 A. And then one more time, can you ask the 16 question?

17 Q. Did Facebook state that it was reserving its 18 rights to give some companies access to data that it
19 did not offer to other companies?

20 MS. MILLER: Object --

21 THE WITNESS: I don't see that.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. To your knowledge, between 2011 and 2015, did
24 Facebook sometimes give developers access to data for a
25 purpose of beta testing an app?

1 and outside the scope.

2 THE WITNESS: I -- I believe so. I believe
3 so. But I'm not -- you know, I'm not sure. There was 4 a lot of people involved, and I can't remember who
5 everyone was on stage.

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. When did Mr. Taylor leave Facebook?

8 A. In 2012, I think.

9 Q. If you turn to the next page of Exhibit 9.
10 There's a question, "How will Facebook deal with 11 applications that compete with one another or even 12 compete with Facebook-built applications?"

13 Do you see that?

14 A. I do.

15 Q. And the answer reads, quote:

16 "We welcome developers with competing
17 applications, including developers whose 18 applications might compete with Facebook-built 19 applications. Many applications are likely to 20 offer similar features. We have designed 21 Facebook Platform so that applications from 22 third-party developers are on a level playing
23 field with applications built by Facebook.
24 Ultimately, our users will decide which 25 applications they find most useful, and it is

1 these applications that will become most
2 popular."

3 Did I read that correctly?

4 A. You did.

5 Q. Does Facebook state in the answer to this 6 question that it can provide special access to data to 7 certain developers but not others?

8 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope and
9 argumentative. And vague as to what "special access"
10 means.

11 THE WITNESS: This document does not state
12 that.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. Does it state that Facebook can remove access
15 to data to an app that has not violated Facebook's
16 policies even though that data will be available to all
17 other developers?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope and
19 argumentative.

20 THE WITNESS: So to qualify my last response,
21 I mean this FAQ doesn't state that. If I wanted to be 22 perfect, I'd read this and make sure that was an 23 accurate response.

24 And so for this question -- can you just state
25 it?

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. So did Lookback Video involve videos and
3 photos?

4 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

5 THE WITNESS: It was a video that included,
6 if -- again, I'm quite certain, but just -- you know,
7 it's a video that included images that you had shared
8 on Facebook. So it just sort of that kind of a thing.
9 Like you're looking back at your Facebook experience,
10 just a few of the things that you've done on the site.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. Look back at some time in the past?

13 A. Yeah.

14 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark as Exhibit 14 the next
15 document.

16 (Deposition Exhibit 14 was marked for
17 identification.)

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. Exhibit 14 is a document produced by Facebook
20 with the Bates numbers 00439054 through -68.

21 And this appears to be a chat string in 22 October of 2011. Is that correct?

23 A. The first date I'm seeing on -- is September
24 18th. But then I see -- it's hard -- as you may agree,
25 it's hard to see -- 'cause then right above it, it says

1 the 13th.

2 Q. But it's in or around September or October
3 2011. Is that right?

4 A. Looks like it.

5 Q. And in this document, Mr. Vernal and others
6 are talking about Twitter. Correct?

7 A. Correct.

8 Q. And if you look at the first page of the 9 exhibit, at the bottom of that page, Mr. Wyndowe writes
10 to Mr. Matt Kelly, "hey, Bud, favor to ask. Can you
11 check to make sure we restrict Twitter API to block out
12 friend lists?"

13 Do you see that?

14 A. I do.

15 Q. And then Mr. Kelly responds, which is 16 immediately above, "Do you mind if I loop in our dev
17 support team to hunt this down? I have never heard of 18 us blacklisting certain APIs, so I'm not even sure
19 where to start.

20 Do you see that?

21 A. I do.

22 Q. Does the term "blacklist" mean that a
23 developer cannot access certain data that's otherwise
24 publicly available to platform developers?

25 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,

1 calls for speculation, and lacks foundation.

2 THE WITNESS: Blacklisting could have a number
3 of meanings.

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Could one of its meanings be that the 6 developer cannot access data that is otherwise publicly
7 available to platform developers?

8 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

9 THE WITNESS: Yes.

10 BY MR. GODKIN:

11 Q. Did, to your knowledge, Facebook in fact block
12 Twitter from receiving access to a user's friend list?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,
14 calls for speculation, lacks foundation.

15 THE WITNESS: We do.

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. Are you aware of Facebook blacklisting any 18 other companies between 2011 and today?

20 speculation.

21 THE WITNESS: I am.

22 MS. MILLER: And outside the scope.

23 THE WITNESS: Sorry.

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. Did you get her answer? Thank you.

1 Now, if you would turn in the same document to
2 page Bates number -66 at the bottom.

3 Do you have that in front of you?

4 A. I am just getting there. I'm there.

5 BY MR. GODKIN:

6 Q. So at the very bottom of Bates 66, Mr. Vernal
7 states, "I think we're talking full list of friends."
8 Correct?

9 A. He states that, yes.

10 Q. And then if you turn the page at the very top 11 of Bates number 67, he goes on, "What did we do for 12 YouTube? I think doing that same thing for Twitter is 13 the question. Did we never do that?"

14 Did I read that correctly?

15 A. You did.

16 Q. And then Julie Tung responds and states:

17 "YouTube is not allowed to see users that 18 don't already use the app, so a friend list
19 would be returned, but it would be only 20 friends that are already YouTube users. This 21 was never enabled for Twitter."

22 Did I read that correctly?

23 A. You did.

24 Q. And then Mr. Wyndowe responds, "instead of the 25 YT" -- is that YouTube?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
2 calls for speculation.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. Is that a reasonable conclusion, that YT
5 stands for YouTube?

6 A. Where are you in the document?

7 Q. The fifth entry, which is on page Bates -67,
8 Mr. Wyndowe at 3:20 P.M. on September 13th.

9 A. Yes.

10 Q. He says -- and YT is YouTube, you think?

11 A. I believe so.

12 MS. MILLER: Same objection.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. "Instead of the YT version, can we not" -- 15 "can we just not return any friend info? In any case,
16 we should probably wait a couple of days so that I can
17 send a summary to Zuck, Bret, and Javi, et cetera."

18 Did I read that correctly?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And Zuck is Mark Zuckerberg?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,
22 calls for speculation, lacks foundation.

23 THE WITNESS: Yes.

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. And Bret was Bret Taylor?

1 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

2 THE WITNESS: Yes.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. And Javi was Javi -- what's his last name?

5 A. Javier --

6 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Olivan? Something like that?

9 A. Yeah.

10 Q. All right. And so what Mr. Wyndowe is saying 11 here is, he wants to send a summary of this issue to 12 Zuck, Bret, and Javi, et cetera. Correct?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
14 document.

15 THE WITNESS: He says "We should probably wait
16 a couple of days so that I can send a summary to Zuck,
17 Bret, and Javi."

18 MR. GODKIN: All right. Let's mark as the 19 next exhibit, Exhibit 15, this document.

20 (Deposition Exhibit 15 was marked for
21 identification.)

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. Exhibit 15 is a document produced by Facebook
24 with Bates numbers 00423235 and -236.

25 And this is an October 2012 message from Mike

1 Q. Did you ever receive this document at the time
2 it was sent?

3 A. No.

4 Q. Mr. Vernal writes at the bottom of page --
5 with the Bates number 35, "As many of you know, we have 6 been having a series of conversations with Mark for 7 months about the Platform business model."

8 And then at the top of 60 -- -36, he goes on:

9 "To give you an update on where we are, we
10 feel pretty confident about the business model
11 on the distribution/advertising side.

12 Basically, we want everyone to be able to 13 publish back to Facebook, contribute to the 14 graph. We will organically rank content based 15 on value to users and to Facebook, both 16 engagement and revenue value."

17 And then it says:

18 "Developers can pay us to value their --
19 to value their value; i.e., they can booth
20 content."

21 Did I read that correctly?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. And so Mr. Vernal says he's been having 24 conversations for months with Mark.

25 Is that Mark Zuckerberg, do you know?

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Did you participate in these discussions in 3 2012 that went on for months about the platform
4 business model and involved Mr. Vernal and
5 Mr. Zuckerberg?

6 A. Not the platform business model.

7 Q. All right. Do you know who participated in 8 the conversations with Mark and Vernal about the 9 platform business model at this time?

10 A. I do.

11 Q. Who?

12 A. That would be Doug Purdy, Dan Rose, Justin 13 Osafsky, and Mike Vernal. I can't remember anyone
14 else. But those are the main.

15 Q. And Mark Zuckerberg.

16 A. Oh.

17 Q. Correct?

18 A. Sorry. Yes.

19 Q. Do you have any idea what Mr. Vernal meant 20 when he said, "Developers can pay us to value their 21 value; i.e., they can boost content"?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,
23 calls for speculation, lacks foundation.

24 THE WITNESS: I know what he means by "they 25 can boost content."

1 Did I read that correctly?

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. When he used the term "read side of Platform,"
4 do you understand that Mr. Vernal meant the ability of 5 developers to access data from Graph API and other APIs
6 about users and their friends, such as photos and 7 interests?

8 MS. MILLER: Objection. Compound.

9 THE WITNESS: The read side of Platform would
10 be, yes, being able to read data from the Facebook app.
11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. And a Canvas app is an app that was built --
13 strike that.

14 A Canvas app is an app built using Facebook's
15 Canvas product. Correct?

16 A. It used to be called -- we used to call them
17 Canvas apps. But a Canvas app -- we don't use that 18 term today. But that what that is is, it's apps that 19 are located on or within Facebook in iFrames. So the 20 URL is apps.facebook.com. So that's where -- it's 21 within the Facebook Canvas.

22 Q. At the time of this document, though, which is 23 October of 2012, it was called Canvas. Right?

24 A. Internally, yes.

25 Q. Is it true that Facebook got a cut of revenues

1 from Canvas apps at this time?

2 A. Only those Canvas apps using our payments
3 product.

4 Q. When Mr. Vernal says that these hard questions
5 weren't necessary on Canvas was because apps on Canvas
6 accrue a bunch of value, do you understand that he
7 meant that was because with the Canvas apps, Facebook
8 generated revenue?

9 A. I don't know what list -- what he was thinking
10 in his head.

11 Q. Okay. Is that what you understand that he 12 meant as you read this email?

13 A. Yes. I mean, that's why we had to have the 14 Platform business model conversations -- we; not myself
15 personally. But, like he's saying, on mobile, we have 16 to ask ourselves these hard questions, because our 17 payments product isn't available on mobile.

18 Q. All right. And then Mr. Vernal continues --
19 we're still on page 36.

20 "There have been a few important decisions
21 we have already made or tentatively made that 22 I wanted folks to be aware of.

23 "1, we're going to dramatically reduce the 24 data we expose via the read API. In 25 particular, we are going to change friends.get

1 to only return friends that are also using the
2 app.

3 "We are going to introduce a paid
4 invitations product that let users invite
5 other users to their app.

6 "We are going to remove the ability to 7 grant friend data via GDP. When a user
8 TOSes" --

9 Is that Terms of Service?

10 A. TOS, like installs.

11 Q. -- installs --

12 "... TOSes an app, they can grant access
13 to their own data. Since friends.get will 14 only return other TOSed users' data, that 15 means we no longer need the friends'
16 permissions.

17 "We are going to remove/whitelist access
18 to the Stream APIs and Search APIs (and 19 potentially other APIs that might leak the 20 friend graph, like reading all notifications
21 or the inbox)."

22 And then No. 2:

23 "We are going to limit the ability for 24 competitive networks to use our platform
25 without a normal deal in place."

1 And No. 3:

2 "We are going to require that all platform
3 partners agree to data reciprocity. If you
4 access a certain type of data (e.g., music
5 listens), you must allow the user to publish
6 back that same kind of data. Users must be 7 able to easily turn this on both within your
8 own app as well as from Facebook (via action
9 importers)."

10 And then he apologizes for the length of this 11 note.

12 Did I read that more or less correctly?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. So the read API that he refers to is the way
15 that developers could access information that people
16 upload to Facebook, like birthdays and photos, in their 17 own apps and subject to privacy settings. Right?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Compound.

19 THE WITNESS: The read API would enable you to 20 read data from Facebook.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. And when Mr. Vernal says that they're going to 23 change friends.get to only return friends using the 24 app, does that mean that a user can no longer grant a 25 developer other than Facebook permission to access the

1 identities of all of the users' Facebook friends?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
3 document.

4 THE WITNESS: What it means precisely here is,
5 when you make a call to Facebook using -- friends.get 6 is a call that you make that we would only return your 7 in-app friends.

8 BY MR. GODKIN:

9 Q. And you defined that for me earlier this 10 morning.

11 A. Correct.

12 Q. And so that means that if I'm using a
13 developer's app, I can only see in the app my friends
14 who also downloaded the app.

15 A. And any other people who use the app,
16 depending on the app's experience.

17 Q. All right. To your understanding, does that 18 mean that it will make it less likely for an app to 19 grow?

20 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope and 21 calls for speculation, lacks foundation, and
22 argumentative.

23 THE WITNESS: I don't believe so, because it's 24 not a distribution channel that's going away, because 25 friend data can only be displayed again back to that

1 Q. On April 30th, 2015, with the launch of 2 Graph API 2.0, did Facebook reduce the data exposed via
3 the read API?

4 MS. MILLER: Objection. Graph API Version 2
5 was released in 2014.

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. All right. Just so the record is clear, with 8 the launch of Graph API 2.0, did Facebook implement
9 reducing the data exposed via the read API?

10 A. Yes, we did.

11 Q. Did Facebook remove the friends permissions?

12 A. Yes, we did.

13 Q. Did Facebook remove the stream API?

14 A. Yes, we did.

15 Q. In Exhibit 15, does Mr. Vernal use the word
16 "privacy" ever to discuss -- describe these changes to 17 the Facebook Platform?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. The document speaks
19 for itself.

20 THE WITNESS: No. He's talking about the 21 Platform business model.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. Did he use the word "trust" ever?

24 MS. MILLER: Same objection.

25 THE WITNESS: No. Again, it -- this is about

1 the Platform business model.

2 BY MR. GODKIN:

3 Q. Did he use the phrase "user experience" at
4 all?

5 MS. MILLER: Objection. The document speaks
6 for itself.

7 THE WITNESS: Not those precise words, no.

8 BY MR. GODKIN:

9 Q. Does he use the words "user control" ever?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Document speaks for
11 itself.

12 THE WITNESS: No. Again, he's -- he's really 13 not talking about that piece of the changes. He's 14 talking about the Platform business model, primarily.

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. Does he refer at all to apps or app developers
17 engaging in bad behavior or displaying inappropriate
18 content or spamming users as the justifications?

19 MS. MILLER: Objection. Document speaks for
20 itself.

21 THE WITNESS: That's not the purpose of this
22 post. Like, again, this is about the Platform business
23 model.

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. If you turn back to page 35 of Exhibit 15,

1 Q. What about email?

2 A. We still have email.

3 Q. What about publish stream?

4 A. We -- that's -- there's a new name for it.

5 It's called publish actions. But it allows you to post
6 to Facebook from your app. And that's still available.

7 Q. So do you have any reason to believe that
8 when -- is it Mr. Ling Bao or Ms.?

9 A. Mr.

10 Q. When Mr. Ling Bao described friends' birthday
11 and friends' photos as among the top 10 most popularly
12 requested permissions, that he was mistaken in that 13 regard?

14 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation and 15 outside the scope.

16 THE WITNESS: I don't know.

17 MS. MILLER: This is talking about GDP.

18 MR. GODKIN: All right. Let's mark as the 19 next exhibit 19.

20 (Deposition Exhibit 19 was marked for
21 identification.)

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. Exhibit 19 is a document produced by Facebook
24 with the Bates number 00534487. And it's a March 2013
25 email string among Eddie O'Neil, Doug Purdy, and

1 with Monica, Justin, Ime, with no 6 months'
2 backward compatibility support."

3 Did I read that correctly?

4 A. You did.

5 Q. And then if you turn to -- back to page 11,
6 there's a response by Neha Jogani.

7 Do you see that?

8 A. I do.

9 Q. And Neha, is that a man or a woman?

10 A. Woman.

11 Q. She is one of the custodians. Right?

12 A. Correct.

13 Q. She says, quote, "This is going to cause
14 confusion/unwanted press around some of our 15 payments/ecommerce products and our existing competing
16 products like Lee mentioned."

17 Did I read that correctly?

18 A. You did.

19 Q. And then Ime responds on -- now we're on Bates
20 number -810, one page back.

21 I'm getting lost. Sorry. Let me withdraw
22 that last question.

23 Neha Jogani -- strike that, I'm sorry. It's 24 obviously almost time for lunch.

25 Ime responds on page 10: "From my

1 recollection, we discussed this integration at length
2 and inevitably approved it during a time when we" --
3 and then brackets, "Platform XFN" -- do you know what 4 "XFN" stands for?

5 A. Quest functional team, yeah.

6 Q. -- "were trying to clearly define
7 'reciprocity' and the 'replication' of 8 Facebook core functionality. The approval of 9 this integration was evaluated under the 10 latter of those definitions and the conclusion
11 was that it didn't create" -- "didn't equate,
12 'Facebook core functionality.' The litmus
13 test for core functionality at that time
14 included messenger apps, search, and news
15 feed-like products. Essentially, we were 16 trying to balance the public profession --
17 perception of Facebook as an open versus 18 closed platform."

19 And then she goes on:

20 "That was months ago, and we have likely
21 made progress on Gifts and Payments 3.0. So 22 if we need to consider broadening the scope of 23 our 'core functionality' litmus test to 24 include things like e-commerce integrations
25 (like this Amazon launch or what eBay and

1 StubHub did with Group Gifting) I agree with
2 Lee, we should get the right folks in a room,
3 discuss the impact of these integrations,
4 discuss our options, and figure out next
5 steps."

6 Did I read that correctly?

7 A. You did.

8 Q. And then on the top of Bates -10, there's an 9 email response from Justin Osafsky.

10 Do you see that?

11 A. Yes.

12 Q. And he replies:

13 "I agree that it makes sense to discuss
14 this live rather than over email. Let's make 15 sure to include Monica. As Ime notes, the 16 decision we reached in the prior meeting with 17 Lee, Doug, et al. was to not extend the 18 definition of 'replicating core functionality'
19 chose quote (policy)" --

20 Is that 1.10, or I.10?

21 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for
22 speculation, lacks --

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. If you know.

25 MS. MILLER: -- foundation.

1 THE WITNESS: I can't remember our numbering
2 at the time.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. All right.

5 "... to gifting. The rationale was that,
6 1, the upcoming Platform 3.0 changes will
7 address the primary concerns; and 2, we run
8 the risk of creating a substantial chilling
9 effect on the developer ecosystem if we begin
10 extending I.10 beyond the use cases which Ime
11 articulates below."

12 Did I read that correctly?

13 A. You did.

14 Q. What was Justin Osafsky's title at the time of 15 this email in June of 2013?

16 A. I'm not sure of his precise title, but he 17 would -- he was a very senior platform -- partnerships.

18 Q. All right. Do you know who he reported to at 19 this time?

20 A. I believe Dan Rose.

21 Q. And he refers to primary concerns. Do you see
22 that?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. What -- to your knowledge, what are the 25 primary concerns he was referring to?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
2 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

3 THE WITNESS: I don't know.

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Was it Amazon competing with Facebook?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
7 Lacks foundation. Calls for speculation.

8 THE WITNESS: No, I don't believe so.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. But in any event, he says the Platform 3.0
11 changes are going to address the primary concerns.
12 Correct?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. And was Platform -- I think as we discussed
15 earlier, Platform 3.0 was the same as the Graph API
16 2.0; just an internal term for it?

17 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
18 witness's testimony.

19 THE WITNESS: He is referring to the 20 announcement in two thousand -- in April 2014 where we 21 launched v2 of the platform.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. And that included the restrictions to the 24 friends permissions, friends.get, non-app friends, and 25 the other data that was removed from the Facebook

1 public platform. Correct?

2 A. Correct -- oh, sorry.

3 MS. MILLER: It's fine.

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Do you understand Mr. Osafsky's email here as 6 saying that -- or implying that the Graph API 2/0 is 7 going to hurt Amazon's ability to compete with Facebook
8 on gifting products?

9 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
10 Lacks foundation. Calls for speculation.

11 THE WITNESS: No. It's more of the fact that 12 what they're discussing right now is a technical -- 13 will be a technically -- a moot point.

14 So I -- you know, it says in this email,
15 policy approved, the Amazon gift app, which is me,
16 because it isn't a competitive app, because we don't 17 view that kind of app as a competitive app. Although I
18 acknowledge that there was Jackie's comment, but that's 19 not the policy person for Facebook.

20 So he's just basically saying that this is a 21 moot point. The product won't enable that. Not that 22 they're a competitive app.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. And then Jackie responded on page -- the first
25 page of Exhibit 23, under Item No. 2, "Functionality."

1 Do you see that?

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. And she says, quote:

4 "Platform will be pushing a functional
5 change to friend.get APIs around October,
6 which will limit Amazon's ability to read
7 friend data (including birthdays) to only
8 friends connected to that app. This should
9 significantly stymie Amazon's ability to grow
10 the gifting app beyond users immediately
11 connected."

12 Did I read that correctly?

13 A. You did.

14 MR. GODKIN: Let me ask the reporter to mark
15 the next exhibit, No. 24.

16 (Deposition Exhibit 24 was marked for
17 identification.)

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. Exhibit 24 is a document produced by Facebook
20 with Bates numbers 00433791 through -799. And it's an 21 August 2013 chat string involving Mike Vernal, Doug
22 Purdy, and others, discussing Platform 3.0 changes.

23 And --

24 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
25 document.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. Did you attend a meeting involving Mr. Vernal
3 and Mr. Zuckerberg around August 23rd of 2013?

4 A. I did not.

5 Q. Did any of the other custodians attend this 6 meeting with Mr. Vernal and Mr. Zuckerberg at that
7 time?

8 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
9 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

10 THE WITNESS: Other than Vernal, I do not.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. And Zuckerberg. Right?

13 A. Right. He's -- but Zuck is not a custodian.

14 Q. Right, okay. Thank you.

15 Can you -- do you have any information as to 16 who attended that meeting other than Mr. Vernal and 17 Mr. Zuckerberg?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

19 THE WITNESS: Not without speculating.

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Then he goes on -- Mr. Vernal goes on a little 22 bit further down on page -93. There's an entry that 23 says, "Deprecated: Majority of the API surface."

24 Do you see that?

25 A. I do.

1 Q. What does the word "deprecated" mean?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for
3 speculation. Lacks foundation.

4 BY MR. GODKIN:

5 Q. Do you know what it means?

6 A. I know that it can have multiple meanings,
7 depending on who says it.

8 Q. Do you know what Mr. Vernal meant here when he 9 wrote "deprecated"?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

11 THE WITNESS: I believe so. But again, I'd be 12 speculating.

13 BY MR. GODKIN:

14 Q. Okay. What's your -- do you have a good-faith
15 belief of what you think it means?

16 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

17 THE WITNESS: I do. I believe it means the 18 changes as discussed in previous conversations.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. Previous conversations that you've testified
21 about today already?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. And what does he mean, to your knowledge, when 24 he says "majority of the API surface"?

25 A. It basically means those -- those endpoints

1 Q. I -- you're right. I did do that.

2 But the ones that I did read, did I read them
3 correctly?

4 A. I think you should probably read them again.
5 Otherwise, it doesn't provide the right context.

6 Q. All right. I'll read the whole thing again.
7 We're starting on page 81. Purdy says:

8 "That is sharing only. If we are being
9 honest about it. And if we are just talking
10 about the existing Platform, not Parse. Javi
11 hates that we even give profile pics to 12 competitive apps. Mike and I were discussing
13 a 'restricted' level that is just dialogues
14 and plug-ins. That is a core that anyone can 15 use. It leaks nothing."

16 Then Ilya says:

17 "Meaning no login at all?"

18 And Purdy says:

19 "Correct. If we are going to be honest
20 that is where this should land in the limit.
21 No user data given to competitors. Now I am
22 not including Parse here. Of course I think 23 this is worth a discussion, as I want to 24 really clarify this case. Mike and Zuck
25 should weigh in. But the truth is that we are

1 going to be under pressure to pull more and
2 more users data from competitors over time."

3 Did I now read it correctly?

4 A. You did.

5 Q. Thank you. And when Mr. Purdy refers to Javi,
6 that's the same Javi that we talked about earlier,
7 Mr. -- is it Olivian?

8 A. Yes.

9 Q. And he's the one that reports directly to 10 Mark Zuckerberg?

11 A. Correct.

12 Q. And when he says -- when Purdy says that he 13 was discussing a restricted level with Mike, is that 14 Mike Vernal? On page -81?

15 A. Yes.

16 Q. And then Purdy says that Mike and Zuck should 17 weigh in. And that's Mr. Zuckerberg and Mr. Vernal.
18 Correct?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. When he -- when Mr. Purdy says the truth is 21 that we are going to be under pressure to pull more and 22 more user data from competitors over time, what do you
23 understand that to mean?

24 A. It means we -- like the Platform XFN, people
25 who work on Platform -- well, I mean, I shouldn't try

1 to speculate for Doug. But in the context of this
2 conversation -- I don't know.

3 Q. Okay. And did -- I may have already asked
4 you, but did -- at this time, did Purdy report to Mike
5 Vernal?

6 A. I can't remember.

7 Q. And Mike Vernal either reported to Zuckerberg
8 or to Sam. Right?

9 A. Correct.

10 Q. And then Mr. Sukhar responds, and we're still 11 on page 82:

12 "Yeah, that makes sense. I think we
13 should have a crisp story re competitive apps
14 while we're an at this whole thing, even 15 defining the 'restricted' set and being up
16 front about it. ('This is what you get when 17 we put you in jail ...') is better than the 18 status quo."

19 Did I read that correctly?

20 A. You did.

21 Q. And then at the bottom of page -82, Mr. Vernal
22 starts talking. Is that right?

23 A. He does.

24 Q. And at the top of page -83, he refers to photo
25 and video tags.

1 Do you see that?

2 A. Almost. I could.

3 Q. And he goes on, "This is all basically a
4 photos team question. My recommendation would be to 5 kill all non-profile pic photos."

6 Did I read that correctly?

7 A. You did.

8 Q. And by "kill all non-profile pic photos," do
9 you understand that he was meaning to remove developer
10 access via Graph API to all of the non-profile pic
11 photos?

12 A. No. I mean, this document seems like they're 13 just talking about sharing, which is, like, a subset of 14 the platform product. So that -- like not about friend
15 endpoints. This is a different conversation. I know
16 Platform can be complex.

17 So this says photo and video tags, which 18 should be the tagging -- ability to tags photos via the 19 product. So this is about writing into the graph.

20 So when I see him say "my recommendation would 21 be to kill," and "this is basically a photos team
22 question," is, the platform team doesn't have to commit
23 to supporting this from an engineering standpoint.
24 Let's ask the photos team.

25 Q. Okay. Is it fair to say that the people

1 involved in this discussion are seeking guidance from
2 Mr. Zuckerberg on these topics?

3 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for
4 speculation, lacks foundation, and outside the scope.

5 THE WITNESS: I'd say -- I don't construe this 6 as guidance as being the right word. I -- because
7 that's not how I understand how we presented those kind
8 of product changes.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. Well, Mr. Purdy says, "Mike and Zuck should 11 weigh in." Correct?

12 A. Right. But it's our standard practice to 13 provide notice to the -- what we want to do, the 14 changes we want to make to the platform. And if it's a 15 change, then you would, you know, let -- you definitely
16 aren't going to make these changes without letting them
17 know. And, you know, and then Mike's on this thread.

18 So I view this more as like a -- basically 19 what I said. Is not guidance, but letting them know.

20 Q. Okay.

21 MS. MILLER: Is this a good time to take a
22 break for lunch?

23 MR. GODKIN: Yeah, I guess we can do it now.
24 So let's go off the record.

25 (Lunch recess from 12:59 P.M. to 1:52 P.M.)

1 Mr. Koumouzelis means by a nonstandard contract?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

3 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

4 THE WITNESS: I don't know. But to take a
5 reasonable guess per your previous guidance, I'm sure
6 it's just not -- it's just anything outside of the 7 standard agreement, which is compliance with Facebook
8 Platform policy, including any of the terms
9 incorporated in there.

10 BY MR. GODKIN:

11 Q. Could a nonstandard contract include a 12 contract that gives a developer access to data that's 13 not available in public Graph APIs?

14 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,
15 calls for speculation, lacks foundation, vague as to
16 time.

17 THE WITNESS: Potentially it could.

18 BY MR. GODKIN:

19 Q. And then he also uses the phrase "strategic 20 relationship."

21 Do you see that?

22 A. I do.

23 Q. And what is your understanding of what he 24 means by "strategic relationship"?

25 MS. MILLER: Outside the scope, calls for

1 speculation, and lacks foundation.

2 THE WITNESS: These are -- these would be
3 Facebook -- I believe, not knowing what's in his brain,
4 but I believe these would be just platform -- people
5 that our platform partnerships people had a partnership
6 relationship with.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. Would they sometimes include developers who 9 are purchasing advertising sold by Facebook?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
11 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

12 THE WITNESS: I don't --

13 MS. MILLER: Also vague.

14 THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don't know. I would
15 presume -- I would presume so, given the value it
16 brings them.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. Let me mark as the next exhibit, No. 31.

19 (Deposition Exhibit 31 was marked for
20 identification.)

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. Exhibit 31 is a Facebook document with the 23 Bates numbers 00061365 through -369. And it's an 24 August -- strike that.

25 It's an August and September string, 2013

1 sharing photos and video with people that
2 don't necessarily use the app. Us removing
3 full access to the friends list would require
4 significant changes from these developers.
5 Recommendation is: Remove access."

6 Did I read that correctly?

7 A. You did.

8 Q. And then if you turn back to page 67.
9 Mr. Archibong writes in his email, under No. 2,
10 "Lifestyle," he says:

11 "To make decisions on what we
12 strategically should/shouldn't support, do you
13 feel like we have a strong grip on the 14 identity team's product focus and direction?
15 You might have been able to bridge that gap in 16 the last couple of weeks. But if you haven't,
17 we should find time with Sam or Matt soon. I
18 think clear understanding from them is 19 critical to make the right decisions here."

20 Did I read that correctly?

21 A. You did.

22 Q. Do you have an understanding of what types of 23 apps are classified as lifestyle apps?

24 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,
25 calls for speculation, and lacks foundation.

1 THE WITNESS: No, I don't. I think there
2 could be many definitions.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. But Mr. Archibong recommends getting the 5 impact of the -- the identity team's import on that.
6 Correct?

7 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
8 document. Outside the scope. Calls for speculation.

9 THE WITNESS: He's -- he's asking to get the
10 identity team's product focus and direction.

11 BY MR. GODKIN:

12 Q. Who ran the identity team at the time of this 13 email, August of 2013?

14 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

15 THE WITNESS: Depends on what you mean by who 16 "ran." But I believe it was under Sam's product org.

17 BY MR. GODKIN:

18 Q. Sam Lessin?

19 A. Correct.

20 Q. And who is Matt? It says Sam or Matt. Who is 21 Matt?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
23 Calls for speculation.

24 THE WITNESS: I'm speculating, but I'm quite
25 sure that's Matt Wyndowe. I could be wrong.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. That's Wyndowe, with a W-Y-N-D-O-W-E?

3 A. Yes.

4 Q. And then if you turn back to page -66 at the 5 top there's an email from Sam Lessin to Ime on August
6 2th.

7 Do you see that?

8 A. I do.

9 Q. And he says, "My gut is pretty strongly that 10 we should shut down access to friends on lifestyle apps
11 because we are ultimately competitive with all of them
12 and they leak data."

13 Did I read that correctly?

14 A. You did.

15 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark as Exhibit 32 the next
16 document.

17 (Deposition Exhibit 32 was marked for
18 identification.)

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. Exhibit 32 is a Facebook document with the 21 Bates number 00473314 through -15. Let me know when 22 you've had a chance to take a look at it.

23 A. (Examining document.) Okay.

24 Q. Exhibit 32 is an August 2013 email string
25 involving Mr. Vernal, Mr. Purdy, Mr. Daniels,

1 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark as the next exhibit
2 this document.

3 (Deposition Exhibit 36 was marked for
4 identification.)

5 BY MR. GODKIN:

6 Q. Exhibit 36 is a Facebook document Bates
7 numbers 00061249 through -252. And it's an email
8 string in September of 2013, among KP and 9 Mr. Archibong.

10 Let me know when you've had a chance to review
11 it.

12 A. (Examining document.)

13 Okay. You reminded me about my jury duty.

14 Q. So if you turn to page -51, there's an email
15 in the middle there from KP on September 18th.

16 Do you see that?

17 A. Yes.

18 Q. And he references talking to dev ops and 19 Allison tomorrow morning.

20 Is that you, Allison Hendrix?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. And the key points that he writes are: "1,
23 find out whether other apps" -- "find out what other 24 apps like Refresh are out there that we don't want to 25 share data with and figure out if they spend on NEKO."

1 And did you tell me what NEKO stood for 2 before?

3 A. Those -- yes. It's our app-install ads
4 product.

5 Q. Does it actually stand for something, or is 6 that just what it's called?

7 A. I don't remember.

8 Q. Okay. And then part of No. 1:

9 "Communicate in one go to all apps that 10 don't spend that those permission will be 11 revoked. Communicate to the rest that they 12 need to spend on NEKO at least $250 a year to 13 maintain access to the data. Review future
14 submissions and reject/approve as per the 15 requirements above. Update our policies if 16 need be."

17 And then -- is that "comms"? Is that 18 communications?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. "PR plan if number of apps affected is 21 significant."

22 Do you know how many of the Facebook apps were 23 in a position to pay $250,000 a year to Facebook for 24 advertising?

25 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.

1 ever our platform policies, which would require
2 additional this app or requiring it to no longer use
3 friend information that way.

4 The other one is an email app. I don't know
5 which one he's referring to. I don't see him using the 6 words "irretrievably broken" with respect to that app.

7 But yeah, this just -- when I read this, it
8 just shows he didn't know our platform terms.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. And immediately above his post on page 94,
11 there's a post by a Dan Rose.

12 Was he a Facebook employee?

13 A. Yes.

14 Q. And he says, "I'm worried about this too.
15 Would we whitelist these apps"?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. And then Mr. Archibong responds, and that's on 18 page 93, starting with, "One suggestion would be to 19 categorize these implementations as contact
20 implementations."

21 Do you see that?

22 A. I do.

23 Q. And then he references an app called Xobni --
24 Xobni? Do you see that?

25 A. Yes.

1 Q. X-O-B-N-I. And he says product, including
2 Mark, wanted to shut it off.

3 Do you see that?

4 A. I do.

5 Q. Is that Mark Zuckerberg?

6 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
7 calls for speculation. Beyond the scope.

8 BY MR. GODKIN:

9 Q. You can answer?

10 A. I don't know. I assume so.

11 Q. Was Xobni -- are you familiar with the Xobni
12 app?

13 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.

14 THE WITNESS: No.

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. At the time of this email, September 2012, was 17 Mr. Cox still the chief product officer who oversaw the 18 product team at Facebook?

19 A. I wasn't -- I'm not sure if Sam and Chris had 20 equal responsibilities in product rolling up to Mark,
21 but Chris was a -- a product -- like basically a head
22 of product. I just don't think -- I think Sam also had 23 a head of product kind of role as well.

24 Q. And just so the record's clear, Chris is Chris
25 Cox, and Sam is Sam Lessin?

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. Did you have any discussions with
3 Mr. Zuckerberg or Mr. Cox in September of 2013 about 4 shutting off data access to Xobni?

5 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
6 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

7 THE WITNESS: I don't recall. But if there is 8 an email out there where I said to disable it, it's 9 because contact apps like this are not allowed on our
10 platform. Even right now with the current in-app
11 friend list, you cannot use data that way, because it
12 exposes that friend information to people other than 13 myself when I log into the app.

14 So I don't know, for example, if Mark wants it
15 shut off because it's against our terms.

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. We'd have to ask him to find out. Correct?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
19 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Correct?

22 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

23 THE WITNESS: I don't know what Mark's
24 thinking, but it's definitely not relevant to whether 25 we remove the friend list.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. And then at the top of page 93, there is
3 some -- an email from Aaron Bernstein.

4 Do you see that?

5 A. I do.

6 Q. And he was a Facebook employee at the time?

7 A. Yes.

8 Q. Do you know what product team he was on at the
9 time?

10 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.

11 THE WITNESS: I believe mobile.

12 BY MR. GODKIN:

13 Q. And do you know who he reported to?

14 MS. MILLER: Same objection.

15 THE WITNESS: I can't remember.

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. And he says, "A bit more background -- about 6
18 months ago, I spun up an XFN group to investigate
19 building a standalone contacts app Sam, Javi, and 20 others were part of it."

21 Do you see that?

22 A. Yes.

23 Q. And then he says, in No. 2:

24 "Javi is interested in building a
25 standalone contacts app as he sees it as a

1 good way to fight the messaging battle (get
2 ahead of the point of where the user decides
3 which service to use to send messages) and Sam
4 is supportive of this parallel path but the 5 lack of resources is gating them for now."

6 Did I read that correctly?

7 A. No.

8 Q. What did I do wrong?

9 A. You said "is gating them for now."

10 Q. It says --

11 A. "It the gating item."

12 Q. Thank you for correcting me.

13 And again, Javi is Mr. Oliven?

14 A. Yes.

15 Q. And Sam is Lessin?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. Do you know whether Xobni was ever whitelisted
18 or blacklisted for any private Facebook APIs?

19 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
20 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

21 THE WITNESS: No. I don't know.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. Are you aware that Xobni was a San Francisco
24 startup that Bill Gates once described as the next
25 generation of social networking?

1 MS. MILLER: Same objection.

2 THE WITNESS: No.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. Are you aware that Xobni was purchased by 5 Yahoo! about the time of the discussions in Exhibit 37?

6 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

7 THE WITNESS: No.

8 MR. GODKIN: All right. Let's mark as the
9 next exhibit, 38, this document.

10 (Deposition Exhibit 38 was marked for
11 identification.)

12 BY MR. GODKIN:

13 Q. Exhibit 38 is a Facebook document with Bates
14 numbers 00043884 through -889. This appears to be a 15 Private Extended API Addendum. Is that correct?

16 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
17 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

18 THE WITNESS: Yes. This is the private -- a 19 Private Extended API Addendum, with an exhibit
20 attached.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. And it -- it's not signed. Correct?

23 A. Right. There's no stamp on it.

24 Q. And it appears to be -- the parties to this 25 agreement are Facebook and Nuance Communications, Inc.

1 Correct?

2 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
3 lacks foundation, and beyond the scope.

4 THE WITNESS: It appears to be a potential
5 agreement as between --

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. And the -- as between what? Those two 8 parties?

9 A. The name of the companies that are listed at 10 the very end.

11 Q. And is this a form of a Facebook agreement?

12 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

13 THE WITNESS: I don't know what you mean by 14 "form."

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 Q. Well, it says -- look at the first page at the 17 top right-hand. It says "Private Extended API
18 addendum," and then in parentheses "(v.01.29.20.15)."

19 Do you know whether this is a form of a 20 Private Extended API Addendum that was used by Facebook
21 as of that date, January 2th, 2015?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope,
23 calls for speculation, lacks foundation.

24 THE WITNESS: It appears to be one of our just 25 standard forms, yes.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. And if you turn to the second page,
3 paragraph no. 4, which is entitled "Access to the 4 Private Extended APIs," do you see that?

5 A. Say that again?

6 Q. The second page of Exhibit --

7 A. Okay, got it.

8 Q. -- 38, paragraph 4, is entitled "Access to the 9 Private Extended APIs." Correct?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. And the last sentence of that says, "The 12 Private Extended APIs and the Private Extended API
13 guidelines will be deemed to be a part of the platform
14 and the platform policies respectively for purposes of 15 the agreement." Correct?

16 A. Correct.

17 Q. Do you know -- strike that.

18 Turn now to the next page, -86, which is 19 Exhibit A, with some definitions. Correct?

20 A. Yes.

21 Q. And one of them is Private Extended APIs. And 22 it states:

23 "means a set of APIs and services provided
24 by Facebook to Developer that enables
25 Developer to retrieve data or functionality

1 relating to Facebook that is not generally
2 available under platform, which may include
3 persistent authentication, photo upload, video
4 upload, messaging and phone book
5 connectivity."

6 Did I read that correctly?

7 A. You did.

8 Q. Do you know roughly how many executed Private 9 Extended API Addendum agreements Facebook has entered 10 into?

11 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
12 Vague as to time. Calls for speculation. Lacks
13 foundation.

14 BY MR. GODKIN:

15 Q. As of today.

16 A. No.

17 Q. Do you know the answer to that question as of 18 any time period?

19 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

20 THE WITNESS: I don't track the specific 21 number, but I can tell you that there's definitely 22 many, many, many.

23 BY MR. GODKIN:

24 Q. Okay. Like more than a hundred?

25 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. Exhibit 41 is a Facebook document with Bates
3 numbers 00427400 through -406. It's dated in 4 October 2013. And it involves Jackie Chang and other
5 Facebook employees, regarding the Royal Bank of Canada.

6 Let me know when you've had a chance to review
7 it.

8 A. (Examining document.) Okay.

9 Q. So if you go to the page with -405, -406 at 10 the bottom? It's the last 2 pages.

11 Do you have that in front of you?

12 A. I do.

13 Q. And this series of emails is concerning the 14 effect of the Platform 3.0 changes on the Royal Bank of 15 Canada.

16 Is that right? Do I understand that
17 correctly?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Misstates the
19 document. Outside the scope.

20 THE WITNESS: What did you say again? I'm
21 sorry.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. The topic of these emails is the effect of the 24 Platform 3.0 changes on the Royal Bank of Canada.

25 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

1 THE WITNESS: I read it more narrowly: Just
2 the effect of the friend list and the messages API. It
3 seems -- it seems more largely about whether they're
4 allowed to have access to the messages API; and if so,
5 who gave permission. And then the impact thereof on 6 the friend list piece.

7 BY MR. GODKIN:

8 Q. All right. And then -- so that's Sachin
9 Monga, is that a person who works for Facebook but 10 worked with the Royal Bank of Canada?

11 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

12 THE WITNESS: Yes, Sachin worked for Facebook.
13 I don't know if he's still at the company. And it
14 appears as though this is a company that he's helping 15 support.

16 BY MR. GODKIN:

17 Q. And then Jackie Chang responds to his email --
18 this is the top of page 405 -- "Did they sign an 19 extended API agreement when you with whitelisted them
20 for this API?"

21 Do you see that?

22 A. I do.

23 Q. And "who internally gave you approval to 24 extend them whitelist access? Can you send me email or 25 personal link from the Platform Whitelist Approval

1 group?"

2 Do you see that?

3 A. I do.

4 Q. And then Jackie asks, "Is there budget tied 5 specifically to this integration? How much?"

6 Do you see that?

7 A. I do.

8 Q. And then Mr. -- is it Mr. Monga? Mister.
9 Right? Not --

10 A. It's a man, yes.

11 Q. -- responds on -404, "There is budget" -- this 12 is at the bottom of the page --

13 "There is budget tied specifically to this 14 app update (all mobile app install ads to 15 existing RBC customers via a custom
16 audiences). I believe it will be one of the 17 biggest NEKO campaigns ever run in Canada."

18 Do you see that?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And then if you turn back to page -402.

21 That's Jackie Chang responding, developers are allowed
22 to develop under the current framework. We ask that no
23 discussion of PS with partners until messaging is fully 24 prepared, et cetera.

25 And "PS" is short for Platform Simplification?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
2 calls for speculation.

3 BY MR. GODKIN:

4 Q. Correct?

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. And then Simon Cross weighs in at the top
7 of -402 to Jackie Chang and Mr. Monga, "Do we have a
8 contract with them that covers the use of the messaging
9 API? As that's already a private API, it shouldn't be 10 affected by PS12N." Correct?

11 A. Yes.

12 Q. And then at the bottom, he says, "Let's ensure 13 we have a contact with them which sets us up to keep 14 them on our whitelist post Platform Simplification."

15 Do you think that means contract as opposed to 16 contact?

17 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
18 beyond the scope, calls for speculation.

19 THE WITNESS: I don't know. You could read it
20 either way.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. Okay. And then if you turn to page -401 --
23 strike that -- page -400, at the bottom of the page
24 there's an email from Bryan Hurren.

25 Do you see that?

1 A. Yes.

2 Q. And on the next page, he says:

3 "From a legal perspective, they need an
4 extended API agreement, as we used with 5 Netflix, which governs use going forward and 6 should provide us the freedom to make
7 changes -- make the changes that Simon
8 mentions below without being too explicit."

9 Do you see that?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Do you know whether the Royal Bank of Canada
12 has whitelisted access to friends data after
13 April 30th, 2015?

14 A. I don't know when their access was terminated,
15 because, like I said earlier, there was a rollout,
16 because you can't just do it all at once. But they do
17 not have access now.

18 Q. And you don't know when?

19 A. I --

20 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.

21 THE WITNESS: I don't know.

22 BY MR. GODKIN:

23 Q. I'm trying to skip some stuff here.

24 MS. MILLER: Actually, can we take a break?

25 MR. GODKIN: Sure.

1 (Recess from 4:04 P.M. to 4:13 P.M.)

2 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark as the next exhibit
3 this document.

4 (Deposition Exhibit 42 was marked for
5 identification.)

6 BY MR. GODKIN:

7 Q. So Exhibit 42 is a Facebook document with the 8 Bates numbers 00047134 to -140. And it is an email
9 string dated in January of 2015 involving Eddie O'Neil
10 and KP and others, involving -- regarding Tinder.

11 And let me know when you've had a chance to 12 review it.

13 A. (Examining document.) Okay. I am done.

14 Q. Okay. If you go up to the back page of this 15 document, page 40, there's -- appears to be an internal 16 Tinder email.

17 Do you see that? Ryan Ogle to Sean Rad and 18 others?

19 A. Yes.

20 Q. And do you know that Sean Rad is the CEO of 21 Tinder?

22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.

23 THE WITNESS: Yes, I would -- I am aware of 24 that. Or I know that he has been. I haven't checked
25 recently.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. So this email string starts with Ryan Ogle of 3 Tinder stating that "the issue with missing friends is 4 the fact that Facebook is only giving us back friends
5 who are Tinder users. The 2.0 restriction."

6 Do you understand that he's referring to the 7 Graph API 2.0 changes that were implemented by Facebook
8 on April 30th, 2014?

9 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
10 Lacks foundation. Calls for speculation.

11 THE WITNESS: Yes.

12 BY MR. GODKIN:

13 Q. And then Sean Rad writes to KP -- this is the 14 bottom of page 39 -- "Seems like our graph access isn't 15 working and we had no idea. What can we do here?"

16 Do you see that?

17 A. I do.

18 Q. And he writes another email at the top of that 19 page. "We need a way to get a full list of friends for 20 a particular user."

21 Do you see that?

22 A. I do.

23 Q. And then on page 37, Jonathan Badeen of Tinder
24 writes to KP and says:

25 "One of the biggest draws for Tinder for

1 our users is and always has been the
2 accountability that shared friends bring along
3 with it. People feel far more comfortable
4 talking to and meeting those individuals that 5 have a connection. It's even a very real
6 personal safety issue for those who take
7 advantage of the knowledge. Without being
8 able to impart that information to the user,
9 he or she is far less likely to engage the 10 other by choosing to match with them. The 11 full friends list is perhaps the single most 12 important factor relating to Tinder's Facebook
13 login and the reason we have rejected other 14 methods of logging in."

15 Did I read that correctly?

16 MS. MILLER: I'll just reiterate my same
17 objection about the amount of time it's taking to read
18 documents into the record.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. Did I read that correctly?

21 A. You did.

22 Q. And then on the first page of this exhibit,
23 Simon Cross writes to KP, and copying others. And he 24 says: "Eddie, you okay with us whitelisting Tinder for 25 all friends until a few weeks after we've given them

1 the all mutual friends API?"

2 Do you see that?

3 A. I do.

4 Q. And then at the top of that page, Eddie
5 responds, "It's better than one -- better than them, 1,
6 not migrating or, 2, starting an email thread with
7 Mark."

8 Do you see that?

9 A. I do.

10 Q. And do you understand Mark to be Mark
11 Zuckerberg?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation,
13 calls for speculation.

14 THE WITNESS: I believe so.

15 BY MR. GODKIN:

16 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark this as the next
17 exhibit.

18 (Deposition Exhibit 43 was marked for
19 identification.)

20 BY MR. GODKIN:

21 Q. Exhibit 43 continues to relate to the Tinder
22 issue, does it not?

23 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
24 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

25 THE WITNESS: No, it does not.

1 BY MR. GODKIN:

2 Q. If you turn to the last page of this document,
3 Mr. -- or Sean of Tinder writes to KP and introduces
4 him to Sam Yagan, one of Tinder's board members.
5 Correct?

6 A. Yes.

7 Q. And he says, "I think it's worthwhile for you
8 both to connect directly to discuss the Moments
9 trademark"?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. And then at the top of that page, KP writes to 12 Sam, "Please let me know whenever it would be 13 convenient to you" -- "for you to discuss how we can 14 reach a mutually beneficial agreement re the 15 trademark." Correct?

16 A. Yes.

17 Q. And that's the Moments trademark?

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. I don't know. Calls
19 for speculation.

20 THE WITNESS: Yes.

21 BY MR. GODKIN:

22 Q. And then if you turn back to page 25, there's 23 an email from KP to Sam Yagan. And he outlines two 24 options, the first being, "Model 1: Assignment and 25 license back. Tinder assigns all rights and interest

1 in the name and trademark moments to Facebook" -- and
2 I'll stop quoting there. Correct?

3 A. Yes. And thank you.

4 Q. And then on page 24, Sam asks KP:

5 "Without divulging too much, is the 6 product similar to our Moments product? Will
7 it cause confusion? These are basic questions
8 that I don't understand why you aren't more
9 candid in answering. Also, you didn't respond
10 to the other half of my email re
11 compensation."

12 Do you see that?

13 A. I do.

14 Q. And KP responds at the top of that page, "The 15 new app is related to photo sharing. It's meant to 16 allow users to share photos with small groups of close
17 friends."

18 And he's referring to a new Facebook app,
19 correct, called Moments?

20 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.
21 Calls for speculation.

22 THE WITNESS: Potentially called Moments.
23 It's about a new Facebook app.

24 BY MR. GODKIN:

25 Q. Was it eventually released and called Moments?

1 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
2 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

3 THE WITNESS: I can't remember, given our host
4 of properties, but I believe so.

5 BY MR. GODKIN:

6 Q. Do you know when Facebook launched its Moments
7 photo-sharing app?

8 MS. MILLER: Same objections.

9 THE WITNESS: I don't remember.

10 BY MR. GODKIN:

11 Q. And in the same email we were just referring 12 to, KP goes on and talks about the issue of 13 compensation.

14 Do you see that?

15 A. Where is that?

16 Q. Page 24, the email from KP to Sam Yagan, right
17 in the middle of the page.

18 MS. MILLER: Objection. Outside the scope.

19 BY MR. GODKIN:

20 Q. "I'm not sure there was a question about 21 compensation. Apologies."

22 Do you see that?

23 A. I'm not sure there was a question about 24 compensation -- are you asking me about what he's 25 referring to?

1 Q. No. I'm just referring you to that paragraph
2 right now.

3 A. Okay.

4 Q. So you see that paragraph?

5 A. I do.

6 Q. And KP in -- at the end of that paragraph
7 says, "We have developed two new APIs that effectively
8 allow Tinder to maintain parity of the product in the 9 new API world.

10 Do you know what he means by the new API
11 world?

12 MS. MILLER: Objection. Beyond the scope.
13 Calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

14 THE WITNESS: I do. And so I want to clarify
15 my previous response to whether it's about the same
16 issue.

17 It's not about the same issue that was 18 discussed in the previous document we went over, but it
19 does relate to the mutual friends API that we decided 20 to launch to everyone publicly, which does give them
21 parity of product in the new API world, which is the 22 new version of the v2.

23 So this -- what he's talking about in this
24 paragraph is -- is just letting them -- like it's not 25 about -- it's not about us paying for the rights to

1 Moments. Like, when he's talking about parity of
2 product, it's -- when he talks about parity of product,
3 he's talking about the Mutual Friends API, which we did
4 end up deciding to develop after April of 2015, after 5 hearing from developers what we could try to do to help
6 support these good safety use cases and things along
7 those lines.

8 So that new API is v2.

9 BY MR. GODKIN:

10 Q. And the -- the two new APIs that Facebook
11 developed, what are they called?

12 A. I -- I know it's called the Mutual Friends
13 API. I'm forgetting the other one. But I know that 14 they were -- after we announced the changes at f8, we 15 developed a Developer Advisory Board Council, and where 16 we listened, you know, to feedback and discussed -- and 17 we heard from other developers, like, okay, now that 18 these changes are made, what are some good things that 19 we can do to provide developers with support that are 20 not inconsistent with our principle, which is promising
21 people that we will give them control over their data.

22 And so these APIs are consistent with that.
23 They don't give the friend information, but they allow 24 you to create that value add that Tinder was already 25 doing when they had access to the full friend list.

1 This just maintains our promise and commitment
2 to people.

3 Q. Does took provide the Mutual Friends API to 4 everyone?

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. Did you provide it to Six4Three?

7 A. They have access to it if they want it.

8 MR. GODKIN: Let's mark this as the next
9 exhibit.

10 (Deposition Exhibit 44 was marked for
11 identification.)

12 BY MR. GODKIN:

13 Q. Exhibit 44 is a Facebook document with the 14 Bates number 00434425 through -31. And it's a chat
15 string dated in January of 2014 involving Mr. Sukhar, 16 Mr. Vernal, and others, and subject is "Slides for 17 Mark."

18 A. (Examining document.) Okay.

19 Q. And so at the end of this document, on 20 page 30, Eddie O'Neil writes, "Attached is a first cut
21 of slides for Mark."

22 And that's Mark Zuckerberg. Correct?

23 A. Yes.

24 Q. And then there appears to be something
25 attached: Login v4 review with Mark. Is that right?

1 A. Parse is a product for developers. Ilya will
2 kill me right now, because I'm going to oversimplify
3 it.

4 But it's basically a set of tools and services
5 that make developing applications easier. Sure, there
6 may be more to it, but I think that's all that's 7 important for this.

8 Q. From the platform policy and enforcement point
9 of view, what apps does Facebook view as competitive?

10 A. Chat -- any chat applications, messenger
11 applications, and then Twitter and YouTube.

12 Q. With the exception of --

13 A. I should also say, Snapchat. I'm sorry.

14 Q. Thank you. With the exception of those apps
15 that you just mentioned, does the Facebook -- does
16 Facebook enforce its policies differently between apps,
17 whether or not they might be considered competitive or 18 not?

19 A. If you're not one of those -- what we consider 20 competitive, you are treated and subject to the 21 Platform policies.

22 So we had talked about Amazon earlier. That's 23 why, sure, Facebook has a gift product. But when the 24 partnership team comes to me and says, "Hey, Allison,
25 can Amazon use" -- well, you know -- "can Amazon use

1 friends lists or friends" -- this is speaking for when
2 the product was -- prior to v2, "Hey, can they use
3 friend information?"

4 The answer is, "Yes, because that's not a
5 competitive app."

6 Now, if you ask the product manager, Lee at 7 the time, for gifts, whether he views -- his team views
8 that as a competitive app, sure. But that's not the 9 platform's approach. That's not -- that's why you see
10 a lot of, you know, people referencing competitive.
11 But that's not the way we treat it. And we didn't
12 treat anybody any differently. It's just chat
13 messenger. And even now, it's a subset of all of 14 those. But that's only, like, I think 12-ish, and 15 that's only because we haven't built an scalable way to 16 principally enforce that policy.

17 But we're working on that so we can be 18 transparent up front for developers.

19 Q. After April of 2015, did Facebook provide the 20 friends data to developers that provided Facebook with 21 a certain level of ad-related payments?

22 A. No.

23 Q. Does Facebook consider revenue generated by an 24 app at all when it provided developer access to 25 Facebook use data?

1 A. We -- do we consider what?

2 Q. The -- does Facebook consider revenue
3 generated by an app for Facebook at all when providing
4 a developer access to Facebook users' data?

5 A. No. You do not need to pay us for access to 6 our platform.

7 Q. If you spend more money on ads on Facebook, do
8 you get more access to data on Facebook?

9 A. No, you do not. In fact, I -- the 10 compensation thing we reviewed earlier is, I believe,
11 us -- I mean, I shouldn't speculate there.

12 I was thinking, like -- like whether we have 13 budget to help them build what it is they might be 14 building. But we don't pay for people -- we don't 15 charge for access to platform.

16 Q. Did Facebook charge for access to platform
17 before April 2015?

18 A. No.

19 Q. After 2015?

20 A. No.

21 Q. Do any third-party developers still have 22 access to the friends data endpoints?

23 A. Only those developers who built those 24 first-party apps. No -- nobody that's not building a
25 Facebook app for us has access.

1 Q. Did any third-party developers get extensions
2 on access to the friends data after April of 2015?

3 A. On -- yes. And that was, again, because we 4 had to do the rollout. So I would view a rollout as an
5 extension. Not -- so, like, some people view an 6 extension as a request for an extension of time.

7 We voluntarily had to extend that date. Even 8 after -- there are some things, obviously, that aren't
9 foreseeable. But when we get an email or something
10 that says, hey, the platform I've built on, it takes us
11 I think -- I like the Fiat example. It takes us and 12 our developers like a year to make changes. We need
13 more time. Or 2 years, that we accommodated that.

14 So I view that as he, yes, there was a concept
15 of an extension. But there was never the concept of a 16 whitelist -- or there is no whitelist. It's, you got 17 to get off. And they're all off today.

18 Q. Do you recall talking about the photos,
19 events, video, and groups APIs in your prior testimony
20 today?

21 A. Yes.

22 Q. What are those APIs? Well, let me take that 23 back.

24 Are you familiar with those APIs as they
25 existed around the early part of 2014?

1 A. I am. Not at the deep granular level, but I
2 am familiar with those APIs.

3 Q. And what are those APIs?

4 A. So using, like, the events API as an
5 example -- or let's use photos, because we talked a lot
6 about photos.

7 So it can allow you to create a photo album.
8 Like, it can -- if I'm a developer of an app, I can
9 allow people to create photos and then create an album
10 that they can upload to Facebook. I believe there's 11 read and write capability. So I -- so yeah. You can 12 create that album. I think you can fetch albums. I'm 13 not sure.

14 But it's basically also being able to create
15 an event off of Facebook. But it's a Facebook event.

16 So a lot of this stuff is -- there's the 17 Facebook application, contains features and 18 functionality such as groups, events, a section where 19 you can go and find albums. And it lets you off of 20 Facebook create that content within Facebook. And I
21 believe you can fetch the content that the user
22 creates.

23 I believe they're still supported today, but I
24 would need to confirm.

25 Q. Are they related to the friends' users'

1 endpoints?

2 A. No. Absolutely not.

3 Q. All right. Can you turn to Exhibit 4, please?

4 A. I'm here.

5 Q. Do you recall testifying about this document
6 earlier today when Mr. Godkin was asking you questions?

7 A. I do.

8 Q. If you can just refamiliarize yourself with 9 this first email, you -- you state that storing the 10 user's photo beyond 24 hours violates your --
11 Facebook's policies?

12 A. Yes. It did at the time.

13 Q. And what is the date of the email?

14 A. March 5th, 2010.

15 Q. Is that still the policy?

16 A. No. And I believe it was in that year that we 17 changed the policy. I believe it was in 2010 or early 18 '11, but probably '10, where I wrote the new data use
19 policies.

20 So there were two data policies before, one of 21 which is the one I referred to. You can't store or 22 cache data obtained from us for more than 24 hours.

23 And then the other one is, you can never sell
24 or transfer data obtained from us.

25 We changed the policies to allow for storing

1 and caching and allow for transfer subject to certain
2 restrictions.

3 Q. So this was accurate when you wrote -- this
4 email was accurate when you wrote it?

5 A. Absolutely.

6 Q. But it would no longer be accurate today?

7 A. Right. Right -- well, just to qualify my 8 transfer, you never have been able to, and you still 9 cannot, use data obtained from us in an advertising or 10 monetization-related tool set.

11 For example, you can't use data that was 12 obtained from us, even aggregate in anonymous form, as 13 a targeting perimeter for an ad network. So you can't 14 ever, then or now, give data obtained to us to an ad
15 network or a data broker. You can't build profiles.
16 And you -- and you can't -- yeah, you -- that's a
17 summary of that policy.

18 Q. Understood. You can set that aside.

19 And can you grab Exhibit 18, please?

20 A. I am here.

21 Q. Do you recall testifying about this document
22 earlier today? And I can point you to the page that 23 ends in 429159.

24 A. Okay, I'm here.

25 Q. And if you actually go to the page before,

1 there's an email from Ling Bao to a variety of people.

2 A. Yes.

3 Q. And Ling writes in the second point that there
4 are -- that -- this is a list of 10 most popular
5 requested permissions.

6 What do you understand 10 most popular
7 requested permissions to mean within the context of 8 this email?

9 A. What it means is, when a developer decides to 10 use Facebook login, they choose which permissions --
11 for example, the ones listed below -- that they would 12 like to ask a person permission to have access to.

13 Q. And by "person," you mean that apps user?

14 A. Yes. The user clicking on the login button
15 who's granting them permission to, for example, this
16 data.

17 It gives the developer the technical ability
18 to call Facebook for my email, my friend's birthday,
19 for example.

20      Q.  Does it necessarily mean that the developer
21  ever calls any of these -- or uses any of these 22  permissions?

23 A. No. Requesting access and actually using are 24 two different things. So it's very common -- well,
25 I -- I don't want to mischaracterize it.

1 Like, for example, Line, one of our
2 competitors who is restricted from calling
3 friends.get -- before I even restricted them, they had 4 access, but they weren't even using it. So that was my 5 point to the team is, they're not using this. But we 6 restricted them consistent with our approach to chat
7 messenger applications.

8 Also I know there was the 40,000 apps that we 9 found out that were requesting -- that had access to 10 friend information. They were -- certainly were not 11 all calling that information, or -- yeah, they weren't 12 using it. They had access -- they had a technical 13 grant and the ability to do it, but they weren't using
14 it.

15 And some of them -- just to expand, some of 16 them were not -- because they're not using it, and/or 17 it doesn't -- it's not relevant to their experience,
18 they were violating our data use policy and should have 19 never been requesting access to it. Which is another
20 reason behind the login review process, is so we can 21 confirm that you truly are complying with our policy
22 that says you'll use that data in the context of the 23 user's experience in your app.

24 Q. So I just want to back up.

25 It sound like there's three steps. The first

Page 22 1 partners in a conversation trying to identify what 2 are the main priorities. Business priorities and 3 product priorities, for the most part. 4 And when we identify the opportunities or 5 areas where we have a product offering that 6 satisfies those needs, then we proceed to an 7 integration. 8 If, for example, a company is interested 9 in a registration product, we would make them 10 available -- we would make them aware that we have, 11 like, two registration products in Facebook Login 12 and account kit, and we would work with them to 13 ensure that they integrate the product applying 14 best practices each time to ensure that the user 15 experience for people that use those products is 16 actually optimized. 17 Q. And how are these -- is the end result of 18 these conversations some kind of an agreement? 19 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague, compound. 20 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 21 Q. Would you end up with some form of written 22 agreement with them? 23 A. Developers on the Facebook Platform have 24 to accept the Statement of Rights and 25 Responsibilities, and they have to accept by Page 23 1 default the platform policies. That's sufficient 2 enough to proceed into this kind of integration. 3 Q. Is there then no other documentation 4 that's created as a part of your role? 5 A. There may be documents like NDAs to be 6 signed ahead of time, especially if there is 7 something confidential to be discussed. 8 Confidential from both sides. So we have to 9 protect their right and our right to sell 10 information that may not be in the public domain, 11 in particular for products that are still in some 12 kind of beta, B-E-T-A. 13 Q. When you were hired by Facebook in October 14 of 2012, to whom did you report? 15 A. I report to the then head of international 16 partnerships. 17 Q. And what was that person's name? 18 A. Andy Mitchell. 19 Q. And for how long did you report to 20 Mr. Mitchell? 21 A. For 6 months. 22 Q. And then to whom did you report? 23 A. I moved to report to Ime Archibong. 24 I-M-E, A-R-C-H-I-B-O-N-G. 25 Q. And is that a man or a woman?	Page 24 1 A. Oh, it's a man. 2 Q. Okay. And for how long did you report to 3 Mr. Archibong? 4 A. For as long as I have been at Facebook. 5 Since then. So for the last 4 1/2 years. 6 Q. You still report to him? 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. And what was his job title when you began 9 to report to him? 10 A. Product Partnerships Lead. Or Head of 11 Platform Partnerships or something like this. I 12 can't remember. We have changed so many times. 13 Q. So I take it that that is not still his 14 job title. 15 A. No. 16 Q. What is his job title today? 17 A. He's a VP of Platform Partnerships. 18 Q. In 2012, how many people reported to you? 19 A. No one. 20 Q. You were an individual contributor? 21 A. Correct. 22 Q. Did that change at some point in time? 23 A. Yes, it did change. 24 Q. When did that change? 25 A. It changed in either September or October Page 25 1 2015. 2 Q. And how did that change? 3 A. I became a team lead. 4 Q. Is there a common name by which your team 5 goes? 6 A. We used to call ourselves Core App 7 Partnerships, or Platform -- Core App Platform 8 Partnerships. 9 Q. And who are the members of the Core App 10 Partnerships team? 11 A. At that stage, it was Chris Barbour, Jon 12 Park, and Patrick Donohue. D-O-N-O-H-U-E. 13 Q. And the members of that team changed over 14 time? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. How have they changed? 17 A. Jon Park and Patrick now report to another 18 manager. Chris is still with me. But I have since 19 then added a few more people in the team. 20 Q. So who's part of your team now? 21 A. Do you want all the names? It's quite a 22 big team now. 23 Q. Why don't we start with, approximately how 24 many people are there? 25 A. 12, if I'm not mistaken.

Page 26 1 Q. And what is the function of the core app 2 partnerships team? 3 A. I can tell you what was the function back 4 then, or I can tell you what is the current 5 function -- 6 Q. Why don't we start with back then, and 7 then I'll ask a different question. 8 A. So the core app partnerships was 9 effectively looking after the core platform. Core 10 platform was a combination of products we made 11 available to developers, such as Facebook Login, 12 sharing, analytics. At that stage, I think we have 13 a few more products as well available, like 14 plug-ins. 15 Q. And how has the purpose of the team 16 changed since then? 17 A. A couple of ways. We increased the scope 18 of the number of products we support, and we also 19 added programs. 20 Q. What programs? 21 A. We have at this point of time three 22 programs that are specifically designed for 23 developers. One is a global product -- program 24 called FbStart, and this is for early startups, and 25 it's a combination of services, mentorship, and	Page 28 1 Q. Okay. 2 A. I wasn't at the company back then. 3 Q. All right. I seem to recall I made a few 4 presentations at Facebook during those years. 5 Now, the very first of the three programs 6 you mentioned was called what start? 7 A. Fb. 8 Q. FbStart. When did FbStart begin? 9 A. We launched FbStart at the f8 in 2014. So 10 it's been around for 3 years. 11 Q. And when did Developer Circles start? 12 A. We launched Developer Circles at f8 2017. 13 F8 is our developer conference. 14 Q. Just out of curiosity, do you know why the 15 Facebook developer conference is called f8? This 16 is my own personal curiosity. 17 A. I don't know. There are different 18 theories. 19 Q. Is it the function key? 20 A. No. It's nothing to do with the function 21 key, as far as I know. 22 Q. Okay. 23 A. It has to do more, I think, with the 24 purpose of this event. 25 Q. And Tech Hubs were started when?
Page 27 1 community. 2 The second program that we have is called 3 Developer Circles. And this is a program designed 4 for specifically individual developers, not 5 companies. And our intent is to educate people 6 about how to become better coders, better 7 developers. 8 And the third program that we have is 9 called Tech Hubs. And we have to date launched two 10 Tech Hubs: One in Paris, and we just announced one 11 in São Paulo. 12 And the idea is that we have real estate, 13 basically physical space, where we invite a number 14 of startups for a period of time, and we help them 15 with mentorship and support. And it's a -- I 16 wouldn't say it's a typical accelerator program, 17 but it's a form of accelerator. 18 Q. Is the Tech Hub the same thing that was 19 down here on Hamilton Avenue in Palo Alto in the 20 2008-2009 time frame? I forget what they called 21 it. 22 A. I don't know what you're talking about. 23 Q. It may have been the Facebook Fund office. 24 Is it -- 25 A. I don't know what you are talking about.	Page 29 1 A. So we announced the one in Paris in 2 February this year, and the one in São Paulo this 3 week or last week. I think it was this week. In 4 São Paulo, Brazil. F8 is our developer conference. 5 Q. Did you review any materials to prepare 6 for your deposition here today? 7 A. So I met with my counsel yesterday, and we 8 looked at some documents and email exchanges. 9 Q. What documents did you look at? 10 A. It was mostly email exchanges and some 11 slides from presentations. 12 Q. Can you recall any more specifically what 13 emails you looked at? 14 A. May have been exchanges between myself and 15 a couple of team members. 16 Q. Do you recall who those people were? 17 A. I looked at several emails, so -- 18 Q. Do you recall any of the other people on 19 those team threads? 20 A. There may have been emails with Emi 21 Archibong. 22 Q. Anyone else? 23 A. Partners. 24 Q. Which partners? 25 A. There were email exchanges with, you know,

Page 42 1 for a legal conclusion. 2 THE WITNESS: So it can't be my 3 understanding, because the Graph API and Facebook 4 Login was not launched in 2007. It was launched 5 later. 6 So as such, I cannot really, you know, 7 make any further comments about it. 8 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 9 Q. When was it launched? 10 A. If, you know, my memory is not -- you 11 know, and today it hasn't been great -- it's 12 probably 2010 when we launched. It's either 2008 13 or 2010. I can't remember. 14 I wasn't at the company back then, so I 15 don't have the exact dates. 16 Q. Let me ask you the question this way: 17 Is it your understanding that from the 18 time that Login was announced, that Facebook 19 represented to the public that developers had 20 access to Graph API including the full friends 21 list, friends permissions, and News Feed APIs? 22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Compound and 23 calls for a legal conclusion. 24 THE WITNESS: So Graph API is a different 25 product, and it's an API that is there to -- that	Page 44 1 they would have a level competitive playing field 2 to build their businesses? 3 MS. MILLER: Objection. Calls for a legal 4 conclusion. 5 THE WITNESS: I'm not sure what you mean 6 by level competitive playing field. 7 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 8 Q. Did you ever hear that phrase? 9 A. No. 10 Q. Did you ever hear Facebook representatives 11 claim to developers that they would have access to 12 all of the same APIs that Facebook developers had? 13 A. So it's an open platform, so every -- 14 everybody has access to the same information. If 15 that's what you mean, then ... 16 Q. Is that the case today? That third-party 17 developers -- 18 A. To the best of my knowledge, we still have 19 an open platform. Publicly documented APIs that 20 are available to anybody that has reason to believe 21 that this information is specifically for Login 22 creates a compelling user experience. 23 We have an app review process in place, 24 and every developer that wants to have access to 25 specific user information needs to prove to us
Page 43 1 acts as an interface between an application and 2 Facebook. The Graph API is not connected -- or 3 directly connected to Facebook Login. 4 So I wouldn't necessarily respond by -- 5 respond to your question by suggesting that 6 Graph API and Facebook Login are one thing. They 7 are two separate things. 8 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 9 Q. Okay. 10 A. So for Facebook Login in particular, when 11 the first iteration of Facebook Login was out 12 there, it gave, to the best of my, you know, 13 recollection, the ability for any developer to ask 14 a number of permissions, including friends list, 15 that gave them access to the friends graph. That 16 wasn't the only permission available. There were 17 other things that were available. 18 And again, just for completeness, it 19 wasn't just a matter of developers asking for 20 access to that information. Facebook Login 21 required the user's consent for that information to 22 be made available to the third party. 23 Q. Is it your understanding that from the 24 time you first became aware of Facebook in 2007 or 25 2008, that Facebook represented to developers that	Page 45 1 before they can prove to the users how they are 2 going to be making user-specific certain 3 information. 4 Once they go through that app review 5 process, they get approval to use certain 6 permissions. Those permissions will be displayed 7 to the user, and the user still has a right to 8 decline access to that information to the extent 9 that they don't believe that the application 10 developer will make good use of that data. 11 Q. When did Facebook begin an app review 12 process? 13 A. The app review process started in 2014. 14 Q. What was the app review process? 15 A. The app review process still is an 16 application that is done actually by the developer 17 to Facebook that basically documents how certain 18 permissions that the developer requires access to 19 are going to be used within the experience of the 20 application itself. 21 The way you can think about it is like a 22 form where the developer will submit text, 23 screenshots of the experience, as well as links to 24 the actual application itself or a link to the 25 website that our review team can actually go

Page 46 1 download and test how those permissions are 2 actually going to be used. 3 And once they go through this review 4 process, they can approve permissions that are 5 fully justified within the context of this 6 application. 7 Q. But there was no such process before 2014? 8 A. No. There wasn't. 9 Q. Before 2014, did all third-party 10 developers have access to all the same information? 11 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague. Are you 12 talking about specifically Platform information? 13 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 14 Q. Let's just -- your word was "permissions." 15 A. So when we are talking about permissions, 16 technically anybody could ask for the permissions 17 that were available at that stage. I don't 18 remember how many there were. 19 But that doesn't mean that every developer 20 asked for the same permissions. Developers for the 21 most part care about the user experience, and they 22 request it and actually acquired permissions from 23 users to access the information that they were 24 using to make a better -- or to develop a better 25 app experience.	Page 48 1 access to all of the same Platform permissions that 2 Facebook employees had when developing software? 3 A. I don't think I can remember that, but I 4 can assume that they wouldn't again, because they 5 were specific permissions that -- actually, they 6 are not even permissions, because when you use the 7 Facebook application, you don't go through 8 permissions. 9 Q. So are we talking about access to APIs? 10 A. We are talking about access to APIs, in 11 the end. So my previous answer is still true. 12 Q. So let me rephrase the question yet again. 13 Prior to 2014, did third-party developers 14 have access to all of the same APIs that Facebook 15 employees had for Platform APIs? 16 A. So the Platform APIs are a subset of the 17 APIs that Facebook -- the Platform APIs are a 18 subset of the Facebook APIs that employees have 19 access to. The simple reason is that the Facebook 20 app requires access to specific APIs for specific 21 features of the app, and those APIs are not part of 22 the platform, or they haven't been back then part 23 of the platform. 24 I think I gave an example with 25 notifications earlier.
Page 47 1 Different applications requested different 2 permissions. 3 Q. Prior to 2014, did third-party developers 4 have access to all of the same permissions that 5 Facebook's internal developers had access to? 6 A. I'm not sure I understand the definition 7 of a Facebook internal developer. 8 Q. Let's just say, Facebook -- 9 A. Are you talking about -- 10 Q. Facebook employees writing software. 11 A. I don't believe that's true. Facebook 12 employees have access to the same APIs that are 13 available out in the public that -- they may have 14 access to some other APIs that are specific for our 15 own applications that are not necessarily part of 16 the platform. 17 I can think of at least one. 18 Q. What one is that? 19 A. Like sending notifications when someone 20 comments on your Facebook story is not an API that 21 we make available to platform -- via the platform, 22 because this is a service and feature unique to our 23 own application. 24 Q. Prior to 2014, did third-party developers 25 have all of the same Platform permissions -- have	Page 49 1 Q. That notifications is not Platform API? 2 A. No. Because the notifications is specific 3 to the Facebook app itself. 4 Q. But I'm asking about Platform APIs. 5 A. I don't think that the question was 6 specific about Platform APIs. You asked me whether 7 the Facebook employees have access to the same APIs 8 as Platform developers. Unless I misunderstood the 9 question. 10 Q. No, I'm asking whether the third-party 11 developers had access to all of the same Platform 12 APIs that Facebook developers -- that -- Platform 13 APIs that Facebook employees had access to. 14 A. So like I said before, the Platform APIs 15 are a subset of the APIs. So in that sense, 16 external developers and internal developers have 17 the same access to the same Platform APIs. 18 Q. Did Facebook require Platform developers 19 to have an end-user license for the developer's own 20 users that included Facebook terms? 21 MS. MILLER: Objection. Vague as to time. 22 Lacks foundation. 23 THE WITNESS: According to the 24 responsibilities that the developers agree to when 25 they create the Facebook application with the

Page 50 1 Statement of Rights and Responsibilities and the 2 platform policies, they had to have their own 3 privacy policy and their own Terms of Service. 4 That's a thing that I think was true universally 5 back then, and it's true probably now as well. 6 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 7 Q. Is it fair to say that from 2007 to 2014, 8 the number of developers on Facebook Platform 9 continued to increase? 10 A. I don't have data, so I cannot really 11 answer this question. 12 Q. Is it fair to say that, between 2007 and 13 2014, Platform continued to grow its developer 14 base? 15 A. Sorry, from when? 16 Q. 2007 to 2014. 17 A. I don't have the data, so I cannot answer 18 that question. 19 Q. You have no understanding one way or the 20 other? 21 A. I can imagine that that is probably true, 22 but that would not be, you know, like a very 23 credible answer, because I don't have access to the 24 data. But this is probably based on publications 25 and -- I do not have access to the data. Page 51 1 Q. Well, do you have any understanding as to 2 how many developers were on the Facebook Platform 3 in early 2014? 4 A. Approximately 1 to -- 1 million to 5 a million and a half. But again, this is too long 6 ago for me to remember exactly. 7 Q. Prior to f8 in 2014, did Facebook 8 periodically send notices to developers about 9 changes to the Facebook Platform that might affect 10 their apps? 11 A. So before 2014, we haven't committed to 12 the 2-year stability that we announced in 2014. 13 And according to our platform policies, we could 14 make changes with 90 days of notice period. 15 So whenever we wanted to make changes, we 16 would make those changes and send alerts of 17 notifications to developers that they have 90 days 18 to adjust their apps to comply with the new APIs or 19 the changes that we made on the platform overall. 20 Q. You referred to a 2-year stability -- what 21 was it called? A 2-year stability -- 22 A. Period. 23 Q. -- period? 24 A. So in 2014 at Facebook, we launched what 25 we called versioning of the API. Each version of	Page 52 1 the API is guaranteed to be stable for 2-plus 2 years. For 2 years at the minimum. 3 So that effectively means that the version 4 of the API that is rolled out, for example, in 5 October 2015 will be available until at least 6 October 2017. And within that period, that version 7 of the API will not change. 8 Q. And how is this commitment documented? 9 A. This is part of the documentation that is 10 available to the developers at facebook.com. 11 Q. Was it part of the SSR? Was it part of 12 some other document -- 13 A. No, this is not part of the SSR. This is 14 not part of the privacy -- sorry, the platform 15 policy. This is documented as a changelog. It's 16 documented as a blog post where we announce that we 17 made that change. 18 Q. Do you recall the title of that blog post? 19 A. I think it may have been part of the f8 20 2014 product announcement. Every time we have a 21 new API released, we are going to have another blog 22 post on Facebook about what's in that API version. 23 Q. But it is true that prior to that, 24 Facebook sent notices to developers about changes 25 to the platform. Right? Page 53 1 A. I cannot remember specific notices, but I 2 remember that we used to do blog posts, and I think 3 we may have been sending developer alerts as well. 4 And we would be communicating probably by email to 5 developers about the changes that were happening on 6 the platform. 7 Q. Did Facebook executives decide in 2012 8 that Facebook was going to remove access to the 9 full friends list in the Facebook Platform? 10 A. I don't know. 11 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation. 12 THE WITNESS: I couldn't possibly know 13 that. Sorry. 14 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 15 Q. At some point in time, did you learn that 16 Facebook was going to remove access to the full 17 friends list in the Facebook Platform? 18 A. I think at some point I became aware of 19 ideas and considerations about how, you know, the 20 platform should look like or what kind of functions 21 the platform or API -- should be available to the 22 platform. 23 Q. And when was that? 24 A. I -- I can only imagine that this would 25 have been either in early 2014 or late 2013.

Page 150 1 that we are going to put into the audit in 2 each category. For example, some apps I do 3 want to review and keep an eye on include: 4 LinkedIn, Sync.me, and Airbnb." 5 Do you see that? 6 A. Yes. 7 Q. And then you responded to him about 8 Airbnb, didn't you? 9 A. Sorry. What about my response? 10 Q. Don't you say that you wouldn't have 11 considered Airbnb but agreed to include it? 12 A. Yes. But I also acknowledge the fact that 13 there is a reputation inside Airbnb, because it's a 14 marketplace. 15 Q. Does Facebook have any app that lets 16 people pay someone to stay in another's home? 17 A. As far as I know, no one would have ever 18 built this. We're not in the business of home 19 rentals. 20 Q. Was there anything particular about Airbnb 21 that was of concern to Facebook at this time? 22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation, 23 calls for speculation, and very broad. 24 THE WITNESS: I don't think that we had 25 concern about any of those apps that are listed on Page 151 1 the email. I don't understand why you may be 2 specifically calling Airbnb. 3 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 4 Q. You see also that this -- Chris Daniels 5 asks, "What is our standard process to see what 6 competitors are accessing?" 7 Do you see that? 8 A. I don't necessarily have an exact 9 understanding of what he's trying to say here, but 10 I think he may be suggesting if we have any kind of 11 reporting in place to see whether Google or YouTube 12 or LinkedIn or what are accessing information that 13 may be effectively information that I guess is 14 related to the friends graph in the context of 15 this. 16 Q. Well, so what -- let me ask you. Was 17 there any process to see what competitors are 18 accessing? 19 A. No, there was no process. Which I think 20 is why I put -- this question was aimed at. 21 Q. Was a process ever developed? 22 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation. 23 THE WITNESS: Not to the best of my 24 knowledge. 25 To ask again, see an email that I sent to	Page 152 1 him, "As for the process, I have set a reminder for 2 myself to check the logs bi-weekly." That was the 3 process me manually pulling the reports. 4 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 5 Q. And what logs were you pulling? 6 A. I suspect, based on what I see below, that 7 I -- attached to this email is logs from API 8 requests. 9 Q. And what did you look for when you pulled 10 those logs? 11 A. The endpoints, probably, that they were 12 calling. 13 Q. You don't know? 14 A. No. It doesn't say anywhere else, so I 15 cannot tell. It's from platform stats, so I 16 suspect number of API calls against specific 17 endpoints. That would be my guess. 18 Q. What's a DAU? 19 A. Daily active user. 20 Q. Was the purpose of the audit to identify 21 apps which Facebook would ultimately restrict 22 information to? 23 A. As I mentioned before, I don't remember 24 the specifics of this audit, but I don't believe 25 there was any intention for us to restrict access Page 153 1 to any of those apps. 2 And again, as far as I can see from the -- 3 from this email exchange, there is a suggestion 4 that we may have a different time of applying those 5 changes to those apps. 6 I think my second bullet point, the one 7 you read before, suggests that there is a 8 recommendation about whether those should coincide 9 with the rollout of Platform Simplification or 10 whether they should -- we should act independently. 11 (Deposition Exhibit 14 was marked for 12 identification.) 13 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 14 Q. You have in front of you a document that's 15 been marked Exhibit 14. It's an email thread. The 16 top email is from you, dated August 15, 2013. 17 Have you seen this email thread before 18 today? 19 A. Are we looking at the same? August 15th. 20 Right? 21 MS. MILLER: Yeah. 22 MR. FTHENAKIS: Did I say something -- 23 THE WITNESS: I think you said 13th. No? 24 Okay, sorry. 25 //

If you would direct your attention to 6 page -53. 7 A. Yes. 8 Q. Does this refresh your recollection that 9 Mr. Archibong asked you and Mr. Cross for a 10 comprehensive review of the Platform APIs and 11 permissions that will be impacted by Platform 3.0, 12 as he called it? 13 A. Yes. 14 Q. And then he also wanted all the private 15 whitelisted APIs that will be impacted. 16 A. This -- I guess the request after -- next 17 to bullet point 1, yes. 18 Q. He also tells you that Mr. Daniels wants 19 to pull this together to share with Zuck. 20 Is that Mark Zuckerberg, as far as you 21 know? 22 A. That's definitely the nickname used for 23 Zuckerberg, so I suspect that's who they are 24 referring to. 25 Q. Do you have any understanding as to what	Page 156 1 the link below, this is a series of API endpoints 2 that may or may not be used by applications that 3 are building -- or by developers that are building 4 Facebook-branded apps for their own platforms. 5 Q. Describe for me what a Facebook-branded 6 app for one's own platform is. 7 A. So Facebook builds their own apps or iOS 8 and Android. 9 (Telephonic interruption.) 10 So at Facebook, we build our own apps for 11 certain platforms. For example, we built 12 facebook.com; we built the native application for 13 iOS; we built the native application for Android. 14 Back then, there were a series of 15 platforms that we didn't necessarily build the 16 Facebook experience or the Facebook application 17 ourselves, but we would be working with the 18 platform owner -- for example, BlackBerry -- that 19 they would be building the application on our 20 behalf. 21 So for them to be able to replicate the 22 Facebook app experience, they had access to APIs 23 that were not otherwise publicly available. 24 Q. Was there some label used for this 25 category of apps?

Page 158 1 nonmobile developers" -- or, excuse me, 2 "non-mobile users and understand for each 3 user the APIs, is their use case something 4 that a) we get value from and/or b) we would 5 be hurt by turning it off. My default stance 6 will be, if we're not 'yes' for a) or b), 7 then we should turn off access. Happy to 8 chat and give you more context if needed 9 before you get started." 10 Do you see that? 11 A. Yes, I see that. 12 Q. What do you -- first of all, what -- what 13 did -- what was this thing that Vikas pulled 14 together, the analysis? Do you recall seeing that? 15 A. I have no recollection ever this analysis, 16 no. 17 Q. Do you have any understanding of what 18 criteria were used in this analysis to analyze 19 what? 20 A. I cannot tell. From the context of this 21 email, I think someone, Vikas, on this occasion 22 looked at read_stream API. 23 MS. MILLER: For the record, a heat 24 advisory was just issued. All of our phones 25 started buzzing.	Page 160 1 conversation happened. Although there is a 2 suggestion that now they are setting up a meeting, 3 so -- I can't tell. 4 Q. Well, do you recall a meeting? 5 A. No, I don't recall a meeting. 6 Q. Who was Vikas? 7 A. Is that Vikas Gupta? Well, it doesn't 8 say. 9 I think that's probably Vikas Gupta, but I 10 can only speculate, because it doesn't say who's 11 Vikas. 12 Q. Do you have any understanding what Vikas 13 Gupta's role is in the company at this time? 14 A. He was a partner engineer with the mobile 15 team. 16 Q. Let me ask you, was it your understanding 17 that Daniels was suggesting that Facebook should 18 shut off data to any app that either doesn't get 19 value from it or doesn't have any consequence if it 20 is shut off? 21 MS. MILLER: Objection. Lacks foundation, 22 asked and answered, and calls for speculation. 23 THE WITNESS: As per my previous response, 24 I think his recommendation is for us to establish 25 whether there is any value for the users when, you
Page 159 1 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 2 Q. Do you have a -- how did you interpret the 3 statement, "My default stance will be if we're not 4 'yes' and" -- "'yes' for a) and b), then we should 5 turn off access"? 6 What do you understand Mr. Daniels to be 7 proposing there, or his default stance to be? 8 A. I can, you know, guess that his 9 recommendation is that if those apps have a good 10 enough reason to use or to make use of read_stream 11 in a way that benefits users, then we should 12 maintain their access to read_stream. If not -- I 13 guess, in a way that's abusive to users -- then we 14 should take it down. 15 Q. Did you have any further communications 16 with Mr. Daniels about this topic? 17 A. I can see probably other emails sent to 18 him, so I suspect the answer to your question is 19 yes. 20 Q. Well, I mean, he says "I'd be happy to 21 chat." 22 Did you have a chat, or is it all this 23 email? 24 A. I think it's probably most the email. I 25 was in London back then, so I don't think that	Page 161 1 know, those apps request and get access to 2 read_stream. And that's about it. 3 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 4 Q. Can you describe generally what context 5 Mr. Daniels gave you for this project? 6 A. I cannot remember anything beyond what's 7 in the email exchange. And this is coming from 8 email about framing -- yeah. 9 (Deposition Exhibit 15 was marked for 10 identification.) 11 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 12 Q. You have in front of you a document that 13 has been marked as Exhibit 15. It is an email 14 thread. The top email is from Mr. Archibong, dated 15 September 9, 2013, addressed to you and others. 16 Have you seen this document before today? 17 A. I believe I have seen it, because I'm 18 copied. 19 Q. Do you understand that this email thread 20 describes the Platform 3.0 risk assessment tabs in 21 this spreadsheet that organizes developers into 22 different buckets? 23 And again, look at page -369, ending 24 in -369. 25 A. Yeah, there is a link to a document here.

1 I can see that there is a description of a tab
2 called "T0" and another description for a risk
3 assessment tab.
4 Q. You see that one of the bullet points
5 there is, "Competitive/Not Useful to FB"?
6 A. Yes, I see that.
7 Q. Do you have any recollection of this
8 document?
9 A. No.
10 Q. The spreadsheet?
11 Did you ever see a risk assessment
12 describing competitive and -- competitive apps and 13 apps that were not useful to Facebook?
14 A. I suspect that I have access to that 15 document, so I suspect that I have seen this 16 analysis.
17 Q. What did you understand the purpose of the 18 analysis to be?
19 A. I think we are talking about the impact of 20 the changes to the ecosystem, et cetera.
21 Q. Do you recall what the conclusion was 22 regarding the risk assessment for apps that were 23 competitive and not useful to Facebook?
24 A. No. I don't remember that.
25 Q. Did you participate in the actual

Page 163

1 preparation of the spreadsheet referenced here?
2 A. From what I can tell, that was probably my 3 friend Jackie that did that, but I may have
4 contributed somehow to this as well.
5 Can I look at the whole thread?
6 Q. Yeah, you may.
7 A. Okay. So I think there is a reference on 8 page -67 where I say I have provided additional 9 information. But I don't know if that is in 10 reference to that spreadsheet or that document that 11 Jackie has linked or something else.
12 So I suspect that I contributed to this,
13 yes.
14 Q. Do you see at the very bottom of page -69
15 it says, "Constantin" -- is that you?
16 A. No.
17 Q. Who is that?
18 A. This is -- what was Constantin doing these 19 days? I think he was a product manager at that 20 stage.
21 Q. So we have a Constantin with a C and a
22 Konstantinos with a K.
23 A. Yes.
24 Q. Two different people.
25 A. Constantin with a C is a second- or

Page 164

1 third-generation Canadian Greek. I was born in 2 Greece, and this is how we spell the name in 3 Greece.
4 Same as yours. Your Greek name is not
5 Basil.
6 Q. Vasil.
7 A. Exactly. And you spell it with a V.
8 Q. Yeah. I said I know a little Greek.
9 A. That's what he said.
10 Q. My parents tell me it was actually my 11 first language, but I've forgotten virtually all of
12 it.
13 A. If you still like Greek food, you are 14 Greek in your heart.
15 Q. Thank you. I like all food.
16 Again, at that last paragraph, what's EOW?
17 A. End of week.
18 Q. There's a reference there -- again, on 19 that last paragraph, reference to a discussion with 20 Vernal.
21 A. Yes.
22 Q. Do you recall participating in any 23 discussion with Mr. Vernal at approximately this 24 time about this audit and assessment?
25 A. No. I haven't been part of this

Page 165

1 conversation, if there was ever a conversation.
2 Q. All right. Moving up the page -- well
3 first, let me ask you, Jackie Chang, who is Jackie
4 Chang?
5 A. She is one of my colleagues.
6 Q. Did she report to you?
7 A. She at some point reported to me. But no,
8 she doesn't report to me anymore.
9 Q. Okay. At this time did she report to you?
10 A. No. She reported to me, I think, at that
11 time.
12 Q. So about a quarter of the way down the 13 page, it says, "Working with KP to further
14 synthesize P3 impact by breaking out T0 partners
15 with nonstandard agreements and specific categories
16 of impact that we should address."
17 Do you see that?
18 A. Yes.
19 Q. P3 refers to Platform 3.0?
20 A. There were different names. I guess
21 that's a reference to the new platform, 2.0.
22 Q. Well, let me kind of ask you about the 23 names.
24 I see references to Platform 2.0 and I see
25 references to Platform 3.0 at the same time in this

Page 166 1 2013 time frame. 2 Was there any difference between them? 3 A. I don't think so. For the most part, you 4 know, we didn't know how to call it. People 5 referred to it in different ways. 6 I think the other emails that you showed 7 me may have referred to it as Simplification. 8 Q. So it was referred to in -- by multiple 9 terms during this time period. 10 A. Yes. And I can only assume that the P3 is 11 not really a typo. It may as well have been a PS. 12 Q. Well, if it was PS, would it mean 13 something different to you? 14 A. I would imagine that it would be a 15 Platform Simplification shortcut, although S and 3 16 are not that close, but they are still close. But 17 I cannot, you know, suggest that this may not be a 18 typo. 19 Q. And then there's a reference to "TO 20 partners." What is a TO partner? Same sentence. 21 A. I think that may have been in reference to 22 partners that have nonstandard agreements. And a 23 standard agreement is one that is publicly 24 available, and it's on the website. The 25 nonstandard agreement is probably the one that we	Page 168 1 I'm looking at which apps give access to 2 the data or make use of the data. 3 Q. You're looking at something on -- 4 A. I'm looking at page -67 -- 5 Q. Yes. 6 A. -- which I think is a summary of my 7 analysis. 8 Q. So this is your -- your analysis begins on 9 page -67 and then goes over to page -68? 10 A. I believe that's a summary of my analysis. 11 Q. A summary. 12 A. I don't believe that is the actual 13 analysis. The actual analysis is probably 14 somewhere attached, because I refer to an 15 attachment here. 16 Q. I don't see the reference to the 17 attachment. Where is the reference to the 18 attachment? 19 A. So if you look at page -67 towards the 20 middle of the page, it says "+Simon," and then I 21 replied, "Thanks a lot, Jackie. This is great -- I 22 have attached the additional info for the strategic 23 partners in the attached spreadsheet as well." 24 Q. Do you recall what the spreadsheet showed, 25 what -- anything about it?
Page 167 1 discussed before where BlackBerry has access to 2 private APIs. 3 Q. So what do the letters -- do the letters 4 "TO" signify anything? 5 MS. MILLER: And just for the record, I 6 think it's "T zero." 7 MR. FTHENAKIS: Is it? 8 THE WITNESS: Yes. It is "T zero." I 9 don't know what it means, no. I don't even know 10 what "T" stands for in the context of this. I know 11 what a P zero is. 12 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 13 Q. What's a P zero then? 14 A. Priority zero. It's a reference to bugs 15 and tasks. 16 Q. And then it says that "KP" -- that's you 17 -- "is working on pulling the same analysis of the 18 friend data." 19 Do you see that? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. What were you doing with the friend data? 22 A. I think down the line there is an analysis 23 that I am referring to how apps that fall again to 24 different verticals use different data -- or 25 actually, let me reframe that.	Page 169 1 A. I don't know. I suspect it was probably a 2 list of apps and how many API calls they make and 3 stuff. 4 Q. Was there anything else that you were 5 looking for in your analysis besides the number of 6 API calls particular apps were making? 7 A. I think I was actually looking at how they 8 use the apps differently. 9 For example, if you look at Bullet Point 10 No. 1, it says, "All games request access to 11 friends lists and on top of this" -- 12 (Reporter requested clarification.) 13 "All games request access to friends lists 14 and on top of this friends_games_activity. The 15 main reason is user acquisition through social 16 referral." 17 So that to me suggests that the purpose of 18 this analysis is to also establish how apps make 19 use of the data. 20 Q. Okay. 21 A. And not just the number of API calls. 22 Q. Do you have a -- any recollection as to 23 the number of apps that were the subject of your 24 analysis? 25 A. The number of apps? I think I say here

Page 171 1 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 2 Q. The middle of -66. 3 A. I don't see that. Do you? 4 I think there is a reference similar to 5 what you are talking about in -367. 6 MS. MILLER: And I'll just say for the 7 record, the highlighting on page -67 is Six4Three's 8 counsel's highlighting, not anything that was 9 originally on the page as produced. 10 MR. FTHENAKIS: Yeah, it looks like it 11 rolls up to the top. 12 Q. It says that there's a -- do you see 13 there's a reference to a -- trying to have a 14 meeting this week with someone on your team to -- 15 regarding this? 16 Do you recall any meeting to discuss 17 lifestyle -- identity lifestyle platform apps? 18 A. Well, when I look at the dates, I think 19 it's the meeting that we discussed from the 20 previous exhibit. I don't remember whether it's 21 Exhibit 12 or 13. 22 I think we discussed about this meeting at 23 some point back there. 24 Q. Well, does this refresh your recollection 25 any further about the meeting?	Page 173 1 for lifestyle apps? 2 A. I can only suspect that this response is 3 in reference to what I have been suggesting on 4 page -68, that for the lifestyle apps, the 5 recommendation was to keep access, when for 6 everything else my recommendation was to remove 7 access. 8 And Sam Lessin's gut was to basically 9 treat those apps no different than anything else. 10 Q. Do you see he also uses the term here, 11 "leak data"? 12 A. Yes, I do see that. 13 Q. Do you have any understanding as to what 14 he meant by leaking data? 15 A. No, I don't. 16 Q. Do you recall any discussions with him 17 about leaking data through lifestyle apps? 18 A. No, I don't. 19 MS. MILLER: Is now a good time to take a 20 quick break? 21 MR. FTHENAKIS: Sure. 22 MS. MILLER: Let's do that. 23 THE VIDEO OPERATOR: Going off the record, 24 the time now is 3:17. 25 (Recess from 3:17 P.M. to 3:26 P.M.)

Page 175 1 Q. Do you have any understanding as to what 2 Pikinis is? 3 A. No, I don't. 4 Q. Okay. Again, let me represent to you that 5 it is an app developed by Six4Three, LLC. 6 A. Oh, okay. 7 Q. Which is the subject of this lawsuit. 8 A. Okay. Good to know. It's a very catchy 9 name. 10 Q. Thank you. Based on -- well, let me ask 11 you -- and there's this number in the middle 12 column. 13 Do you have any understanding as to what 14 that number represented for these apps? 15 A. Without having seen the header, I can 16 imagine that this is the application ID. 17 Q. Application ID? Okay. 18 And then over on the right, it says -- it 19 has the number 6, and then in brackets, 20 "friends_photos." 21 What does that signify to you? 22 A. Again, without having seen the header, I 23 suspect that this is the number of API calls. 24 You said it was page 210? 25 Q. No, I believe it is page 622 of a	Page 177 1 A. The analysis according to my previous 2 email was only based on the 250 apps. I couldn't 3 technically have seen all 40,000 apps in that 4 spreadsheet. 5 Q. But you were definitely aware of them all. 6 Right? 7 A. Aware of every one of those apps? Just 8 the existence of the apps, yes. But aware of each 9 one of those 40,000 apps, no. 10 Q. Okay. Fair enough. 11 A. And again, not having seen the full 12 document, I take from the context of the previous 13 email that there were, like, 40,000 apps listed in 14 that spreadsheet. 15 Q. But it would be no surprise to you that an 16 app listed in that spreadsheet would be affected by 17 the changes implemented in Platform 3.0. Right? 18 A. I think that was the purpose of the 19 analysis based on my understanding of that email 20 exchange. 21 Q. Yeah. 22 (Deposition Exhibit 17 was marked for 23 identification.) 24 BY MR. FTHENAKIS: 25 Q. You have in front of you a document that's

Page 178 1 been marked as Exhibit 17. It appears to be an 2 email thread dated -- well, the top one is dated 3 September 25, 2013, and it appears to be an email 4 from you. 5 Have you seen this email thread before? 6 A. Having been part of that email thread, the 7 answer is yes. 8 Q. The subject is, "Proactive and Reactive 9 removal of permissions." 10 Do you see that? 11 A. Yes. 12 Q. What was proactive and reactive removal of 13 permissions? 14 A. I don't have enough context. Can I read 15 through that? 16 Q. Yes. 17 A. I may guess. 18 (Examining document.) 19 Okay. So what was the question? 20 Q. Let me rephrase. 21 Take a look at the top of page --22. 22 A. Yep. 23 Q. You write that, unlike Platform 24 Simplification, where the objective is to get a 25 manageable number of APIs and move API	Page 180 1 to those apps or restrict access to the data for 2 those apps, we should be doing it at the same time 3 that we made the overall changes in the platform. 4 Q. Was someone suggesting to you that 5 Facebook should enforce sooner against sensitive or 6 competitive apps? 7 A. No. Actually, that's not what I 8 understand from reading that email thread. 9 The purpose of this thread is to do an 10 audit in order to identify whether we should or 11 not. 12 Q. Okay. 13 A. It was an exercise. There was no 14 decision. 15 Q. Well, were there -- did people have 16 differing views within Facebook as to whether there 17 should be sooner enforcement action for 18 competitive -- sensitive or competitive apps? 19 A. I suspect that even just by reading that 20 email there is a different perspective between 21 myself and Ellen. It's not really clear. 22 Q. What other enforcement efforts were 23 underway at the time? 24 A. I am not aware of anything specific. 25 Q. Well, she references "other enforcement
Page 179 1 decision-making to the product teams, your exercise 2 was triggered by a review of apps in the identity 3 space for Lessin's team. 4 Do you see that? 5 A. Yes. 6 MS. MILLER: I'm going to object that 7 you're not reading verbatim from the document. Go 8 ahead. 9 THE WITNESS: You skipped certain words, 10 but that's -- yes. 11 BY MR. F'THENAKIS: 12 Q. I apologize. You mention killing two 13 birds with one stone. 14 Do you see that? 15 A. Yes. 16 Q. What did you mean by killing two birds 17 with one stone? 18 A. I think the conversation we are having 19 here is whether we should take any specific -- or 20 if we should apply different policies towards 21 identity apps versus the rest of the ecosystem. 22 And the suggestion is that -- I guess from my 23 understanding from reading Ellen's response, is to 24 combine the two. 25 So if we wanted to make any data available	Page 181 1 efforts we have underway." Do you know what she's 2 talking about? 3 A. No, I don't. 4 Q. Was it your understanding that Ellen 5 wanted to undertake enforcement efforts 6 immediately? 7 A. No. Quite the opposite, actually. 8 Q. Do you recall who on this thread you 9 believed wanted to move more quickly on enforcement 10 efforts? 11 A. Myself. 12 Q. Anyone else? 13 A. As far as I can see from that thread, no. 14 And I'm not necessarily strongly advocating for 15 that. I'm just in the process of requesting that 16 we do that audit to figure out what is the right 17 strategy. 18 Q. And this is a follow-up audit to the audit 19 that was previously conducted that we've been 20 previously talking about? 21 A. I suspect so, because the date is later 22 from the exchange that we have in the previous 23 note. 24 Q. I apologize for going back -- let me ask 25 you, turning to the audit we were previously

1 paragraph -- or number eight on that page. Do you 01:37:36
2 recall that? 01:37:38

3 A. Yes. 01:37:39

4 Q. So what did you understand paragraph eight 01:37:39
5 to mean? 01:37:42

6 MS. MEHTA: Objection; foundation, calls 01:37:44
7 for a legal conclusion, purports to call for expert 01:37:45
8 opinion from a lay witness, irrelevant. 01:37:49

9 A. So when I was developing applications on 01:37:52
10 Facebook, part of that required me to sort of look 01:37:56
11 at Facebook's code. There are things called 01:37:59
12 packages, for example. Packages are ways in which 01:38:03
13 we can use a programming language. I had previously 01:38:07
14 identified I teach one called Python. So there's a 01:38:10
15 Python package for -- that helps you access Facebook 01:38:14
16 data. You submit the appropriate credentials and 01:38:18
17 then you can get the appropriate data. Facebook had 01:38:22
18 offered some various code and endpoints on their 01:38:26
19 websites. I understood this to mean that if they 01:38:31
20 had offered it for me to use as a developer, then I 01:38:36
21 could use it as a developer. 01:38:40

22 Q. Earlier in the deposition, you made 01:38:42
23 reference to something called FQL. Do you recall 01:38:44
24 that? 01:38:47

1 So Graph Search seemed like it would be a 01:53:26
2 way to simplify this task of querying Facebook for 01:53:29
3 this data and showing that data to the user. 01:53:32

4 Q. You testified a few minutes ago regarding 01:53:36
5 limitations on the amount of data that could be 01:53:42
6 queried. Do you recall that? 01:53:46

7 A. Yes, I do. 01:53:49

8 Q. Is there a technical term for that that 01:53:49
9 you're familiar with? 01:53:52

10 A. Oh you're -- are you -- 01:53:53

11 MS. MEHTA: Objection -- hold on. 01:53:54

12 THE WITNESS: Oh, I'm sorry. 01:53:56

13 MS. MEHTA: Objection; calls for 01:53:57
14 speculation, foundation, purports to call for expert 01:53:57
15 testimony from a lay witness. Now you can go ahead. 01:54:00

16 A. So I had originally -- or I had previously 01:54:05
17 spoke about the fact that you could only get 5,000 01:54:08
18 friendships back from a single query. That's a kind 01:54:13
19 of limiting. So you can limit the data -- or data 01:54:16
20 is limited by a platform in a number of different 01:54:20
21 ways, but mainly it's volume and velocity. So 01:54:23
22 volume is limiting how much data the developer or 01:54:30
23 the developer's application -- sorry -- volume is 01:54:36
24 how much data the application can receive. Velocity 01:54:40

1 is how fast -- velocity is how fast the data can be
2 queried.

3 So 5,000 is an example of volume. You can
4 only receive so much data per query. Velocity is 5 how many queries you can make under a specific time
6 period, and that's call rate limiting. So a lot of 7 platforms have rate limiting baked in and we
8 commonly consult documents to see what that rate
9 limiting is. Twitter, for example; if you wanted to 10 get friendships from Twitter, that's the get friends
11 permission, and you can only query that, I believe,
12 180 times every 15 minutes. And so after you've 13 queried it 180 times -- say, give me the first set
14 of friends, give me the second batch of friends,
15 give me the third batch of friends -- once you get
16 to 180, you have to stop and wait until your 15
17 minutes are up and then continue. Facebook have 18 rate limiting as well, although I do not recall any 19 specific document from Facebook that stipulated
20 precisely their rate limiting. But I do know that 21 they do rate limit and that we had to ensure that 22 our program did not ask Facebook too quickly for 23 data or else no data would be returned.

24 MS. MEHTA: Objection; move to strike,

1 nonresponsive.

01:56:19

2 Q. Does the -- or did the Facebook Statement
3 of Rights and Responsibilities have anything, any 4 provisions in it regarding rate limiting?

01:56:21

01:56:23

01:56:27

5 MS. MEHTA: Objection --

01:56:31

6 A. I don't --

01:56:33

7 MS. MEHTA: Hold on. Objection; vague,
8 foundation, calls for speculation, purports to call
9 for expert testimony from a lay witness, and 10 irrelevant.

01:56:33

01:56:33

01:56:37

01:56:40

11 A. I don't recall the phrase rate limiting in 12 the Statement of Rights and Responsibilities, but I
13 do know that in the Statement of Rights and 14 Responsibilities they do refer to limiting. Whether 15 that refers to the volume of data or the velocity of 16 data or both, I don't know.

01:56:44

01:56:46

01:56:50

01:56:51

01:56:54

01:57:00

17 Q. And do you still have Exhibit 1 in front
18 of you?

01:57:04

01:57:07

19 A. I do.

01:57:07

20 Q. Is it open to page 21?

01:57:09

21 A. Oh, yes.

01:57:10

22 Q. And again on the previous page 20, this is 23 section nine entitled Special Provisions Applicable
24 to Developers/Operators of Applications and

01:57:13

01:57:17

01:57:22

1 Websites, correct? 01:57:25

2 A. Uh-huh. 01:57:26

3 Q. And then on page 21, number nine up there 01:57:27

4 at the top states, "we can limit your access to 01:57:30

5 data." Do you see that? 01:57:33

6 A. Yes. 01:57:35

7 Q. What is your understanding or what was 01:57:37

8 your understanding of what that meant when you read 01:57:37

9 it the first time? 01:57:40

10 MS. MEHTA: Hold on. Objection; vague, 01:57:42

11 foundation, calls for speculation, calls for a legal 01:57:43

12 conclusion, expert testimony from a lay witness, and 01:57:47

13 irrelevant. 01:57:49

14 A. When I read that phrase, which was 01:57:53

15 important to me because I obviously wanted to abide 01:57:55

16 by the rights and responsibilities -- I didn't want 01:57:59

17 them to, you know, revoke my access or restrict my 01:58:02

18 access -- I assumed that that meant that they can 01:58:09

19 either limit -- as in give me only so much data -- 01:58:15

20 in terms of volume or rate limit, as in only give it 01:58:19

21 to me so fast. 01:58:24

22 Q. And what is it about that sentence that 01:58:25

23 led you to believe that that's what it meant? 01:58:31

24 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 01:58:35

1 A. Nothing really. I mean, the word limit is 01:58:36
2 there, but also it's not the sentence that gave me 01:58:39
3 that impression. It's the fact that I 01:58:42
4 download social network data from a variety of 01:58:44
5 sources and that I was interpreting this in line 01:58:48
6 with the similar statements from Twitter or LinkedIn 01:58:52
7 or other platforms -- Reddit, for example -- that 01:58:56
8 also limit data in specific ways. 01:59:00

9 Q. Did the word limit have particular 01:59:04
10 significance to you? 01:59:07

11 MS. MEHTA: Same objections, asked and 01:59:09
12 answered. 01:59:10

13 A. You mean, to the extent that it made me 01:59:12
14 think of rate limiting or limiting by volume? 01:59:16

15 Q. Did you understand when you read this 01:59:20
16 sentence that we're talking about that it gave 01:59:21
17 Facebook the right to terminate access to data at 01:59:25
18 some period in time? 01:59:31

19 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 01:59:33

20 A. So not in this statement. This statement 01:59:34
21 to me seems like -- that they could slow down data. 01:59:37
22 And also as my work evolved and I'm sort of using 01:59:40
23 Facebook more for more kinds of data, that just 01:59:48
24 reinforced my understanding of that. So the fact 01:59:54

1 that they said, we'll only give you 5,000 01:59:58
2 friendships at a time, or that you can only do, I 02:00:01
3 believe, 60 queries in 60 seconds. I think that's 02:00:04
4 their rate limit. I don't -- I can't confirm that. 02:00:08
5 But that's -- so the fact that they had limited data 02:00:12
6 in some ways and that they said that they limit 02:00:15
7 access to data, that just seemed to make sense to 02:00:20
8 me. 02:00:24

9 Q. At any point in time, say, up until the 02:00:24
10 date of this document, which is December of 2012, 02:00:29
11 did you have an understanding that Facebook was 02:00:33
12 reserving the right to cut off access to data 02:00:37
13 completely? 02:00:41

14 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 02:00:43

15 A. I do not know if I had read anywhere in 02:00:46
16 particular that that's the case, but I had assumed 02:00:49
17 that if you did not abide by these terms and 02:00:52
18 conditions, they would revoke your developer key. 02:00:55
19 The developer key is what allows you to talk to 02:00:59
20 Facebook. And so I had assumed that at some point, 02:01:02
21 if you don't abide by these conditions, they would 02:01:03
22 revoke that. 02:01:07

23 Q. What was your understanding if you did 02:01:09
24 abide by their rules and regulations? 02:01:11

1 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 02:01:15

2 A. That I would -- that developers would be 02:01:16
3 treated fairly, that they would be able to access 02:01:19
4 the data that is stipulated by Facebook as being 02:01:21
5 accessible. 02:01:26

6 Q. And you've testified a little bit about 02:01:29
7 two apps that you developed. What were the names of 02:01:33
8 those apps? 02:01:38

9 A. One is call NameGenWeb and that's -- the 02:01:39
10 reason it's called that is because in social network 02:01:42
11 analysis, the technique for eliciting friendships is 02:01:47
12 called a name generator. And so I'd say, how many 02:01:51
13 people do you know? How many people do you know 02:01:55
14 that are important to you? That's a name generator 02:01:57
15 question. So this being an online version of that, 02:02:00
16 I called it NameGenWeb. 02:02:03

17 The other application is called College 02:02:07
18 Connect, and that's because it's about connecting 02:02:08
19 people to their friends in such a way that they 02:02:15
20 could learn more about colleges. 02:02:19

21 Q. Just to put a timeframe on this, 02:02:22
22 approximately when did you develop NameGenWeb? 02:02:24

23 A. So NameGenWeb started in -- definitely at 02:02:28
24 least in 2008. While I was still at the University 02:02:32

1 it as? 02:06:50

2 MS. MEHTA: Objection; foundation, 02:06:51

3 speculation. 02:06:51

4 A. So I'm not entirely sure if your mean this 02:06:54

5 but -- 02:06:58

6 Q. Let me ask a different question. 02:06:59

7 A. Sure. 02:07:00

8 Q. Are you familiar with something call Graph 02:07:00

9 API Version 2? 02:07:02

10 A. Two, yes. 02:07:05

11 MS. MEHTA: Objection; leading. 02:07:06

12 A. I am familiar with Graph API Version 2. 02:07:07

13 Q. And what is your understanding of what 02:07:09

14 Graph API Version 2 or 2.0 is? 02:07:11

15 MS. MEHTA: Objection; foundation, 02:07:15

16 speculation, purports to call for expert testimony 02:07:15

17 from a lay witness, and irrelevant. 02:07:19

18 A. So what they announced in 2014 was Graph 02:07:22

19 API 2.0. Previously, when I was discussing a change 02:07:27

20 in 2010, that was Graph API 1.1. Graph API 2.0 is 02:07:31

21 the change or the ensemble of changes to the way 02:07:38

22 that a application can talk to Facebook that led to 02:07:43

23 the sort of way I couldn't do my work anymore. 02:07:47

24 Q. And just so that the record is clear, can 02:07:52

1 you explain, what was it about this announcement 02:07:55
2 that caused you not to be able to do your work 02:07:59
3 anymore? 02:08:02

4 MS. MEHTA: Objection; assumes facts not 02:08:03
5 in evidence and same objections as prior. 02:08:05

6 A. The announcement didn't prevent me from 02:08:08
7 doing my work. The changes prevented me from doing 02:08:12
8 my work. They happened a year later. So I still 02:08:13
9 had one year where both NameGenWeb was available and 02:08:16
10 College Connect was available. But the changes, 02:08:22
11 when they happened, they prevented me from accessing 02:08:24
12 friendship relations on behalf of a user. 02:08:30

13 Q. And what changes took effect in April of 02:08:34
14 2015? 02:08:38

15 A. So in April of 2015, that was the changes. 02:08:38
16 First of all, it required the get friends 02:08:42
17 permission, but that's okay. We could have, you 02:08:44
18 know, just added that permission in if it gave the 02:08:47
19 equivalent data, but it did not give the equivalent 02:08:51
20 data. Instead, it only gave data about friends that 02:08:54
21 also authorized an application. 02:08:58

22 So as an example, you could see -- so 02:09:00
23 let's say I want to make a wedding planner. Before, 02:09:04
24 you could, say, have a whole list of a person's 02:09:08

1 friendships and then you could select which one's 02:09:13
2 going to be the photographer, which ones' going to 02:09:15
3 be the bridesmaids, and which ones are invited or 02:09:17
4 not invited. Now, if you wanted to do a wedding 02:09:21
5 planner, you would have to say, hey, every single 02:09:24
6 one of my friends on Facebook, please add this 02:09:28
7 application so that I can make a wedding planner. 02:09:31

8 Q. Why is that a problem? 02:09:36

9 MS. MEHTA: Objection; purports to call 02:09:38
10 for expert opinion from a lay witness, irrelevant, 02:09:39
11 foundation, speculation. 02:09:41

12 A. For the case of a wedding planner, it 02:09:45
13 would be a minor inconvenience perhaps. It would 02:09:48
14 slow the app down. It would make it somewhat 02:09:55
15 inconvenient. In my case, where I'm trying to show 02:09:57
16 all of a user's friends or almost all of a user's 02:10:02
17 friends back to that user, there is no reasonable 02:10:04
18 way that I would be able to spam a user's friends to 02:10:08
19 say, you should also add this application so that 02:10:14
20 your friend can visualize their social network. 02:10:18
21 It's just a sort of interaction that's not very -- 02:10:21
22 not very common, not very meaningful. Just it's 02:10:24
23 something that would be inappropriate. 02:10:30

24 Facebook have themselves tried to prevent 02:10:33

1 spamming on their site. There was a time, say five 02:10:36
2 years ago, when companies like Zynga, who owned 02:10:39
3 Farmville, would post all sorts of Farmville 02:10:44
4 invitations on a person's wall. And that was 02:10:48
5 considered very distasteful and most people did not 02:10:52
6 like that. So employing that practice would only 02:10:55
7 inhibit my work either because Facebook would 02:10:59
8 perceive it as spamming or because people in a 02:11:04
9 person's social network would consider it as 02:11:07
10 inappropriate. 02:11:09

11 Q. And so what happened on April -- was it 02:11:11
12 April 30th, 2015? 02:11:14

13 A. I believe it was -- 02:11:18

14 MS. MEHTA: Objection; vague and prior 02:11:18
15 objections. 02:11:20

16 A. Yes. 02:11:20

17 Q. What happened on April 30th, 2015 with 02:11:22
18 respect to your two apps, NameGenWeb and College 02:11:27
19 Connect? 02:11:29

20 MS. MEHTA: Objection; calls for expert 02:11:31
21 opinion from a lay witness, vague, and irrelevant. 02:11:31

22 A. So approximately April 30th, 2015, if I 02:11:36
23 was to query Facebook for the friendships of an 02:11:41
24 individual or -- I mean, I'm not querying it. My 02:11:47

1 application is querying it on behalf of a user. If 02:11:50
2 my application is querying Facebook, it would return 02:11:51
3 no data. Facebook had notified myself and other 02:11:56
4 developers of this through a thing called Breaking 02:12:03
5 Changes. And so we were well aware of the fact that 02:12:06
6 our app would no longer work because our app used 02:12:11
7 queries that would no longer function. 02:12:14

8 MR. GODKIN: Let me now ask the court 02:12:18
9 reporter to mark as Exhibit Number 2 this document. 02:12:20

10 (Exhibit 2 was marked for identification 02:12:44
11 and was attached to the transcript). 02:12:45

12 Q. Placed in front of you, we've marked as 02:12:45
13 Hogan Exhibit 2, Dr. Hogan. Can you identify Hogan 02:12:49
14 Exhibit 2? 02:12:51

15 A. Yes. This is a paper that I wrote for a 02:12:52
16 conference called Quantitative Methods in the Social 02:12:55
17 Sciences 2. This conference took place at the 02:13:00
18 University of Amsterdam and this was the paper that 02:13:03
19 I submitted which was a way of introducing the 02:13:07
20 ability to represent a person's social network via 02:13:13
21 Facebook. I use this -- in this paper, I describe 02:13:19
22 how certain connections, certain friendships in my 02:13:23
23 friendship network were more important to me, more 02:13:30
24 personally important and that they could be 02:13:34

1 identified through various statistical means that 02:13:37
2 are available to social network researchers. 02:13:45

3 Q. And if you turn to -- strike that. 02:13:53

4 What is the date of this publication? 02:13:58

5 A. This publication is not dated but it -- 02:14:01

6 Q. If you look at the second page. 02:14:04

7 A. Oh, well. Yeah, I was going to say it was 02:14:07
8 December 2nd, but it's actually -- yes, it says here 02:14:07
9 December 1st, 2008. 02:14:10

10 Q. Is this the first publication that you 02:14:11
11 authored concerning Facebook -- 02:14:15

12 MS. MEHTA: Irrelevant. 02:14:19

13 Q. -- or were there other ones? 02:14:19

14 MS. MEHTA: Irrelevant. 02:14:21

15 A. It's reasonable to assume that previous 02:14:23
16 publications that I have authored, particularly one, 02:14:26
17 a book chapter called "Using Information Networks to 02:14:30
18 Elicit Social Behavior" or something to that 02:14:35
19 nature -- it's in the book the Handbook of Online 02:14:40
20 Research Methods by Fielding, Lee, and Blank -- it's 02:14:43
21 reasonable to assume that I would have mentioned 02:14:50
22 Facebook in that document. But this is the first 02:14:53
23 document where I am doing research explicitly on 02:14:57
24 Facebook. 02:15:01

1 Q. At the time you wrote this article, do you 02:15:03
2 know approximately how many people were using 02:15:07
3 Facebook as a social network? 02:15:10

4 MS. MEHTA: Objection; foundation, calls 02:15:13
5 for speculation, purports to call for expert opinion 02:15:14
6 from a lay witness. 02:15:17

7 A. Approximately this time, I believe around 02:15:20
8 170 to 200 million people were -- had joined 02:15:25
9 Facebook. It may be more. 02:15:29

10 Q. On the second page of the article, there's 02:15:35
11 a Roman numeral three which is entitled Other 02:15:42
12 Network Data Available Through Facebook. Do you see 02:15:46
13 that? 02:15:50

14 A. Yes, I do. 02:15:50

15 Q. At then at the top of the second column, 02:15:51
16 item number one is photos. 02:15:52

17 A. Yes. 02:15:55

18 Q. Were photos a type of data that was made 02:15:56
19 available on the Facebook platform? 02:16:02

20 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 02:16:05

21 A. Yes, that is the case. Photo data was 02:16:06
22 available, and you can see here I've discussed 02:16:07
23 various applications other than mine that have used 02:16:11
24 that data. 02:16:13

1 Q. And did you ever use photos in any of your 02:16:14
2 applications? 02:16:18

3 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 02:16:21

4 A. I used profile photos in one of my 02:16:22
5 research endeavors. It was not by me in particular 02:16:25
6 but it was by a student I had mentored. 02:16:29

7 Q. And who was that student? 02:16:33

8 A. Her name was Nina Jones and she was a high 02:16:33
9 school student. I was approached in, I believe, 02:16:35
10 2011 by the BBC. They were running -- 02:16:39

11 Q. British Broadcasting Company? 02:16:44

12 A. Yes, by the British Broadcasting Company, 02:16:47
13 sort of a major broadcaster in the United Kingdom, 02:16:49
14 and they have both television channels -- BBC1, 02:16:53
15 BBC2 -- and radio stations -- Radio 1 and so forth. 02:16:58
16 Radio 4 is their station for like news, current 02:17:03
17 affairs, scientific programs, documentaries. Radio 02:17:08
18 4 was running a program called So You Want To Be A 02:17:12
19 Scientist, and people would apply to be a scientist. 02:17:15
20 It was a competition. The lady who won it found out 02:17:21
21 how far snails go before they can return -- before 02:17:25
22 they know -- to lose their way. 02:17:31

23 Nina was also in this competition and she 02:17:32
24 made it to the finals. Her project was analyzing 02:17:33

1 Facebook profile photos. So these profile photos, 02:17:38
2 she coded them for whether people were smiling, 02:17:43
3 whether there were even people in the photos, or 02:17:45
4 there were cartoons and so forth. And then we did 02:17:48
5 an analysis to reveal some features about these 02:17:50
6 photos. And so for example, we found that women 02:17:54
7 were more likely to smile in their photos than men. 02:17:56

8 Q. And were you her supervisor or mentor or 02:18:01
9 what were you? 02:18:05

10 A. I was her mentor through this. She was a 02:18:06
11 high school student. The purpose of this program 02:18:08
12 was to help laypeople who don't have an experience 02:18:11
13 or background in science to accomplish a scientific 02:18:15
14 proposal. 02:18:19

15 Q. Back at the sentence we were looking at -- 02:18:21
16 or the item regarding photos, you wrote, "Facebook 02:18:24
17 does not merely enable individuals to upload photos 02:18:27
18 but to tag these photos with other individuals who 02:18:30
19 are present in the photos." What was the 02:18:33
20 significance of that? 02:18:35

21 MS. MEHTA: Objection; vague, foundation, 02:18:40
22 speculation, and irrelevant. 02:18:41

23 A. Part of this work was to introduce the 02:18:51
24 opportunity to do research on Facebook and to 02:18:54

1 indicate -- partially to justify why I'm doing this. 02:19:00
2 At this point, people would say, why are you doing 02:19:04
3 work on Facebook? It's just an online website. 02:19:05
4 It's not important like real life, or something like 02:19:09
5 that. These days we tend to assume Facebook is a 02:19:10
6 part of real life. 02:19:15
7 So in that, I introduced not only the work 02:19:16
8 that I was doing but also to highlight other work 02:19:19
9 that was being done on Facebook. In academic work, 02:19:24
10 we call this part of our literature review. That 02:19:27
11 way, we have to show that we're part of a field and 02:19:31
12 not just doing whatever we feel like. Previously, 02:19:34
13 there was a paper that has used photos on Facebook 02:19:36
14 and used the fact that individuals could be 02:19:41
15 identified in photos on Facebook in order to 02:19:43
16 generate scientific insights. So the insight that 02:19:45
17 they generated in this paper, the insight that I 02:19:45
18 refer to, is the fact that you may have many 02:19:52
19 friendship relations, hundreds even, but people tend 02:19:56
20 to have many fewer people identified in their own 02:20:00
21 photos and that that was an interesting insight at 02:20:04
22 the time. 02:20:08
23 Q. And then turn if you would to page number 02:20:10
24 four of your article. 02:20:25

1 A. Okay, I see that, yes.

02:20:27

2 Q. You see that? And there's -- you have
3 section five entitled Employing the Facebook API.

02:20:28

02:20:30

4 A. Yes.

02:20:36

5 Q. And you state "the Facebook API is
6 designed to facilitate access to data about a user
7 and the user's friends." Can you explain what you
8 meant by that?

02:20:36

02:20:38

02:20:44

02:20:49

9 MS. MEHTA: Objection; irrelevant.

02:20:51

10 A. Well, that sentence means that -- or the 11 intent of me saying that is indicating that Facebook
12 have put in place a mechanism by which an 13 application can legitimately receive data from 14 Facebook. This is important to state because at the 15 time there were many questions about whether you
16 could access data from Facebook, first, and second
17 of all, what are the appropriate ways to do it. So
18 some people were trying to get data by, say,
19 photographing what's on the screen or downloading
20 what's on the screen, which is called screen
21 scraping. People were trying to use all sorts of 22 hacks to get into Facebook. But this I had 23 considered because it was based on the Statement of 24 Rights and Responsibilities and because it was so

02:20:54

02:21:00

02:21:04

02:21:07

02:21:12

02:21:15

02:21:18

02:21:21

02:21:24

02:21:27

02:21:31

02:21:35

02:21:38

02:21:42

02:21:43

1 clearly laid out that the Facebook API was the sort
2 of preferred way to get data.

3 Q. And then you go on in this paragraph to 4 talk about queries which we discussed earlier --

5 A. Yes.

6 Q. -- correct? And one of them -- you
7 mentioned FQL.

8 A. Uh-huh.

9 Q. Do you see that?

10 A. Yes.

11 Q. Which is a restricted variant of the 12 commonly used SQL; correct?

13 A. Uh-huh.

14 Q. You need to say yes or no.

15 A. Yes.

16 Q. Sorry, Dr. Hogan. And then you drop a
17 footnote, "Special thanks are extended to Cameron
18 Marlow for providing guidance on this query." Do
19 you see that?

20 A. Yes, I see that.

21 Q. Now, is that the same Cameron Marlow that 22 you testified about earlier --

23 A. That is correct.

24 Q. -- who worked for Facebook?

1 A. At that time, he was indeed working for
2 Facebook.

3 Q. And you contacted him to get information
4 about how to improve your queries?

5 MS. MEHTA: Objection; asked and answered,
6 irrelevant.

7 A. I contacted Cameron Marlow telling him
8 that I was, you know, exploring how to represent a 9 network on Facebook and that I was using the get
10 friends endpoint, that this was pretty slow. It
11 didn't make for a very appealing user experience.
12 At that point, you could say yes, get my friendship
13 network and you'd have to wait like, you know, half
14 an hour or an hour. This way sped it up
15 considerably, down to less than a minute. That was 16 provided by him. It did not work. He -- it's worth
17 noting that he said to me, as I recall -- although I
18 cannot provide the email; I assume it's --
19 there's -- I don't have a record of it but I'm 20 assuming maybe he might -- that he said this might 21 work.

22 It turns out that did not work as 23 intended, that -- because of the 5,000 limit, the 24 fact that you can only get 5,000 friends. So I had

1 to modify this query slightly. In later 02:23:56
2 presentations, I have presented a modified version 02:24:00
3 of this query. However, I would not have arrived at 02:24:03
4 that modified version had I not seen this initial 02:24:07
5 query. The query is quite funny looking and it's 02:24:11
6 that funny bit about select in, select where, select 02:24:15
7 stuff which I was not an expert on, and that was 02:24:18
8 what really helped. It made a material difference 02:24:23
9 in my capacity to download these friendship 02:24:26
10 relations. 02:24:28
11 MS. MEHTA: Objection; move to strike, 02:24:30
12 nonresponsive. 02:24:31
13 Q. And then if you turn to page six of this 02:24:32
14 publication, there's a Figure 1. 02:24:35
15 A. Yes. 02:24:38
16 MR. GODKIN: And then let me ask the court 02:24:40
17 reporter to mark as Exhibit 3 this document. 02:24:41
18 (Exhibit 3 was marked for identification 02:24:42
19 and was attached to the transcript.) 02:24:42
20 Q. And can you identify Exhibit 3? 02:25:02
21 A. Yes. Exhibit 3 is a -- this is a visual 02:25:06
22 representation of my social network, which is to say 02:25:09
23 those things I was talking about earlier, dots and 02:25:14
24 lines. Each dot represents a person and the lines 02:25:17

1 represent the friendships between those people. 02:25:21
2 This is a visualization of my social network that 02:25:24
3 uses certain technical principles in order to kind 02:25:28
4 of group people together. And in doing so, it makes 02:25:34
5 the visualization sort of tidy and helps me identify 02:25:38
6 clusters of people, such as one cluster, which is -- 02:25:43
7 say, that's my high school friends and they're all 02:25:46
8 connected to each other, and my family and they're 02:25:48
9 all connected to each other. 02:25:49

10 Q. And Exhibit 3 is the same as Figure 1 in 02:25:52
11 the article, Exhibit 2; is that right? 02:25:56

12 A. This is correct. It is a -- just a -- 02:25:59
13 simply it's just a larger version of that one. 02:26:00

14 Q. And what is the significance of the lines 02:26:04
15 going between the clusters? 02:26:07

16 A. So each line in this document represents a 02:26:09
17 friendship. So this would be one person here -- 02:26:14
18 that's my partner, and that right there -- and I met 02:26:18
19 my partner during undergraduate, and that's high 02:26:20
20 school. And so my partner knows people that I know 02:26:23
21 from high school, but my partner knows lots and lots 02:26:27
22 of people in undergraduate and also knows some 02:26:30
23 people in graduate school and so forth. So each 02:26:31
24 line is a friendship on Facebook that creates this 02:26:35

1 picture. 02:26:38

2 Q. It's a connection, if you will? 02:26:39

3 A. It is explicitly the friendship that you 02:26:42
4 get between two people on Facebook if you request to 02:26:48
5 be someone's friend and then they accept. That 02:26:51
6 connection can signify all sorts of things. It 02:26:56
7 could be a relationship -- people can befriend other 02:27:00
8 people because they want to appear popular or 02:27:04
9 because they feel social pressure. I can't tell you 02:27:05
10 the reasons why any two people are friends here, but 02:27:08
11 I can tell you that the connections themselves are 02:27:12
12 the data that comes from Facebook. 02:27:14

13 Q. And does Exhibit 3 represent the Facebook 02:27:20
14 data before or after April 30th, 2015? 02:27:26

15 A. Oh, this represents the sort of -- so this 02:27:35
16 is what I was referring to earlier. In this 02:27:37
17 document, you might see that -- and it's beforehand. 02:27:39
18 Before April 30th, all these people and their 02:27:43
19 friendship relations would be accessible to the 02:27:47
20 user. This is me. This is my friendship relations. 02:27:51
21 Every one of these people have been aware of this 02:27:52
22 document. I have posted versions of this on my 02:27:56
23 Facebook wall. My friends have commented on it and 02:28:01
24 so forth. After April 30th, I would have to ask 02:28:02

1 every single one of these people to add an 02:28:05
2 application just so I could make a picture like 02:28:08
3 this, and realistically that would never happen. 02:28:12

4 Q. Put that aside. 02:28:17

5 Have you ever visited Facebook's offices? 02:28:23

6 A. I have. 02:28:31

7 Q. And what was the -- strike that. 02:28:33

8 When did that happen? 02:28:33

9 A. That happened twice. The first time that 02:28:36
10 happened was when I was at a -- that happens -- 02:28:37

11 apologies, that happened three times. The first 02:28:43

12 time, I was -- it was probably 2012, 2013. I had 02:28:48

13 met with a user experience researcher named Paul 02:28:56

14 Adams and a researcher named Eytan Bakshy. We met 02:29:00

15 over lunch because I was in the area. 02:29:07

16 Paul Adams at the time was a user 02:29:10

17 experience researcher at Facebook who had used some 02:29:12

18 of my methodologies for capturing network data to do 02:29:15

19 pretests, particularly pretests when he was at 02:29:20

20 Google. And so he knew who I was and so he -- I 02:29:24

21 contacted him and he said, yeah, sure, come down to 02:29:28

22 Menlo. And I had lunch with him and Eytan. It was 02:29:32

23 the first time I had met Eytan Bakshy, but we had 02:29:35

24 previously been mutually aware of each other's work. 02:29:38

1 A. No.

02:55:10

2 Q. Did you ever get notice that College
3 Connect was in violation of any Facebook policies,
4 for example?

02:55:11

02:55:14

02:55:16

5 A. No.

02:55:19

6 Q. Did you ever get notices that Facebook had 7 received complaints regarding College Connect?

02:55:19

02:55:22

8 MS. MEHTA: Objection; irrelevant.

02:55:30

9 A. No.

02:55:30

10 Q. Okay. Can you estimate the amount of 11 money that was invested to create the app before you
12 learned that Facebook was turning off access to the 13 data?

02:55:31

02:55:35

02:55:39

02:55:44

14 MS. MEHTA: Objection; vague and also
15 irrelevant.

02:55:46

02:55:47

16 A. Well, the -- there is obviously the 17 initial hundred thousand dollars that was outlaid.
18 That was -- that did not pay for the amount of time
19 that the academics had put into it, their own time
20 paid at their rates. It did not take into account
21 the in-kind support of my department, my 22 department's IT team, the server infrastructure. So 23 on top of the hundred thousand which was used for 24 development efforts, our trip to Detroit for field

02:55:48

02:55:51

02:55:53

02:56:00

02:56:02

02:56:07

02:56:08

02:56:12

02:56:15

1 testing, our designer, there would probably be 02:56:19
2 another hundred thousand of in-kind support in terms 02:56:23
3 of time spent by myself and other colleagues on this 02:56:25
4 application. 02:56:29

5 Q. All right. Thank you. 02:56:31

6 MR. GODKIN: Let me ask the reporter to 02:56:32
7 mark as the next exhibit this document. This is 02:56:34
8 Hogan Exhibit 5. 02:56:36

9 (Exhibit 5 was marked for identification 02:56:54
10 and was attached to the transcript.) 02:56:55

11 Q. I've placed in front of you what's been 02:56:56
12 marked as Hogan Exhibit 5. Dr. Hogan, can you 02:56:59
13 identify this exhibit? 02:57:01

14 A. This appears to be a story on Facebook 02:57:05
15 describing the changes that happened when they 02:57:10
16 shifted towards Graph API 2.0. 02:57:14

17 Q. And what was the significance of this 02:57:19
18 announcement to the apps you had developed? 02:57:24

19 MS. MEHTA: Objection; lacks foundation 02:57:29
20 and also irrelevant. 02:57:30

21 A. This particular document, if -- as I 02:57:33
22 understand it, because it is describing the changes 02:57:36
23 in Graph API 2.0 and other subsequent changes -- 02:57:41
24 would indicate that there were changes to the API. 02:57:49

1	a heading, "A more stable platform with Versioning	03:01:26
2	and Graph API 2.0." Do you see that?	03:01:31
3	A. Uh-huh.	03:01:34
4	Q. Yes?	03:01:34
5	A. I see that, yes.	03:01:35
6	Q. And then it goes on to talk about	03:01:37
7	important new elements of Graph API 2.0 at the	03:01:42
8	bottom of the page.	03:01:43
9	A. That is -- I see that, yes.	03:01:45
10	Q. And then at the top of the next page, it	03:01:47
11	says, "In addition to the above, we were removing	03:01:50
12	several rarely used API endpoints; visit our	03:01:54
13	changelog for details."	03:01:58
14	A. Yes.	03:02:01
15	Q. Do you see that?	03:02:01
16	A. I see that.	03:02:03
17	MS. MEHTA: Objection; foundation.	03:02:03
18	MR. GODKIN: Okay. That he sees it?	03:02:06
19	MS. MEHTA: What -- the highlighting	03:02:08
20	that's on this version in gray --	03:02:10
21	MR. GODKIN: I don't know.	03:02:11
22	MS. MEHTA: -- is that your highlighting	03:02:12
23	or is that original to the document?	03:02:13
24	MR. GODKIN: I can't answer that.	03:02:17

1 MS. MEHTA: Okay. I object to the use of 03:02:18
2 highlighted documents. This isn't the form in which 03:02:19
3 the document was produced. 03:02:21

4 BY MR. GODKIN 03:02:22

5 Q. Do you see any explanation of what the 03:02:26
6 several rarely used API endpoints are that appear on 03:02:30
7 this page of Exhibit 5? 03:02:36

8 MS. MEHTA: Objection; lacks foundation. 03:02:38

9 A. I do not see that stipulated here. I do 03:02:41
10 recall myself reviewing the changelog for the 03:02:43
11 details. 03:02:48

12 Q. And the changelog appears in Exhibit 5 -- 03:02:48

13 A. Oh, okay. 03:02:53

14 Q. -- farther back, does it not? 03:02:53

15 MS. MEHTA: Objection; lacks foundation. 03:02:55

16 A. Do you see the page with -- 03:02:57

18 Q. -- page 80 at the bottom? It says 03:02:59
19 Facebook Platform Changelog at the top. Do you see 03:03:02
20 that? 03:03:04

21 A. I do see that, yes. 03:03:05

22 Q. And then if you turn -- well, what is a 03:03:07
23 changelog, in your understanding? 03:03:13

24 MS. MEHTA: Objection; purports to seek 03:03:15

1 expert testimony from a lay witness, lacks

03:03:17

2 foundation. It's also irrelevant.

03:03:19

3 A. So I look to the changelog because that's

03:03:21

4 where, as I understand it, applications, especially

03:03:24

5 Facebook, introduce new changes to the API. As I

03:03:28

6 have -- I had at that point been an app developer, I

03:03:33

7 would see in those changelog whether there was

03:03:41

8 anything of consequence to my applications. And so

03:03:43

9 for me, the changelog is a list of all those

03:03:47

10 changes. They're often very tedious.

03:03:49

11 Q. Did you review the changelog that appears

03:03:52

12 as part of Hogan Exhibit 5?

03:03:55

13 A. Yes. Well, I certainly recall reviewing

03:03:58

14 the changelog in version 2.0 on -- for example, they

03:04:03

15 do a lot of changes every time -- every time they

03:04:08

16 make any sort of new changes to Facebook. I do

03:04:14

17 unambiguously remembering reviewing this right here.

03:04:20

18 Q. Which page are you looking at?

03:04:26

19 A. I'm looking at page -- it says 91 at the 03:04:29

20 bottom of it.

03:04:31

21 Q. And -- all right -- what is it that causes

03:04:34

22 you to remember unambiguously that you reviewed this

03:04:36

23 one?

03:04:40

24 A. Unambiguously, I remember the -- under

03:04:41

1 Facebook Login at the center of the page, the second 03:04:45
2 and third bullets. "Friend list is no longer part 03:04:49
3 of the default permission set and has its own 03:04:53
4 permission." That's what I was describing earlier. 03:04:56
5 I also remember -- and this is the crucial one for 03:04:59
6 me -- "Friend list now only returns friends who also 03:05:01
7 use the app." Both of those are of material 03:05:05
8 consequence to my applications. 03:05:09

9 MS. MEHTA: Objection. 03:05:15

10 Q. In what regard? 03:05:15

11 MS. MEHTA: Objection; move to strike the 03:05:15
12 prior response as nonresponsive. Object to the 03:05:15
13 current question as seeking irrelevant information. 03:05:19

14 A. These two bullet points right here meant 03:05:24
15 that my applications, NameGenWeb and College 03:05:28
16 Connect, could no longer access a list of friends 03:05:32
17 and so therefore they could no longer represent 03:05:37
18 those friends to the user. They just couldn't work. 03:05:42

19 Q. If you move on to page -- with the number 03:05:45
20 93 at the bottom, there's a section entitled 03:05:52
21 Permissions. Do you see that? 03:05:56

22 A. Yes, I see that. 03:06:00

23 Q. And then at the very bottom, new 03:06:02
24 permissions in version 2.0. Do you see that? 03:06:03

1 A. Yes, I do.

03:06:06

2 Q. And then turn to the next page, page 94,
3 permissions no longer available in version 2.0. Do
4 you see that?

03:06:07

03:06:08

03:06:13

5 A. I do.

03:06:14

6 Q. Do you recall reviewing the permissions
7 that were no longer available in version 2.0?

03:06:14

03:06:17

8 A. I absolutely do.

03:06:20

9 Q. And did these -- did the removal of these 10 permissions have any significance to your apps?

03:06:22

03:06:25

11 MS. MEHTA: Objection; irrelevant.

03:06:30

12 A. So as I talked about earlier, College
13 Connect highlights which schools an individual user
14 on Facebook had gone to. So if you have a series of 15 friends on Facebook, you could see which -- see
16 which schools they went to. That would be, here,
17 the permission friends_education_history. The 18 friends_education_history permission that has been 19 removed was one that I had used in my applications.

03:06:31

03:06:34

03:06:37

03:06:42

03:06:44

03:06:49

03:06:57

03:07:00

20 Q. And so the removal of that permission is 21 one of the things that caused your app not to 22 function?

03:07:04

03:07:07

03:07:09

23 MS. MEHTA: Objection; relevance.

03:07:09

24 A. Along with the list of friends, yes.

03:07:10

1 Q. Did you ever contact anyone at Facebook 03:07:18
2 after you learned about these changes in version 03:07:22
3 2.0? 03:07:26

4 MS. MEHTA: Objection; relevance. 03:07:27

5 A. I did in fact contact people at Facebook. 03:07:30

6 Q. Who did you contact? 03:07:33

7 A. Well, I should say, when I later came in 03:07:36
8 contact with people at Facebook -- as I had stated 03:07:39
9 earlier, I'm -- I was program chair of a conference, 03:07:43
10 International Conference on Web and Social Media. 03:07:51
11 It's a big conference and this conference includes 03:07:55
12 researchers from Facebook and Twitter and Google and 03:07:58
13 Microsoft in addition to academics. 03:08:02

14 Q. Does that conference take place every year 03:08:05
15 or is it -- was it a one-off? 03:08:07

16 A. That is an annual conference. 03:08:09

17 MS. MEHTA: Objection, irrelevant. 03:08:10

18 Q. And when did you become the program chair? 03:08:10

19 MS. MEHTA: Irrelevant. 03:08:10

20 A. I was the program chair for two years 03:08:12
21 in -- for the 2013 and 2014 conferences. That 03:08:15
22 allowed me to attend the conference for free and 03:08:22
23 then get a light to go to the conference. 03:08:25

24 So when I was at the conference, where 03:08:30

1 there were researchers from Facebook who I had 03:08:32
2 befriended just as colleagues, I spoke with them 03:08:35
3 about this. In fact, one of them, a lady named Dr. 03:08:40
4 Lada Adamic -- L-A-D-A, A-D-A-M-I-C -- Dr. Adamic 03:08:43
5 was -- we just bumped into each other at the 03:08:53
6 airport. And so immediately, I just turned to her 03:08:57
7 and go like, what happened? And she said, I'm so 03:09:02
8 sorry. And we didn't even identify the topic of the 03:09:05
9 conversation at this point because she knew that I 03:09:11
10 was referring to these specific changes because it 03:09:14
11 was well understood that these changes would inhibit 03:09:17
12 my applications from working. 03:09:20
13 Q. Did she work -- 03:09:23
14 MS. MEHTA: Move to -- hold on -- move to 03:09:23
15 strike, nonresponsive. 03:09:23
16 Q. Did she -- did Dr. Adamic work for 03:09:26
17 Facebook at that time? 03:09:29
18 A. At that time -- 03:09:29
19 MS. MEHTA: Objection -- objection; 03:09:31
20 foundation, relevance. 03:09:31
21 Q. Do you know whether she worked for 03:09:34
22 Facebook at that time? 03:09:35
23 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 03:09:37
24 A. At that time -- so I had known Lada for 03:09:38

1 some years. At that time, she worked for Facebook. 03:09:42
2 Prior to that, she was a professor at the University 03:09:45
3 of Michigan where she had used my app, NameGenWeb, 03:09:49
4 to teach students social networks, just like how I 03:09:52
5 said teachers around the world used my application 03:09:56
6 to show social networks. She was one of them. 03:09:59

7 Q. Can you put a date, approximate date, on 03:10:02
8 this conference and this meeting at the airport with 03:10:05
9 Dr. Adamic? 03:10:09

10 MS. MEHTA: Same objections. 03:10:09

11 A. It was in May. 03:10:10

12 Q. Of which year? 03:10:11

13 A. Of -- well, 2014. This was May or June. 03:10:13

14 I know it was very hot. It was at University of 03:10:16

15 Michigan. That information is available. But it 03:10:19

16 was -- it wasn't very long after the API changes. 03:10:21

17 It was the conference immediately following that. 03:10:24

18 Q. Okay. And can you remember anything else 03:10:27

19 about your conversation with her at the airport? 03:10:35

20 MS. MEHTA: Objection; relevance. 03:10:37

21 A. Not much really. I do remember us talking 03:10:38

22 about it. One of the things that she said to me 03:10:42

23 that had been said by a number of other academics 03:10:45

24 was that I -- she said, well, you can still access 03:10:48

1 these friendship relations if you come to Menlo and 03:10:51
2 work with us. And I replied to her that I don't -- 03:10:54
3 I don't want to just, you know, go to Facebook and 03:10:58
4 look at data at Facebook. I want to be able to show 03:10:59
5 a user their own data and so -- and then see how 03:11:02
6 that works. And so I don't think it's very fair if 03:11:05
7 I can do that inside Facebook but a regular Facebook 03:11:09
8 user cannot do that. So, I mean, I thanked her for 03:11:11
9 the offer. I thought it was very gracious. But I 03:11:16
10 was -- you know, I wanted to be able to maintain 03:11:18
11 this ability to be done outside of Facebook because 03:11:20
12 I considered this academic research and not research 03:11:24
13 for Facebook. 03:11:30

14 Q. And did you ever speak with her again on 03:11:32
15 the topic of these changes? 03:11:34

16 MS. MEHTA: Irrelevant. 03:11:37

17 A. So Dr. Adamic contacted me, I guess out of 03:11:39
18 the blue, months later. And I was actually, I 03:11:47
19 believe, hosting my relatives in Oxford at the time 03:11:52
20 and I was out somewhere. This email comes in and 03:11:57
21 she says, I'll be reviewing the API changes at -- 03:11:59
22 with Product and, you know, whether there might be 03:12:04
23 special permissions for educational use or 03:12:10
24 something. So I'd like you to tell me what you use 03:12:14

1	MS. MEHTA: Same objections.	03:23:41
2	A. That is correct.	03:23:47
3	Q. And then at the bottom of page 12, you	03:23:47
4	refer to the Open Graph API 2.0. Do you see that?	03:23:51
5	A. I do see that.	03:23:54
6	Q. And you say, "This change would prove to	03:23:56
7	be most consequential while not necessarily being	03:23:58
8	the most privacy sensitive."	03:24:02
9	A. Yes.	03:24:05
10	Q. What did you mean by that?	03:24:05
11	MS. MEHTA: Objection; purports to call	03:24:07
12	for expert testimony from a lay witness, vague,	03:24:07
13	foundation, and irrelevant.	03:24:10
14	A. So one of the reasons that were given, in	03:24:14
15	my understanding, for the removal of the friendship	03:24:21
16	permissions was that this -- that the friendship	03:24:26
17	permissions were too generous. Too many people had	03:24:28
18	access to the Facebook graph because it was part of	03:24:32
19	the basic permissions. That means any application	03:24:35
20	developer could have this. So that is probably too	03:24:38
21	generous. That's likely too generous. And so I	03:24:43
22	agree with Facebook in making it its own special	03:24:47
23	permission that you have to request and not just	03:24:50
24	giving it away for free.	03:24:53

1	However, instead of making it its own	03:24:56
2	permission and just -- instead of making its own	03:24:58
3	permission and still having the same data available,	03:25:05
4	they made it its own permission and really	03:25:09
5	drastically restricted the scope of what data was	03:25:13
6	available. So they would say that that's for	03:25:16
7	privacy reasons. But as is evident, other	03:25:18
8	applications still appear to be able to access this	03:25:23
9	data, even though it's not supposed to be available.	03:25:28

10	Q. What applications are you referring to?	03:25:31
----	--	----------

11	A. I know for a --	03:25:34
----	--------------------	----------

12	MS. MEHTA: Hold on. Objection;	03:25:34
13	irrelevant, purports to call for expert opinion from	03:25:35
14	a lay witness, foundation, speculation.	03:25:37

15	THE WITNESS: I knew that was coming for	03:25:42
16	that one.	03:25:44

17	A. So I was single for awhile and I had used	03:25:51
18	Tinder, which is an online dating application. It	03:25:55
19	shows you people that are also on Tinder in your	03:26:00
20	local area. Now, Tinder used Facebook as a login.	03:26:05
21	And so you could download your photos from Facebook	03:26:08
22	to Tinder and so that they would be available on	03:26:11
23	Tinder. And after the API change, it also showed	03:26:14
24	you -- you know, so these people that you would see	03:26:18

1 and then say this could be a prospective date. And 03:26:21
2 then you could do things like swipe left to say no, 03:26:25
3 I'm not interested or swipe right to say yes, I am 03:26:28
4 interested. 03:26:30

5 In order to make these people feel less 03:26:32
6 like strangers, there's lots of other information 03:26:36
7 there, and this information primarily comes from 03:26:38
8 Facebook. This includes whether Tinder -- this 03:26:41
9 Tinder user, who is a stranger, has friends in 03:26:46
10 common with you. So even though they have inhibited 03:26:50
11 me from showing a user their own friends, Facebook 03:26:56
12 still allow Tinder to show a complete stranger the 03:27:00
13 friends that we have in common. 03:27:06

14 MS. MEHTA: Move to strike, nonresponsive. 03:27:08

15 A. That is what I meant by saying it would be 03:27:10
16 very consequential while not necessarily being the 03:27:13
17 most privacy sensitive. 03:27:17

18 Q. Okay, thank you. Did you or have you read 03:27:20
19 any articles in the public press about Facebook 03:27:26
20 entering into some sort of a private agreement with 03:27:31
21 Tinder to make this available? 03:27:35

22 MS. MEHTA: Objection; irrelevant, 03:27:38
23 foundation, speculation. 03:27:38

24 A. I was curious as to how they had access 03:27:42

1 to -- how Facebook had -- how Tinder, sorry -- had 03:27:45
2 access to the Facebook social graph. And I was 03:27:48
3 forwarded a story that actually featured College 03:27:53
4 Connect in it. It featured my colleague, Nicole 03:27:57
5 Ellison, not myself. I was never interviewed for 03:28:00
6 that specific article. In that article, it is 03:28:05
7 quoted as saying that Tinder have had some sort of 03:28:08
8 access to Facebook. That's the only time I can 03:28:14
9 recall seeing that in print. I was surprised to see 03:28:17
10 it in print, in fact. 03:28:22

11 MR. GODKIN: Let me ask the reporter to 03:28:24
12 mark as the next exhibit this document. So this 03:28:25
13 would be ... 03:28:27

14 THE COURT REPORTER: Eight. 03:28:27

15 MR. GODKIN: Eight. 03:28:27

16 (Exhibit 8 was marked for identification 03:28:42
17 and was attached to the transcript.) 03:28:45

18 BY MR. GODKIN 03:28:45

19 Q. I've placed in front of you what we've 03:28:45
20 marked as Hogan Exhibit 8, Dr. Hogan. 03:28:45

21 A. Yes. 03:28:48

22 Q. Can you identify Exhibit 8? 03:28:49

23 A. This is the Wall Street Journal article by 03:28:51
24 Deepa Seetharaman and Elizabeth Dwoskin that I had 03:28:54

1 mentioned previously which was a document that -- 03:29:00
2 was a newspaper story describing the changes that 03:29:03
3 took place with Graph API 2.0. 03:29:09

4 Q. And this is the article that you just 03:29:13
5 testified about a few moments ago? 03:29:16

6 A. Yes, this is the article I testified a few 03:29:18
7 minutes ago that mentioned, you know, API changes 03:29:21
8 and who can still access this data. 03:29:25

9 Q. And if you turn to the third page, there's 03:29:29
10 an article in the middle -- in the middle of the 03:29:33
11 page referencing the popular dating app Tinder. Is 03:29:35
12 that what you were referring to -- 03:29:40

13 MS. MEHTA: Oh -- sorry, go ahead. 03:29:41

14 Q. -- that gave you the information that you 03:29:41
15 testified about Tinder and Facebook? 03:29:44

16 MS. MEHTA: Objection; foundation, 03:29:47
17 speculation, irrelevant. 03:29:48

18 A. Yes, this is the article in question and 03:29:51
19 that is the paragraph in question. 03:29:54

20 Q. And the next paragraph, which begins 03:29:56
21 "Facebook changes doomed College Connect, an app 03:29:59
22 aimed at helping prospective first-generation 03:30:02
23 college students find friends who attend schools or 03:30:07
24 hold jobs they are considering," correct? 03:30:11

1	A.	That is correct.	03:30:14
2	Q.	And that's your app, College Connect?	03:30:14
3	A.	That is my app.	03:30:18
4	Q.	And the next sentence references Nicole	03:30:19
5		Ellison, a University of Michigan professor, and	03:30:22
6		she's your colleague that worked with you on the	03:30:25
7		College Connect app?	03:30:28
8	A.	That is the very same Nicole Ellison.	03:30:28
9	Q.	Okay. Were you interviewed by the Wall	03:30:35
10		Street Journal for this article?	03:30:39
11	A.	I was not --	03:30:40
12		MS. MEHTA: Asked and answered.	03:30:40
13	A.	I was not interviewed by the Wall Street	03:30:42
14		Journal for this article.	03:30:42
15	Q.	Did Facebook offer College Connect the	03:30:46
16		same access to data as it apparently is giving	03:30:50
17		Tinder?	03:30:54
18		MS. MEHTA: Objection; assuming facts not	03:30:54
19		in evidence, foundation, speculation, irrelevant.	03:30:56
20	A.	To the best of my knowledge, we have not	03:31:01
21		been approached by Facebook to be given the same	03:31:04
22		level of access to data that Tinder has. The	03:31:08
23		closest to that would have been the previously	03:31:13
24		mentioned conversation with Dr. Adamic about an	03:31:16

1 educational API.

03:31:19

2 Q. Did the introduction of the changes
3 reflected in Graph API Version 2.0 have an effect on 4 your research?

03:31:21

03:31:24

03:31:30

5 MS. MEHTA: Objection; irrelevant.

03:31:32

6 A. That -- the changes made the applications
7 that I was developing or had developed cease to 8 function. So I had to change some of my research
9 agenda as a consequence. Up to that point, I
10 thought that I would be continuing on a variety of 11 work on the Facebook API moving forward. In fact,
12 as I said, we changed College Connect. We changed
13 it to be a laboratory study. In that laboratory
14 study, we showed that actually showing the Facebook
15 social graph made a real difference to who people
16 were able to nominate as their -- as good people for 17 advice.

03:31:36

03:31:42

03:31:47

03:31:52

03:31:55

03:31:59

03:32:04

03:32:07

03:32:10

03:32:13

03:32:16

03:32:22

18 So I wanted to continue on this. I have,
19 for example, a colleague at the University of 20 Swansea, Dr. Daniel Archambault, and we had put 21 together a grant to see what are the kinds of 22 visualization layouts that work best for showing
23 someone their social network. That research cannot 24 continue because we cannot see Facebook social

03:32:22

03:32:27

03:32:30

03:32:37

03:32:40

03:32:45

03:32:51

1 Q. And can I also take it that you can't
2 comment on the extent to which at all they did an 3 analysis of the Terms of Service either prior to 4 becoming developers or after becoming a developer?

04:24:25

04:24:28

04:24:31

04:24:34

5 A. Yeah, no, I don't -- no, I don't know of 6 any analysis they did.

04:24:39

04:24:41

7 Q. Okay. Let's look at Exhibit Number 8.
8 This is the Wall Street Journal article that came up
9 in your discussions with counsel for Six4Three and 10 that you testified about earlier today; is that 11 right?

04:24:53

04:24:57

04:25:10

04:25:12

04:25:14

12 A. Yes, ma'am.

04:25:14

13 Q. Okay. And during your testimony, you
14 referenced your belief that Tinder had some sort of 15 agreement with Facebook after the API change. Do 16 you recall that?

04:25:15

04:25:16

04:25:22

04:25:25

17 A. I do recall that.

04:25:26

18 Q. And you testified that your basis for that 19 is this Wall Street Journal article; is that
20 correct?

04:25:27

04:25:28

04:25:31

21 A. Not entirely. It's also my experience on 22 Tinder and my previous understanding of how the API
23 works and what APIs were available or not available
24 that led me to ponder why it was or how it was that

04:25:33

04:25:38

04:25:42

04:25:44

1 Tinder had access to data. This had confirmed for 04:25:49
2 me that the reason or the nature of that access was 04:25:53
3 because of a deal. 04:25:57

4 Q. Okay. So let's take a step back and break 04:25:58
5 that down. When you talk about your experience on 04:26:01
6 Tinder, you're discussing your experience as a user; 04:26:03
7 is that right? 04:26:06

8 A. That is correct. 04:26:07

9 Q. Okay. You don't have any knowledge as to 04:26:07
10 how the Tinder app works, correct? 04:26:09

11 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 04:26:13

12 A. As an expert in the design of social media 04:26:13
13 systems and someone who also publishes on online 04:26:19
14 dating, I have understanding of how apps work. I 04:26:25
15 don't have any factual details about decisions that 04:26:29
16 Tinder have made or have not made. 04:26:34

17 Q. Right. You've never seen the Tinder 04:26:35
18 source code, right? 04:26:38

19 A. No, ma'am. 04:26:39

20 Q. Is that correct? 04:26:40

21 A. That is correct. I have not seen the 04:26:41
22 Tinder source code. 04:26:41

23 Q. You've never talked to anyone at Tinder 04:26:42
24 about whether they have a deal or don't have a deal 04:26:45

1 with Facebook, correct?

04:26:47

2 A. I have not talked to anyone at Tinder
3 about that.

04:26:49

04:26:51

4 Q. You don't have any personal knowledge of 5 any relationship or deal or agreement between Tinder
6 and Facebook, correct?

04:26:51

04:26:54

04:26:57

7 A. My information about Tinder comes -- of a
8 deal between them comes solely from this paragraph.

04:26:59

04:27:02

9 Q. Okay. So all of the information that you
10 have about what you believe to be a deal between 11 Tinder and Facebook comes from the one paragraph of 12 the Wall Street Journal article. You don't have any 13 personal knowledge, correct?

04:27:06

04:27:08

04:27:11

04:27:15

04:27:17

14 A. It's not fair to say that entirely
15 because, again, the mere fact that they can expose
16 friends suggests that they had access to this data.
17 I know that because I have been on the app and have 18 observed that.

04:27:19

04:27:20

04:27:25

04:27:30

04:27:33

19 Q. When was the last time you were on the 20 app?

04:27:35

04:27:37

21 A. Oh, about a year ago.

04:27:37

22 Q. Okay. So my question is -- so in 2016
23 sometime?

04:27:39

04:27:41

24 A. Yes, ma'am.

04:27:41

1 Q. Okay. So my question is not what you 04:27:42
2 observed as a user of Tinder. I understand that you 04:27:45
3 are a user of Tinder -- 04:27:47

4 A. Yeah, I was. 04:27:49

5 Q. -- that's -- or were a user of Tinder. 04:27:49
6 Set that aside for a moment. My question is: Other 04:27:51
7 than what you can see as a user for Tinder and the 04:27:55
8 Wall Street Journal application, you don't have any 04:27:58
9 personal knowledge of anything -- any agreement 04:28:01
10 between Tinder and Facebook; correct? 04:28:04

11 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 04:28:07

12 A. No, I don't have any knowledge of an 04:28:07
13 agreement. All I have is the understanding that 04:28:10
14 there must be some sort of agreement. Otherwise, 04:28:14
15 Tinder would not have that data. 04:28:17

16 Q. You're assuming that they must have an 04:28:21
17 agreement. Otherwise, you wouldn't see what you're 04:28:23
18 seeing on the app. 04:28:25

19 A. I believe that that's a fair assumption. 04:28:26
20 There is no evidence to suggest that Tinder have 04:28:30
21 hacked Facebook because Tinder have used Facebook 04:28:34
22 and have been featured, you know, in Facebook 04:28:39
23 conferences and Facebook materials and vice versa. 04:28:43
24 So insofar as I have been able to observe that 04:28:47

1 Tinder and Facebook seem to get along and that 04:28:52
2 Tinder uses data from Facebook, that there must be 04:28:55
3 some sort of agreement. I am not privy to the 04:29:00
4 nature of that agreement. 04:29:04

5 Q. Okay. Let's focus in on the question, 04:29:05
6 okay? Yes or no; do you have any personal knowledge 04:29:07
7 of any agreement between Tinder and Facebook? 04:29:10

8 A. No. 04:29:14

9 Q. Yes or no; do you have any personal 04:29:18
10 knowledge as to what specific permissions Tinder has 04:29:20
11 or doesn't have from Facebook? 04:29:26

12 A. No. 04:29:29

13 Q. There was a question from Mr. Godkin as to 04:29:36
14 whether or not your app has some sort of agreement 04:29:39
15 with Facebook. Do you recall that? 04:29:44

16 A. Yes, I recall that. 04:29:46

17 Q. And you testified that you have not been 04:29:48
18 approached by Facebook with respect to a special 04:29:49
19 agreement of any kind; is that right? 04:29:54

20 A. Well, I mean, previously -- you know, I 04:29:56
21 mean, Exhibit 6 would suggest that I have been 04:29:59
22 approached about a potential special agreement 04:30:02
23 referred to as the -- some sort of academic API 04:30:06
24 program. But beyond that, I have not been 04:30:10

1 developer to Facebook, did you believe that you were 05:12:24
2 going to have full access to all of Facebook's user 05:12:27
3 data forever? 05:12:32

4 A. No, I didn't even believe I'd have access 05:12:34
5 to most of Facebook's user data. At first, I didn't 05:12:35
6 know what data I would have access to and that 05:12:41
7 through -- and this is actually relevant to this -- 05:12:44
8 through prototyping and toying around with apps and 05:12:47
9 learning about hidden things like rate limiting, I 05:12:52
10 became more clear about what data was available. 05:12:54
11 But I -- no, I mean, Facebook's data use policies 05:12:57
12 change all the time. Their API's change all the 05:13:01
13 time. So it would totally be fair for me to assume 05:13:03
14 that I did not assume -- it would be totally fair 05:13:06
15 for me to say I did not assume that I would have 05:13:07
16 access to all user data for all time. 05:13:13

17 Q. Okay. And when you first signed up to be 05:13:16
18 a developer for Facebook, did you believe that you 05:13:19
19 would have -- strike that. 05:13:21

20 When you first signed up to be a developer 05:13:22
21 for Facebook, did you believe that whatever set of 05:13:25
22 access or permissions you had at that time, you were 05:13:28
23 going to have forever? Or did you understand that 05:13:30
24 the API was going to change and that the platform 05:13:37

1 would change and that Facebook is going to evolve as 05:13:40
2 a company -- 05:13:42

3 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 05:13:43

4 Q. -- and that your ability to access data 05:13:44
5 might evolve as Facebook does? 05:13:45

6 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 05:13:46

7 A. Well, I don't really like the word 05:13:47
8 "evolve" here. Devolve may be a more accurate word. 05:13:48
9 But I do understand that that would change. 05:13:52
10 Facebook themselves change what's available in the 05:13:53
11 API. 05:13:56

12 However, it's important to distinguish 05:13:57
13 that I think there's some kind of data that's maybe 05:13:58
14 incidental. Facebook, for example, made phone 05:14:03
15 numbers available for one point and then at one 05:14:07
16 point, they didn't. That's different from core 05:14:08
17 functionality. Facebook is a social network site. 05:14:11
18 The movie based on Facebook is called the Social 05:14:15
19 Network. It calls itself a social network. So I 05:14:16
20 had pretty strong understandings that social network 05:14:21
21 data would be consistently available for a long 05:14:26
22 period of time, and I certainly acted under the 05:14:30
23 expectations that such core functionality -- so core 05:14:34
24 that it's in the basic permissions -- would still be 05:14:36

1 available for a long time.

05:14:40

2 Q. Okay. So are you -- so your testimony
3 is -- what you're telling the jury is that when you
4 signed up as a developer for Facebook, you believed
5 that you would have access to the same set of 6 permissions and data in perpetuity.

05:14:42

05:14:43

05:14:47

05:14:49

05:14:52

7 MR. GODKIN: Objection.

05:14:55

8 Q. Yes or no.

05:14:56

9 A. No, I don't think that -- no, I don't
10 think that that's a fair statement.

05:14:56

05:14:57

11 Q. Okay. So --

05:15:00

12 A. No, I don't think that in perpetuity is a 13 fair characterization.

05:15:02

05:15:05

14 Q. Okay.

05:15:06

15 A. I think a fair characterization is that I
16 would have access to core data for certainly a
17 longer time horizon than I was given.

05:15:07

05:15:09

05:15:14

18 Q. Okay. Let me ask the question this way.

05:15:17

19 Yes or no; when you signed up as a developer, did

05:15:18

20 you believe that you were going to have access to

05:15:21

21 the same set of data and permissions in perpetuity?

05:15:23

22 Yes or no.

05:15:25

23 A. No.

05:15:27

24 Q. When you signed as a developer, did you

05:15:31

1 BY MS. MILLER:

2 Q. Well, let me ask you this way: Did you
3 learn anything new from reading the complaint that you
4 did not know before?

5 A. I mean, substantively, with respect to 6 this case, I learned about this case.

7 With respect to the facts and whether they were
8 expressed accurately in that document or not, there
9 was -- I learned that there was some expression of 10 concern about when the decision was made internally to 11 change the API in some way and that -- that there was 12 some sort of discrepancy.

13 I used, since then, a link that was in that 14 document suggesting that a large number of the top
15 iPhone apps in, I guess, 2011 or 2012 -- I can't 16 recall, but it would be the single URL in there. It
17 was an infographic suggesting that they had used the 18 Facebook API. I went and looked for that infographic
19 to see if I could find the statistics myself, and 20 I could not find the original sources for them.

21 But other than that, I mean, most of what was 22 in there was public knowledge; a lot of discussions of 23 claims that were advanced by Mark Zuckerberg. Some of 24 this I had been aware of beforehand, and most of it,
25 I would say, I was aware of beforehand.

Page 183 1 absolutely no further growth in user base, product 2 development, or the additional monetization 3 Six4Three had planned, Six4Three would have obtained 4 profits amounting to 1.149569 dollars." We'll call 5 it $1.15 million. 6 THE COURT REPORTER: I'm sorry. One point? 7 MS. MILLER: One-five. 8 Q. Do you see that? 9 A. Correct. 10 Q. How did you derive that number? 11 A. In work with my investor, Mr. Scaramellino, 12 we put together a financial model based on our 13 previous results and existing user growth. 14 Q. So here you're saying, though, that this 15 number is based on no growth, correct? 16 It's -- it's -- my understanding of this, 17 and tell me if I'm wrong, is that if Six4Three had 18 4,481 users for two years and no more, 3 -- 3,963 of 19 whom had subscriptions to premium content, it would 20 have profits of $1.15 million over a two-year 21 period? 22 A. Correct. 23 MR. GODKIN: Object -- go ahead. 24 BY MS. MILLER: 25 Q. And so once a user had downloaded the app,	Page 184 1 they didn't generate any additional revenue for 2 Six4Three unless they bought premium subscription 3 service, right? 4 A. Correct. 5 Q. And so if we round up the 3,963 to 4,000 6 and multiply that by 48 months and $2 per month for 7 premium subscription -- and let's just call -- call 8 it 50 months so that we have it -- it's -- it's -- 9 it's -- the numbers are -- 10 MR. GODKIN: I take it you weren't a math 11 major. 12 BY MS. MILLER: 13 Q. So the numbers are easier, we'll say 4,000 14 users at $2 per month over 50 months. That's 15 $400,000. 16 How do you get to 1.15? 17 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 18 THE WITNESS: I would have to look at the 19 model that we presented. 20 BY MS. MILLER: 21 Q. You would agree with me, though, that based 22 solely on $2 per month per user over 48 months, you 23 cannot get to $1.15 million? 24 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 25 THE WITNESS: No, I don't.

Page 221 1 August 2014 is when we were offering free downloads? 2 Q. That period of time included offers of free 3 downloads, correct? 4 A. It included free downloads, but it did not 5 -- I can't remember if there were -- if it also 6 included paid downloads. I believe it included paid 7 downloads too. 8 Q. But you're not sure? 9 A. I'm not sure on either side of the 10 question. 11 Q. And you can't determine how many of the 12 downloads were paid downloads and how many were free 13 downloads, correct? 14 A. I'm of the belief no, that we cannot. 15 Q. If you move down to the subscription 16 revenue assumptions. Do you know where these 17 numbers came from? 18 Actually -- and I'll point you to the 19 assumption notes on the far right-hand side. 20 A. I do not. 21 Q. It says that this was based on the data 22 from the actual subscriptions from July 16th through 23 August 31st. 24 A. That's three of -- three of four of the 25 assumptions.	Page 222 1 Q. Correct. And the -- the other one is 2 August 22nd to September 30th, 2014? 3 A. That's correct. 4 Q. And you have no way of determining whether 5 or not those subscriptions were paid subscriptions, 6 correct? 7 A. I personally do not. 8 Q. And, in fact, the rates, based on the 9 information we have from the iTunes data, is quite a 10 bit lower than that for paid subscriptions? 11 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 12 THE WITNESS: They're not comparing the 13 same period, though. 14 BY MS. MILLER: 15 Q. The Apple numbers, as I understand them, 16 cover the entire period that Pikinis was available. 17 A. Correct, but this assumption does not cover 18 the entire period. 19 Q. Correct. It's much higher. And this was 20 the period when Pikinis was being offered for free, 21 including premium services for free. 22 A. Correct. It was also a period, though, 23 where we were marketing the app. 24 Q. Did you market the app after August 31st? 25 A. I believe so, yes.
Page 223 1 Q. What's that? 2 A. I believe so, yes. 3 Q. When did you stop marketing the app? 4 A. I don't remember how long our Facebook ad 5 campaign lasted. 6 Q. Why did you stop marketing the ad? 7 A. Based on our understanding, we were unsure 8 if our app would continue to function. 9 Q. That was in January of 2015? 10 A. No. We knew in January of 2015 that our 11 app would not function. We knew in August and 12 September that we needed to look into if our app 13 would function. So we decided not to allocate more 14 capital towards marketing something that potentially 15 could not exist. 16 Q. It took you from August of 2014 until 17 January of 2015 to determine that your app could no 18 longer exist? 19 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 20 THE WITNESS: We didn't know until we were 21 told directly by Facebook. 22 BY MS. MILLER: 23 Q. But you knew enough to stop marketing in 24 August of 2014? 25 MR. GODKIN: Objection.	Page 224 1 THE WITNESS: We knew we needed to conserve 2 our capital for the future of the business. 3 BY MS. MILLER: 4 Q. What did -- what did Six4Three do between 5 August 2014 and January 2015? 6 A. We continued to monitor the app's organic 7 growth and look into how we were going to be 8 affected by the changes. 9 Q. I think I previously asked you a question, 10 you have no way of determining whether or not the 11 paid -- the subscriptions listed in this chart were 12 paid subscriptions, correct? And you answered, I 13 personally do not. 14 Is there anyone at Six4Three who knows who 15 those -- who -- whether or not the subscriptions 16 were paid subscriptions? 17 A. I don't know. 18 Q. Who would possibly know that at Six4Three? 19 A. Potentially Mr. Gildea. 20 Q. Anyone else? 21 A. I don't know. 22 Q. Would Mr. Scaramellino know? 23 A. I don't know. 24 Q. I would have to ask him? 25 A. Correct.

Page 113 1 average, you probably exchanged two to three e-mails 2 with Mr. Kramer a week; is that right? 3 A. I -- I really don't know, but that seems 4 right. 5 Q. How about with Mr. Scaramellino related 6 to Six4Three and Pikinis? 7 A. Similar. Maybe one or two e-mails a 8 week. 9 Q. Did you stay in fairly consistent contact 10 with Mr. Scaramellino regarding Six4Three from 11 December 12th through July 2014? 12 A. We talked regularly, yeah. 13 Q. And Mr. Scaramellino is based in Boston; 14 is that right? 15 A. He is now based in Boston, that's right. 16 Q. Did you do anything to prepare for 17 today's deposition? 18 A. I met with my counsel. 19 Q. That's Mr. Kruzer? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. When did you meet with Mr. Kruzer? 22 A. I met with him on the previous Friday, as 23 well as yesterday afternoon. 24 Q. About how long did you meet with 25 Mr. Kruzer?	Page 114 1 A. I would say it was about an hour to an 2 hour and a half. The first meeting was maybe a little 3 -- yeah, about an hour. And our meeting yesterday was 4 about an hour and a half. 5 Q. Did you talk to anybody else about -- 6 have you talked to anybody else about this case? 7 A. There were -- for our first meeting, 8 there were other individuals present at the meeting. 9 Q. Who was present? 10 A. Mr. -- Mr. Kramer, Mr. Scaramellino, 11 Mr. Godkin, I believe. And I think that was everyone. 12 Q. And that was the meeting on Friday -- 13 A. That's right. 14 Q. -- last Friday? 15 Was that an in-person meeting? 16 A. It was a telephone meeting. 17 Q. Before last Friday had you talked to 18 Mr. Kramer about this case? 19 A. Yeah, we -- we've discussed the case. 20 Q. And I don't want you to tell me anything 21 that you discussed in the presence of attorneys, but 22 did you ever have conversations about this case 23 outside the presence of attorneys? 24 A. I don't believe so. 25 Q. What about with Mr. Scaramellino?
Page 115 1 A. No, I don't think so. 2 Q. Did you review any documents in 3 preparation for this deposition? 4 A. I reviewed the -- the documents that I 5 had turned over so that I was familiar with them. 6 Q. Anything else? 7 A. No. 8 Q. Are you being compensated for your time 9 today? 10 A. I'm not. 11 Q. Okay. Going back to the Facebook 12 Platform, when did you first hear about the Facebook 13 Platform? 14 A. I was aware of it for many years prior to 15 my involvement with Six4Three. I really can't say 16 when I first became aware of it. 17 Q. Do you think you would have heard about 18 it in 2007 when it first launched? 19 A. It's very likely, yeah. 20 Q. That was the year that you graduated from 21 college? 22 A. That's right. 23 Q. Do you know what F8 is? 24 A. Yes. 25 Q. What is it?	Page 116 1 A. It is the Facebook developer conference. 2 Q. Have you ever attended F8? 3 A. No, I haven't. 4 Q. Have you ever watched any of the online 5 videos of an F8 presentation? 6 A. I don't believe so. I may have watched 7 the -- the video of the -- I think it was the 2014 F8, 8 the Graph API 2.0 changes. Didn't watch it live and 9 I'm not sure at what time I might have watched it. So 10 I can't say that I definitively did or didn't. 11 Q. I guess what's your best guess in terms 12 of whether or not you've seen it or not? 13 MR. KRUSER: Objection. 14 THE WITNESS: I would guess that I have 15 -- have not watched it in its entirety. I did read 16 materials related to the announcements. 17 Q. BY MS. MILLER: When did you read those 18 materials? 19 A. I believe I read them in late May of that 20 year. 21 Q. And what materials were those? 22 A. I recall a -- a blog post that was posted 23 on the Facebook developer site, and I recall reading 24 some API documentation. 25 Q. Stepping back, when did you first hear

Page 117 1 about the Facebook Graph API? 2 A. I'm not sure. 3 Q. You're not sure? 4 Do you recall when you were first aware 5 that Facebook had opened up certain data endpoints, 6 including the friends data endpoints? 7 A. No, I don't know, you know, specifically 8 when I became aware of that. I know it was prior to 9 my involvement in Six4Three, but I don't have an exact 10 date. 11 Q. Do you know why you might have become 12 aware of Graph API? 13 A. It was a pretty common thing in the 14 developer community, so it was something that just 15 about everyone who was developing applications was 16 aware of. 17 Q. When you heard about Facebook Graph API, 18 did you understand that it would be periodically 19 updated? 20 A. Yes. 21 Q. And as with virtually all software, that 22 update would involve a new version number? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. When did you first use the Facebook 25 Platform SDK?	Page 118 1 A. I believe the first time I used that -- 2 well, it -- it may have been in, you know, December of 3 2012 with my work on -- with Six4Three. I can't 4 remember specifically using it prior to that, but I -- 5 I can't rule it out. 6 Q. And that was the IOS version of the SDK? 7 A. I believe at that time I was working 8 specifically with the -- the rest API, and my work 9 with the IOS SDK began later. 10 Q. And what is the rest SDK? 11 A. I don't know that there's specifically an 12 SDK, but there's an API -- 13 Q. I'm sorry -- 14 A. -- available that you can interact with 15 via HEP. 16 Q. When you were developing the Pikinis app, 17 how did you stay informed regarding changes to the 18 Facebook Platform? 19 A. I received messages periodically about 20 breaking changes to the API, none of which affected 21 our application during the time I was developing it 22 until, you know, after the application had been 23 launched. 24 Q. Other than receiving messages, did you do 25 anything else, such as go to the developer's website?
Page 119 1 A. I did. When I learned of the changes to 2 the log-in process, I went to the developer website to 3 familiarize myself with those changes. 4 Q. And those log-in changes -- 5 A. That's right. 6 Q. -- were part of the Graph API Version 2; 7 correct? 8 A. That's right, yeah. 9 Q. And that -- that change was announced in 10 -- on April 30, 2014? 11 A. Yes. 12 MR. KRUZER: Objection. 13 THE WITNESS: That's my understanding. 14 It was sometime after that that I actually 15 familiarized myself with the change that had been 16 announced. 17 Q. BY MS. MILLER: Do you know how you 18 became aware that changes had been announced? 19 A. I don't remember. 20 Q. Other than following this announcement, 21 had you otherwise reviewed the Facebook developer's 22 web page? 23 A. I would look at the documentation 24 regularly in the course of my work in software 25 development.	Page 120 1 Q. How often? 2 A. It would depend on the nature of the work 3 I was doing. You know, during times that I was 4 working directly with the Facebook API I would refer 5 to it frequently. You know, maybe every day. But 6 once I had become aware and comfortable with the 7 functionality, I no longer needed to look at the site. 8 Q. Did you ever speak with other developers 9 about the Facebook Platform from -- let's cabin this 10 to December 2012 through July 2014. 11 A. I recall reading information from other 12 developers. I'm not sure that I had actual 13 conversations with -- with other developers. 14 Q. And since July of 2014 have you had any 15 conversations with other Facebook developers about the 16 Facebook Platform? 17 A. Not personally, no. 18 Q. And in the -- I think you said May 2014 19 time period when you went to the developer's website 20 to read about Graph API Version 2, what did you find 21 out about Graph API? 22 A. As I recall, the -- the announcement 23 focused on the changes to log in, which I knew would 24 require some updates to our application. I didn't see 25 anything that was very serious. It looked like it

Page 197 1 like it was right around the same time. 2 And so sitting here today, it is not 3 clear to me which of these two versions was operative at 4 the time that we made our decision. 5 Q. I see. But it would have been either 6 Exhibit 66 or Exhibit 67? 7 A. Correct. It's one of the two. 8 Q. Okay. And the provisions that we talked about 9 relating to the special provisions applicable -- 10 applicable to developers/operators of applications and 11 Web sites, in paragraph No. 2, in terms of access and 12 use of data, that exists in both versions, right? 13 MR. All right. 19 Q. And then Exhibit 67. That's on page 3 of 7 as 20 well. 21 A. You're asking about the special provisions 22 section? 23 Q. That's right. 24 A. I believe these are identical. 25 Q. And then if you can look at Exhibit -- the --	Page 198 1 the point number 19 about we can create applications 2 that offer similar features and services to, or 3 otherwise compete with, your application, that is in 4 both Exhibit 66 and 67, right? 5 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 10 A. Yes. 11 Q. And the limitation of liability clause that we 12 discussed earlier, that limitation of liability 13 paragraph also exists in both 66 and 67, correct? 14 A. I know it exists. I can't tell you, sitting 15 here today, if the language is identical. 16 Q. But you understood when you signed on to the 17 SRRs, that there was a limitation of liability as part 18 of the contract that Six4Three was entering with 19 Facebook? 20 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 21 BY MS. MEHTA: 22 Q. Right? 23 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 24 (Witness reviewing) 25 A. Yes.

Page 203 1 MR. GODKIN: Object on. 2 BY MS. MEHTA: 3 Q. -- is that right? 4 A. That s ncorrect. 5 Q. You reached out to Facebook before April of 6 2015 to confirm that you would have access to the data? 7 MR. GODKIN: Object on. 8 A. Fr st, I d spute your use of the term 9 "perpetua ." If you can phrase your quest on w thout 10 that term, I can answer t. 11 Q. Okay. Let me ask the question this way: 12 You -- did you ever reach out to Facebook before April 13 of 2015 to confirm that Six4Three would have ongoing 14 access to Facebook's proprietary data? 15 A. I d spute your use of the term "ongo ng," but 16 the answer s yes, I d d. 17 Q. Okay. When did you do that? 18 A. I contacted a Facebook p atform emp oyee named 19 M chae Huang somet me n 2014, ate 2014, I be eve. 20 Q. Okay. So -- and we'll talk about that 21 interaction in a minute. Let me ask the question 22 differently. 23 Prior to October of 2014, did you ever 24 contact anyone at Facebook to confirm that Six4Three 25 would have ongoing access to Facebook's proprietary data	Page 204 1 for a period of 2, 5 or 10 years? 2 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 3 A. I don't know. 4 Q. You can't identify any instance in which you 5 asked that question of Facebook, right? 6 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 7 A. Is October of 2015 when I contacted 8 Michael Huang? 9 Q. Yes. 10 A. Okay. Can you show me something that 11 demonstrates that? 12 Q. We'll get to that. What I want to know is -- 13 A. Well, you're asking me to answer a question 14 that I don't know the answer to. 15 Q. I'm going to represent to you that your e-mail 16 to Michael Huang was dated October 16th, 2014. So my 17 question is: Prior to October of 2014, can you identify 18 any instance in which you or anyone associated with 19 Six4Three reached out to Facebook to confirm that you 20 would have ongoing access to Facebook's proprietary 21 data? 22 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 23 A. What do you mean by "ongoing access"? 24 Q. That you wouldn't -- that they wouldn't turn 25 off your access to Facebook's proprietary data at some

Page 205 1 point in time in the future. 2 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 3 A. Still don't know how to address the use of the 4 term "ongoing access." You're making it sound like even 5 if I were to contact a Facebook employee, I wouldn't 6 have ever contacted them stating terms like perpetual 7 access or ongoing access. It's an issue that you're 8 attempting to create here that was never considered. 9 Q. No, I'm not. You said that having access to 10 Facebook data was critical to Six4Three, right? 11 A. Correct, and then you added the term 12 perpetual. 13 Q. Okay. Let's -- let's break it down by time, 14 then. Let's take a window of five years, okay? 15 Prior to October of 2014, did you or 16 anyone on behalf of Six4Three ever reach out to Facebook 17 to confirm that Six4Three would have access to 18 Facebook's proprietary data for five years? 19 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 20 A. For five years, no. 21 Q. For 10 years? 22 A. No. 23 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 24 BY MS. MEHTA: 25 Q. For 15 years?	Page 206 1 A. No. 2 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 3 BY MS. MEHTA: 4 Q. For 20 years? 5 MR. GODKIN: Give me a chance to object. 6 Objection. 7 BY MS. MEHTA: 8 Q. For 20 years? 9 A. No. 10 Q. Prior to October of 2014, did you or anyone 11 else on behalf of Six4Three reach out to Facebook to 12 confirm that you would have access to Facebook's 13 proprietary data for any period of time? 14 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 15 A. You're asking if I e-mailed a Facebook 16 employee, correct? 17 Q. Or otherwise asked Facebook. 18 A. No. 19 Q. I'm going to hand you Exhibit No. 68. 20 (Exhibit 68 marked for identification) 21 BY MS. MEHTA: 22 Q. For the record, this is a Six4Three 892 23 through 897. 24 Do you recognize this document? 25 A. Give me one second.
Page 207 1 (Witness reviewing) 2 A. Yes, I recognize this and am familiar with it 3 now. 4 Q. Okay. And earlier in your testimony, you 5 referenced a point at which Facebook actually limited 6 the number of API calls that you could make to its 7 servers. Do you recall that? 8 A. Yes. Facebook limited our access to data on 9 July -- July 17th, it appears. 10 Q. Okay. And if you look at this document, what 11 it says is -- I'm looking at page 894. There's an 12 e-mail dated July 17, 2014, at 12:35 p.m. 13 Do you see that? 14 A. Yes. 15 Q. Okay. And that's from Mr. Gildea, right? 16 A. Yes. 17 Q. And it says, "We got API rate limited." Do 18 you see that? 19 A. Yes. 20 Q. And then it quotes from a Facebook document 21 that talks about app level rate limiting. Do you see 22 that? 23 A. Yes. 24 Q. And you're familiar with -- as of July of 25 2014, you were familiar with the fact that Facebook had	Page 208 1 policies in place to limit the API rate for app 2 developers, right? 3 A. Yes, we were familiar with that as a result of 4 our review of Section 2, provision 9, we can limit your 5 access to data. 6 Q. I understand. I understand that's your 7 position, but you also -- 8 A. I'm just answering the question. 9 Q. Well, I don't think you are. Let me -- let me 10 be clear. My question is: Did you understand that 11 Facebook could limit the API rate, have a rate limit on 12 API calls? 13 A. Yes, I understood that from the time that I 14 reviewed this agreement. (Indicating) 15 Q. Okay. And you understood -- and you're 16 pointing to the SRRs, right? 17 A. Yes. 18 Q. Now, you understand that Facebook actually has 19 a separate policy with respect to app level rate 20 limiting, right? 21 A. Correct. Facebook flushes out that policy on 22 its app level rate -- 23 Q. So -- 24 A. -- limiting page. 25 Q. -- so your position is that when Facebook has

Page 249 1 Six4Three would be able to use version 1.0 forever? 2 A. Zuckerberg stated explicitly that Six -- that 3 Six -- that companies like Six4Three would be able to 4 continue to use version 1.0 and that they would be able 5 to choose which version of the API they want to use. He 6 never said forever. There's really no such thing as 7 forever. But he certainly stated that that would be 8 provided on an equal and fair basis. 9 Q. But did you -- did you believe at that point 10 he was saying that you would be able to use version 1.0 11 for five years or 10 years? 12 A. We believed that as long as version 1.0 was 13 accessible, as long as Graph API was accessible, the 14 friends endpoints were accessible, that they would be 15 made accessible on an equal, neutral and fair basis to 16 all companies that participated in the market. 17 Q. And at the time, did you do anything to 18 evaluate how long version 1.0 would be accessible? 19 A. State the question again. Did we do 20 anything -- 21 Q. Did you do anything to investigate or 22 determine how long version 1.0 would be accessible 23 following the April 30th, 2014 announcement? 24 A. Well, Zuckerberg explicitly stated that it 25 would be remain accessible. He never put a time frame	Page 250 1 on it. 2 Q. But did you do anything to figure out how 3 long -- I mean you -- 4 A. Again, you're asking me to solve a problem we 5 don't know exists. 6 Q. Let me ask the question this way: Did you 7 believe at the time that he said that Graph API 8 version 1.0 would remain accessible, that it would 9 remain accessible for 50 years? 10 A. I don't think Zuckerberg's in a position to 11 guarantee that Facebook would exist for 50 years. 12 Q. What about 10 years? Did you think he was 13 guaranteeing version 1.0 for 10 years? 14 A. This emphasis on in perpetuity is -- is not 15 germane or relevant. As long as it is accessible, it 16 will be accessible to everyone on equal terms. At any 17 point in time, it could be made inaccessible. Facebook 18 could go out of business, for instance, but that means 19 it would be inaccessible for everyone, including for 20 Facebook to develop its own competitive applications. 21 Q. So your view was that Graph API 1.0 -- I'm 22 sorry. Strike that. 23 Your interpretation at the time of Mark 24 Zuckerberg's F8 speech was that Facebook would make 25 Graph version 1.0 available to developers for as long as
Page 251 1 Facebook itself had access to friends photos? 2 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 3 BY MS. MEHTA: 4 Q. That was your interpretation? 5 MR. GODKIN: Objection. 6 A. That is what Zuckerberg and a host of other 7 Facebook executives and employees had represented since 8 2007. 9 Q. And when you say "represented," you mean in F8 10 speeches? 11 A. Well, our review -- I didn't watch specific 12 speeches, but I read transcripts. I went to the 13 Web site. We reviewed representations. I read 14 articles. I was involved in the software development 15 community. I was aware of many representations from 16 2007 all the way through to 2014 and '15. 17 And most of these representations formed 18 a part of my general working knowledge in the software 19 business that had nothing to do with Six4Three. And so 20 at the time that Six4Three decided to even participate 21 in this market, I was already generally familiar with 22 not only, you know, these representations that had been 23 made for a very long period of time, but with many 24 companies who had participated in this ecosystem with 25 great success, including many of my friends and many of	Page 252 1 the people that I've known for quite some time. 2 Q. Can you identify any specific representation 3 made by Facebook between 2007 and 2014 that you were 4 aware of and claim to be relying on as of April of 5 2015 -- sorry. April of 2014? 6 A. Well, so I wasn't -- Six4Three was relying on 7 these representations. I wasn't relying on these 8 representations. In terms of my decision to make an 9 investment in Six4Three and my belief that that 10 investment was a wise decision and would generate a 11 return and was being made on the premise of Facebook 12 being a stable platform, yes, I could certainly identify 13 those. 14 Q. What specific representations are you saying 15 you relied on? 16 A. I mean, the most obvious one that comes to 17 mind is the Facebook platform announcement; the Facebook 18 platform FAQ -- 19 MR. GODKIN: Slow down. 20 A. -- the various developer blog posts associated 21 with the 2007 announcement; the 2010 announcement; the 22 various news articles regarding Zuckerberg and Taylor's 23 speeches at the 2010 announcement by range of 24 representations over an extended period of time. 25 Q. Do you have any documentary evidence that

What is f8?

f8 was an event held at the San Francisco Design Center on May 24, 2007, during which Mark Zuckerberg unveiled the next evolution of Facebook Platform. The event included an eight-hour "hackathon," where both Facebook engineers and outside developers collaborated on building new applications on the new Facebook Platform.

What is a "hackathon"?

A hackathon is an all-night coding event during which Facebook engineers work on any project that interests them. Facebook uses the word "hackathon" to refer to a gathering of engineers, who possess technical expertise and collaborate on innovative projects. Facebook has a tradition of holding frequent developer hackathons, which have spawned some of the most popular features and applications on the site.

What is Facebook Platform?

Facebook Platform is a development system that enables companies and developers to build applications for the Facebook website, where all of Facebook's 24 million active users can interact with them. Facebook Platform offers deep integration into the Facebook website, distribution through the social graph and an opportunity to build a business.

What is the social graph?

The social graph is at the core of Facebook. It is the network of connections and relationships between people on Facebook and enables the efficient spreading and filtering of information. Just as people share information with their friends and the people around them in the real world, these connections are reflected online in the Facebook social graph.

What is a Facebook application?

A Facebook application uses Facebook Platform to access information from the social graph, offering users an experience that's relevant to them. Facebook applications can plug into the Facebook website in a number of ways: applications can be embedded on users' profile pages, reside on their own separate pages (called "canvas" pages), or live through desktop applications using data from the Facebook social graph.

What's new in Facebook Platform?

We've been adding functionality since Facebook Platform first shipped in beta in August 2006. With the latest evolution of Facebook Platform however, third-party developers can now create applications on the Facebook site with the same level of integration as applications built by internal Facebook developers. Now developers everywhere have the ability to create Facebook applications that deeply integrate into the Facebook site, as well as the potential for mass distribution through the social graph and new business opportunities.

Why did Facebook launch Facebook Platform?

Our engineers have created great applications for Facebook, but we recognized that third-party developers can help us make Facebook an even more powerful social utility. Facebook Platform gives developers everywhere the tools to create applications that we just wouldn't have the resources to build in-house, and those applications make Facebook an even better way for our users to exchange information. Developers also benefit from Facebook Platform as it gives them the potential to broadly distribute their applications and even build new business opportunities.

What kinds of applications can be built on Facebook Platform?

The kinds of applications developers can build on Facebook Platform are limited only by their imaginations. Because applications are based on the Facebook social graph they can be more relevant to users, keeping people in touch with what and whom they care about. We've already seen a variety of applications built by our developer partners, including those for sharing media files, book reviews, slideshows and more. Some of the possibilities of Facebook applications are illustrated in the Facebook Platform Application Directory, available at <http://www.facebook.com/apps>.

Are there any restrictions on what developers can build?

Developers are encouraged to exercise their creativity when building applications. Of course, all applications are subject to the Terms of Service that every developer agrees to, which include basic requirements such as not storing any sensitive user information, not creating any offensive or illegal applications, and not building anything that phishes or spams users. And users will always have the power to report any applications that compromise Facebook's trusted environment, keeping our users' information safe.

What are the benefits of Facebook Platform for users?

With Facebook Platform, users gain the ability to define their experience on Facebook by choosing applications that are useful and relevant to them. Now that they have access to a virtually limitless set of applications from outside developers, users have an unprecedented amount of choice. They can share information and communicate with their trusted connections in ways that would never have been possible before Facebook opened its platform.

How do users add applications to and remove applications from their account?

If a user sees an application she likes on a friend's profile, she can add it to her account by clicking the "Add" link on the application's profile box. She can also add new applications by navigating to the application's specific page in the Facebook Platform Application Directory and clicking "Add Application" in the top-right corner. To remove an application, she first clicks "Applications" on the left navigation bar. From there, she can "Remove" any of the applications in her account, whether they are built by a developer partner or by Facebook.

What are the privacy controls for Facebook Platform, and what kind of user information can be shared?

On Facebook, users are always in control of their information and can choose how much of their information is made available to specific applications. With Facebook Platform, we're offering additional privacy controls and requiring that third parties treat user information with the same respect we do—and our users have come to expect. Users can also choose to completely opt out of making their data available through Facebook Platform. Applications can never violate users' basic privacy settings and are meant to provide users with a better opportunity to share their information with their friends and networks.

What do third-party applications do with user information?

Applications built by third parties are required to respect Facebook users' privacy preferences. Third-party applications allow users and their friends to share information in new ways, without affecting the security and privacy that they've always enjoyed on Facebook.

How many applications are there for Facebook Platform?

At f8, we are launching with over 85 applications from more than 65 developer partners, and that's only the beginning. We're encouraging interested developers everywhere to create Facebook applications. We have no limits on the number of applications that can be created.

What differentiates Facebook applications from widgets on other sites?

Facebook applications are deeply integrated into the site and take advantage of the network of real connections through which users share information and communicate—what we call the "social graph." Widgets are typically single-purpose Flash add-ons to a web page (i.e., displaying a single video) that are not fully integrated into a site nor are aware of the social context among users.

How will Facebook maintain its minimalist style if users can add and move applications around on their profile?

We're giving our users the choice to add applications and control their placement in their profiles, but we're not changing the essential layout and familiar style of the Facebook site. Facebook applications are focused on providing new ways to spread information on Facebook, not about redesigning the way a profile looks. For example, users will not be able to change the site background, add music that plays when their profiles load, or insert animation into their profiles. Individual applications may play media, music or animations but only when a visitor to that profile interacts with them.

How will Facebook deal with applications that compete with one another or even compete with Facebook-built applications?

We welcome developers with competing applications, including developers whose applications might compete with Facebook-built applications. Many applications are likely to offer similar features. We've designed Facebook Platform so that applications from third-party developers are on a level playing field with applications built by Facebook. Ultimately, our users will decide which applications they find most useful, and it is these applications that will become the most popular.

How will Facebook monetize Facebook Platform?

All the great applications built by our developer partners provide a service to our users and strengthen the social graph. The result is even more engaged Facebook users creating more advertising opportunities.

Can Facebook applications include ads?

We want to enable developers to build a business on their Facebook applications, so we're giving developers the freedom to monetize their applications as they like. Developers can include advertising on their applications' canvas pages, though no advertising will be allowed within the application boxes that appear within user profiles.

Are you going to share revenue with developers?

While revenue sharing is not available at launch, we are looking into ways to share advertising revenue with developers. This version of Facebook Platform already lets developers monetize their applications as they like, whether they choose to offer it for free or build a business on their application.

What are the key technical elements of Facebook Platform?

Facebook Platform offers several technologies that help developers use data from the social graph. In addition to the Facebook API, this recently launched version of Facebook Platform introduces Facebook Markup Language (FBML), which enables developers to build applications that deeply integrate into the Facebook site. Facebook Platform also includes Facebook Query Language (FQL), which lets developers use a SQL-style interface to query the data they can access through the API.

For more details on the technology behind Facebook Platform, check out the Facebook Developer site at <http://developers.facebook.com>.

Given we are a social platform and ideally people would be building experiences that use your friends' data, it's weird that that the "My own" versions of these permissions would be safe, but the "Friends" versions of these permissions would be scary.

I took another pass through the bucketing of permissions into "safe" and "scary" and tried to simplify the buckets in each section so we don't have lots of different bullet points.

These are updated in the GDP spec, but pasted below for comment. The main one that still feels pretty overwhelming to me is the "Profile Information" bucket — its unlikely that a good app really asks for all of this data, but if they do, its a very long list. Without dramatically reducing the underlying permission set I'm not sure if I have any great ideas to simplify the language but I'm all ears if you do.

Thoughts/edits/concerns? Lets try to lock this down in the next day or two and then can see how it feels in practice.

Russ, Scott, Vivek,

We're meeting with Adam Selipsky tomorrow at 3pm in Seattle to demo the Facebook platform and discuss the possibility of Facebook as a channel for AWS. Dave Morin from our platform team will demo a few sample platform applications that we've created internally, one of which is a simple Amazon book review application.

If you guys are around, we'd love you to join for this demo. We're getting close to finalizing our API's, at which point we'll be able to point you to them so that your India team can start working on this (maybe our book review sample app will help them get started). Understanding that you need a couple of months of lead time and want to avoid thrash, we're planning to send you the API's in the next couple of weeks (as soon as they are hardened).

hey dan. i'm ooto on friday, but maybe adam selipsky (cc'd above) and you can meet. adam is our VP of product management and developer relations across AWS.

we don't have an associates program for AWS (we don't have the margin in the product to do so), but it's worth your guys chatting about how you guys can leverage these services. i think you guys might be able to drive greater conversion on your site of developers creating facebook widgets if you offer services like S3 and EC2 that make it easier and lower risk to get started.

Andy,

We believe we're going to attract tens of thousands of small to medium-sized developers to build applications/widgets for Facebook. S3, EC2, etc lowers the friction for someone who wants to develop on our platform but can't afford the start-up costs. It also helps us ensure that these applications can scale if they start to get viral traction.

I'm not sure what this would look like in terms of a partnership. Do you have affiliate-like deals for partners who drive AWS revenue? Is there something we can do to cross-promote? Other ideas?

I might be in Seattle on Friday with one of our guys from the platform team. Let me know if you want to see a demo and discuss the possibilities in person.

By the way, this is separate from building an Amazon application. We're working with Russ and Merlino on that front. Now that our Associates deal is done, we just have to harden our api's so that the India team can start working on it. One of our guys actually built a little prototype to display on a user's profile page "the books that I'm currently reading" (which we can also show you on friday) -- we could even pitch the code over the fence to the India team to get them started.

If we made this about the Amazon application for Facebook (using ECS) + Amazon Web Services as a resource for Facebook platform developers, would Jeff be willing to participate in our press release? We're looking for a couple of CEO's (only considering major internet companies) to participate in this launch and Jeff is at the top of our list. -Dan

Dan/Dave,

We ran the Jeff idea up the flag pole and unfortunately it's not something he's willing to do at this point given his time constraints and focus on strategic initiatives in other areas of the business. This should not be construed as our being any less committed to this partnership. I'm pretty confident we could get someone here at the VP level to provide a quote in a press release.

On the developing the app front, this would be the best way for us to make this a reality by launch. Who can Vivek work with directly on your end and what are next steps?

Russ – how about if we develop most of the app (with some level of participation from your team) and then turn over the code to you after we launch? This would allow us to include Amazon in our launch press (which I think we both want to achieve if possible) while hitting the aggressive timeline that we're on. If you're open to this solution, I'll take it back to our team to find out if we can get the resources. If we do move forward with this solution and we come up with a killer app, would it be possible to get a quote from Jeff in our press release? -Dan

Guys,

Russ and I touched base on this and while we'd love to do all we can by launch, given our technical team does not yet have a tech spec in front of them, it's highly unlikely we'd be able to deliver on a widget app by May 24. We were hoping to get a tech spec three weeks ago to put our tech team in front of it, but as of now we're only 6-7 weeks away from your launch. As soon as you can get me a draft, I'll raise it again with the tech team, but again, I just want to set expectations as it's not looking too promising.

Hi Scott,

I just got out of a long meeting on this. In terms of the documentation and providing a test console, we have told all of the prospective partners that this won't be available until 4/16. However, we are working hard to get you a draft asap and I am pushing the team to have something ready to send later this week.

In terms of promotion, here's what we will be offering launch partners:

- *Invitation to launch event.
- *Exhibition table at launch event.
- *Part of keynote slide presentation at launch event.
- *Part of press release announcing the launch partners.
- *Part of site-wide announcement on Facebook.com.
- *Placement in the platform directory.

Here's the additional promotion we're willing to offer Amazon if you build a mutually agreeable app by launch:

- *Keynote Demonstration and speaking opportunity – there will be 3-4 companies participating.
- *Promotion on a featured application page being developed by Facebook.
- *Other PR opportunities, including a joint press release potentially.

As we've discussed, on the promotional front, we're bringing out the big guns for the first time in the history of the company, so it will be great publicity for your widget strategy. Additionally, since Amazon will be one of the first companies to have an app available on Facebook, you will be perfectly positioned to dominate installations and realize all of the associated benefits of the viral promotion (i.e. newsfeed stories, etc.) and more importantly, drive significant sales through the associates program.

Anyway, hopefully this helps on some level. Let's discuss in more detail if you have any questions. Also, re the other contract, I'm about to send you an email on that.

Thanks,
David

When we were small, apps helped drive our ubiquity. Now that we are big, (many) apps are looking to siphon off our users to competitive services. We need to be more thoughtful about what integrations we allow and we need to make sure that we have sustainable, long-term value exchanges.

I agree with most of the points in the email and there really isn't really much to say on the contrary.

With all out ongoing changes we are definitely limiting distribution for spammy apps or at least trying to. As always its a fine balance between ease of use and giving users infinite choices which is why I don't favor pre-approving allot of things.

But with respect to monetization, are you referring to something in particular?

Charlie / Ruchi / Ami --

One thing that Zuckerberg said caught my eye:

The way we're going to enable a lot of information flow is by letting apps give us potential feed stories for anything that a user does within that app. If an app gives us lots of stories with in information that users find interesting, then we'll show more of them and that app will get more distribution.

When platform first launched (e.g., at F8 / Developer Garages), Facebook emphasized three themes – deep integration, mass distribution and monetization opportunities. As it turns out, developers latched onto those three themes and built apps accordingly, i.e., apps that pervaded the web site and whose motives were to spread themselves and monetize users. So while I think Zombies, FunWall, etc. are lame, I don't actually blame them too much. They're just doing what we suggested they do.

I'm a little concerned that, with respect to the profile redesign, that we might swing our developer messaging towards what Zuck writes above, i.e., encouraging developers to provide feed stories for "anything" and then relying on technology and collaborative filtering to sort it all out. I think that has the potential to basically just shift the problem from exploiting integration points + viral distribution to people exploiting news feed. Collaborative filtering is cool and all, but I'm a little worried about us inviting app developers to inundate us with information and then hoping we can do a good job of sorting it out.

I think we need to shift the focus of our developer messaging and our own product efforts away from Mass Distribution & Monetization and towards End-User Value. In other words, we should be figuring out how to help people write compelling and useful social applications on facebook. We shouldn't be focusing on how to help developers spread or advertise themselves.

For example, If I look at the applications that are most personally satisfying to me, they're probably:

- Photos
- Videos
- Marketplace
- Scrabulous
- Catbook

What makes these applications successful, I think, is the fact that they let me responsibly share information with my friends. In the case of Photos, Videos, and Catbook, I'm able to share information w/ my friends and also browse my friend's information. In the case of Marketplace, it provides me straightforward utility (though the network is too small). Scrabulous is a well-written app that is responsible with my data.

Note that I don't feel like any of these apps take deep advantage of either (a) viral distribution or (b) news feed activity. In my mind, they mostly just provide strong user value and grow organically as a result.

I feel like a core focus of our efforts should be dissecting those apps that empirically have high user value (e.g., Scrabulous & Catbook), and figuring out how to grow that community of apps, both by figuring out and fixing their core pain points and by steering new developers in that direction. In terms of those apps that feel like they have low user value and are a net negative for the site (FunWall, Super Wall, Lil Green Patch, etc.), we should just start turning off/clamping down on the functionality that they're abusing. In fact, given the rampant abuse at the moment, I'm inclined to swing hard towards some kind of "approval queue" where users have to approve requests/notifications/news feeds stories that are published on their behalf. I would not make it easier for apps to publish these or encourage apps to publish more of them, especially with the hope that we filter it eventually.

Anyway, I think the net is that I think we should be careful about putting developer needs and wants ahead of that of our users. Especially in the case of distribution and monetization, I feel like the size of our developer community (300,000+?) is proof that we've probably been a little too helpful to developers. If we clamped down on the gold-rush features, I feel like we could have a smaller but much higher quality developer community devoted to folks who actually want to build useful social applications (as opposed to making a quick buck).

Sorry for the long email ... just some thoughts from a coffee shop,
-mike

Subject: speed and strategy

Hey Everyone --

In this note I'm going to discuss what I see as the most important product-related issues we should be focusing on today and how they relate to our strategy.

Before I get into that, I want to say that the biggest development issue I'm thinking about right now is our development speed. There was a good discussion about our development cycle slowing down at the e meeting and I just wanted to say that I agree with a lot of what was said there and think we can and need to be doing a much better job of keeping things moving quickly. A lot of this can be done through better organization of the things we're doing, and D'Angelo, Matt Cohler and I are working to improve it.

The reason our development speed is so important is because it is effectively how well we are executing. We can have a great strategy but if we're slow at implementing it then we still won't succeed. If you have suggestions on this, please let me know.

One way to make sure we can move quickly is for everyone to understand our strategy behind the major product areas we're working on. I've tried to summarize some of the key ones here.

When thinking about specific projects, it's important to keep in mind that what we're trying to do here is build a communication system that connects everyone in the world. People get value from our products primarily in two ways: by getting and sharing information with friends, and by building trust and more valuable relationships with the people they know. Getting information and keeping up relationships are core needs that everyone in the world has, so if we do a good job then we should be able to get everyone in the world to use Facebook.

First, along those lines, internationalization is one of the most important projects we have going on right now. We just launched in Spanish last week and it was a very smooth and successful launch. If you track our growth, you can see that about 10% more new users are signing up this week than we had last week and that is basically all because of this effort. In terms of how this will go long term, it's too early to tell anything for certain, but the way this is currently going puts us on a good trajectory. We're going to follow up the Spanish launch with launches in German and French in the next few weeks, and then from there we just need to launch as quickly as possible in as many of the major languages as we can.

Given that we're trying to get everyone in the world to use Facebook, internationalization is an important project and is high on the priority list.

Second, we need to get the site to be faster and cleaner very soon. Evan discussed this at the e meeting this week, but right now the front end of the site is very slow and takes somewhere around 3 seconds to render pages for people on average. We also have lots of work we can do on the backend to generate pages faster, but right now most of the perceived slowness just comes from browsers having to fetch and render such a large amount of data.

We have a lot of stats that show that usage of the site is basically tied to how fast the site is. The faster we make the site, the more activity we see. I believe the latest data I saw was that if we made the site 100ms faster we'd have about 3% more activity and if we made the site a second faster we'd have about 20% more activity. That's a really big deal. What it means is that even if users don't consciously notice the speed, it's subconsciously making them do fewer page views and less activity. This means that people aren't sharing as much information as they could and therefore people aren't connecting and keeping up with the people they know as well as they could. So keeping the site fast is one of the most important things we can be doing here to help people connect better.

Even if making the site 100ms faster doesn't seem as cool as shipping something shiny and new, this is almost certainly more important and if you can successfully do it then you'll earn a lot of respect within the team and from me and D'Angelo.

We need more people to work on this, so if you're interested in helping out please talk to Bobby Johnson.

Third, we need to help users find their friends on Facebook for the product to work. Since people use Facebook to share information and build relationships with friends, the site doesn't provide much value when users haven't added their friends. We have a growing problem where we haven't made it easy and clear enough for a lot of users, especially in older demographics, to add their friends when they join Facebook so then they become inactive because they're not getting any value from the site.

We have a lot of stats that show that the number of friends a user has is the single factor that correlates the most highly with a user's activity on Facebook by almost any metric (logins, page views, content created, etc). The relationship between number of friends and activity is almost linear, so that means that if someone has twice as many friends as someone else, on average they'll be about twice as active as that other person. So on average a person with 30 friends will be about twice as active as a person with 15 friends and a person with 1000 friends will also be about twice as active as a person with 500 friends.

This also goes the other way though, and people who have few or no friends on the site tend to become inactive. The growth team told me just yesterday that 70% of inactive users have 5 or fewer friends. Less than 3% of inactive users have more than 50 friends. We have almost 25 million inactive users.

Right now we have an issue that even though a lot of new users are signing up for Facebook, many are also becoming inactive because we don't make it easy enough for them to find and add their friends. According to some data we have, almost 90% of users leave the new user flow with fewer than 10 confirmed friends or friend requests pending. More than 80% don't even have 5 confirmed friends or friend requests pending.

This is a major area for improvement and we need more people to work on this. If you're interested, please talk to James Wang.

Fourth, getting the next evolution of Platform right and putting the appropriate short term fixes in place in the interim are both really important for us long term.

Platform is key to our strategy because we believe that there will be a lot of different social applications and ways that people communicate and share information, and we believe we can't develop all of them ourselves. Therefore, even though it's a challenge for us to get this right, it's important for us to focus on it because the company that defines this social platform will be in the best position to offer the most good ways for people to communicate and succeed in the long term. That said, we also need to do a better job of making sure our user experience is good as we're developing this, and I think we're starting to focus more on that now.

Right now there is a major evolution of Platform underway that will redefine what a "good" application is and how apps get distribution through our network. The basic idea here is that we want to reward apps that are trustworthy and are doing things that people want and that people are actually engaging with. The first thing we're going to do to make this happen is get rid of the concept of adding an app, so anyone can just use any app without having to worry about getting that screen that asks you to add the app and put a box on your profile. So there also won't be as many boxes and as much clutter on profiles, although there will still be a way for users to add profile boxes if they want them. The way we're going to enable a lot of information flow is by letting apps give us potential feed stories for anything that a user does within that app. If an app gives us lots of stories with in information that users find interesting, then we'll show more of them and that app will get more distribution. If an app gives us stories that aren't interesting or that users report to be deceptive or spam, then we'll show fewer (or none) of the stories from that app. The same will be true for requests and notifications. This way the amount of distribution, and therefore the success of an app, depends on its ability to generate real activity and information that users find interesting and trustworthy.

This is a big project that involves rearchitecting lots of the feed infrastructure, the profile and a lot of the platform systems. The teams are projecting that the first version will be released at the end of March. If you are interested in helping out to try to get this done faster, you can talk to D'Angelo or the managers of any of these teams.

There's also an increasing focus on aspects of Platform that we can clean up in the next 45 days before this launch. This is important too and is something we haven't been paying enough attention to so far. If you want to help out with this, you can talk to Charlie Cheever, Ben Ling or Ruchi Sanghvi on the Platform team.

Okay -- there are a few more things I want to go over but this email has gotten really long so I'm going to save those for next week. In my next one of these I'll discuss how our core privacy infrastructure needs to evolve with things like friend lists and some of the core applications we need to get right like inbox, chat, calendar and search.

In the meantime, at today's all hands we're going to go over more about internationalization, so that will be a good opportunity for us to appreciate how much work has gone into this and how well it is doing.

If you have any questions about any of this or if you want to discuss our strategy, please come to the Open Q&A tomorrow at 4pm in 164, or you can send me an email.

Subject: Re: Thoughts On Platform & Community

Thanks for sharing.

I'll attempt to address some of the product issues here.

1. I think it is important to understand that the social part of platform is not solely a developer platform, unlikely some of the comps below. Unlike Parse, etc., the social part of platform (identity and OG) are both user and developer products. This creates a dynamic where we have to effectively create friction in the developer experience in order to address user trust/perception of Platform. If there is one audience that dislikes Platform more than developers, it is users. And that is actually a more meaningful audience because if we lose user trust, we die and there is no developer ecosystem. Many of the things we have put in place like reviewing OG actions, etc. are to address this user trust issue. BTW: I disagree that unified review is going to "brutalize" NPS. I think it will raise it. Why? Because it combines our disparate review processes and most importantly will serve as a gate on policy enforcement. Today, a developer builds an app, releases and then we may shut them off if they violate our policies. This unified review process will front load that and ensure that developers (and most importantly) users are not impacted by apps violating our policies.

2. Breaking Stuff. I won't bore you with how long it took to get a breaking change process in place, much less publishing those changes to developers. We have seen the platform stability number in our survey's go up dramatically as a result of those steps. There is more we can do here (more on that in a minute), but the primary issue here isn't breaking changes, it is actually how we change the user side of the product. This goes back to the dual nature of the social part of Platform. As we change how we surface developer content, that will lead to changes in distribution to developers. As free distribution is the primary reason that developers use this part of Platform, they get super frustrated when that changes unexpectedly, particularly when we give no notice and or guidance on how they claw back to the previous state. There are steps we can take to help here, but I don't expect this to ever change as a cause for frustration, as the primary driver of user features is user engagement/happiness, not developer stability in terms of distribution. Because of this tension, we are spending much more time focused on building and selling paid developer products that have stable distribution/value as the sole goal. In terms of API changes, we are moving to quarterly API releases, including both new features and breaking changes. Further, if you build with a native SDK, we are versioning our API in lockstep with the SDK and these versions are supported for 18-24 months.

3. Platform 3.0. I don't think we are calibrated on what Platform 3.0 is. We are not going to remove APIs when we launch this, we are actually adding two new APIs: social context and recommendations. Once we have those APIs nailed down, we will move to drain down the use of the friends permissions. The best way to think about this is the REST API -> Graph API transition. We still support the REST API 3 years after the Graph was announced, but we no longer, after a long, long drawdown time, allow new apps to use the REST API. Net, I don't think this is going to brutalize NPS. If we do this right, this could be viewed as a positive, like the Graph API was.

4. Supporting developers. I haven't been happy at our progress here. One of the key issue here is "who owns it". There is your own team, David, that owned StackOverflow. I personally negotiated the deal with Joel and I have not seen it come close to the potential it should have had. There is Zhen's team, which handles bugs (BTW: I think you being a little unfair in your characterization of how we handle bugs. There is literally no one triaging bugs a few years ago and we are now light years ahead), but we have to get better at actually fixing the bugs. Which brings me to the last team, developer support, who supports the major partners. So there are three different team supporting developers and all failing in some way. One of the ways to address this is to nominate a single leader to be responsible for this entire area and then give them the team and room to forward. That is one of the main goals of this most recent reorg. We are moving all developer support functions into Justin's team. If you are really passionate about this area, we have a leadership role that will manage the global developer support team that is completely and absolutely focused on this problem in a scalable way. I don't know if you and Justin discussed this at all, but it is something to consider. Side note: when I got here, no one was triaging bugs. We had 5000 open and untouched bugs. I started triaging them with one other person at 5pm everyday for months. I think it is a hell of a way to add value to even more than talking to them, leading me to the next point.

5. Talking to developers. We talk to developers a lot. We have a huge partnership team that talks to developers, large and small. We have a huge sales team that talks to developers. All of the leaders on Platform, Mike included, spends as much time as we can talking with developers. The recurring theme that we hear is "the value is too little for the investment I am putting in" (for the social part of Platform). That and the user trust/value are the primary things that we are working on in Platform product in H2. That is why we built Neko (predictable, low friction distribution), it is the reason we are building Pay3.0, to increase transaction conversion, it is the reason we bought Parse (building x-platform games/app is hard), it is the reason that we are building reengagement ads, etc. In terms of being the "voice of developers" (in and out) in the company, my expectation is that this is the role of partnerships team (partner engineering and developer support/ops).

5. Developer NPS. This remains a focus for us in Platform product in H2, but not as high of a priority as user trust (which is an existential threat to FB and Platform) or developer value (new products that deliver on consistent developer value -- which I can argue, this underlying cause of poor NPS -- even if you look at the developer we talk to daily -- the NPS is negative -- -4 actually). Concretely, we are going to focus on four things: a "Parse quality" doc set (Zhen is leading), a "Parse quality" sample story (I am personally leading this effort), simple and transparent policies and app review (Monika & Constantin driving) and developer support for bugs and direct support (led by Ellen in Justin's team).

Hope that helps.

Subject: Thoughts On Platform & Community

Justin,

I really appreciate your spending the time this afternoon to talk about developers, community, and how I could help best move the needle for Facebook in the coming half. I loved seeing your concern for developers and the Parse acquisition, as well as the candid acknowledgement of the holes in our strategy.

So in looking at Platform's H1 review, I'd ask: What have we learned from the last few years of awful developer NPS? Given that Bret has moved on, how can we champion developer interest at Facebook?

While there's much we can learn from Parse, the biggest meta is right in our face: go talk to developers, like Ilya does, and ask them what they don't like. In that light, here are the top reasons I've seen for dissatisfaction in the past few months:

#1 "You break my stuff."

We give API deprecations with 90 day notices. We don't version our APIs and we don't even prep developers new to our platform to the fact that developing against Facebook is an ongoing commitment. This is not the same as almost any other "API" or "Platform" on the planet. (e.g. iOS 5 APIs are iOS 5 APIs forever.) Consequently, emails with the subject line "Operation: Developer Love" are guaranteed to give every FB developer the chills because they know the body of the message will communicate an unexpected new pile of work to throw a schedule.

#2 "You don't care."

Developers lack access to community & resources to share best practices, coupled with evident favoritism. How should I actually be using Open Graph (this week)? Or Notifications? We are obvious in showering undue love upon our strategic partners, visibly giving them private access to APIs that are mysteriously gated (n.b. Ads API, FBX, Buy Now) and secret roadmap guidance. But for an unmanaged developer, there is no effective forum to ask a question, no phone number to call, no IRC channel, no place to go. You can file a bug but it will get auto-triaged to closed because you're a 1MAU app when you're just getting started. You have to "get lucky" and happen to know someone who works at Facebook or gone to a rare event where you've actually gotten a chance to meet a Developer Advocate in person and gotten their contact info. (I was vigorously discouraged from carrying business cards when I joined - "people might actually email you!")

#3 "It isn't fun."

Getting started with the APIs is a huge chore. The iOS SDK isn't even signed. It takes days to get up and running with a half-decent integration and Open Graph custom action approvals add even more friction. Unified Review is only going to increase this friction while Platform 3.0 reduces the utility of the APIs - the combination of which mean that Facebook integrations are going to be even less fun by the end of the year. Why do people love Parse? (Or Twilio, node.js, Rails, or MySQL?) Because you can be up and running super fast and it gives you this exciting tingle of having made something useful, quickly. Eddie has a passion to deliver this, we need to give him the resources. Using Facebook is rapidly becoming Enterprise JavaBeans: an effective but ultimately dull way to address technical issues but not a joy, not sexy, and not the future.

Our H2 goals for Platform don't address any of these concerns, or the one area where we whiffed hard on our H1 goals: NPS (and growing our Quality developer base). Our 10mau developer base has been flat at ~375k for the last year as has our NPS. Unified Review & Platform 3.0 are going to brutalize both numbers and yet we are magically expecting to grow penetration in the top 400 app charts, despite the fact that these charts have high churn and those surprise-hit titles often come from the very sort of small developers we're failing to connect with.

You're right that we'll need a Product answer to the above in conjunction with outreach. And you're right that it's a very cross-functional role. In the few days alone I've had conversations with Eugene, Monika, Amanda, Allison, Constantin, and more to ensure we're building a developer-friendly platform. I honestly think a small team tasked with building a scaled global developer community and the products needed in-house to deliver it would be awesome. It'd be bigger than one person and candidly I think a team with myself, Bear, and Ravi could make this happen.

I'd love your thoughts.

Yours,
David

(Sorry for delay — was in Seattle on Friday.)

No need to apologize, and in fact I apologize if I came across too strongly below.

As context, one of the arguments that I often have to have w/ folks is about keeping platform both open (accessible to all, not a whitelist model) and powerful (being able to do interesting things with it). Pretty much everyone is always asking us to turn off APIs (Zuck & Photo Tagging) or whitelist APIs (Add Friend) or worse. In each of those cases, my basic argument is that between technology + pops we can keep this stuff under control. If internal sentiment goes really sour on platform, it's probably much worse for us than if even external folks are getting pissed. So I just try to be careful about feedback from key partner teams.

But sorry again if I came across too strongly.

I've been meaning to ask — did we shut down or moratorium all the 19 apps Javi pointed out, or just the one below?

Thanks,

Mike,

I wanted to apologize to you for how this went down as my communication wasn't clear here and I should have clarified that there was a mistake here in the enforcement by my team. We will continue to disable apps whose sole purpose is to encourage random game friending. We will place a moratorium on an apps access to the 'add friends' API if this behavior is just a feature of the app that can be easily removed. My team is also working on updating the E&E to outline our expectations with game friending so devs have more visibility into the spirit of this policy. Hope this is clear.

Have a great weekend,

Sorry for my delay - was commuting home.

Also, sorry for any confusion - POps owns shutting down apps and enforcing on devs. We avoid lengthy negotiations/philosophical debates with developers who argue for the sake of being difficult. These devs were responsive, made changes, are well-intentioned, etc., but we did not move as fast as we wanted to here. Monica has disabled the app, so this one problem's solved (thanks Monica!).

This sweep aside, we do need to work on improving the developer experience here with our expectations (frankly, helps us move fast) so Monica and I will follow up offline about that.

Ok, I just used <http://apps.facebook.com/gfriendfinder/> (which was the top hit for Game Friend Finder on Google). It let me pick a game (CityVille) and then is linking me to a bunch of random profiles to encourage me to Add Friend.

As they are violating the spirit of our policy ("don't encourage non-real world connection"), let's shut them down.

We don't need to define friendship for them — we don't negotiate with our devs and don't own them explanations. I think what we've told them to date is very clear — don't encourage non-authentic friendships.

I'm free to discuss on the phone — 206-650-1495 — but we should get this and similar offenders shut down quickly if they have flouted the principles we espoused when we first reached out to them.

We've been talking to them for the past few weeks. They are meeting our policy requirements ("don't use the friends dialog for non-real world connections") but are challenging us to define friendship on FB, which was the concern that Dan raised last week and I raised a few weeks ago.

Is there an official answer for this? (Sorry if I missed part of the thread - it's gotten big.)

(Sample of their pushback: Game Friend Finder is very much in the spirit and letter of Facebook's first principle: Freedom to Share and Connect- People should have the freedom to share whatever information they want, in any medium and any format, and have the right to connect online with anyone - any person, organization or service - as long as they both consent to the connection.)

Monica and Melissa will make sure the team reaches out and brings this dev into compliance.

As for policy, we're using existing policies, coupled with our tech docs and dev blog, to enforce and educate devs on this behavior. Here's an example of the policy notice and an excerpt from our 3/25/11 blog post:

Policy notice: You must not circumvent our intended limitations on core Facebook features (FPP I.3). For example, you must not encourage users to friend other users that they are not connected to in real life. Please remove this functionality from your app per the tech documentation regarding friends dialog (<http://developers.facebook.com/docs/reference/dialogs/friends/>).

Dev Blog 3/25/11: We recently added a "Usage Notes" section to reference docs to help you better understand the intended use cases for our Platform features and to help you comply with our Platform policies. For example, we recently added usage notes to Friend Dialogs. These dialogs are intended to help users become friends on Facebook with people that they are connected to in real life. You should not use this feature to encourage users to friend other users that they are not connected to in real life. If your app is found to be encouraging this behavior, your usage of this feature may be disabled.

We're working hard to be transparent to devs while at the same time keeping our policy documentation lean and simple for good devs to follow.

To that end, I believe the above approach is fine and that we don't need to add to our policies, but if anyone feels otherwise please do let me know and we can explore this.

I don't think that we should prohibit non-real world connections.

I think we should prohibit incentivizing them.

In any case, I guess I'm just having a hard time understanding why we are opposed to having legal grounds to shutting down an app like Game Friend Finder.

However, will defer to you guys as your area of expertise – apologies, if I'm raising issues that have already been discussed.

Thanks for the reply Dan. Split thread so adding Doug.

+1 that creating relationships via games is arguably authentic. (Personally not a huge fan, but I'm not a gamer.) Some users have met their spouses via FarmVille (obviously not the norm, but happens occasionally).

If we want to prohibit game/random friending, we can, but agreed that we may have to require FB is only for existing real-world friendships, ruling out good uses (support groups, etc.). We're starting to go down this road (<http://developers.facebook.com/docs/reference/dialogs/friends/>). I don't know that we have a firm enough product view on "friendship" for us to really slam developers yet though. Again, we can, but feels arbitrary to single out games (and will be hard to detect/enforce via policy/product or have developers understand).

Also, (pardon the ignorance) is this the right group to decide the definition of a FB relationship? This feels bigger than Platform/Growth/gaming. Dan, is this your world?

Dan - we have escalating punishments in the form of channel restrictions/permanent disables/C&Ds when developers repeatedly violate policies (either accidentally or intentionally). They get the job done.

I took a quick re-read of our Platform policy (<https://developers.facebook.com/policy/>)

The main statement we make at a high level re: graph integrity is:

Don't spam - encourage authentic communications

And arguably, for the purposes of finding others to play games with, friending someone is authentic communication (anyone up for a game of tennis?).

Do we want to insist that FB is only for existing real-world friendships and rule out friendships between people you may want to get to know better (or just play games with)?

If yes, FB should be only for real-world friendships, then we should make our policy more explicit on this point (at least for Platform; maybe for Platform we don't want to create automated ways for people to connect with other people they don't already know).

As an aside, Melissa - you mentioned "...sometimes developers revert when we are not looking". What are the penalties for being caught doing something deliberate like this and are they serious enough to create a sufficient disincentive?

Looks like the thread forked but Naomi and Javi have similar concerns.

Two reasons why we'll reach out versus shut down the app:

- 1) this app offers functionality other than random friending that gamers find useful
- 2) the spirit of the policy isn't clear to the developer (the policy is about the use of the friends dialog product, not friending) so we can't expect him/her to know that profile links aren't acceptable (we'll tweak our messaging to do a better job of explaining this up front)

Sorry for any confusion here.

Hey Javi,

I agree that this is still unacceptable so we will get back in touch with this developer. If they don't resolve the issue then we can shut it down.

As far as policy, I believe we decided not to create a separate policy as the tech doc provides context for what we expect out of this API but Ali can chime in here.

Hey guys,

I just looked again at the game friend finder app, and all they have done is removed the add as friend buttons, but still the main purpose of the app is for you to friend strangers to play games with – now they just link to profiles. Why do we let this be? This is BAD FOR US!! Apps that encourage friending of strangers (even if they don't use the add as friend buttons) should not be allowed. Can we change the wording on the policy to support that more generally (in the same way we did for the add as friend button dialogue – but as a general guideline for apps) / warn these guys to stop this / shut them down if they don't stop?

Here's our plan for handling the platform friend add ui dialog:

Action items:

-push friends.add moratoria (niket: 3/18, D225191)

-Pops to enforce on all top callers for friends.add, email them and cite policy from usage notes on <http://developers.facebook.com/docs/reference/dialogs/friends/> (melissa: 3/21) - on Monday, these applications will likely cease to exist and are forbidden by policy from relaunching. Pops will manually maintain the top callers (19 here: <http://www.fburl.com/?key=1759277>) until automation takes over

-using new features (for app specific usage of this dialog) and existing features that we use to detect spammy friend requests (<http://www.fburl.com/?key=1759356>), we will add protection via Stripe to automate use/abuse of this feature. This involves classifying these types of apps/behaviors, messaging the devs to tell them it's disallowed and limiting the application (either by disabling it or just disabling the friend.add dialog) (niket: early/mid next week : task 517868)

Feel free to ping me directly with any thoughts/concerns!

The real issue here is this — we only have one tool today (a shotgun) and we give you know warning when we're going to shoot you in the head. This was initially fine because we saved the shotgun for people who were really bad, but over time we've extended this to more well-intentioned actors that are spamming Facebook because they see results (more users) but they don't have the negative feedback cycle. One example is Path — at the end of the day, we should assume they're a well-intentioned actor but they were spamming Facebook because it was giving them viral growth.

All the apps we disabled on Thursday night / Friday were somewhat spammy. But I think the general consensus is that disabling them was an overreaction. With User Karma, we don't permanently ban users who send too many messages. We gently warn them to cut it out, first, and then we restrict their ability to send more messages for a while. That's the model we need to evolve to for developers. We need the punishment to fit the crime.

So in the very short-term (this week), we're focused on a few things:

- Getting Insights launched, even if it's rougher than we'd like
- Moving towards per-channel moratoria rather than disabling for channel-specific negative feedback (blocking stream if you're spamming stream)
- Switching from disable to "forced sandbox" mode, where you can still see your application but users cannot

Over the medium-term (before + at f8), we're moving to a model of conditional distribution, where we show more of your stuff if you have net positive feedback and less of your stuff if you have net negative feedback, with the option to be completely hidden if your negative feedback is very high. We're hoping that makes this less of a punishment model and more of an incentive model.

Given that plan, is there something you think we should be doing differently?

I understand the sentiment, but this really worries me.

One of my growing fears is that we're routinely erring on the side of avoiding pain for developers, and in the process, causing widespread user pain. In the long-run, widespread user pain will severely undermine platform for all developers of all shades and stripes, much more so than the erosion of trust for developers you describe below. And yet, it seems to me that we've been over-optimizing for reducing that developer pain, even before last week's mistakes.

Mostly this sense comes from watching some of the spam attacks over the last several months and our reaction to them. I thought the one Clement thoughtfully tee'd up at Q&A in March was a good example, but also comment-jacking, interactions with POPS/policy on apps with incredibly high rates of negative user feedback, etc.

But, to try and express my fear with data:

1. Users don't trust apps to do the right thing. My understanding is that 56% of the time when a user sees a platform permission dialog, they don't grant them. This has been steadily getting worse – it's up from only 39% a year ago. Anecdotally, I've watched many friends and family members encounter a permissions dialog, hesitate, and – when I queried them – describe anxiety over what would happen to their account based on past negative experiences.

2. Users don't trust us enough to handle bad apps. We recently did some research on the effects of different types of negative engagement on users perceptions of Facebook. While not the worst of all negative interactions, reporting an application had fairly bad effects: one of the highest hits to overall likelihood to recommend Facebook, the least likely to feel neutral/positive about the experience of having reported it of any of the major feedback categories, and the greatest detriment to how likely users were to describe Facebook as fun. A lot of the anecdotal feedback was along the lines of: "I really feel that report an application will have no result."

3. Platform spam is getting worse. Until last week's changes, the share[*] of feed spam complaints (itself a rapidly rising number over the last year) coming from platform apps has been on the rise.

platform share of feed spam

A lot of the measures you describe below are about Pareto efficient improvements, which are obviously great (#1/#2/#3), but for any given level of tools we have available, we're implicitly making tradeoffs between user and developer pain. I was already worried that the natural reaction from the PI team to last week's mistakes and the corresponding coverage was going to push us farther away from balance on the user/developer tradeoff, and I'm terrified that things like #5 will exacerbate this.

I know there's a constant tension between protecting users and respecting our developer community. And I know that before Thursday of this past week, there were a lot of people complaining internally that we weren't being aggressive enough about protecting users and we were letting too much spam through.

On the flip side, it's very, very bad when we disable a legitimate application. It erodes trust in the platform, because it makes developers think that their entire business could disappear at any second. I've seen a little bit of cheerleading about the aggressiveness of the action on Thursday/Friday -- it's really not appropriate. Some of these apps were malicious, but a lot of them were developers trying to build apps within the rules we set out.

We really need to get to a new world, ASAP, where a few things happen:

1/ We have a graduated set of enforcements, and are more conservative with them. If you are marked as spammy for wall-to-wall posts, you lose the ability to make wall-to-wall posts, but your app still works. If you are marked as spammy in general for stream, you lose the ability to post to stream, but your app still works.

2/ If you violate multiple channels or are otherwise flagged as being more malicious, we move your app into sandbox mode. To do this, we need to make some improvements to sandbox mode:

- * You can't get out of it without our approval
- * You can't make API calls for people who previously TOSed but are not developers/testers
- * You can still access Insights, etc. to understand what went wrong.

3/ We need to launch Insights. We've been talking about this forever. We need to get this out and give a feedback loop to developers.

4/ We probably need to send email + notification based warnings before you get placed on moratoria or bans.

5/ We need to pull together a list of false positives every week and start sending it to me, Carl, Don, Dan, Bret, and others to make sure we're being as careful as possible.

This is tricky stuff; one week everyone is yelling that we're not protecting users enough. The next week everyone is swooping in and saying we're being too aggressive. It's a delicate balance, but both groups are right. We need to soften the punishment ASAP so that we can protect users without screwing developers. We can't kill apps over minor or accidental infractions.

Hey dev support folks, can you help Matt track down this info? Specifically,

(1) Dan: they didn't tell us about their was new placement of Connect button, but it seems that the integration is same as it always has been (e.g. just status posts, not friend finding). I'll confirm with Matt K (cc'd) that the API still doesn't return friends list.

It's important we find this info quickly.

Thanks,

I'm working with Naomi and CPan to get internal consensus on what/when we want, and also make sure it works with what Carl envisioned. Interesting. Matt - did Twitter give us a heads-up before they launched the FB integration on their profile pages over the weekend? Based on this data, I'm not surprised that they would want to get more of their users to cross-post to FB.

My sense is that we probably want to unwrap these links (for everyone, not just Twitter). Let's discuss after f8.

Subject: Twitter / t.co Referral Traffic

Dan & team,

Given recent discussions around t.co, Chad's asked me to share our analysis on how much FB may be lifting Twitter's referral traffic.

T.co currently represents ~1% of FB's total daily outbound traffic (~2.5MM daily clicks). This percentage doubled from 0.5% in mid-August when Twitter rolled out t.co to their 3rd party clients. While this is a small number for us, it may be material to Twitter and partners that receive significant t.co referral traffic. One way of estimating the share of total Twitter referral traffic this accounts for is to use comScore Exit traffic data. Twitter's total Exit traffic is only 3% of Facebook's exit traffic according to comScore. Therefore, a 1% change in our t.co traffic could be equivalent to up to 33% of Twitter's total referral traffic. This should be viewed as an upper bound of the potential impact, though, as we believe that comScore Exit data may overstate Facebook referrals. But it would be reasonable to estimate that Facebook could account for 10%-20% of Twitter's referral traffic. And it's important to note that this is traffic that our partners are currently attributing to Twitter even though it's coming directly through Facebook Platform distribution. Furthermore, this "hijacked" referral traffic will increase again now that Twitter has re-enabled their Connect integration.

There are at least 3 potential alternatives that we could pursue to address this:

1. Unwrap all t.co shortened links before redirecting users - we can do this today on our end, and in fact, our Site Integrity team already unwraps shortened links for offline analytics.
2. Unwrap all domain shorteners - we could apply the unwrapping policy broadly in order to avoid the perception that we are targeting just Twitter. But this may upset other partners like bit.ly<<http://bit.ly>>
3. Status quo - we can leave all shorteners in place and try to educate our partners that a meaningful share of their t.co and other shortened links are coming from Facebook (potentially surfaced through the public Insights tool) Please let us know if you have any questions or would like to discuss in more detail. Subject: Re: T.co links and bitly...

Here's some data on t.co referrals. Graphs below - the gap was due to downtime in eng instrumentation

- * T.co is now the 2nd biggest url shortener after bit.ly<<http://bit.ly>> for outbound traffic from FB
- * T.co drives 2-3M outbound clicks daily or ~1% of total FB outbound clicks
- * T.co outbounds has grown over the last 3 months and doubled last week probably due to the changes discussed in the nextweb article

Short of pending SPM data points on referral traffic from FB v. Twitter, comScore is our best guess at referral volumes. comScore's methodology is far from perfect, but can give us an order of magnitude ballpark.

Chad looked at the comScore data and FB was ~35x bigger than Twitter in June in terms of estimated outbound traffic. If we apply this ratio directly, it implies that 1% of FB referrals is ~35% of Twitter's referral traffic. Actuals are probably significantly lower because (among other things) comScore's methodology excludes clients. But the order of magnitude should be right - i.e. t.co links on FB are a noticeable chunk of Twitter referrals

So, unwrapping URLs on FB before sending traffic may noticeably decrease traffic from Twitter as perceived by sites. However, if we wanted to do this in a non-arbitrary way, we'd also unwrap bit.ly<<http://bit.ly>> and other shortened URLs which may make those parties unhappy.

I understand the point he's making (except for the part about usa.gov<<http://usa.gov>> and nyti.ms, which makes no sense to me). My thinking is that we should:

- 1) See how large t.co links are for FB Referral traffic currently (Ling is checking into this and will respond back)
- 2) See what Justin and the SPMs say about how large Twitter is as a source of referral traffic now that it includes the clients
- 3) Based on how 1) and 2) turn out, then we can make a decision about whether we'd like to ask our Eng team to work on unwrapping these. If we do decide to unwrap the URLs, Ling and I believe that we should unwrap all (t.co, bit.ly<<http://bit.ly>>, tinyurl, etc.) as opposed to making potentially arbitrary decisions about which ones are "ok" vs. which ones are "bad"

Ethan,

not sure if you saw this...

<http://thenextweb.com/twitter/2011/08/21/twitter-just-got-the-respect-it-deserves/?hn>

One of the ideas we spoke about was unwrapping t.co<<http://t.co>> links on facebook. Having twitter get credit for traffic coming from your platform clearly serves you no purpose.

Of course, if the t.co<<http://t.co>> link wraps a bit.ly<<http://bit.ly>> link, you may wonder why you shouldn't keep unwrapping, and not allow ANY shortened links on Facebook. I would argue that bitly links don't hurt Facebook, and actually help because we correctly attribute any traffic as an independent platform-agnostic party.

We help people understand social media traffic, which is also in Facebook's best interests. The t.co<<http://t.co>> wrapper actually impairs branding on facebook: when someone pastes a usa.gov<<http://usa.gov>> or nyti.ms<<http://nyti.ms>> shortened link on facebook, it gets shown as a t.co<<http://t.co>> link, which upsets our enterprise partners, who are also your clients as well...

Let me know if there is anyone at facebook who wants to dive into this topic further.

Sincerely,

Peter

Ethan,

Thanks for taking the time to meet with me, oh gosh, its been a month already!

I wanted to follow-up on a couple of topics we spoke about.

1) how do we get access to the FB ad placement API? That is a feature we want to build into our dashboard now.

2) We would like to show if or how Likes correspond to activity by our Enterprise customers (mostly big publishers and brands). My devs are not seeing any way of getting timestamps with Likes from the Insights APIs. Does Facebook publish this somewhere? Can we get access to it?

Thanks for the help!

I understand the point he's making (except for the part about usa.gov and nyti.ms, which makes no sense to me). My thinking is that we should:

- 1) See how large t.co links are for FB Referral traffic currently (Ling is checking into this and will respond back)
- 2) See what Justin and the SPMs say about how large Twitter is as a source of referral traffic now that it includes the clients
- 3) Based on how 1) and 2) turn out, then we can make a decision about whether we'd like to ask our Eng team to work on unwrapping these. If we do decide to unwrap the URLs, Ling and I believe that we should unwrap all (t.co, bit.ly, tinyurl, etc.) as opposed to making potentially arbitrary decisions about which ones are "ok" vs. which ones are "bad"

Ethan,

not sure if you saw this...

<http://thenextweb.com/twitter/2011/08/21/twitter-just-got-the-respect-it-deserves/?hn>

One of the ideas we spoke about was unwrapping t.co links on facebook. Having twitter get credit for traffic coming from your platform clearly serves you no purpose.

Of course, if the t.co link wraps a bit.ly link, you may wonder why you shouldn't keep unwrapping, and not allow ANY shortened links on Facebook. I would argue that bitly links don't hurt Facebook, and actually help because we correctly attribute any traffic as an independent platform-agnostic party.

We help people understand social media traffic, which is also in Facebook's best interests. The t.co wrapper actually impairs branding on facebook: when someone pastes a usa.gov or nyti.ms shortened link on facebook, it gets shown as a t.co link, which upsets our enterprise partners, who are also your clients as well...

Let me know if there is anyone at facebook who wants to dive into this topic further.

Sincerely,

Peter

Ethan,

Thanks for taking the time to meet with me, oh gosh, its been a month already!

I wanted to follow-up on a couple of topics we spoke about.

1) how do we get access to the FB ad placement API? That is a feature we want to build into our dashboard now.

2) We would like to show if or how Likes correspond to activity by our Enterprise customers (mostly big publishers and brands). My devs are not seeing any way of getting timestamps with Likes from the Insights APIs. Does Facebook publish this somewhere? Can we get access to it?

Thanks for the help!

Bret, way back a year ago you spoke about restricting twitters API so they couldn't pull friend graph and could just push status updates.

Did this somehow get broken? Seems from below that twitter is now gettin all friend info, which is obviously bad and not the intention.

Niket, please make sure they don't have any access to friendslists.

Niket Biswas - at 9:41am on September 13th Baris, we don't have such a moratorium, nor have we ever (at least in platform integrity land) - there could be some one-off sitevar though. i'd be happy to add one, but we'll need a code push to put this on. how urgent is this?

Julie Tung - at 2:17pm on September 13th I don't know of any special casing we ever did for Twitter to restrict access to friend lists (also are we talking about the full list of friends on Facebook, or Friend Lists the product?).

Mike Vernal - at 2:25pm on September 13th I think we're talking full list of friends.

What did we do for youtube? I think doing that same thing for twitter is the question. Did we never do that?

Matt Wyndowe - at 2:32pm on September 13th Yes, meaning Twitter should not be allowed to make a call which returns a full or partial list of your friends. (meaning the full lists of friends)

Julie Tung - at 2:43pm on September 13th Youtube is not allowed to see users that don't already use the app, so a friend list would be returned, but it would be only friends that are already Youtube users. This was never enabled for Twitter.

Matt Wyndowe - at 2:49pm on September 13th Mike Vernal - it seems last year we were under the impression we weren't returning any friend list for twitter. Am I crazy here? Is this just a bug? Both :)? Or was that never the case? Seems weird as we had shut down their app and then just re-enabled posting, as I recall from email threads back in 8/10.

Matt Wyndowe - at 3:20pm on September 13th How long would this take to enable for twitter? Instead of the YT version, can we just not return any friend info? In any case, we should probably wait a couple of days so that I can send a summary to Zuck, Bret and Javi, etc. Thx all for your help.

Subject: Re: Amazon Birthday Gift PR launch

In approaching Amazon at a policy, api functionality, and relationship level, here are the conclusions from the the meeting:

1/ POLICY: As it stands today and the near future, third-party gifting apps won't be scoped in the platform policy 1.10 definition of "replicating core functionality". However, we'll closely monitor gifting apps growth and determine if we should revisit at a later time.
2/ FUNCTIONALITY: Platform will be pushing a functional change to friend GET APIs around Oct., which will limit Amazon's ability to read friend data (including birthdays) to only friends connected to that App. This should significantly stymie Amazon's ability to grow the gifting app beyond users immediately connected.
3/ RELATIONSHIP: We've made some headway with Amzn in terms of getting them to implement OG for music and soon books via GR. Additionally, they are taking steps to converting product objects to OG and working with us on deeper OS integrations for the Fire. However, there has still been consistent push-back on the gifting front which has prevented optimal integration we'd prefer to be seeing. Given the complex relationship, we shouldn't be approaching this issue as a specific method to address Amzn's inability to work with us in certain areas, we should tackle specific issues in direct negotiation or broader enforcement.

Next steps:

1/ PR: We discussed with Amzn the negative ramifications in communication gaps. We are now requiring any PR related to FB launches to be flagged and approved by our PR team 2 weeks in advance.
2/ POLICY: We will watch the growth of this app and re-visit gifting as 'replicating core functionality' at a later time.
3/ COMMERCE: Chris to work with Lee on negotiating better terms around Amazon participating in our gifting/payment programs.

Let me know if I missed anything or if you'd like to continue discussion in any of the areas above. Thanks again everyone for taking time to discuss.

I agree that it makes sense to discuss this live rather than over email. Let's make sure to include Monika.

As Ime notes, the decision we reached in the prior meeting with Lee, Doug, et al. was to not extend the definition of "replicating core functionality" (policy I.10) to gifting. The rationale was that (1) the upcoming Platform 3.0 changes will address the primary concerns and (2) we run the risk of creating a substantial chilling effect on the developer ecosystem if we begin extending I.10 beyond the use cases which Ime articulates below.

Subject: Re: Amazon Birthday Gift PR launch

From my recollection, we discussed this integration at length — and inevitably approved it -- during a time when we [Platform xfn] were trying to clearly define "reciprocity" and the "replication of FB core functionality."

The approval of this integration was evaluated under the latter of those definitions and the conclusion was that it didn't equate "FB core functionality." The litmus test for core functionality at that time included messenger apps, search, and newsfeed-like products. Essentially, we were trying to balance the public perception of FB as an open vs close platform.

That was month's ago and we've likely made progress on Gifts and Payments 3.0, so if we need to consider broadening the scope of our "core functionality" litmus test to include things like e-commerce integrations (like this Amazon launch or what Ebay & Stubhub did with group gifting) I agree with Lee -- we should get the right folks in a room, discuss the impact of these integrations, discuss our options, and figure out the next steps.

Lee — I'm happy to join a meeting you pull together.

- Shop Now test with Karma is launching tomorrow. We will work to make sure that everyone has a heads up on this and is prepped reactively, and even discuss launch timing based on reaction to the Amazon press because we want to make sure that the Shop now test is very quiet with press/public
- Also, as a heads up Amazon recently launched login with amazon: <http://login.amazon.com/>, which is very similar positioning to Payments 3.0. So both our products will be perceived as competing/copying products. - timing is not ideal

@ Chris - at the time, we didn't view this as an active competitive integration to disable as we couldn't pursue the disabling of every app that does something we do (we needed to draw a line otherwise, developers wouldn't have faith in our platform). Additionally, their integration was done in complete compliance with our policies. If any thinking has changed (@lme) given the current events, it's worth discussing now. (Attached was our last conversation on this and we approved this with Monika/Justin/lme with no 6 months backward compatibility support)

@Jillian - See below feedback in red

- Do they have whitelist access to anything, or could anyone build this? Seems similar to eBay's Group Gifting product from a couple years ago, and I know that required whitelisted access. [jc] no whitelisting of any feature other than some of their spill over permissions from their Kindle integration (you can see this with their scary gdp - we're working to fix with removing autogrant of permissions by august)
- Is there any positioning w/r/t Gifts we should be aware of? Think it's confusing for reporters to see us work with Amazon on something like this that is potentially competitive to our Gifts product. [jc] we made sure that Amazon was compliant with our policy. I would want to think through a better message on the competitive piece as we allow apps that post photos, create events, etc. @Justin O. for thoughts on this - I'd like to take the platform approach but think it's worth broaching the competitive social network piece which they're not (unless any thinking has changed).
- Did we work with them on this? [jc] we worked through policy compliance
- Is this available worldwide, or US only? [jc] verifying now, but I think it's just US
- How does the contribute OG edge work? If I give a gift to a friend, using the app, does that create an Open Graph story --> "Jillian contributed to a gift on Amazon?" What's the privacy model here such that the OG story isn't seen by the friend for whom the gift is intended? [jc] users go through an explicit sharing flow where they create, approve, and preview the message to their friend. The post is not shared until the user's birthday to keep the element of surprise. As with any platform integration, user may set the privacy at the app level. In coordinating on contributions, friends may use private inbox messaging to coordinate.
- Do we receive any cut of purchases? (Assuming answer is no, but just double checking.) [jc] no, but amazon is an advertiser and supporting this with advertisement

@Lee - flagging this on the FB gifting side as you might hear or read about this

Everyone - see below recap, let me know of any questions. I already cleared this with policy a couple months back and it's been in soft launch for a bit.

Experience: www.amazon.com/birthdaygift

Integration Features:

1. Open Graph - "Contributed to"
2. Group gifting
3. Timed Birthday Post & Preview
4. Friend Mention
5. Send Dialog - Inviting friends to contribute to a birthday gift (Private gifting coordination)

How Amazon is Promoting:

1. Blog coverage (I.E. Mashable: <http://mashable.com/2013/06/18/amazon-group-gift-cards/>)
2. Promotion: Send 3 gifts for a $3 Amazon credit (policy: we're okay with incentivized open graph sharing)
3. Sponsored Page Post and Sponsored OG

FB Product Flags:

1. Facebook Gifts - However, we should watch the usage of the 'contribute to' og action as we can retarget those users as potential gifters for our gifting product

Performance:

Amazon launched gift carding with FB almost a year ago and converted around the start of the year to open graph. At this time they're seeing around 7.5k month open graph stories around users sending gifts to friends. The Amazon team has indicated that FB is considered a pretty successful piece to gifting which is why they're expanding to group gifting. Below is a quick snapshot of how their "Send" stories are performing.

Subject: Amazon Birthday Gift launch

Facebook team,

I know we reviewed the product with you, but wanted to just give you an FYI that Amazon Birthday Gift (www.amazon.com/birthdaygift) will be officially launching tomorrow. It has been soft launched for a bit with no promotion activity, but we've made improvements (e.g., better mobile access, reworked invite flow, multi-denomination Gift Cards, etc.). We'll be doing a PR, launching a promotion (send three gifts for a $3 Amazon credit), expect some blog coverage, etc. We'll also be sponsoring posts around this, promoting the contribute OG edge, etc.

Anna (cc'd) is the PM for this product (and has interacted with some of you), but let us know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Cory

Douglas Purdy:

>but the truth is that we are going to be under pressure to pull more and more user data from competitors over time.

Ilya Sukhar:

>Yeah, that makes sense. I think we should have a crisp story re competitive apps while we're at this whole thing. Even defining the "restricted" set and being upfront about it ("this is what you get when we put you in jail..") is better than status quo.

Douglas Purdy:

>yes. transparent is good.

Ling Bao:

>Worth discussing. Still feel like we should provide a minimal login layer even for competitors. Apple lets gmaps into their App Store. Windows runs iTunes, etc. we don't need to give graph or any data that's key, but it'd be nice if users really could login to everything via single id. In some ways this gives us more leverage against competitors (we have some data on usage patterns)

Douglas Purdy:

>if the minimal login layer includes FB user data, I don't think it works in the limit. Mike can weigh in here, but I think we should just tell competitors that they can use our sharing/plugins. if they want general purpose developers services, they can use parse. btw: i don't think Apple and Windows are good comps for how to think about this problem, this is data issue, not an execution issue.

Not sure, if you have seen the results of the audit our policy enforcement team conducted, so here those are again:

Path

Restricted for the following: photo, status.

They are pulling gr:get:User/friends, gr:get:User/friendlists, though this wasn't restricted as as of our most recent vet the app wasn't actively using friendslist for growth within the app (which has historically been a requirement for restricting friends list).

Line

Restricted for the following: Friends.get (this is friends info), stream read, photo, photo album, checkin, post, group message.

It was added to the friends.get sitevar 2013/05/30 by Cinzia, with the note "LINE - Asian messenger app - added to the sitevar as preventive measure."

So all in all, we are not leaking any graph information (mainly though friends list) to Line, while at the same time we have more restrictions imposed on Line than we have for Path.

I hope this helps,
kp

I met with Dave Morin (Path) yesterday in SF, as courtesy follow-up after he reached out to Justin and me a few weeks back. Dave mentioned in the meeting that "he was going to reach out to Mark to get a sense of how he views Path these days" so I'm sending a quick meeting recap to this group, in case he actually does:

- Path Update:
 - Overall, despite not working with them as closely as Dave would like, our conversation was cordial and very friendly. I'd say that our relationship is in a healthy place.
 - Dave said that Path has little to no traffic in the US, but is Top 5 in several markets in SeAsia. He claimed he personally was spending most of his business time in Asia these days.
 - Path is pursuing a multi app strategy too, including breaking out their messaging application. But, Dave mentioned that "the core Path app is the only one really getting use."
- Can Path & FB work together?
 - We were both candid about the fact that we might not be able to find alignment to work together given the nature of our products.
 - Audience Network. Dave claimed to have ~500M imp/day across his apps. He mentioned that he was going to begin looking at how to monetize these impressions in '15. Depending on how Mark feels about them, they could be an interesting target for the AN given their feed format and Southeast Asian presence.
 - Platform. Dave was not up to speed on the evolution of Platform. He claimed that the apps that Path is competing with in Asia have access to platform tools that he doesn't. He explicitly called out Line and Kakao.
////My team & DevOps will look into how true this claim is or not.

There were no real actionable follow ups, but let me know if you have any questions/concerns.

I think we should wrap this up with PS12N. We'll have a big media blitz that explains all of the changes, including why we're making a bunch of breaks to "protect the graph." I don't think it really makes sense to go through two press cycles on this issue and we'll be much better prepared and unified when we roll out PS12N. So, I'd recommend waiting.

Subject: Input Requested - iOS Contact Sync Apps

Hi Ilya,

This spring policy/enforcement were tasked with deciding whether to enforce on apps that sync profile picture and name to the native iOS address book (e.g. sync.me). Although this violates Platform policies I.12 and II.6, we decided to make an exception for apps that don't transfer any other information to the address book. One of the main reasons for the decision was that PS12N will break these apps anyway, and at the time we thought it'd be out by October. Now that timing of PS12N may still be 9+ months out, we've been asked to revisit the issue.

Do you have any thoughts about the pros/cons of waiting until PS12N? One of the cons I see is that even if we enforce against all the apps we can find that are doing this, it may still be perceived as arbitrary since we haven't enforced before and since we may not catch every app. Pros I see are that there's some data leakage risk in allowing apps to do this, and we'd be eliminating that risk. Also, business development is concerned that by allowing apps to do this we are giving away the graph.

Again, I'd love to get your thoughts on this.

Best,
Sara

Subject: Re: Mobile Ads + Seattle

Can talk more today, but high-level.

Context:

1/ We don't have a platform business model on mobile yet. Payments isn't going to work in the near-term (building our own Android App Store might help a bit, as might Firefly, but otherwise we don't have anything, yet).

2/ More broadly, we don't have any business model on mobile yet, and that's a big issue. We think it has to be advertising-based, but we haven't figured it out yet.

3/ For a long time, the ultimate business model for platform is projected to be sponsored stories based on Open Graph content. This should work on both desktop + mobile.

4/ The biggest / most efficient market segment for advertising on mobile today is driving app installs. This is at least partly because it's the most measurable – if you know that you get $0.70 from every game you sell, then in theory you can afford to pay up to $0.69/install. This kind of measurability allows for maximal bidding.

So, what we're trying to do is kickstart our sponsored stories business on mobile by focusing on one particular type of story (is-playing stories) and one market segment (games), make that work really well, and then expand from there.

Roughly, the plan:

1/ Create new iOS + Android SDKs, because the current ones are terrible. Ship Thunderhill so we get even broader adoption of our stuff.

2/ Wire them up to make sure we know when you're playing a game (so we can generate the same kind of is-playing stories we can on canvas).

3/ Generate a bunch of effective, organic distribution for these games via our existing channels (news feed, net ego on both desktop + mobile). Ship send-to-mobile, which allows us to leverage our desktop audience to drive mobile app traffic.

4/ Create an even better app store than the native app stores (our app center) and make a lot of noise about it, so developers know that they should be thinking about us to get traffic to their mobile apps

5/ Introduce a paid offering, probably cost-per-install (CPI) based, where you can pay us to get installs for your mobile app. Primary channels for this paid distribution are News Feed and App Center (on desktop + mobile) as well as RHC on desktop.

6/ Make it so that you can buy this offering seamlessly from the dev site in language that developers understand. Make it so that you get insights for your ad performance seamlessly. Make sure that Insights is telling the story of how much traffic we drive to your native apps and explaining how you can get even more.

What you own:

Step 1 – all.

Step 2 – all.

Step 3 – Vijaye owns send-to-mobile. Other stuff has shared ownership between Games, Growth, and News Feed, but you should make sure you get what you need for this all to be successful.

Step 4 – Games team.

Step 5 – Ads team owns the auction / pricing. You own making it successful for developers.

Step 6 – all.

Let me know if this makes sense. I'm not exaggerating when I say this is probably the most strategic thing for you guys to tackle over the next 3-4 months.

I talked to KX, and he's fine with us (platform) taking point on this work, including the ad create flow. He's also fine with this being based in Seattle.

Greg – I think you & Vlad should take point on getting this staffed-up quickly. I think this is incredibly strategic, probably the most strategic thing in Seattle right now, so we should staff aggressively. Can you own staffing this and escalate to me + Vlad if you have trouble?

Doug – I assume Deb should take point on Pming this end-to-end effort. In particular, I don't think we should split Pming it between Ads + Platform. We should just take point.

If we need design work, I can talk to Adam to get this staffed?

Does this sound reasonable? I want us to move with purpose + urgency here. If there's any doubt about who owns what, we own it. We need to get this done.

Facebook: The Making of 1 Billion Users
Bloomberg Businessweek
By Ashlee Vance
October 5th, 2012

<http://www.businessweek.com/articles/2012-10-04/facebook-the-making-of-1-billion-users>

The team in charge of tracking Facebook's (FB) growth works on the second floor of Building 17. Most days, the offices are like anywhere else at Facebook: whiteboards, toys on desks, shorts and flip-flops, pretty low-key. Around noon on Sept. 14, the second floor was packed. In one of the common areas, a giant screen showed the number of active Facebook users worldwide. About 100 people, including Mark Zuckerberg and his top lieutenants, watched the numbers run up by about a thousand users per minute: 999,980,000 ... 999,990,000 ... 1,000,000,000. The counter paused for a moment when it rounded 10 digits, as if to emphasize the point: 1 billion users.

The celebration was less exuberant than one might imagine given that Facebook had just officially registered one-seventh of earth's population. Zuckerberg had thought about doing the whole balloons-and-visit-from-Ryan-Seacrest thing when they located lucky user No. 1,000,000,000. The problem, though, was that the occasion was really more of a notional event, like when the United Nations announces the world's population. Facebook's vast array of computers handles so many users doing so many things, the best they can do is make a statistical calculation. After a few minutes of hoots, high-fives, and good cheer, Zuckerberg and his employees did what they usually do after major achievements: They went back to work.

"I don't even know if we knew who the billionth person was," Zuckerberg says about two weeks later. He's sitting outside at the company's sprawling Menlo Park (Calif.) campus, resting his arms on a tiny café table. In his usual rapid-fire delivery, Facebook's 28-year-old chief executive officer explains that his aversion to overt jubilation goes back to the earliest days of his company, when it was still a dorm room operation at Harvard. "We have this ethos where we want to be a culture of builders, right? We don't want to overly celebrate any particular milestone," he says. He knew even in college that a company would soon unite a huge portion of humanity via a single social service, he just wasn't sure it would be his. "We were just these college students, and who were we to build this big thing?" he says. "Clearly, there were other companies used to building software at scale, and one of them would do it."

Facebook got there first for a lot of reasons, many of them familiar to anyone who saw the movie The Social Network: Zuckerberg's ambition, knack for addictive widgets, and what some would call supreme ruthlessness. The more impressive reasons, though, have to do with the culture he established, which is expressed in the motivational posters around the company's offices: "Move Fast and Break Things."

Facebook absorbed Silicon Valley's hacker ethos and amplified it. Tech companies normally do controlled beta versions of their technologies; Facebook doesn't beta anything. It runs as an unending series of quick, on-the-fly tests with actual customers. Engineers race to put up new features, see if they work, and make tweaks to fix them if they don't. Even trainees who haven't finished their six-week indoctrination program are asked to work on the live site. The live site, by the way, runs on custom-designed hardware and software housed in Facebook's superefficient, and experimental, data centers. Every now and again the whole site crashes, but Zuckerberg can live with that. "The faster we learn, the better we're going to get to the model of where we should be," he says.

The learn-on-the-go philosophy regularly blows up in Zuckerberg's face. He and his team periodically revamp Facebook's privacy policy, triggering a predictable chain reaction: consumer outrage, company walkback, adjusted policy, re-release, lessened outrage, and so forth until the furor dies down. Unlike with computer algorithms that temporarily crash the system, however, these iterations are apt to leave lasting damage to Facebook's reputation.

Then there's the initial public offering, perhaps Facebook's biggest face plant. The company set out to maximize its offering price and succeeded, raising $16 billion when it went public last May. Then it watched the stock sink from $38 a share all the way to less than $20, slicing its market value in half. The foundering stock price has hardened doubts about the strength of its business model, and may make it difficult for Facebook to retain talent. Regulators are looking at whether the banks underwriting the offering selectively shared information with top clients. Multiple plaintiff groups have filed suits in federal and state courts, alleging that Zuckerberg, Facebook, and its investment banks misled investors about the social network's revenue outlook. Facebook says the suits lack merit.

"The performance has obviously been disappointing. I mean, we care about all the investors, and that's really important," Zuckerberg says. "I suppose there could be short-term things that we could do, but we're not going to focus on those; we're going to focus on the long-term stuff."

If the Hacker Way, as Zuckerberg calls Facebook's culture, is an awkward tool for dealing with Washington and Wall Street, it's been extremely effective for building a service that can handle the social needs of a billion people. Sites such as Google (GOOG) and Amazon.com (AMZN) have the luxury of preparing the majority of the user experience in advance. Google catalogs the Web and has already decided what to show you before you even search for something. At Amazon, a box of pretzels is a box of pretzels; the pretzel page doesn't upload videos of itself, crowdsource for beverage pairings, or share wedding pictures.

Facebook builds a custom Web page every time you visit. It pores over all the actions your friends have taken—their photos, their friends, the songs they listen to, the products they like—and determines in two-hundredths of a second which items you might wish to see, and in what order. Each day, Facebook processes 2.7 billion "Likes," 300 million photo uploads, 2.5 billion status updates and check-ins, and countless other bits of data, and uses that mass of transactions to guesstimate which ads to serve up. To manage the load, Facebook has created the world's largest, most efficient data-crunching machine.

"I think Facebook has the hardest information technology problem on the planet," says Mike Stonebraker, a computer scientist and longtime professor at the University of California at Berkeley. "A company like Google certainly does innovative stuff, but Facebook solves the harder problem.” The company is essentially building a system that will serve as the model for the next wave of computing in which trillions of sensors, smartphones, and medical devices issue streams of data that must be analyzed instantly. So far, Facebook actually has this monstrosity working.

Before Facebook moved in last year, the campus in Menlo Park was the headquarters of Sun Microsystems. It pushes up against marshlands and salt ponds along the San Francisco Bay, which gives the air a faint stench when the wind blows a certain way. Zuckerberg nevertheless likes to take meetings outside and today holds forth in the central courtyard. He has a speechwriter now, and his answers have been molded by a few years of intensive media training. “It’s really humbling to get a billion people to do anything,” he says.

Zuckerberg visibly relaxes as the conversation turns to Mike Schroepfer, his vice president of engineering. While much of the world knows Sheryl Sandberg, Facebook’s chief operating officer, they do not know Schroepfer, whose desk is right next to Zuckerberg’s.

Schrep, as everyone at Facebook calls him, arrived four years ago from Mozilla, where he led the development of the Firefox Web browser. No person outside of Zuckerberg has had more influence on Facebook’s engineers and the construction of the company’s massive and growing infrastructure. “He’s the cultural center of the engineering team,” Zuckerberg says. Facebook’s engineers have taken to decorating their pages with Schrep images fashioned to look like the iconic Obama posters from the 2008 campaign. “People just, like, love him,” says Zuckerberg.

It’s Schroepfer who ensures the tweaking never stops. He’s been instrumental in developing the company’s obsession with what’s known in Silicon Valley as A/B testing. This is the process by which engineers compare one version of a Web page to another to see which generates the most interest. You might make one version of a menu red and another blue, then run data analysis to gauge their performance. At any given moment, Facebook has tens of thousands of A/B tests running. It may be trying to decide which version of an ad plays best to a particular crowd or how to word the options in a menu. This is how Facebook discovered that people got stressed out and left the site when they were asked if they wanted to “reject” a friend request. The engineers found the noncommittal “not now” kept people logged on. “Engineers understand data,” Schroepfer says. “The trick is some of these details really matter and some don’t.”

During a meeting in a conference room near his desk, Schroepfer leads a group of engineers in a half-hour debate over the design of a restaurant review feature. Should it have a five-star rating option, a Like button, or both? Should there be animation? Does it feel natural? At the end of the meeting, Schroepfer and one other guy remain at odds over the Like vs. Stars question. “This is probably just a data gap between your brain and my brain,” Schroepfer says. The A/B tests have since begun.

The de facto proctor of these tests is Chuck Rossi. In a company full of people trying to establish their wackiness, Rossi stands out. To the left of his desk he has a large, fully stocked Tiki bar with a lot of Scotch. Used targets have been stapled to the bar—Rossi is a competitive marksman, and sometimes conducts offsites at shooting ranges. “The booze we do separately,” he hastens to add.

Rossi is Facebook’s release engineer, the overlord of a ritual the company calls “the push.” This is the moment when Facebook refreshes its source code with a new version. In the past, it wasn’t uncommon for the push to bring down all of Facebook, but now things tend to run more smoothly. Most software companies take months to pull together the code in their flagship products, check it for errors, and get it ready to ship. Rossi used to have a similar job at Google, and says that famously fast-moving company did its equivalent of the push every couple of weeks while he was there. Facebook redoes its site once a day, usually at around 4:30 p.m. West Coast time.

As push time approaches one evening in August, Rossi is relatively calm. All day, Facebook's engineers have been sending him new bits of code they want added to the site. The company's engineers typically submit about 300 tweaks per push. On Tuesdays, there's a bigger push that incorporates thousands of changes.

Rossi and a handful of other people review the tweaks, approve some, and kick back the rest for improvement. The engineers, proud of their ideas, often try to charm Rossi into approving their code. They gather in chat rooms to try to convince him that it's crucial that their changes go in today's push. When tomorrow is absolutely not an option, the engineers leave their desks and make their way to Rossi with an offering—hence the Scotch selection at the Tiki bar. “A little bribe never hurts,” he says. “I love cupcakes, too.”

Facebook has developed dozens of tools to catch the mistakes of its engineers. Rossi's computer screens—which he's programmed to look like The Matrix, with green text cascading down a black background—have them all on display. One tool analyzes code to see how dramatic a change is and what mechanisms it will affect. The same program tells Rossi about the level of discussion among product teams about the merits of this new feature. Was it rejected once, fixed, and then accepted? Or did it have 32 comments, 11 updates, and 6 rejections before reaching him? Another application alerts him if something is likely to break. “I actually think as we've gotten more mature, we've focused a little bit less on the ‘break things’ part of ‘break things and move fast,’” Zuckerberg says. “One of the things that we've realized is that as we've gotten bigger, it is possible to make so many mistakes that you're actually moving slower because you're spending a lot of time fixing mistakes.”

As the afternoon wears on, Rossi decides—Scotch and cupcakes be damned—that he's got to stop taking new changes. He begins the push by releasing the updated site first to Facebook employees, and then to about 2 percent of Facebook's users. He brings up another set of windows to see how long the tasks are taking, how well Facebook's servers are running, and whether there's any unusual surge of hostile tweets. When something goes wrong, an alarm sounds and the affected window on his screen turns red. “If this board is green, we are good,” Rossi says. A screen flashes green. He patters on his keyboard, and today's Facebook push goes out to all 1 billion users. “It's like giving birth,” he says.

From their first day of employment, Facebook engineers are expected to dig into the software that runs the site. Trainees in the six-week Boot Camp sit in a large workroom amid huge banks of desks with massive Dell (DELL) monitors. Under the supervision of “code mentors,” easily spotted by their giant sombreros and other outlandish hats, new hires hunt for minor glitches in the 1.5 gigabytes of source code that runs Facebook.

Some Boot Campers break stuff. Jocelyn Goldfein came to Facebook in mid-2010 from VMware (VMW). Despite an impressive résumé, she still had to go through Boot Camp with the college kids. Near the end of her six weeks, she activated the product she'd been working on, and it flooded Facebook's internal network with meaningless traffic, taking down the e-mail system for an entire day. “I turned off Mark Zuckerberg's e-mail,” she says, still shuddering. “This is not how I wanted to introduce myself.” No one reprimanded her. “People showed up and were curious about why this was happening and wanted to know what I was trying to accomplish,” she says. “No one was like, ‘How dare you!’ And that was unique in my experience.”

At some point during their training, the engineers are divided into groups of about 30. They’re taken past a kitchen with free candy bars, a video game arcade, and a vending machine that spits out free keyboards and memory sticks. The recruits end up in a conference room, plop down in plastic chairs, and await a lecture from Schroepfer.

Schrep makes his way to the front of the room and pushes his black glasses up his nose. Of average build and with an orthodontist’s countenance, he’s known as that supersmart guy you want to impress. The recruits—all but a couple are male—go quiet as Schroepfer’s first PowerPoint slide hits the projection screen. He begins by asking the employees where they last went to school or worked: Stanford, Northwestern, Princeton, Duke; CBS Interactive (CBS), Microsoft (MSFT), Yahoo! Research (YHOO), Google, and Amazon.com. “I want to talk about how Facebook is different than any organization you have been in,” he says.

Schroepfer explains that in Facebook’s olden days—that would be 2008—the engineering team had 150 people. Everyone knew each other, hopping from project to project was easy, and the site adapted quickly to competitive threats. The company now has 1,000 engineers and expects to add hundreds more this year. Boot Camp, Schroepfer explains, is an attempt to fight the natural creep of bureaucracy that comes with rapid expansion. He says big tech companies typically spend a day or a week indoctrinating new employees, mostly to explain 401(k) options and how to file expense reports. “Then, boom, you’re deposited in your team.” The employees become part of “warring tribes” that fixate on a single product, he says.

During Boot Camp, the Facebook hires see the company’s entire code base. They’re asked to work on Timeline for a bit and then to try out the Mobile app and familiarize themselves with the inner workings of News Feed. At the end of the process, they choose which product team to join. “We don’t assign you to a team,” Schroepfer says. “We want to make sure you are working on something you are good at and passionate about.” At Facebook, he says, you can come up with a new idea today and “half a billion people will use your product tomorrow.”

Facebook has grown from 600 employees in 2008 to 3,976 as of June 2012. “We have this stat that we throw out all the time,” says Zuckerberg. “There is on the order of 1,000 engineers and now on the order of a billion users, so each engineer is responsible for a million users.”

Even as it expanded its engineering corps, Facebook had to expand its hardware, and three years ago Zuckerberg and Schroepfer decided that the company should stop leasing data center space and build its own facilities. They put together a team of about a dozen people. A few months later, Facebook began constructing a 330,000-square-foot complex in Prineville, Ore., a sparsely populated farming and ranching town that has cheap power and plenty of broadband access.

Building another megadata center wasn’t enough for Zuckerberg and Schroepfer, however. They wanted to experiment with a different design. Instead of using massive air conditioning systems to keep thousands of servers from overheating, the Prineville facility has giant, slatted vents on its sides that let in air as needed. A series of fans, filters, and water misters then clear the air, cool it, adjust its humidity, and guide it deeper into the building. Eventually the air flows to the rows of server racks below. All this happens automatically, with computers deciding how to guide the process.

Most of the software running these data centers was likewise built from the ground up or modified by Facebook engineers. The company has invented ways to get thousands of computers to work in unison. It also has several labs at its headquarters where it designs servers and storage systems. Its engineers strip out nonessential components and test various motherboard configurations to see how much heat and power they can withstand. Instead of buying its computers from a Dell or Hewlett-Packard (HPQ), Facebook has them manufactured by Asian suppliers.

The Prineville data center may be the most energy-efficient in the world. According to a standard measurement developed by an industry consortium, almost all the electricity goes to the computers as opposed to powering cooling systems or dissipating as heat. The company is building a half-dozen similar centers in Oregon, North Carolina, and Sweden.

As those come online, Facebook will be able to handle more Likes, pictures, and status updates, and the ads that go along with them. "There is this Facebook equivalent of Moore's Law," Zuckerberg says. "Each year the amount of stuff that each individual shares is growing at this exponential rate. And that lets us project into the future and say, 'OK, two years from now people are going to be sharing twice as much, [in] three years, four times [as much], four years, eight times as much.'"

The more Facebook grows, the more expansive its services can become. "We are trying to map out the graph of everything in the world and how it relates to each other," says Mike Vernal, one of the company's top engineers. The goal, he says, is to record every book, film, and song a person has ever consumed, then build a spectacular model of other things that person could enjoy. Take that vision to its logical end: You show up in a strange city and Facebook tells you what bar to go to. When you get there the bartender has your favorite drink waiting, and you're able to look around the room and see if anyone there went to your college or likes the San Francisco Giants. You may find this kind of universal social mapping exciting, or creepy. Zuckerberg describes it as inevitable. "At some point," he says, "that will start to be a better map of how you navigate the Web than the traditional link structure." By "traditional link structure," he clearly means the basis of Google searches.

Zuckerberg says he hopes to bring Facebook to China, where it's currently banned by the government, though he doesn't think that will happen soon. The company's biggest growth opportunity is mobile: "There are actually already 600 million people using Facebook on phones, so that's growing really quickly. And as more phones become smartphones, it's just this massive opportunity."

Zuckerberg's embrace of mobile will strike some shareholders as late in coming. In February, Facebook disclosed in an S1 regulatory filing that mobile usage didn't generate meaningful revenue. More recently, executives have tried to reverse that sentiment by touting preliminary test results that show the company's ads on mobile phones are 13 times more likely to be clicked on than ads on the desktop. Renewed faith in the company's mobile ads has been partly responsible for a mini-rally in its stock, pushing the price above the more dignified threshold of $20 for the first time since mid-August.

"We make more mistakes than other companies do," Zuckerberg says. "You can't have everything, so you just have to choose what your values are and where you want to be. For example, Microsoft has a huge focus on really rigorous, bug-free code. That's cool. I think that's the right decision for a lot of the markets they're in. But for us, this is the right way to go."

In December 2010, Facebook users who were paying attention began noticing something strange about the site. Some people were able to see a new product called Memories, while others noticed a new interface for Photos. The site seemed to be rolling out dozens of products, and many looked unfinished. For about 30 minutes, people filled Twitter with chatter, trying to figure out what was going on.

At its headquarters, people were freaking out. The move-fast culture had resulted in one engineer accidentally releasing all of Facebook's top-secret projects to the public. Memories, for example, was an early version of what would become Timeline. Most companies keep sensitive projects cordoned off on special systems. Facebook, remember, gives every engineer equal access to its code.

The engineers flew to their internal chat system and tried to devise a plan for fixing the breach. The problem, though, was that Facebook runs on thousands upon thousands of servers. Try as they might, the engineers could not recall the leaked features. Jay Parikh, vice president of infrastructure engineering, decided to take the drastic step of disconnecting Facebook from the Internet. He logged into one of the social network's central servers and erased all the Internet addresses people would use to get to Facebook.com.

Once he made Facebook invisible to the world, Parikh knew he had to tell Zuckerberg. Not pleasant, even at a company where failure is an option. "I ran upstairs to talk to Mark," Parikh says. Zuckerberg replied, "That sucks."

A short while later, Zuckerberg tried to ease the tension. "I got all my direct reports together," he says. "They were all a little nervous. I was like, 'Guys, I told you NOT to ship everything. Maybe I'll say the "not" a little louder next time.'"

Facebook (FB) Celebrates a Billion Users With a New Advertisement

"Chairs Are Like Facebook." That's just one of the tag lines in Facebook's new ad released today on the web to celebrate the company's milestone of hitting one billion users.

Mark Zuckerberg announced the major achievement on Facebook this morning. "This morning, there are more than one billion people using Facebook actively each month," Zuckerberg wrote in the blog post. "If you're reading this: thank you for giving me and my little team the honor of serving you."

Facebook actually reached the billion-user record last month on Sept. 14. With that stat, Facebook is also pointing out that there have been over 1.13 trillion likes, 140.3 billion friend connections, 219 billion photos uploaded since the launch of the service in February 2009.

The 90-second ad, which you can view here, will appear on Facebook.com for now, but according to AllThingsD it might see some TV airtime and some placement on other websites in the future. It was created by Wieden+Kennedy, the the same agency responsible for Nike's ads. Alejandro González Iñárritu, who directed "Amores Perros," was the director, says Ad Age.

The ad and the milestone come as Facebook continues to face pressure from Wall Street and the public about its disappointing IPO (Mark Zuckerberg's adjective, not ours). When the company first sold stock on May 18, it offered a price of $38 per share, but the stock quickly fell about 50 percent. Yesterday, the stock closed at $21.83.

Earlier this week, Facebook's new advertising policies raised some privacy concerns. The new Custom Audiences advertising feature allows marketers to target their ad or sponsored story to a specific set of users using phone numbers or email addresses posted on the site.

Facebook COO Sheryl Sandberg defended the new feature and stated that "we never sell user information, we don't make money when you share more, and we do not give your information to marketers."

She added: "People will on use Facebook if they trust us."

Whether each of its billion users trust Facebook is a story unto itself, but like chairs, Facebook is providing a place for people to sit and get together on the web.

Facebook IPO Suits To Be Handled In New York

The Wall Street Journal

By Telis Demos and Aaron Lucchetti

October 5th, 2012

<http://professional.wsj.com/article/SB10000872396390444223104578037321776713546.html?mg=reno64-wsj>

A federal judicial panel ruled that a variety of lawsuits pertaining to the Facebook Inc. initial public offering would be handled in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, giving the social-media company a procedural victory in the closely watched cases.

The U.S. Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation disclosed in an order Thursday that "the Southern District of New York is an appropriate transferee district for pretrial proceedings." It noted that 26 of the actions involving the Facebook IPO are already pending in that court before Judge Robert Sweet, including seven of the eight cases involving Nasdaq OMX Group, which owns the exchange where Facebook stock trades.

The various cases involving the botched IPO concern system errors on Nasdaq which led to confusion about investors' orders on Facebook's first day of trading, as well as allegations that Facebook and its underwriters didn't disclose enough about trends in the company's mobile applications that many analysts believed might hamper Facebook's expected earnings growth.

Facebook and others argued the cases should be consolidated in one court. The panel noted that there is some factual overlap between the two sets of cases and many of the underwriters and Nasdaq are located in New York.

In a statement, a Facebook spokeswoman said: "We are pleased the MDL Panel granted our motion to transfer these actions to the Southern District of New York. As we've said from the outset, we believe these lawsuits are without merit and will defend ourselves vigorously."

A Nasdaq spokesman couldn't be reached for comment. Nasdaq has said previously that it is willing to cover certain losses on the first day of trading.

After being offered at $38 a share in May, Facebook shares closed Thursday at $21.95 in Nasdaq trading.

Joe Lockhart To Leave Facebook To Consult
Politico

Joe Lockhart is changing his status update at Facebook: He's leaving the social network to head back East to consulting.

The former White House press secretary under Bill Clinton has served as Facebook's vice president of global communications for nearly 15 months in Silicon Valley, but he will soon depart the company but likely continue to do consulting work for Facebook, a friend told POLITICO

"Joe ultimately came to the decision that he didn't want to leave the East Coast, and obviously we understand that decision. ... His roots on the East Coast are very deep," a Facebook official said.

Lockhart's departure date has not yet been confirmed. Lockhart's departure was first reported by AllThingsD.

Lockhart recently attended both the Republican and Democratic Party conventions on behalf of Facebook.

He was hired at Facebook in July 2011, as the company was battling issues in Washington concerning its protection of consumer privacy online and preparing to go public. The company's IPO in May was rocky and share prices have dropped up to 40 percent off the opening price of $38 per share.

Lockhart is most well-known for building the press office during the second Clinton term in the White House. After the administration ended, Lockhart went on to become one of the founding members of the Glover Park Group, a D.C.-based consultancy firm which has worked on campaigns for Microsoft, Verizon and Pfizer.

The decision to leave Facebook comes as Lockhart is hesitant about spending more time at the company's headquarters in California, sources told POLITICO.

Lockhart had remained in Washington, with frequent trips to Facebook headquarters in Menlo Park, Calif.

Zynga Is In Trouble: And That's Great For Facebook

CNBC

Zynga is in trouble, and that's not great for Facebook, which can thank Zynga for 14 percent of its revenue in the first six months of 2012.

Zynga stock [ZNGA 2.815] is plummeting to new lows on news that its core social games are underperforming, which means dismal results in the second half of the year. This is yet another nail in social gaming's coffin — it follows a number of executive departures and disappointing second-quarter results that have brought the stock down.

After the bell Thursday the social game maker lowered its outlook and announced preliminary third-quarter results, to soften the blow of the earnings announcement scheduled on Oct. 24.

Zynga lowered its projections for the second half of 2012, cutting its estimated bookings by about $100 million, to a range of $1.09 billion to $1.1 billion, down from a $1.15 billion to $1.23 billion range. The company said it expects to report a net loss between $90 million and $105 million on revenue in the $300 to $305 million range. It is also taking a serious write-off on its acquisition of "Draw Something" maker OMG Pop, taking an $85 to $95 million impairment charge.

This is already hitting Facebook's stock [FB 21.9475], and a handful of analysts have issued reports on Facebook warning about the impact. (Read More: Will Facebook's New Focus on Revenue Boost Its Stock?)

JPMorgan lowered estimates for Facebook's payments revenue, now expecting it to decline 28 percent. JPMorgan warned that Zynga accounted for about 54 percent of Facebook's payments in the second quarter — about 9 percent of Facebook's total revenue. Barclays lowered its payments estimates for Facebook, noting that "social gaming on mobile devices is growing at the expense of desktop, which is where FB derives the majority of its payments revenue." (Read More: Facebook Hits Milestone, but Real News Is in Mobile.)

What happened? Games that were once Zynga's bread and butter — such as "FarmVille" (Zynga calls them the "invest and express" category) are performing worse than expected. Why? With the proliferation of mobile games, and people spending more time on smartphones, social games have lost their luster. Even if people are playing social games, Zynga has failed to convince more people to pay to play — paying gamers represent less than 5 percent of Zynga's user base.

Zynga CEO Mark Pincus posted some color on the company's blog about why the company issued preliminary results and lowered its outlook. He stressed that the company is investing in other genres — like gambling games, where it has the hit "Zynga Poker." He announced some new metrics, saying each of the company's three new games has achieved top 10 status, with more than 6 million daily players. Within its first five weeks, "ChefVille" has become a mainstay for 45 million monthly players, and "FarmVille 2" became the most popular social game within three days of network launch.

But the problems will add up to a weak fourth quarter. Pincus writes in his blog: "The reduced performance of some of our live web games is continuing to impact results and we have several new games which are at risk of launching later than expected." It also sounds like Pincus is getting ready to do some layoffs, saying, "We're addressing these near-term challenges by targeted cost reductions and focusing our new game pipeline to reflect our strategic priorities."

Zynga sees its future in mobile. More from the blog: "At the same time, we are continuing to invest in our mobile business where we have one of the strongest positions in the industry. These actions support our strategy to transition from being a first-party web game developer to a multi-platform game network."

He added: "Let's not lose sight of the bigger picture. The world is playing games, and is increasingly choosing social games. Zynga has become synonymous with social gaming, serving 311 million monthly active users — the largest player network on web and mobile. When we offer our players highly engaging content they respond. 'FarmVille 2' has been our most successful launch since 'CastleVille.' Our 'With Friends' franchise is defining social play on mobile where Zynga represents 3 of the top 5 most popular mobile games in terms of time spent in the U.S. according to Nielsen. While we're encouraged by our strong starting position on mobile, developing this new growth market to the scale of our web business will take time."

Why The Ad Tech Guys Are Going Nuts About Facebook Exchange, And Why That Matters

All Things Digital

By Peter Kafka

October 5th, 2012

<http://allthingsd.com/20121005/why-the-ad-tech-guys-are-going-nuts-about-facebook-exchange-and-why-that-matters/>

This summer, Facebook launched its own ad exchange. If you're in the ad tech world, that's a really big deal.

And the rest of you have probably never heard of it. That's in part because Facebook itself hasn't said much about it. It kept its partners under a tight gag order throughout the summer until last month, when it allowed them to hand out a few upbeat anecdotes. And none of that stuff will make sense to a regular human being.

So we asked Triggitt CEO Zach Coelius to try to explain what Facebook is up to, using as much plain English as possible.

Coelius isn't close to being a neutral observer, because he's been an enthusiastic Facebook partner. But he's a good explainer, and relatively candid.

One scenario to keep in mind as you read the interview: If Coelius is right, and the Exchange adds dramatic value to the cheap ads Facebook is using it for right now, what would happen if the company relented and offered the Exchange on all of its ads?

Two theories, which aren't mutually exclusive:

Facebook's overall revenue shoots up, as the company conforms to the way most of the Web ad world does business.

Facebook's value flattens or drops, because Facebook will have conceded that it hasn't been able to figure out a revolutionary new way to sell ads. Instead, it's just like any other big Web publisher with lots of inventory. Like, say, Yahoo or AOL. That doesn't mean it's a bad business, but it's a whole lot less exciting than a world-changing one.

Kafka: Let's go over the basics of ad retargeting, and how Facebook's exchange uses that technique.

Coelius: Retargeting lets advertisers utilize data they have about their customers. When I go to Backcountry.com and I look at a pair of skis, in the same way that Backcountry.com might send me an email saying "Hey, you know these skis are on sale, you should buy them," or the way that they would change their site to show me the skis that I looked at the last time, when I visit again — they can also do the same thing with their ads. So that, when they show you their ads, they can show ads about things that you're interested in. So, on Facebook, they're now enabling those advertisers to do that, too.

So you're buying the ads from Facebook and reselling them to your advertisers?

Coelius: We work with the exchanges, and they use a technology called real-time bidding, which means that in real time, as the page is loading, the exchange will call to us and say, "Hey, Triggitt, this user ID [which represents an anonymous Web surfer] is available, are you interested in showing them an ad?" And we say, "Oh, yeah, this guy wants to buy a pair of skis from Backcountry — we think he does, he looked at a pair of skis recently — let's show him a Backcountry ad with a pair of skis in it."

And how do the Facebook exchange ads perform against those you buy on other exchanges, like Google's?

We kind of went into this in the beginning saying, "Facebook's huge, and they're opening up to data-driven advertising, and if it performs just as well as everything else we do, we're going to be very happy." And, for us, it has been an amazing and wonderful surprise — the performance has been so much better than anything else we've ever done.

Why?

There's a number of reasons for that. The ad units actually are very good — they're always "in view," there's no fraud ...

These are the small “marketplace” ads you see on the right side of the page, right?

At this point. Those ads are small, but they’re actually good ads, relative to some of the other ads we’ve bought.

Really? Because some buyers I’ve talked to have complained that those small ads don’t give them enough room to do anything compelling.

The ad units are smaller than some of the others that we have, and if they were bigger they would work better. But they’re definitely not limited, and they’re not working poorly. They’re working incredibly well. I could only imagine what we could do if they gave us a bigger canvas to paint on.

Why else do you think the Facebook ads work?

On most of the other exchanges that we buy, the traffic patterns and the usage of those Web sites is either often search-driven traffic or browsing traffic. Traffic where the user is looking to do something, or looking to find something, or read about something. Facebook is a communication utility; it’s something that people always have open, and they’re there. And what we’re finding is that when they do engage with the ads, they’re converting at much higher rates. If they stop what they’re doing on Facebook and turn and click on an ad, and go to our customer’s Web sites — they buy.

Really? Because that’s the standard advertising critique of Facebook — that people aren’t there to buy anything. They’re there because they want to hang out with their friends, and they don’t want to see ads, and they don’t respond to them.

We never bought on Facebook before they opened up to real-time bidding, so we can’t speak to what went on before. But what we’ve always seen is that when you provide users with ads around the things that they’re interested in, they engage with those ads.

But, to beat this into the ground: The whole premise of your industry is that Web sites don’t matter, people do. That you can find interested customers for your clients all across the Web, and that the data about those people is more important than what site they’re on.

I don’t always say it’s one or the other. I would say the site, at least in this case, with Facebook, definitely matters. But being able to know what a user is interested in, and show them ads around that, definitely makes them better and more relevant.

So, how big can the exchange and retargeting get for Facebook?

Obviously Facebook is gigantic — 25 to 35 percent of the entire Web. So they’re big. The volume at this point is ramping incredibly quickly. We haven’t gotten to the full scale that is Facebook, but the dial is turning very quickly, and Q4 is coming up. And I would be very surprised if we don’t go to full scale in relatively short order.

Do you think they’ll end up allowing retargeting on all their ads?

I have no idea. They have grand plans, and they're going to do grand things. I hope they open this up more broadly. There's no reason why they can't apply the data to sponsored stories or premium ads or mobile — we could apply it across the board.

Facebook Is Not 'Liking' Pages For You

Los Angeles Times

By Salvador Rodriguez

<http://www.latimes.com/business/technology/la-fi-tn-facebook-glitch-20121004,0,626711.story>

Facebook is fixing a glitch with its social plugins, but contrary to a report going around the Web, Facebook is not "liking" pages for you.

The glitch was discovered and shared on Hacker News this week. The site found that if you share a Web page on Facebook that has a "like" or "recommend" button, the page gets credit for two likes. Many commercial and individual sites now use those button to help boost their popularity.

But the count, in that case, should go up by only one.

News of the glitch led Gizmodo to post an article titled "Facebook Is Reading Your Messages and Liking Things For You." The article said that private messages sharing URLs for Facebook Pages -- such as the ones used on the social network to promote a movie or a celebrity -- causes Facebook to "like" that page in the name of you and your friend.

Fortunately, that's not true.

A spokesman for Facebook told The Times that the social network will not like a Facebook Page for you just because you send someone its URL.

So you can feel safe sending someone a link to Justin Bieber's Page without fearing Facebook will like it for you -- which would, of course, be quite embarrassing.

In the meantime, Facebook is fixing the glitch, the spokesman said.

Facebook: 1 Billion Users- And Doubters

MarketWatch

October 4th, 2012

http://articles.marketwatch.com/2012-10-04/commentary/34250004_1_mark-zuckerberg-facebook-user-marketwatch

NEW YORK (MarketWatch) — Mark Zuckerberg, chief executive officer of Facebook, is trumpeting that his social-media company has passed the 1 billion milestone in users.

Big deal.

Facebook's stock, which has greatly disappointed investors since its debut, only rose by a few pennies on Thursday morning following the news of the 1-billion mark.

The investment community isn't so easily impressed by big numbers. It recognizes that no matter how many users join Facebook (US:FB), Zuckerberg remains under pressure to show that his company can monetize all of those loyalists, especially, by capitalizing on the global societal shift to using mobile devices.

Of course, Zuckerberg will take good news anywhere he can get it. He is trying to improve on his questionable media strategy of keeping a low profile even as the price of his company's stock nosedived. The shares which began trading on May 18, are trading about 42% below their $38 initial public offering price. Even as his shareholders suffered, he didn't attempt to make public proclamations to reassure them.

Zuckerberg is clearly trying to prop up his image and take a more public stance. The 28-year-old Zuckerberg went on NBC's (US:CMCSA) "Today" show on Thursday morning and tried to inject some fresh hope into the gloomy Facebook picture. "We're in a tough cycle now and that doesn't help morale, but people are focused on what they're building."

While Facebook does have many supporters among investment firms' ranks of analysts, they are often drowned out by the pessimists. Barron's recently shook up Wall Street by publishing a front-page piece proclaiming that Facebook's stock was worth $15. Further, MarketWatch columnist Mark Hulbert took an even harder line, writing that it's merely a $13.80 stock. (Barron's and MarketWatch are owned by News Corp.)

Sure, it makes good media copy for Zuckerberg to tell the world that he now boasts 1 billion "friends." But there it still must seem as if for every Facebook user, there are just about as many doubters that the company can conquer Wall Street.

Facebook Scans Private Conversations To Pad Likes

E-Commerce Times

By Peter Suci

October 5th, 2012

<http://www.ecommercetimes.com/story/Facebook-Scans-Private-Conversations-to-Pad-Likes-76320.html>

It isn't too hard to see what Facebook users Like, but on Thursday reports surfaced online about something few if any users would find likeable. It appears that sending links via private messages through the social network results in extra Likes for the link targets -- never mind that the link you're sharing may concern something you abhor. Call it a case of Like fraud.

This is all the more worrisome to users because Facebook is culling links from seemingly private messages and converting them into very public Likes. This raises the question of whether private information could be made public, but Facebook denies that possibility.

"Absolutely no private information has been exposed. Each time a person shares a URL to Facebook, including through messages, the number of shares displayed on the social plugin for that website increases," said Facebook spokesperson Devon Corvasce.

"Our systems parse the URL being shared in order to render the appropriate preview, and to also ensure that the message is not spam. These counts do not affect the privacy settings of content, and URLs shared through private messages are not attributed publicly with user profiles," she told the E-Commerce Times.

"We did recently find a bug with our social plugins where at times the count for the share or Like goes up by two, and we are working on fix to solve the issue now," she added. "To be clear, this only affects social plugins off of Facebook and is not related to Facebook page Likes. This bug does not impact the user experience with messages or what appears on their timelines."

Latest Faceplant

The issue of privacy on Facebook has come up before, and this latest debacle is one that could make users question what they do through the social network.

"They're not helping themselves when they tell users that they will safeguard privacy and take privacy seriously and then seem to contradict those claims with this kind of behavior," said Greg Sterling, principal analyst of Sterling Market Research. "Assuming the reports are correct, Facebook appears to be data mining activities that users clearly intend to [keep] private. This is another privacy misstep for Facebook, and they'll be forced to discontinue the practice."

Still, it's questionable whether Facebook actually did anything wrong if it didn't share information, as it maintains, but merely added Likes for sites that users seemed to be talking about. It isn't as though the Likes were tied back to an individual or specific Facebook account. Is this something Facebook is -- or should be -- allowed to do?

"While I believe that Facebook's policy is intrusive and distasteful, it seems to be within the bounds of company policies," said Charles King, principal analyst for Pund-IT. "As I understand it, any material Facebook users post on the site, including personal photos, comments, etc., become, by policy, the property of Facebook."

"The company likely considers the rifling of users' private conversations and assigning Likes as it sees fit to simply be a matter of efficiently leveraging its assets," King told the E-Commerce Times.

"Plus, the practice also reflects Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg's stated belief -- after controversies surfaced about the company's privacy policy changes in 2010 -- that users' participation in an open environment like Facebook means that they prefer their data to be public," he noted.

Losing Face

Whether the fallout from this turn of events, which is just the latest in a string of privacy-related concerns, will have people turning away from Facebook is yet to be seen.

"This is really an abuse of our trust," said Alan Wlasuk, managing partner of software development firm WDDInc.

"Is Facebook going to be a responsible parent with our data?" he wondered. "What are they doing with our data that we expect that they will protect?"

This could show that Facebook isn't as much a community of users as it is a horde of users unwittingly contributing to the goal of making the owners money.

"This latest practice is simply a brutal reminder that Facebook's customers are not users -- but rather the businesses that buy the company's advertising services," emphasized King.

It could be scenarios such as this one that make users examine alternatives, including the recently designed MySpace.

"It is a fickle user group out there, and if they lose enough user confidence, it will open the door for someone else to come in," Wlasuk told the E-Commerce Times. "That could be MySpace or a new startup. But this certainly opens the door."

IPOs Shake Off The Facebook Funk

USA TODAY

By Matt Krantz

October 4th, 2012

<http://www.usatoday.com/story/money/markets/2012/10/04/ipos-facebook-stocks-debacle/1613667/>

The IPO market's black eye from the Facebook debacle is finally starting to fade.

Next week, nine initial public offerings are slated to start trading, making it potentially the busiest week for deals all year, says Greg Leffert, analyst at Renaissance Capital. And that's coming off the busiest week for IPOs in more than two months. There have been 104 IPOs this year, which is running 3% ahead of last year.

"The market has come alive with the sound of IPOs," says John Fitzgibbon of IPOscoop.com

Seeing the IPOs come back to life is a relief to market watchers, who saw the market shrivel up after the hyped and ultimately disappointing IPO in May of the largest social-networking company.

Not a single company had a successful IPO for 35 days following the Facebook offering, Leffert says.

But now, IPO investors are being lured in with:

-- Offerings from a range of industries. The week's deals hail from a mix of businesses ranging from biotech Regulus Therapeutics, which went public Thursday, to container maker Berry Plastics and identity protector LifeLock. "It's all over the place," says Francis Gaskins of IPO Desktop Premium.

-- Stronger IPO performance. After Facebook's bravado at boosting its price range and increasing the size of its offering, companies have been more timid and conservative. The results have been better after-IPO returns. The FTSE Renaissance US IPO index, a gauge of the performance of recent IPOs, is up 6.3% over the past four weeks. That tops the 3.9% gain by the S&P 500 during that same period. And just two of the 27 IPOs during the third quarter are down from their IPO prices, Leffert says.

-- Less volatility in broad market. A steadily rising stock market is the best friend to IPOs, Fitzgibbon says. And that's what's been powering the recent recovery even though the market bottomed this year in early June.

Investors, though, need to be choosy as there are still misfires. LifeLock Thursday fell an additional 2% to $8.19. It's down nearly 10% from its $10-a-share offering price. And late Thursday, restaurant Dave & Buster's canceled its IPO. Next week, there are several biotechs, including Kythera and Intercept, but deals in that sector have been mixed, Gaskins says.

The good news is that IPO investors are finally forgetting about Facebook. "Facebook is history at this point," Gaskins says.

Facebook Shuttters The Cool Hunter For Copyright Issues

Facebook has cracked the whip on The Cool Hunter. After little warning the social network shuttered the design and pop-culture Web site's Facebook page eight weeks ago, leaving both the founder and its 788,000 fans wondering what went wrong.

In a blog post this week, founder Bill Tikos bemoaned the shutdown and said that it has severely hurt the site's business. According to Tikos, its Facebook fan base grew by 1,500 to 2,500 per day and also generated more than 10,000 click-throughs to the site per day. Overall, The Cool Hunter has 2.1 million monthly site visits, along with hundreds of thousands of Twitter and Instagram followers.

Here's more from Tikos:

Our Facebook presence has been a unique and extremely important part of our strategy. It is the water cooler of our global community. Losing our FB page is not just a minor hiccup. It is a serious loss of connection and interaction, and of a massive amount of content.

We post items on FB that may not make it to the actual blog, giving hundreds of artists and designers exposure, and thousands of fans something new to see. Our FB page provides the interaction, comments and ideas that help us keep our editorial fresh. It helps us generate ideas for our weekend playlists, gives us tips for our world tours on what to do and see in each city. Most important, our FB community keeps us on our toes, generates great ideas and feedback, and lets us know when we are on the right track.

In the blog post, Tikos openly questioned why Facebook decided to shutter its account. According to The Next Web, the social network disabled The Cool Hunter's page because of "repeat copyright infringement."

Tikos wrote that he had no idea what his company was infringing upon and that it never "intentionally" broke any Facebook rules, but he did admit that there were two images that possibly could have qualified under copyright infringement. He also said there may have been times when appropriate image credit wasn't given because the company couldn't "find that information."

Facebook's terms of service explicitly state that users cannot "post content or take any action on Facebook that infringes or violates someone else's rights or otherwise violates the law."

Tikos desperately wants its Facebook account reinstated and he said he will do whatever necessary to make that happen. But, according to The Next Web, the social network isn't budging. A spokesperson told the news source that the disabling of The Cool Hunter's account was a "permanent removal." CNET contacted Facebook for comment. We'll update the story when we get more information.

Twitter: Victim Of Own Success?

Politico

By Jonathan Allen

October 4th, 2012

Twitter is so two seconds ago.

The hot social network has become so huge that it chalked up 10.3 million debate-related tweets in 90 minutes Wednesday night. That's 1,907 TPS, or tweets per second — faster than the human eye can read.

All that noise had some of Twitter's biggest users complaining or even hopping off for the show, leaving a sour taste in some mouths on a banner night for the company. And Twitter knows it.

If the experience changes permanently — from a lively conversation to a yelling match — Twitter could lose some of its cachet with the smart set.

But, so far the sentiment is more frustration with a favorite tool rather than a desire to find a new one.

Company officials say their biggest product-development challenge is reducing the "signal to noise ratio" for users. That means making sure users get what they want from the Twitterverse without being overloaded with junk Tweets.

"We continue to experiment with how to surface the most relevant tweets to users during large events like the debates," said Twitter spokeswoman Rachael Horwitz. She noted that the overload issue isn't much of a problem for average users, who "weren't quite as overwhelmed and they probably really enjoyed seeing what folks ... had to say in real time."

They've also been experimenting with events pages, which were used for NASCAR races, the London Olympics, the political conventions and last night's presidential debate. The algorithms are complex, but the concept is simple. Twitter picks a list of relevant users on a topic — say, political journalists, commentators and campaign officials for a debate — and populates the page with Tweets from their accounts. The system is set up to start capturing popular themes that arise spontaneously during the debate from accounts that weren't originally on the list. It's in this way that Twitter hopes to provide a better experience for users who want to follow a major national or world event without having to sort through their feeds for relevant insights.

Indeed, many Twitter users seemed to enjoy all the talk about the debate, and some tweeted that they watched their feeds rather than the television to keep up with what the candidates, the surrogates and their own friends had to say about each zinger and facial expression. While the political class fretted about the overload, the typical user doesn't follow everyone who has ever run for office, written a national political story or worked on a campaign.

"#debate boring. Listening to debate while reading Twitter feed awesome," wrote @andymatkovich, who follows 224 people.

Twitter uses big events like the presidential debate to expand its network, allowing folks to see tweets without having already registered with the site, as @realstrangerec pointed out in signing up on Wednesday night. "Joining #twitter because the tweets on the #debate! Awesome stuff!!" he wrote.

The service is starting to supplant the post-debate spin room as a gauge of how the candidates are doing. Tweets from liberals criticizing moderator Jim Lehrer's performance were a sure sign that their guy, President Barack Obama, wasn't winning the night. Mitt Romney, on the other hand, got early kudos from Republicans and many political analysts. It was possible for just about anyone — even #BigBird — to watch the ebb and flow of the event just by keeping an eye on their Twitter feed. For some users, it got to be too much.

"I just added the #debate feed and it's moving WAY too fast for me," @sammydavis22 tweeted Wednesday night. "Oh dear."

Ditto for @drgrist: "My twitter feed is almost too fast for me to follow, already, 45 minutes before the debate. This is going to make my head hurt."

That kind of talk crops up from time to time, says Lance Ulanoff of the social media news site Mashable.

"This feeling of Twitter not being up to the task occasionally happens during these high-impact events. It's frustrating and high-profile users will often vent their frustration," he said. "Still, most Twitter users are neither advanced nor high-profile and probably don't even notice the slowdown. The advanced users notice and complain, but are too devoted to the platform to leave."

Plus, it could be worse. Twitter reports that 40 percent of its 140 million members never Tweet at all.

Google Says Motorola Cuts Will Cost More Than Expected
The New York Times
By Claire Cain Miller

October 4th, 2012

<http://bits.blogs.nytimes.com/2012/10/04/google-says-motorola-cuts-will-cost-more-than-expected/>

Google will cut deeper and spend more money on cuts than it originally expected as it restructures Motorola Mobility, the ailing cellphone maker it bought for $12.5 billion.

Google will spend $300 million on severance and other charges related to layoffs, the company said in a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission on Thursday, an increase of $25 million from the $275 million that Google originally said layoffs would cost. But it does not plan to lay off more people than the 4,000 employees it originally announced.

It will also spend $90 million closing offices and factories and leaving certain markets, the company said, and plans to leave more areas outside the United States than it originally said it would. In August, it said it would close about one-third of its 94 offices worldwide, focusing on cuts in Asia and India.

The company did not provide more details beyond the government filing. In a statement, Google said, "This filing was made to provide updated information around Motorola Mobility's cost reductions that were announced earlier this summer."

In August, Google announced the layoffs and cuts as part of its broader plan to turn around Motorola Mobility, which has been unprofitable for 14 of the last 16 quarters. In addition to using Motorola's patents to defend Google's Android mobile operating system, the company said it planned to focus on just a few smartphones instead of dozens, stop making low-end devices and make its phones more cutting-edge with innovations like longer battery life and artificial intelligence.

The $300 million charge and $40 million of the $90 million charge would affect Google's third-quarter earnings this year, the company said in the filing.

Samsung Expected To Reach End Of Record Run

Reuters

October 5th, 2012

<http://www.nytimes.com/2012/10/06/technology/samsung-expected-to-reach-end-of-record-run.html>

SEOUL — Samsung Electronics reported a record quarterly profit of 8.1 trillion South Korean won, nearly double the figure of last year, as strong sales of high-end televisions and Galaxy smartphones more than offset reduced orders for chips and screens from Apple, its main rival and leading customer.

Most analysts, however, expect a run of four record quarters — the most recent worth $7.3 billion — to end in December, as the South Korean group, one of the world's leading makers of smartphones, televisions and memory chips, increases its marketing, countering the new Apple iPhone 5 and other products in a crowded smartphone market, valued at $200 billion globally.

Credit Suisse Group, an international financial services company, estimated that Samsung might have spent about $2.7 billion on marketing in July to September alone during the Olympic Games in London and on Galaxy promotions.

The expected record profit of 28 trillion won would mean higher payouts for performance to many of Samsung's 206,000 staff members early next year. And Samsung may have to set money aside this quarter if it fails to overturn an appeal of a U.S. court verdict that awarded more than $1 billion in damages to Apple on Aug. 24 for patent infringements by Samsung.

"Fourth-quarter profit will be pressured by one-off expenses: performance payouts and some $1 billion in legal provisioning relating to the Apple litigation," said Lee Sun-tae, an analyst at NH Investment & Securities.

"Excluding those, core earnings will remain solid, and a swing factor is how much Samsung spends on marketing."

Analysts expect earnings to decline until the second quarter of next year as a slump in computer sales and a weak global economy sap demand for chips and electronics products.

"The biggest risk for Samsung is competitive product lineups from its rivals, such as the iPhone 5," said Byun Han-joon, an analyst at KB Investment & Securities.

"Because handsets drive most of its profits, one misstep in handsets could result in losses for the whole Samsung group," Mr. Byun said.

Profit at Samsung's mobile division is likely to have more than doubled in the July-to-September period to about 5 trillion won as smartphone shipments topped 58 million, including as many as 20 million of the Galaxy S III.

Ahead of full quarterly results due Oct. 26, Samsung estimated that its July to September operating profit jumped to 8.1 trillion won from a year ago, beating an average forecast of 7.6 trillion won in a survey of analysts.

Strong handset sales made up for reduced profits from its chip business. Prices of dynamic random access memory, or DRAM, chips — used in computers and mobile phones — dropped 14 percent in the September quarter. Such chips now trade below what it costs most contract manufacturers to make them and will squeeze near-term earnings, analysts say. Tablets and smartphones, the real growth areas, use far smaller memory storage.

Samsung is expected to invest less in chips next year because of the drop in demand, which could be bad news for equipment manufacturers. Kwon Oh-hyun, who became chief executive of Samsung in June, said late last month that the group had yet to complete its 2013 investment plans.

Samsung is strengthening its product lineup, with its latest phone-tablet, the Galaxy Note, expected to go on sale in the United States this month; its ATIV smartphones, which run on Microsoft's new Windows system, will compete with Nokia's Lumia series.

Fake Antivirus Ringleader Must Pay $163 Million
Information Week
By Matthew Schwartz
October 3rd, 2012

<http://www.informationweek.com/security/vulnerabilities/fake-antivirus-ringleader-must-pay-163-m/240008388>

Acting on a Federal Trade Commission complaint, a federal court has imposed a $163 million judgment on a woman who allegedly helped run a scareware ring that tricked over one million consumers across six countries into purchasing fake security software.

That decision, announced by the FTC Tuesday, came after a two-day bench trial last month. U.S. District Judge Richard D. Bennett, who presided over the case, also wrote in his related judgment that the defendant, Kristy Ross, "shall be permanently restrained and enjoined from the marketing and sale of computer security software and software that interferes with consumers' computer use as well as from engaging in any form of deceptive marketing."

The fake software in question--often referred to as scareware, fake antivirus, or fake AV--is part a social-engineering scam designed to trick users into thinking their PC contains viruses, system errors, spyware, or pornography. The software then advertises information security software to help, which is available for immediate download. But in reality, the results of the system scan, as well as security software's cleaning power, is fake.

[Cyber crooks' use of server-side infrastructure used to infect PCs is increasing. Read more at Online Criminals' Best Friends: Malnets.]

According to the FTC, Kristy Ross, together with defendants Sam Jain, Daniel Sundin, Marc D'Souza, and James Reno, served as officers and directors of two businesses: Belize-based Innovative Marketing, Inc. (IMI), and a subsidiary, Cincinnati-based ByteHosting Internet Services. The businesses were used "to conduct a massive 'scareware' scheme that marketed a variety of computer security software via deceptive advertising."

According to the FTC, the operation "used elaborate and technologically sophisticated Internet advertisements placed with advertising networks and many popular commercial websites," which purported to display the results of a "'system scan' that invariably detected a host of malicious or otherwise dangerous files and programs on consumers' computers." The scanner then urged consumers to buy software, priced between $40 and $60, to remediate the issue.

In the wake of the FTC's complaint, which accused eight defendants in total of having violated the FTC Act, the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland immediately granted the FTC a temporary restraining order requiring IMI to cease marketing and selling its software, which was sold under such names as WinFixer, WinAntivirus, DriveCleaner, ErrorSafe, and XP Antivirus. The court also froze the assets of the businesses involved.

Last month, Ross argued in court that the judgment of $163 million proposed by the FTC against her "was grossly overinflated and that she should be held liable only for the ads and products she herself marketed at MyGeek," wrote Bennett in his judgment. But the judge said that he found the amount, which had been calculated by the FTC, was "a reasonable approximation of consumer redress." Bennett also ruled that Ross would be jointly liable for the "consumer redress" amount with defendants Sam Jain, Daniel Sundin, and IMI.

Of all of the people charged by the FTC in this case, Ross was the only remaining defendant. Four of the others already settled with the agency, including Marc D'Souza and his father, Maurice D'Souza, who in 2011 agreed to a settlement requiring that they return $8.2 million in what the FTC dubbed as "ill-gotten gains." The other three defendants in the case, meanwhile, had judgments entered against them by default because they failed to appear in court and participate in the litigation.

Apple Posts A Video Remembering Steve Jobs And Highlighting His Greatest Achievements
TechCrunch
By Darrell Etherington

<http://techcrunch.com/2012/10/05/apple-posts-a-video-remember-steve-jobs-and-highlighting-his-greatest-achievements/>

Apple has posted a video on its homepage today, with footage of Steve Jobs over the years speaking at keynotes and Apple events, showing images of him and the products he created that changed the way we think about and use computers and mobile devices. The video begins with the famous Wayne Gretzky quote that pretty much defines Jobs' career: "I skate to where the puck is going to be, not where it has been."

Steve Jobs passed away October 5, 2011, after a battle with pancreatic cancer. His life was maybe the ultimate comeback story, having founded Apple in 1976, only to be pushed out in 1985, and then to return to the company when it was in serious trouble in 1997 to lead it to where it is today.

A message from Apple CEO Tim Cook follows the video, marking the occasion and discussing Steve and what he's meant, and will continue to mean for the company. Here's the letter in full:

A message from Tim Cook, Apple's CEO

Steve's passing one year ago today was a sad and difficult time for all of us. I hope that today everyone will reflect on his extraordinary life and the many ways he made the world a better place.

One of the greatest gifts Steve gave to the world is Apple. No company has ever inspired such creativity or set such high standards for itself. Our values originated from Steve and his spirit will forever be the foundation of Apple. We share the great privilege and responsibility of carrying his legacy into the future.

I'm incredibly proud of the work we are doing, delivering products that our customers love and dreaming up new ones that will delight them down the road. It's a wonderful tribute to Steve's memory and everything he stood for.

Facebook Lays Out All Of Its New Targeting Techniques In One Easy-To-Read Blog Post

Forbes

Kashmir Hill

October 1, 2012

<http://www.forbes.com/sites/kashmirhill/2012/10/01/facebook-lays-out-all-of-its-new-targeting-techniques-in-one-easy-to-read-blog-post/>

In the last few months, Facebook has made significant changes to the way advertising works on its site. As some predicted, Facebook's going public and needing to drum up more revenue has resulted in the company dipping its hands deeper into users' data to monetize it. More than that, those hands are starting to pull in data from outside of the Facebook kingdom. Privacy engineer Joey Tyson lays out the three big "innovations" in Facebook advertising from the last few months in a Facebook blog post, and argues that the company "carefully designed our versions of the features with your privacy in mind."

Here's what's changed:

1. Advertisers aren't just targeting 'your type anymore.' They're actually targeting you.

It used to be that advertisers tried to reach a particular audience, i.e., "25-year-old men that like sports cars and Little Ponies." But now advertisers are finding ways to target specific people, i.e. the guy they know has the email address "lamaBrony@gmail.com." Thanks to "Custom Audiences," if a marketer knows your email address or phone number, they can tell Facebook to specifically target you with an ad. Tyson writes:

"For example, a shoe store might want to show a special offer to people who have already bought shoes from them. The store can provide us with "hashes" of their customers' email addresses so that we can show those same people the ad without the store having to send us the actual email addresses. These hashes are bits of text that uniquely identify a piece of data (such as an email address) but are designed to protect against reverse engineering which would reveal that data. Since Facebook and the store use the same method to create each hash, we can compare the store's hashes to hashes of addresses in our records and show the ad to any group of users that match. If a hash from the store does not match any of ours, we discard it without ever discovering the corresponding email address and without storing any information that we did not have before. And once we no longer need the hashes that do match, we delete them too."

Facebook is not the only tech company making it easier to target specific people with ads. This summer, ProPublica detailed how Microsoft and Yahoo are now allowing advertisers to target specific people with ads if they know their email addresses. That means ads are starting to become like direct mail, except those who see the ads don't realize it, because their address isn't on the front of the digital envelope.

2. Advertisers can now target people with Facebook ads based on their Web browsing and searching outside of Facebook.

“Facebook Exchange” lets advertisers target ads at customers who have visited their site. So if you looked at some scandalous lingerie on Sears.com, for example, you might start seeing ads for that lingerie the next time you’re on Facebook, should Sears wish. Writes Tyson:

“Facebook Exchange (FBX) gives marketers an opportunity to bid on showing ads in real time. Approved third-party service providers work with Facebook and marketers to enable this process. We agree with a provider on an ID number (separate from your Facebook ID) for each visitor’s browser. If someone then visits Facebook and his or her browser has that ID, we notify the service provider, who tells us when a marketer wants to show a particular ad. This allows marketers to show you ads relevant to your existing relationship with them – and without them needing to send us any personal information about you.” Via Relevant Ads That Protect Your Privacy.

By now, most of us are used to products that seem to follow us around the Web after we look at them once. Now the ads can trail us off-road into the Facebook forest. Users can opt out of this, but not through Facebook. They have to visit the opt-outs of the third party platforms (that they’ve never heard of before) that are doing the ad matching (TellApart, TriggIt, Turn, DataXu, MediaMath, AppNexus, TheTradeDesk, and AdRoll).

3. Facebook is tracking what users buy in stores so it can tell advertisers that their ads work.

Facebook has partnered with a Colorado-based company named Datalogix which has a vast database of what we buy thanks to its access to information from stores’ loyalty card programs. Facebook can now tell advertisers that after seeing a specific ad, x% of users bought the product. Writes Tyson:

“Because of our commitment to privacy, we had an industry-leading auditing firm evaluate the privacy implications of this process. The auditor confirmed that, throughout this process, Datalogix is not allowed to learn more about you from Facebook profile information. Similarly, Datalogix does not send us any of their purchase data, meaning we cannot specifically tell whether or not you purchased a marketer’s product. Finally, with this partnership, Datalogix only sends the marketer aggregate information about large groups of people. None of this data is attributable to an individual Facebook user.”

Tyson ends the post by reminding users that “advertising helps keep Facebook free.” Tyson, known on Twitter as TheHarmonyGuy, appears to be taking questions there about the post if you’re interested.

If nothing else, I’m impressed that “privacy engineer” is a job title that exists now.

SANDBERG ON THE IPO

SHERYL SANDBERG: As Mark said, we're obviously disappointed and really surprised by what happened in the IPO. This was certainly not how we planned it. The good news for us is that we're a really focused, product driven company. And so we're taking that energy and really focusing on proving to the world that we can continue to grow our business, continue to grow our users and their engagement, and build a great company, not just for a quarter, but hopefully for decades and decades.

JULIA BOORSTIN: But your IPO has been described as an utter debacle. Whose fault was it?

SHERYL SANDBERG: I'm gonna let others-- go ahead and answer those questions. And I know you have many people who are willing to come on and-- and talk about that. The focus for us is really on the things we can control and the future. We're looking forward to the business we're building, to providing great experiences for users, to the mobile transition and continuing to lead-- for mobile users. And importantly, to really increasing our focus on monetization.

JULIA BOORSTIN: What's happened since the IPO cannot be good for employee morale. What do you tell employees? What do you tell new recruits?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Obviously, employees are disappointed that the stock price has gone down. The good news for employees is that they get to come to Facebook every day and build great products for users. And most of our employees tend to be very mission focused. That doesn't mean the stock price doesn't matter. Because, of course, it does. But they're mission focused. They want to come and build products. If you want to build social products, there's nowhere that's better to work than Facebook and no bigger opportunity out there.

JULIA BOORSTIN: But you must be disappointed in the stock price.

SHERYL SANDBERG: We've said it a bunch of times. You know, as Mark said, we're both disappointed and surprised in the stock price. But we really have to focus moving forward on how we build a business.

JULIA BOORSTIN: A lot of people have come on CNBC's air saying that $15 is a fair-- or somewhere in that ballpark is a fair price for Facebook stock. How do you respond to that?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Not gonna predict stock price movements. But what I do-- do believe is that we are more valuable company than we were four months ago the day we went public. If you look at what we've done since we went public, we've invested more in monetization. And we're showing great products with great returns for advertisers.

SANDBERG ON IPO's IMPACT ON BUSINESS

SHERYL SANDBERG: Already in the last couple months, you've seen us roll out products pretty aggressively. We've rolled out Facebook Exchange, custom audiences, new mobile ad formats, revamped our offers. And all of these do one thing, which is they help make ads more targeted, more useful, and more effective for marketers on Facebook.

JULIA BOORSTIN: And do you have any new ad products that you haven't announced yet?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Many. One of the things I think you can always expect from Facebook is continual iteration. We roll out products very quickly. We change our products very quickly. But we think that's really important to-- to continue to develop the products we need in the market.

JULIA BOORSTIN: Now Facebook's ad growth has been decelerating. What are you telling Wall Street?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Our growth is something we care a lot about. We believe we have the biggest opportunity-- to grow revenue ahead of us. We are the largest-- we are the largest community of engaged users anywhere on the-- anywhere in the world. Every day on Facebook, we have five Super Bowls, which means you can reach that many people. Increasingly, as advertisers are learning to work with the platform, they're learning and we're helping them learn what works and how they can use this to generate sales. But we think our results are very strong and that we believe we can prove to advertisers that not only do they get a good return on Facebook ads, but they get a better return on Facebook ads compared to most things they do.

JULIA BOORSTIN: So you think Facebook's business model has changed dramatically since the IPO?

SHERYL SANDBERG: The business model hasn't changed, we're increasing our focus on monetization. The cornerstone of our business is advertising. And in that advertising opportunity, you know, it's a $600 billion business, where our results with our clients show that we return results, which are in many cases much better than the return they get anywhere else. That's a really unique opportunity. If you want to-- if you're a business and you want to connect with people, but you also want word of mouth to spread against your business, there's no better opportunity out there. And I think what we've done since the IPO is continue to really focus on building that business. And I think we're executing better and better.

SANDBERG ON FACEBOOK'S MOBILE PROBLEM

SHERYL SANDBERG: Mobile is obviously a huge strength for the company and a huge opportunity. We have a big mobile network, both in terms of our users, over 500 million. But also in terms of the other apps and sites that are enabled with Facebook. We have over 9 million across mobile and desktop in the world.

JULIA BOORSTIN: How can you compete with Google when it comes to an ad network?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Our results are very strong. People who are using Facebook to reach-- to reach customers are finding that because we have real people and real engagement, the results compare favorably with basically anything else they do. Even our targeting. So if you take a narrow targeting for advertising, you know, women 18 to 28, the average online actual getting that right is about 35%. Our accuracy is 90%. So just there, that difference alone, is, you know, tremendously valuable in terms of making marketers get the bang for their buck that they need.

JULIA BOORSTIN: Has the new mobile app you launched in August boosted revenue?

SHERYL SANDBERG: The new mobile app is boosting engagement. And engagement always leads to revenue. We have the most engaged audience of mobile users anywhere. Importantly, our mobile users are more engaged than even our desktop users who are already the most engaged users anywhere in technology. If you're a mobile user, you're 20% more likely to come back to Facebook on a given day.

JULIA BOORSTIN: How do you balance the risk of overwhelming mobile users with ads and the-- the absolute need to start rolling out more mobile ads?

SHERYL SANDBERG: If ads are good and users like them, you really mitigate that risk. What we're doing is as we're rolling out ads into mobile, which we just rolled out this year, we're testing very carefully engagement on those ads, vis-à-vis engagement on other-- on other parts of the experience. And those tests are going very well. Importantly, we also see that our mobile ads are more engaging compared to the other ads we've had on the right-hand side. On average, a promoted pays post, if it goes through newsfeed, whether on desktop or mobile, is eight times more engaging than that exact same post on the right hand side. That's a big opportunity for us.

JULIA BOORSTIN: Wall Street also talks about Facebook as having a mobile problem. How else are you trying to make money from mobile?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Mobile's a huge opportunity for our company. It's also a platform shift and one we take very seriously. We are the number one-- mobile use-- usage in most every market on most every platform in the world. We're the number one free downloaded app on iOS and Android. A lot of companies have the problem that, you know, they don't know what to do with their ads in mobile. Because their ads are on the right-hand side on the desktop. And when you go to a mobile device and you cut off that right-hand side, you know, where does the ad go? Our most effective ads are now running through newsfeed. And that creates a very natural opportunity to have a native advertising experience on mobile. And it's something we've rolled out just this year, but is going really well.

SANDBERG ON NEW BUSINESS PLANS

SHERYL SANDBERG: As we increase our investment in monetization, we're thinking about premium services for businesses. We've heard from businesses, you know, all over the world that they want more from us. There are things they'd pay for they really want us to provide. So it's an area that we're currently starting to explore. We don't have a product announcement for you today, but it is something we're working on.

JULIA BOORSTIN: How big is the potential?

SHERYL SANDBERG: We think the potential on Facebook, you know, for almost anything is really big, because of our sheer size and scale and most importantly because of what users are doing and how engaged they are on the site.

JULIA BOORSTIN: So you have a lot of people's credit card numbers. Will we see a want button? Will we see more retail, more ecommerce?

SHERYL SANDBERG: We are working on lots of things. And I think you've saw last week-- the beginnings of-- of commerce on Facebook with our gift launch.

JULIA BOORSTIN: There's been a lot of talk about that want-- want button. Will we see one?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Well, right now, there is the ability to build all kinds of different open graph implementations. And there are people that are working on that.

JULIA BOORSTIN: Beyond advertising, Mark Zuckerberg has talked a lot about the potential in search. What's your plan for search?

SHERYL SANDBERG: So as Mark said, I think people are surprised by how much search is done on Facebook. You know, every day there's an enormous percentage of search. There's also been a promise in the market that search could become more social that we don't think has been met. You know, when you're looking for information, the question is who do you want it from? Do you want it from the wisdom of crowds or do you want it from the wisdom of friends? Our answer to the information that's most relevant for users is really about-- about friends. That if I'm looking for, you know, a restaurant to go to-- in New York this week, I'd rather get a recommendation from a friend. That's really what we're working on.

JULIA BOORSTIN: So could a Facebook social search compete with Google?

SHERYL SANDBERG: Not gonna comment on future product launches. We are working at making our products as usable and as accessible for everyone in the world.

SANDBERG ON SOCIAL AD SKEPTICISM

SHERYL SANDBERG: Facebook ads are incredibly effective. Not just at helping people remember ads and have brand affinity, which is really important on our platform, but more importantly at ringing the cash register. New platforms take a while to develop and they take a while to understand. So ours is a new platform. And I do think there's still skepticism out there. The good news is that with our clients and the people we're working with directly, they're increasingly convinced of the return we provide. In the last year, we've done over 60 studies looking at the impact Facebook ads have on ringing the cash register, either in online purchases or offline. And of those 60 studies, 70% showed a return on ad spend of three times or better and 49% showed a return on ad spends of five times or better.

JULIA BOORSTIN: Now I know it wasn't a financial hit, but General Motors deciding to pull its money out of Facebook ads dealt a big blow to your image. Are you still struggling with that image issue with Madison Avenue?

SHERYL SANDBERG: We're a new platform. And new platforms take time. They take time for people to adopt. And they take time for people to understand. The first thing people have to understand is that we're a different type of advertising-- of advertising opportunity. You know, the right ad on TV is not necessarily the right ad on Facebook. The right ad on Facebook invites people to really engage.

So a recent example, Gerber ran a promotion with us where they invited parents to take a picture of their own children and submit it for possible inclusion, you know, of one of the Gerber babies. And it's a great ad campaign. 'Cause, you know, I'm a mom. Everyone thinks their kid's cute enough to be on-- on-- be a Gerber baby. And what they saw was an ad-- return on ad spend of almost $4. Increasingly, as we're working with clients, we're able to show that return. And really this measurement, the measuring of offline sales is only something we've been doing this year. So it's very recent for us in the market.

JULIA BOORSTIN: And do you have any new ad products that you haven't announced yet?

SHERYL SANDBERG: So one of our new products, custom audiences, Fab.com has been using it, and enables them to target repeat customers rather than just the general public. Their conversion rates are up ten times using that product. That's just one of the many things we've rolled out in the last four months. So we feel very strongly that not only do we have a great opportunity ahead, but that we're already executing even more favorably against that opportunity.

SANDBERG ON PRIVACY

I think people do believe that we have an incentive to violate users trust to build our ad business. That's exactly wrong. We have every incentive to protect our users trust, so that we can build an advertising business that's very protective of the information they share. That's the whole business.

SANDBERG ON THE ECONOMY

You know, we focus on what we can control. And we can't control the state of the U.S. economy. And I do think-- you know, it's possible that the economy could go either way. I think we're in a tremendous period of uncertainty. Our job is to build a great business, whether that works in either direction. If the economy takes a downturn, which is obviously what most businesses worry about, we think that creates for marketers a flight to quality. When you have fewer dollars, you have to spend every one as effective-- as effectively as you can. And we think that creates a big opportunity for us. Because we believe we're one of the most effective place you can spend every dollar.

SANDBERG ON AD ENGAGEMENT

The right ad on Facebook invites people to really engage. So a recent example, Gerber ran a promotion with us where they invited parents to take a picture of their own children and submit it for possible inclusion, you know, of one of the Gerber babies. And it's a great ad campaign. 'Cause, you know, I'm a mom. Everyone thinks their kid's cute enough to be on-- on-- be a Gerber baby. But this really invited people to participate. And what they saw was an ad-- return on ad spend of almost $4. Increasingly, as we're working with clients, we're able to show that return. And really this measurement, the measuring of offline sales is only something we've been doing this year. So it's very recent for us in the market.

SANDBERG ON AD RETURN

In the last year, we've done over 60 studies looking at the impact Facebook ads have on ringing the cash register, either in online purchases or offline. And of those 60 studies, 70% showed a return on ad spend of three times or better and 49% showed a return on ad spends of five times or better.

SANDBERG ON WASHINGTON DC

JULIA BOORSTIN: There's been a lot of speculation that you're gonna return to Washington, D.C. Are you interested?

SHERYL SANDBERG: I really love my job at Facebook. I mean, I really think we do something that's super important, right? 950 million people, largest community anywhere on the world. I love what I'm doing and I plan to keep doing it.

SANDBERG ON FACEBOOK ATMOSPHERE

I think there is a lot of interest and speculation out there, "Oh my God, has everything blown up?" And the answer is really no. If you come to Facebook and you come to Facebook today for work, just as you did four months ago, I think we're a stronger company today than we were then.

SANDBERG ON CLOSE TO A BILLION USERS

JULIA BOORSTIN: You're close-- to one billion users. You're fast on the road to one billion users. What does that milestone mean for Facebook?

SHERYL SANDBERG: I think the one billion milestone-- when we hit it is a big deal. You know, we're the largest and most-engaged community of real people anywhere online. I think back to when Facebook started. And people thought it was literally absurd or-- unbelievable that they would ever put their real identity online. We have, you know, over 950 million real people, connected to real friends, sharing real things in their lives. And the fact that we could get to this scale and continue to grow is a really exciting milestone for the company.

SANDBERG ON FACEBOOK

JULIA BOORSTIN: How much time do you spend on Facebook every day?

SHERYL SANDBERG: A lot. Facebook's used a lot internally. We use our own product. Every product team has a Facebook group. We have lots of Facebook activity. It's part of how we run our company.

SANDBERG ON OVERSHARING

JULIA BOORSTIN: Does it scare you that you've helped create a generation of oversharing?

SHERYL SANDBERG: I think what we give is people the ability to share what they want. You know, what-- what is one person's, you know, ridiculous oversharing is another person's regular day. And we build technology that lets users share what they want to share. And that's tremendously, tremendously exciting. I don't pretend to judge what any individual does.

Facebook to FTC: Let Us Advertise to Children

Mashable

Alex Fitzpatrick

October 1, 2012

<http://mashable.com/2012/09/30/facebook-children-advertising/>

The Federal Trade Commission is considering an update to the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA), a 1998 bill designed to protect children's online privacy. Most of COPPA's regulations are geared toward websites specifically designed for children under 13, such as Club Penguin.

COPPA's also the reason that children under 13 can't sign up for services such as Facebook — it's easier for a website to ban children under 13 than deal with COPPA's requirement on getting parental consent before collecting personal information from a child.

The FTC's proposal to change COPPA, announced last month, would add apps, games and online ad networks to the list of restricted platforms. If passed, the new rule changes could have a profound impact on sites used by both children and adults — including Facebook.

Websites used by people of all ages could ask users if they were 13 or younger, and if so, those users would be free to register. However, the new COPPA rules would prevent websites from tracking children's Internet behavior and displaying ads relevant to their perceived interests. The changes would also put new regulations on third-party providers, given they "know or have reason to know" their plug-ins are being used on a children's site.

The new rules, however, are less than clear on whether first-party advertising to children will be allowed. That's got some technology companies — a list that now includes Facebook — worried about what the new rules could mean for business.

Facebook, which has a business model heavily dependent on advertising, asked the FTC in a filing to clarify that websites will still be permitted to show first-party advertisements to children. It stressed that the FTC has previously treated first-party advertisements differently from third-party ads, and urged the FTC to do likewise in any new COPPA language on the basis that first-party ad content is more easily controlled by Facebook.

"The Commission emphasized in its report that it is generally consistent with the context of an interaction for a company to use data collected during first-party interactions for marketing purposes," reads Facebook's filing.

"It then distinguished marketing based on data collected as a third party, which the Commission argued was outside of the generally understood context of a consumer's interaction. The Commission should make that understanding explicit in the COPPA Rule by expressly including first-party advertising under the "internal operations" rubric. This clarification further supports the balance created between the Significant demand for free, advertising-supported services, and the expected tailoring of those services."

Facebook, which stressed that it supports COPPA's overall intent of processing children, also wants the FTC to ensure that it would still use tracking-based advertisements on adult users if children and adults were both using the site in the future.

Facebook has been looking for ways to allow children under 13 to use the site without violating COPPA since early June.

Facebook gets support for major UK mobile operators' billing service, Payforit

October 1, 2012

<http://thenextweb.com/facebook/2012/10/01/facebook-gets-support-major-uk-mobile-operators-billing-service-payforit/>

Just a week after it revealed that it had switched live its mobile payments platform for Facebook users in the US, UK and Germany, the carrier billing specialist today announced that it has integrated Payforit's single-click operator billing service for users in the UK.

Payforit is a mobile payments scheme that was created by the UK's five biggest operators: Vodafone, 3, O2, T-Mobile and Orange. With the service going live today, developers are able to offer in-app payments in their apps, games and Facebook services, drawing funds directly from the user's mobile tariff, lowering the barrier to entry and streamlining the payment process.

The carrier billing service was one of the first services to enable payments from mobile sites to be charged direct to the phone bill, regardless of the operator. The newest version of the platform is designed to improve the number of "payment drop-offs" by users, integrating directly with Facebook's HTML5 mobile site.

It's a popular platform, and is already being used by ImpulsePay, Gameloft, Electronic Arts and Samsung.

Ray Anderson, Bango CEO believes it's a "feather in the cap for UK networks", noting: "As we continue to build connections between Facebook and mobile operators across the world we're particularly glad to support cross platform approaches like this."

Last week, Bango said that it had rolled out its technologies within Facebook's mobile platforms to pave the way for digital content purchases without the need to enter payment details or sending premium rate SMS messages.

Bango's technology, which is already powering solutions offered by Amazon, RIM (via its BlackBerry App World) and Google Play, deducts funds from a user's existing mobile plan, keeping transactions secure while making them seamless in their operation.

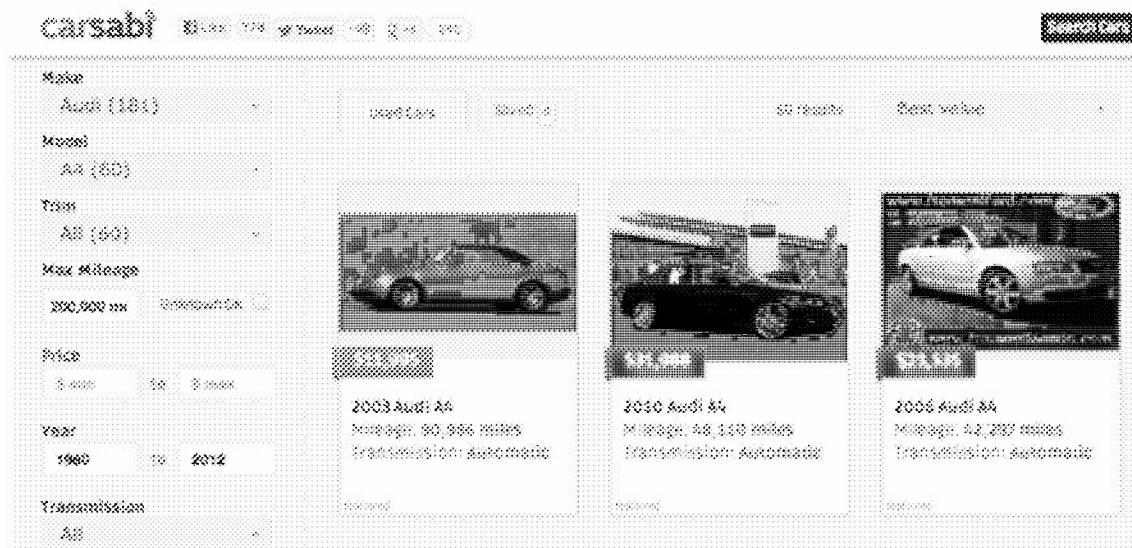

Facebook Acquires Founders Of Carsabi Who Will Sell Off Their Car Price Comparison Site

October 1, 2012

<http://techcrunch.com/2012/10/01/facebook-acquires-founders-of-carsabi-who-will-sell-off-their-car-price-comparison-site/>

Facebook's has just closed a deal to hire Dwight Crow and Christopher Berner, the two founders and only teammates of Y Combinator used car price comparison site Carsabi. The founders are now looking to sell the site, as Facebook won't be needing it.

Facebook tells me there wasn't something specific that attracted it to the co-founders other than that "they're awesome entrepreneurs". It won't say what team the founders will be joining. However, we see fitting in behind the wheel of Facebook Gifts or Events. Here's why.

TechCrunch named Carsabi one of YC Demo Day Winter 2012 's 10 Best Companies after seeing Crow (left above) and Berner (right above). The startup crawls all available online car sale listings including dealers and classifieds to find you awesome deals. It challenges AutoTrade with its unique features like sorting by biggest savings opposed to just the lowest price. Carsabi also integrates social so you can ask friends for purchase advice, oh, and spread the service virally.

That experience might make them a good fit to help the new Facebook Gifts team find people the perfect present at the perfect price. Perhaps, a “sort by price” option, a way to ask mutual friends what to buy someone, or option to throw down together on a bigger gift could come off a Carsabi-influenced Facebook assembly line.

Otherwise, the Events team might work, considering Dwight’s been throwing a few of them as a cast member on the soon-to-air Bravo reality show Silicon Valley. He’s known as quite jolly fellow, and could help Facebook Events evolve from a functional but somewhat cold calendar tool into something more fun and social.

Events got a smart, long-awaited redesign in July, and its Recommended Events sections are a huge help when you’re looking for something to do. However, it still lags behind Google+ Events, which can collect and share any photos your friends take at an event, and offers fancy Evite-style invitations. The Carsabi founders could use their place in the San Francisco social scene and the YC alumni network to test and promote a revamped Facebook Events product.

In any case, it’s nice to see that Carsabi respects its users enough not to just shut down their car search hub. That way rather than stifling innovation, this acquire might see a cool startup in the hands of new leaders passionate about disrupting the car buying experience.

Here’s the full text of the “We’re Joining Facebook!” blog post Carsabi just published:

“We created Carsabi back in Oct 2011 with the goal of easing the process of purchasing a used car, and providing a service that aims to index every automotive vehicle and connect more users to their car of choice each day.

But now it’s time for us to take a different turn. We want to take this impact to the next level – and help Facebook users connect and share. Because Facebook is not acquiring Carsabi.com, we’re looking for someone to buy the Carsabi service, so the two of us can focus on our new jobs. We can’t thank all of you that have used Carsabi enough – developing Carsabi has been an incredibly rewarding experience, and we hope we helped you think differently about how to find the perfect used car!

We want to give special thanks to our partners, customers and investors for helping us fulfill our dream.

Christopher & Dwight”

Facebook’s Brad Smallwood Offers More Data On Ad Effectiveness, Says Datalogix Partnership Isn’t A Privacy Risk

TechCrunch

Anthony Ha

October 1, 2012

<http://techcrunch.com/2012/10/01/facebook-brad-smallwood-datalogix/>

Facebook has been doing a lot of talking in the last day or so about its recently announced partnership with Datalogix — the company published blog posts explaining both the privacy implications and summarizing the results that advertisers have already seen. And Facebook’s head of measurement and insights Brad Smallwood is at the IAB MIXX conference today, where he gave a talk about the partnership.

The goal of the partnership is to track whether Facebook ad campaigns are driving in-store sales and to find the common themes among the campaigns that work. Facebook and Datalogix have tracked about 50 ad campaigns from which they have already drawn three general lessons.

First, Smallwood said that ad impressions, rather than clicks, drive sales. In fact, in the DataLogix campaigns, 99 percent of sales were from people who saw ads but didn’t interact with them. To back that up, he also pointed to a Nielsen study showing that there’s virtually no correlation between clicks on ads and either brand metrics or offline sales. Smallwood added that focusing on clicks makes sense in some cases, such as direct-response campaigns, but those clicks don’t tell you anything about “the outcomes that happen in the grocery store, in the car dealership, or in the local coffee shop.”

Second, he said that reach (rather than just targeting a narrow audience) is an important part of these campaigns, just as it is in television. Brands that maximized the reach of their campaigns saw a 70 percent improvement in the return on investment.

Finally, he said brands need to optimize the frequency of their ad campaigns, specifically by reallocating impressions from people who see an ad frequently to those who don’t. Seems like an obvious point, but Smallwood said brands who made that kind of shift saw a 40 percent increase in ROI. He also said the “frequency sweet spot” will differ from brand to brand, and from campaign to campaign — if you’re an established consumer packaged goods (CPG) company, people probably don’t need to see your ad as often as they would if you were launching a brand-new tech device and needed to get consumers familiar with the details.

Now, 50 campaigns may seem like a pretty small sample size, particularly since they weren’t randomly chosen. But after his talk, Smallwood pointed out that the companies were selected by Facebook’s “client council,” so the social network couldn’t just choose the advertisers that would see the most impressive results. Even though the initial campaigns came from CPG brands, Smallwood said there’s no reason you couldn’t expand the studies to include other types of advertisers.

So far, the partnership seems to have attracted attention (at least from the press) primarily for its privacy implications. When I brought up the privacy concerns with Smallwood, he said that neither

Facebook nor Datalogix should gain any additional information about individual users — instead, both companies use hashed data to create an aggregate picture of how many people who saw a given ad campaign actually bought related products.

By the way, if you want a more impartial analysis, here's how the Electronic Frontier Foundation laid out the process:

"This will provide Facebook with data about how well an ad is performing, but because the results are aggregated by groups, Facebook shouldn't have details on whether a specific user bought a specific product. And Datalogix won't know anything new about the users other than the fact that Facebook was interested in knowing whether they bought cranberry juice."

I asked if Facebook is feeling more pressure to monetize its user data now that it's a publicly traded company, and Smallwood responded that Facebook has been "building these systems right from the start" (presumably, he wasn't referring to the Datalogix partnership, but the general suite of ads and analytics products).

It's also worth noting that Datalogix is already tracking this kind of purchase behavior for non-Facebook ad campaigns, so it may seem a little unfair (though unsurprising) that the Facebook partnership is drawing so much scrutiny. Is Facebook being forced to clear a higher bar on privacy than other companies?

"I certainly feel like there's a lot of scrutiny on privacy," Smallwood said. "And there is a higher bar, but it's an internal bar that we hold ourselves to."

The Facebook game platform: Anyone can rise to the top of the charts (interview part two)

Need some advice about what kind of game to design next? Ask Sean Ryan.

He joined Facebook in January, 2011, in order to make sure that the social network understood the games and game publishers that were making Facebook into one of the world's largest gaming platforms. He is the director of game partnerships at Facebook and has to communicate Facebook's platform strategy for game companies and tell the broader story about one of Facebook's most successful application categories. About 235 million of Facebook's members have played a game in the past month, about 30 million more than a year ago. Mobile gaming has become one of the fastest-growing sectors of the business and Facebook is making it easier for mobile games to get discovered within its mobile app and on Facebook itself.

Here's part two of our edited interview with Ryan. Check here for part one.

GamesBeat: I think there are more than 100 casino games on Facebook. Does the number of games ever concern you? Do you think maybe there are too many concentrating in one genre? Too much copycatting or me-too stuff? Do you think users might get tired of it?

Ryan: We refer to that as the “Atari 2600 problem.” We’re old enough to get the reference. But we run an open platform. We encourage anybody with any type of game to launch on it. That’s different from a console experience where every game has to be approved.

We do see, in certain areas, where saturation can take place. But casino’s a great example. It looks to me like there’s a lot of games in casino right now. And then Jackpot Party comes in from Williams Interactive. It came out of nowhere in the last two months. It’s just a great example of how, even in a relatively crowded category, you can bring out a high-quality game with great intellectual property from Williams — which is a very well-known slot machine maker — and the game takes off.

What we do see in the more crowded markets is that you can’t get away with a me-too or a cloned app. You need to be different in some way, and that’s risky sometimes. Song Pop was risky. The issue comes down to discovery. That’s where I think we thrive and continue to invest. How do we help users discover games, both on mobile and on desktop? Hopefully it’s not just about the top 10 list, although that’s a great way to do it. It’s really about what your friends are playing and what you see in your feed. That’s where we focus, because we think that’s where we add value into the ecosystem.

GamesBeat: Zynga had given Wall Street cause to worry about the virality of their games on Facebook. They made a comment about that in their earnings. It looks like they may have some pretty successful games this quarter as well. ChefVille looks like it’s doing great. Is there something, from your perspective, that affects any changes that you guys have made? Something that affects how well some games do?

Ryan: We always make changes. The key thing about our business and our overall channels is that we’re continuing to evolve them. We’re trying to make sure that the right types of games are being shown to people most likely to install and play them. We test all sorts of things. We want you to be able to find the game you’re most likely to play, whether it’s returning to a game you already have or installing a new game. I wouldn’t say there’s any significant shift we’ve made at all in the last six months.

If anything, we’ve brought out App Center, which has turned out to be quite a boon for the less viral games. So, for example, if you were a strategy game player, which is a type of game that often doesn’t use our channels as much as a game like Song Pop, then it was harder to find those before. App Center enables that type of audience, the people who just want to go into that category to look for great games that they might like.

If anything, we’ve grown the monthly users of games quite significantly in the last six months. But these things also change month-to-month and quarter-to-quarter. If you look at the rise of King.com, for example, which didn’t really exist on the platform 18 months ago. Now it’s one of our top developers by daily active users (DAU). We see developers come and go depending on games. I agree that ChefVille and certainly FarmVille 2 are quite evolved, quite well-done games. I expect to see not just the Zynga-developed games, but also the games Zynga is publishing [from third-party developers], to do quite well on the platform. Take a look at the Rubber Tacos game that Zynga published. It’s a physics-based platformer. It’s a lot of fun.

GamesBeat: So the fluid nature of the rankings should give developers a lot of confidence? They do a good game, they can rise to the top?

Ryan: Yes. We try to make sure we're surfacing games that aren't just popular with everybody, but are popular with people like that type of game. We spend a lot of time on that. We continue to invest in becoming a better discovery forum.

GamesBeat: How do you become the best way to get games discovered on mobile? In this case, you guys don't own the platform. You're coexisting with things like Apple's Game Center or Gree or DeNA's Mobage and so on. You want to be more than just one more social platform, right?

Ryan: Absolutely. When we introduced our mobile platform around the beginning of the year, that was our first move to where you could integrate our full set of channels — our requests, our notifications, those types of things — into a mobile game. We always had Facebook Connect, but now we have the full platform. What that meant is, in the last six months the majority of the games in the top 10 of the Apple and Google stores use us.

The way we deploy it is, a lot of our users are on local already. These messages now take place so that you are notified on your iOS or Android device that a message has arrived, or a friend notification has arrived. You can launch and click and play that game, if there is a mobile version of the game, right now. We're increasingly seen by the developers as one of the largest sources of installs for the app stores. As we announced a couple of weeks ago, we have our paid app product that will coming out, helping our developers market and acquire a new set of users beyond our organic traffic.

It's still similar to desktop for us. We just see that many of our users use both desktop and mobile. So the way it works now is pretty cool. If you make a mobile game, you check those boxes in the developer tool that say, "Here's my Google ID number. Here's my iOS number." We know, therefore, when you send a friend notification or a friend sends it to you, that it will know to activate the game that you already have installed, or we'll send you to the store to download the game. That's how we do discovery right now. It regards the mobile phone as an extension of our desktop platform. We should be allowing you to discover games in the same way that you discover them on desktop. It's search, App Center, notifications, friend requests.

GamesBeat: Speaking of those underrepresented areas in Facebook games again.... I notice there's a few sports betting games that have come out. I wonder if that's another emerging area. How does a developer actually spot a trend like that? Is there something that they can digest that will tell them what the next hot area for a genre is going to be?

Ryan: By the time you see it, the games are already deployed. I would agree that the sports fantasy apps are certainly an area that was underrepresented. Sports games in general were underrepresented until recently, where we're starting to see a supply of them come out. Sports Casino is a good one. What we find is, developers know, in their heart, the type of game they want to build. Often it's what they see in other platforms, and they bring it to our platform or to a mobile platform. So it's less about them having to see what's emerging. As we see success stories around casual and arcade, we see a whole bunch of casual and arcade games come out. We try to signal, where we can, when we see openings, like in core and mid-core. I certainly agree with you on sports and sports fantasy. But it's hard for me to predict exactly what will be successful, because so many creative developers come up with concepts that are different enough and powerful enough that they break through the set of games that are there and become big hits.

GamesBeat: Is there anything else that's an interesting surprise for you, when you look at any of your gaming data?

Ryan: The rise of the casual and the arcade games was a surprise to me, as I talked about earlier. Song Pop was a surprise to me. I've known those guys for years, but I didn't see that coming, or how unbelievably fun it is. Everybody in the company was buying it, and when you have 18 million monthly users, a lot of them are playing it, too.

What continues to astonish me is how creative developers are, and especially as you see developers going back to look at, historically, what was popular. Bubble shooters are a genre that's been around in every type of category for probably 15 years. And yet developers figured out how to make a social version of it and fit virtual goods into it in a way that seems really fresh, in a way that I never would have anticipated.

And then the emergence of the core game as a big category for us, led by Kixeye of course. Because I'm actually a core gaming guy. I grew up playing Command & Conquer, DOOM, Quake, Total Annihilation, and Diablo. I think that'll be the next wave of games we'll see. They'll have a social layer on top of them, absolutely, but they'll be aimed at a much more core, classically male demographic.

GamesBeat: Do you have any trash talk for Google Plus?

Ryan: You know, I'm just gonna pass on that one. [laughs] We see a lot of players out in the marketplace. We just need to keep being a better platform.

Facebook Helps High School Soccer Player Turn His Season Around

Another month, another installment of Facebook Stories, Facebook's recently-launched initiative to highlight the ways in which their platform helps normal people in extraordinary ways. This month, the theme is "Virality."

And the story involves Daniel Cui, a high school soccer player who had a rough start to the season with a series of blown saves. The goalkeeper became the butt of jokes on the network, but eventually was propelled to victory by a coordinated effort on Facebook by his teammates and others at his school.

Every month, Facebook Stories has a new theme. In August, the theme was "Remembering" and the main story tracked a man who pieced his life back together after an brain illness made him forget everything in his life. Last month, we saw the story of an ichthyologist who used Facebook to crowdsource the identification of thousands of different species of fish.

As part of Facebook's "virality" theme this month, they are hosting a Facebook Live session with Carly Rae Jespen to discuss how things go viral. That will take place on October 6th at 1 pm ET.

Why Google Doesn't Own the Next Chapter in Web Ads

Heads up: It's "Advertising Week" in New York, which means that lots of ad-related companies are going to put out press releases with even less substance than usual.

That said, we can at least do some scene-setting for you courtesy of new forecasts from ZenithOptimedia, the media buying/research group. The official headline today is that Zenith has cut its global ad spend forecast for the year from 4.3 percent to 3.8 percent, because a big chunk of Europe is melting down.

But the news would be if a forecaster didn't acknowledge the fact that people are eating out of trash cans in Spain. And in any case, Zenith expects Europe to start improving as early as next year.

So let's focus instead on the different places advertisers can put their dollars. Here's Zenith's breakdown for the U.S. market:

Share of total adspend by medium (%)

	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014
Newspapers	21.4	20.2	18.9	17.9	16.8
Magazines	9.8	9.4	8.8	8.3	7.9
Television	39.7	40.2	40.4	40.4	40.3
Radio	7.1	7.1	7.0	6.9	6.7
Cinema	0.5	0.5	0.5	0.5	0.5
Outdoor	6.7	6.6	6.5	6.4	6.3
Internet	14.7	16.0	17.8	19.6	21.4

Since you're reading this site you know the broad strokes: New media growing, old media slowing. But do take another look at those TV dollars, which remain dominant and unmoved. Digital's growth, to date, remains fueled in large part by the decline of print.

Things get most interesting when you dive deeper into digital, and look at how that money is being split up. For a very long time, "Internet advertising" has essentially meant "paid search advertising," which means Google.

Not anymore. Display ads are finally gaining speed.

Internet advertising by type

US$ million, current prices Currency conversion at 2012 average rates

	2010	2011	2012	2013	2014
Display	22,543	27,444	32,757	39,173	46,892
Classified	11,443	11,063	11,830	12,571	13,296
Paid search	33,851	38,111	43,826	50,016	56,649
Total	67,837	76,618	88,413	101,761	116,837

Source: ZenithOptimedia

Globally, display ads will be growing at a 20 percent clip the next couple years, Zenith says, while paid search will move at 14 percent. Google is a big player in display advertising, too — it has been spending heavily on acquisitions there for years — but it doesn't have anything like the lead it does in search.

That's a big growth story for Facebook and a potential lifeline for Yahoo and AOL. And if somebody else wants to build a business based on selling ads — not just eyeball acquisition, but the actual work of turning those eyeballs into marketing opportunities — that's a real opportunity for them, too.

Square Acquires a New York Design Firm

Tech companies, in a high-stakes competition for engineers, are also chasing another highly prized kind of employee: designers.

Square, the popular mobile payments company, has proved just how important designers are by making a surprising acquisition. It announced Monday that it has bought a New York design firm, 80/20, which specializes in user interface design, or designing the parts of apps, Web sites and devices that people touch and maneuver.

Designers have become a hot commodity in Silicon Valley as tech companies realize that the way their products look and the way that people interact with them is just as important as the underlying software — a lesson learned in part from Apple.

Lately, pitches from new start-ups are likely to include words like elegant, beautiful and intuitive. These are also common words in the vocabulary of Square's co-founder and chief executive, Jack Dorsey.

Many of the most creative design minds are not in Silicon Valley but in New York, including those at 80/20. Its designers will stay in their SoHo office, which will become the New York headquarters for Square, which is based in San Francisco. About 50,000 of Square's customers — mostly small businesses like coffee shops and boutiques — are in New York.

The founders of 80/20 previously worked at Apple and Adobe. Its dozen designers will do design work only for Square from now on. Its past clients include Warner Brothers, Comcast and Fidelity. It designed, for instance, a dashboard for the electric vehicle company Better Place and a fitness-tracking watch for Motorola.

In a statement on Monday, 80/20 described its design philosophy as “the belief that the best design gets out of the user’s way and that you can craft unforgettable user experiences by keeping things simple and obsessing over the details.” The design firm’s natural next step, the statement said, was to focus on a single company, Square.

Google Catalogs Comes To The Web, Now Integrated With Google Shopping

Google Catalogs launched as an iPad and Android app in August 2011. Just ahead of the holiday shopping season, Google is now also making this service available on the web. Google Catalogs on the web will feature brochures from about 300 brands, including the likes of Williams-Sonoma, J.Crew, Eddie Bauer, and Bose. From within the catalogs, shoppers can click on featured items to get more information and, of course, buy them from the retailers’ own sites.

If you’re hoping to browse the latest electronics catalogs, though, you will likely be disappointed by Google Catalog’s selection. The focus here is clearly on mainstream consumers. The featured catalogs currently include Fossil, Crate & Barrel, HarthSong and The Wisconsin Cheeseman (which apparently also lets you buy your cheese on a monthly installment plan).

Google says it plans to “incorporate catalogs more deeply throughout the Google Shopping experience, giving you more ways to find ideas and inspiration as you shop and engage with your favorite brands.”

This, of course, isn’t Google’s first foray into digitizing catalogs. All the way back in 2001, the company launched a beta version of Google Catalogs that allowed users to browse their PC Connection catalogs online. That service, however, was retired in 2009 (and had already been rather neglected before this). Google then resurrected the concept as a mobile app before last year’s holiday season.

It’s worth noting that Microsoft recently unveiled a similar project in cooperation with Glimpse Catalogs.

Zynga turns on the viral charm with FarmVille 2

FarmVille 2 is kicking into high gear as Zynga has begun to open up its viral channels to help the game spread.

Zynga quietly launched FarmVille 2 on Sept. 5. As we noted on that day, FarmVille 2 carries immense importance for San Francisco-based social gaming giant. As Zynga’s earnings took a dip in the second quarter, and its industry-changing “Ville” series of social games began to lose their novelty, the company has a lot at stake with FarmVille 2. At first, the game had a relatively small audience as Zynga's engineers tuned the game based on feedback from players. Zynga has evidently moved past that stage into turning on its full viral marketing channels, where it cross promotes the game to its existing users.

Now Zynga has 15.2 million monthly active users for FarmVille 2, up 13.5 million from just a week ago, according to market researcher AppData. Just eight days ago, FarmVille 2 had only 1.7 million monthly active users. On a daily active user basis, FarmVille 2 has 6.9 million users. FarmVille 2 is now the fastest-growing game on Facebook.

The original FarmVille grew its audience to as 83 million monthly active players. It introduced social games to the mainstream and became one of the most broad-reaching titles in history, even as critics said it wasn't really a real game. So the remake is akin to Zynga's best shot at launching social gaming 2.0, and game designers like Zynga's Tim LeTourneau said that created FarmVille 2 to become a lot more addictive and game-like.

Zynga now has more than 344 million monthly active users on both Facebook and mobile platforms. FarmVille 2 is Zynga's ninth-largest game at the moment. The top of the heap is Zynga Slingo, with 53 million users. ChefVille has 50.2 million users, and Texas HoldEm Poker has 39.3 million users. I've been playing the game and have gradually climbed to level eight, and I have a real farm ecosystem going where I can generate a lot of income by growing my ingredients and the using them to create high-value foods for the village market.

The new FarmVille 2 has better graphics based on the Flash 11 format (and Stage 3D) that Adobe has created to improve animations in web-based games. The characters and animals are created using 3D graphics though they are displayed in the familiar isometric, two-dimensional perspective. The animations look more fluid, and the landscape is more interactive as you move your mouse cursor over the screen. FarmVille 2 is an attempt to capitalize on how web-gaming technology has moved forward in just three years.

The Perils of Texting While Parenting

<http://professional.wsj.com/article/SB10000872396390444772404577589683644202996.html>

One sunny July afternoon in a San Francisco park, tech recruiter Phil Tirapelle was tapping away on his cellphone while walking with his 18-month-old son. As he was texting his wife, his son wandered off in front of a policeman who was breaking up a domestic dispute.

"I was looking down at my mobile, and the police officer was looking forward," and his son "almost got trampled over," he says. "One thing I learned is that multitasking makes you dumber."

Yet a few minutes after the incident, he still had his phone out. "I'm a hypocrite. I admit it," he says. "We all are."

Is high-tech gadgetry diminishing the ability of adults to give proper supervision to very young children? Faced with an unending litany of newly proclaimed threats to their kids, harried parents might well roll their eyes at this suggestion. But many emergency-room doctors are worried: They see the growing use of hand-held electronic devices as a plausible explanation for the surprising reversal of a long slide in injury rates for young children. There have even been a few extreme cases of death and near drowning.

Nonfatal injuries to children under age five rose 12% between 2007 and 2010, after falling for much of the prior decade, according to the most recent data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, based on emergency-room records. The number of Americans 13 and older who own a smartphone such as an iPhone or BlackBerry has grown from almost 9 million in mid-2007, when Apple introduced its device, to 63 million at the end of 2010 and 114 million in July 2012, according to research firm comScore.

Child-safety experts say injury rates had been declining since at least the 1970s, thanks to everything from safer playgrounds to baby gates on staircases to fences around backyard swimming pools. "It was something we were always fairly proud of," says Dr. Jeffrey Weiss, a pediatrician at Phoenix Children's Hospital who serves on an American Academy of Pediatrics working group for injury, violence and poison prevention. "The injuries were going down and down and down." The recent uptick, he says, is "pretty striking."

Childhood-injury specialists say there appear to be no formal studies or statistics to establish a connection between so-called device distraction and childhood injury. "What you have is an association," says Dr. Gary Smith, founder and director of the Center for Injury Research and Policy of the Research Institute at Nationwide Children's Hospital. "Being able to prove causality is the issue.... It certainly is a question that begs to be asked."

It is well established that using a smartphone while driving or even crossing a street increases the risk of accident. More than a dozen pediatricians, emergency-room physicians, academic researchers and police interviewed by The Wall Street Journal say that a similar factor could be at play in injuries to young children.

"It's very well understood within the emergency-medicine community that utilizing devices—hand-held devices—while you are assigned to watch your kids—that resulting injuries could very well be because you are utilizing those tools," says Dr. Wally Ghurabi, medical director of the emergency center at the Santa Monica-UCLA Medical Center and Orthopedic Hospital.

Adds Dr. Rahul Rastogi, an emergency-room physician at Kaiser Permanente in Oregon: "We think we're multitasking and not really feeling like we are truly distracted. But in reality we are."

Representatives for Apple and Research In Motion declined to comment.

The three-year increase in CDC child-injury numbers could be a statistical anomaly. Child-injury experts say there could be other factors contributing to the increase, including riskier behavior among children or an increasing tendency for parents to drag children to emergency rooms.

Susan Hudson, a professor at Northern Iowa University and education director of the National Program for Playground Safety, says budget cuts by schools and local governments could be a factor. "You're hitting into an economic downturn," she says. "One thing that happens is that you have maintenance going out the window."

But those explanations, some experts say, don't square with the injury numbers for older children during that period. The rates of increase were smaller for older age brackets, when adult supervision typically tails off. Unintentional injuries among kids ages five to nine increased 5% between 2007 and 2010, and 3% for kids ages 10 to 14, according to the CDC. For 15- to 19-year-olds, injuries decreased 3%.

Young children "have a natural risk to hurt themselves if they are not properly watched by an adult," says David Schwebel, a professor of psychology at the University of Alabama at Birmingham who specializes in injury prevention. "If the adult is distracted, clearly the risk is increased. We know that drivers and pedestrians are distracted and more at risk when they use devices. It's a fairly small leap to suggest that supervisors are distracted."

Statistics from the government's Consumer Product Safety Commission, which tracks injuries by product type, show children are getting hurt more during activities and at ages that would seem to warrant close supervision. Injuries involving playground equipment among children under five jumped 17% between 2007 and 2010, after trending down the previous five years, the commission said. Injuries involving nursery equipment such as changing tables were up 31% among children under five over that period, after declining over five years. Injuries involving swimming pools climbed 36% in that age group after a slight increase over the prior five years.

The kind of data that might be useful for establishing whether there is a direct link between child injury and device use by supervising adults aren't often collected. Doctors say that when they see a child who appears to have a broken arm, for example, they order X-rays and don't ask parents what they were doing at the time of the injury. In the case of serious injuries that involve a police response, subsequent reports usually don't note what a parent was doing during an accident, except in cases of suspected neglect.

Overall, parents typically don't self-report distraction as a cause for accidents. "Folks are not going to admit to the fact that—look I was doing this, and that's why my kid fell off and broke his arm," says Dr. Ghurabi.

Further complicating the picture, researchers say, is that people tend to underreport the amount of time they spend on their mobile devices. Device users don't consider themselves distracted when checking email, for example, something they put into a different category than watching television or reading newspapers.

Barbara Morrongiello, a psychology professor at the University of Guelph in Canada who has studied the relationship between child-supervision and injury, says that most people don't realize how much they are distracted by devices. If you ask a parent or caregiver who is sending a text message "if they are paying attention, they would say, 'of course,'" she says. People "often underestimate how much time they're taking to do something."

One afternoon at a swimming pool at a Foxwood Resort Casino hotel in Connecticut, Habibah Abdul-Hakeem was watching a friend's 2-year-old son when another friend texted, asking how her day was going. She texted back that she would send him a photo of herself.

The child sat down on a step in the pool, slipped and began sinking, according to an April 2011 sworn statement by the responding police officer, who said he reconstructed the episode based on security-camera footage and Ms. Abdul-Hakeem's account to police. There was no lifeguard. The boy flailed for about a minute, drifting toward the deep end, then sank. Ms. Abdul-Hakeem, standing beside the pool, was looking at a photo on her smartphone, the police officer said.

About three minutes after she began fiddling with the phone, she dropped it. Only then did she notice the young boy underwater, the officer said. She plunged in and pulled him out. Her calls for help brought a pool attendant who resuscitated the child, who recovered fully.

Ms. Abdul-Hakeem told an emergency technician that she had taken her eyes off the boy for about 20 seconds, according to the police statement. The security-camera footage suggested she didn't look at him for more than three minutes, according to the officer.

The Connecticut state police charged Ms. Abdul-Hakeem, then 35, with reckless endangerment in the second degree and risk of injury to a minor. A clerk in Connecticut state court said that the case is pending and the records are sealed. Ms Abdul-Hakeem didn't respond to requests for comment. Parents have been collecting their own stories about device distraction. In February, Hope Hughes, a stay-at-home mom, was at a playground near her Chicago home with her daughter, then four, when she heard a thunk—the sound, she says, of a young boy hitting his head on equipment. She says she comforted the boy as his head swelled and he bent over, throwing up.

She says about eight minutes passed before a woman she had seen using a mobile device nearby noticed what was happening and came over. It was the boy's nanny. "She was texting or surfing or something and wasn't paying any attention," Ms. Hughes says.

Ms. Morrongiello, the Canadian psychology professor, says that information she collected from 62 families with two-year-old children revealed that 67% of injuries occurred when a parent wasn't supervising or was only listening intermittently, and only about 10% occurred when a parent was watching. In another study, she found that 7- to 10-year-old children who either were left unsupervised or were supervised indirectly tended to get hurt more.

Cellphone distraction may have played a role in a tragedy that befell one Florida family. On Dec. 14, 2009, Shellie Ross called to her two sons, age 2 and 11, to come see a tortoise in the family's backyard in Merritt Island. At 5:17 p.m., she posted a cellphone photo of the tortoise on Twitter. Records of her tweets show she tweeted four more times over five minutes.

At 5:23, operators took a 911 call from the 11-year-old, police records show: His little brother was at the bottom of the swimming pool, unresponsive. The police report says that Ms. Ross pulled the boy out and performed CPR. Rescue workers rushed him to the hospital, but it was too late.

Ms. Ross told police at the time that she thought the boy was with his older brother. Police ruled the death an accident. Seven months later, the Florida Department of Children and Families concluded that "the death was a direct result" of inadequate supervision. The report noted: "mother twittering at the time the child passed."

Ms. Ross didn't return calls seeking comment.

Ira Hyman, a professor at Western Washington University who specializes in human memory and cognition, contends that mobile devices are more distracting for parents than radio, conversation and other outside-the-home diversions of yesteryear. Scientists aren't exactly sure why, he says, but when a person is using a device, "you can have something pass directly in front of you and your eyes may see it but it doesn't really enter your awareness."

Sociologist Clifford Nass of Stanford University has found that people who stare at a device take a while to refocus. He says that doing so while supervising a child, even if a parent regularly looks up, would make the parent more likely to miss the kind of warning signs that frequently precede a mishap. Playground accidents, for example, often are the result of a sequence of events, such as climbing too high on a jungle gym. "What mobile technologies do is essentially remove you from the situation," he says. "The ability to anticipate problems is much more reduced."

In a 2010 survey by the Pew Research Center, 14% of adults and 22% of adults who send text messages reported being so distracted by their devices that they have physically bumped into an object or person.

Nevertheless, researchers have found, people who complete a task on a device don't report feeling impaired. That may explain why many adults continue to use devices when supervising children.

Psychologist Kathy Hirsh-Pasek of Temple University recently had students observe 30 parents and their children in public places. In almost every case, she says, the parent interrupted an activity with the child to use a device. "In one case a parent let go of her kid's hand in the middle of a big street in Philadelphia in order to check a text message," she says.

Studies have found that children are more likely to take risks when they aren't watched carefully. "It may be that children can perceive the inattention and take more risk," says Dr. Schwebel, the psychologist at the University of Alabama. When a parent is on a device, "your kid may know that you are there but not paying much attention."

Kayla Cory, co-owner of Wonderwild, an indoor play area in Houston, says that she sees it regularly. "People bring their kids in, turn their backs and turn on their phones," she says.

"I go up and ask parents to pay attention to their kids," she says. "We just assume that as long as we're in the same room with them that they're safe. But kids will find a way to hurt themselves."

Google expands analytics toolset with Tag Manager

Google is expanding its digital marketing capabilities with the introduction of the Google Tag Manager.

Supporting both Google and non-Google website tags, the Tag Manager consolidates tags through a snippet of code. This can be managed through web interface where users can add and manage tags without having to rewrite the site code or involve IT.

Some of the features range from simple tasks to preview mode and tag templates to more in-depth functions such as debugging console and asynchronous tag loading designed to prevent any slow down on the user-visible part of the site.

Laura Holmes, a product manager on the Google Tag Manager team, explained on the Google Analytics blog on Monday that the goals of the Tag Manager is to fine-tune the tagging process altogether:

“Tags are tiny bits of website code can help provide useful insights, but they can also cause challenges. Too many tags can make sites slow and clunky; incorrectly applied tags can distort your measurement; and it can be time-consuming for the IT department or webmaster team to add new tags—leading to lost time, lost data, and lost conversions.”

Additionally, Holmes asserted that this will also give marketing departments more flexibility for developing better informed campaigns to reach their customers in new ways.

Another feature designed specifically for marketers include multiple account functionality and user permissions so that large marketing teams can work together but at varying levels of access to the Tag Manager as well as the company/campaign website.

The Google Tag Manager is a free tool and will be launching in English first with support in additional languages promised soon.

I Got Fired From Facebook And Cost Myself $100 Million
Business Insider
Henry Blodget
October 1, 2012

<http://www.businessinsider.com/i-got-fired-from-facebook-2012-9>

A former Facebook product manager named Noah Kagan has written a brutally honest article about how and why he got fired from Facebook in 2006 and what he learned from it.

The experience must be particularly painful, given that it eventually cost Kagan a $100 million fortune.

So the fact that Kagan has not only learned from it and is now willing to share these lessons with others is a major tribute to him.

Kagan joined Facebook in 2005, about a year after Mark Zuckerberg started the company in his Harvard dorm room. Eight months later, when Facebook had grown from a tiny startup with ~30 people to a global phenomenon with more than 150 employees, Kagan got canned.

With the benefit of hindsight, he now understands why.

In short, as Facebook grew, it needed people with different skills, and Kagan's skills and attitude didn't grow with the company.

This is something that anyone who has worked at a rapidly growing startup can relate to. And Kagan's experience is one that has been shared by thousands of executives over the years, including many at Facebook.

The biggest lessons Kagan learned, he said, were these:

- During his time at Facebook, he was selfish--it was all about him: "I wanted attention, I put myself before Facebook. I hosted events at the office, published things on this blog to get attention and used the brand more than I added to it. Lesson learned: The BEST way to get famous is make amazing stuff. That's it. Not blogging, networking, etc."
- The best way to ensure that you'll never get canned is to keep finding ways to make your company more valuable. "Go see if your weaknesses are hindering you at your job. Ie. I wasn't great at planning or product management at this time. Fix them or move to other position. Also, constantly ask yourself how can I make the company more valuable. You do that and you will never get fired*. *unless you do something really stupid or the company goes out of business."

Kagan is now the Chief Sumo at AppSumo. The intro to his post is below. You can read the rest on his blog, OkDork:

Can I be real with you? Real real?

I'm TIRED of answering this question so I'd rather write it out and just point people to this post.

Let me start in reverse.

I can tell you every detail of the day I got fired aka "let go" aka "down-sized" aka "[]-canned."

I thought I was going to a routine coffee with my boss and randomly saw Matt Cohler sitting at the table inside (surprising)!

I knew something was amiss. Matt broke the news quickly and I was in dead-shock as the words came out of his mouth. They walked me back to the office and removed my laptop and my cell phone.

Then I proceeded to the Verizon store to use their phone, called my gf (at the time) and drove to the house I shared with 6 other FB guys.

Packed up all my stuff in my CRX, smoked a 1/2 pack of cigarettes on the balcony and drove to my friend Johnny's place. It took me a bit to let my mom know and I slept on Johnny's couch for a few days, thanks J!

Later that night we had a bbq at this place and everyone was asking me how the job was going....#awkward

I kept drinking that night to pass out and pray this was all a bad dream.
At that time, here's the order of what was important in my life:

- 1- Facebook
- 2- Myself
- 3- Food / Shelter
- 4- My gf
- 5- Family
- 6- Friends

To spell it out. Facebook was my entire life.

My social circle, my validation, my identity and everything was tied to this company.

How could have ended up like this?

WTF! I just got a promotion and a raise 2 months before!

This was my first time being fired and it took me 1 year to get over the depression...

I think that the business models / concepts are related, but are not the same when stretched to their logical extremes.

In an information business:

- We could thrive even if not a single person ever directly visited our site / newsfeed / timeline, but instead all apps / interfaces wrote to /read from us to optimize the experiences they provide to their users. So we make money / have a healthy platform because there is return on scale in information & we know better than anyone else what story (sponsored or otherwise) to deliver to whom at any given moment by knowing everything about that person.
- E.G. — if we are an information platform a future business like 'pinterest'
 - Input side: would have a front end user experience for collecting data, write all their data to our graph (potentially as their only data store at some point in the distant future)
 - View side: would have a custom interface for viewing their content, but would actually query us for the best information to show their users (which we can do better than they can by mixing their specific inputs & data with everything else known about the viewer, poster, etc. in the world)
- In this model of the world, over time Facebook eventually becomes purely a central information exchange, and someday might not even have a consumer brand.... Apps / partners have the attention, we have the information that powers them.
- Our value as a company isn't the ability to 'reach' a customer (where there will be more and more competition / a flatter and flatter marketplace with more and more 'scale' players), it is to know a customer/user (where there is real return on scale).

If we are a distribution / attention business

- We need people to actually pay attention to our platform for us to succeed / read NF through our interfaces, etc.
- E.G — if we are an attention business a future business like 'pinterest'
 - Input side: would have a font end user experience for collecting data, and perhaps copy their data to the graph
 - View side: we would always be competing with pinterest for the attention of their users...
- I have heard the argument made that the value of FB is that we can aggregate a very large audience (just like the premium that exists for TV) -- that just seems like a pretty poor and long-term indefensible advantage.

My belief is that short term there isn't a huge difference, we can pursue a distribution strategy and an information strategy at the same time (they are short term symbiotic) -- I do think that long term the information business is more scaleable and more defensible vs. an attention business with a finite number of hours in the day.

That said, if you wanted to draw an immediate distinction, I would say that an information business focus would say that we should be focusing on knowing more about everyone than anyone else (bits of information per-person, etc), and then creating ways for other businesses to leverage our knowledge without appropriating our core value / dataset... if we are attention / distribution focused then we should be focused on getting the maximum number of DAUs and care less about knowing who they are.

I really agree with your point about being able to articulate our business model around data. However, one thing I still don't really get is the difference between being a distribution platform around people's attention vs being an information platform. Those just seem like two ways of describing the same thing to me since in both views we're helping people get content into the system and then creating utility and revenue by showing people the best content/information.

If you think these approaches are actually different, can you list off some concrete differences in what our approaches would be if we adopted one model vs the other?

Zuck,

I have been working on a set of ideas / trying to form an opinion re: the top level strategy course we are currently on... simultaneously, I really took your note last week to heart and wanted to respond to it a bit more specifically than I did before. I wanted to write you something very polished, but after working on thinking it through for two flights and a few other odd hours last week, I realize that polish will take far too long for the value — so instead here is a somewhat edited / but not fully polished view of the world as I am currently thinking about it.

I am going to do this in two parts — the first is about strategy / where we are and the second is about me & the identity team. I am going to be really direct / tell you all the things I am thinking in the back of my head — and I do worry in writing this out rather than speaking it that the tone will not come through — but the flip side is that in person I worry that tone but not content might come through -- so please as you are reading it keep in the back of your mind that I am really excited about what we are doing / our mission, the opportunity to help lead, and I really do respect and trust you as a leader enormously. I just really want to win / and see Facebook become a full expression of its promise... and I think that the best thing I can offer is directness. So, with that scary windup done...

Strategy:

Let me start with a few key things I believe / a lot of which is informed to a greater or lesser extent by listening to many of the recent conversations of which I have been a part. I know that some of these stances are controversial / are not consistent with the current wider message to the company, but I will state them pretty bluntly nonetheless:

- (1) We are primarily a web company & the 'desktop' web is clearly not the future - this needs no explanation. I think we all know this is true.

- (2) Native apps will dominate over mobile-web for a long time (maybe forever) and we cannot prop up HTML-5 / are not strong enough to lead a shift - The mobile OS makers have a strong incentive in native apps performing better / working better than the web... so theory / what is possible aside, native apps will work better & be better experiences than the mobile web. I might go so far as to say that the free and open web was an anomaly caused by immature desktop OS platforms who failed to develop the distribution and payments capabilities needed to support good business models for developers and therefor lost the advantage to the web briefly... iOS, and to a lesser extent android, has reversed this — the tower of babel is falling / the unified language will go away for a while and the value (or a relative if not absolute basis) will end up tucked away on proprietary 'platforms'.

- (3) I do not think we will be able to build a successful 'phone' anytime soon — I don't have all the details on firefly, and it is possible, but to me it feels like a hail-mary to be trying. It isn't in our DNA to build a phone / manage carrier deadlines, battery life, etc. and as a result I am skeptical that we can do it well enough to get any meaningful part of the market from our competitors... Our processes and culture is just not set up to win at this, and for most of the traditional 'phone' functions 'social' is not enough of an advantage to overcome all the other cards stacked against us. Further, I don't think we are setup to maintain & improve a phone platform even if we built one.

Two caveats here -- (1) if we had a business model innovation which completely changed the game people might use our phone even if it wasn't as good as the others (e.g. we were talking about advertising supported free phones about a year ago) (2) if we didn't build a phone, but instead built a simple social 'device' (a newsfeed machine if you will... a generation one blackberry device that just did NF and was really cheap / a second/third device) -- I could see that working to some degree. I really just don't believe we can go toe to toe with apple or google and win.

- (4) The 'Open Graph' is fundamental but a long way from being set up for success — I am ridiculously excited about the OG long term — I think it is the holy grail, and I really look forward to a world in the future where the OG is the primary data-store for many applications... but I think it will be years before it is really good, not months. The immaturity of the OG might be fine if there was a gold-rush mentality about the platform it as there was originally, but I really think that the developer world has grown up a lot since the original platform — and with options like iOS out there, I think we need to be in a far more polished state to get people to use us in a serious way;

- As a 'language' -- it lacks all sorts of key pieces we are aware of, and many which we probably aren't— e.g. allowing use of Facebook objects (profiles, pages, etc), per-edge privacy, 'private' objects (or, more specifically, maybe public objects with private attributes), internationalization systems (which is a huge but relatively un-discussed issue), intransitive verbs (which turn out to matter a lot for self expression), etc. More abstractly, we talk about wanting convergence of language / different apps making claims / associations between a common vocabulary of verbs and objects; however, the current structure of the OG with 'custom domains', etc. encourages a diaspora and lowers the value of having the OG.
 - This might not seem like a huge deal given that the OG does support many use-cases even now, but because the language is relatively immature & incomplete, developers who are trying to be at all innovative are running into issues & getting frustrated in their attempts to buy into the promise we sell.
 - Further, I would argue that in many ways we did enough of the OG to support the types of games, etc. that we expressly are less happy with, and did custom mapping for certain partners, but we have not done enough to support most of the good use cases we would want (e.g. Pinterest can publish back the 'follow' relationships on their service, but we have no understanding directly or indirectly of how those map to our actual profiles / people from which they are drawing)

- As a value proposition for developers -- when there are other options out there we need to provide clearly demonstrable value for developers in a way that they can understand is symbiotic so they don't question our motives. Right now, we provide no clear monetization, and because developers can't tell themselves a clear story about what OG is doing for us, we can establish little trust in the distribution patterns we do provide. Right now those that use the OG are looking at it basically just for distribution / as a way to drive people back to their own apps... This mentality encourages people to look for ways to get the most distribution in return for giving us the least data / least well structured data. It means no one is betting the farm on it, and app developers will tend to act parasitic instead of symbiotic.
 - This is probably the biggest deal in my mind. The world is breaking down in my mind into two classes of application developers. One class are small teams / mobile developers, who find that iOS allows them to be much closer to a revenue stream than we do (even if that revenue stream is not ultimately all that great / the app store model limits upside). The second class are larger teams / VC backed startups (path, evernote, etc) that are game for a longer term & higher return play, but because they are longer term focused will not deeply integrate deeply us both for trust reasons on the value / volume of distribution we send AND worry deeply about the value of their data / are telling themselves a story about how valuable the data they are building up really is.
- As a developer interface — documentation, submitting / approving apps, etc. I don't have much first hand experience here, but from poking around a bit myself and talking to people at Nike, watching Waze try to do it, etc. it sounds like there is a lot of growing up to do.
 - This probably isn't deeply fundamental, but I do think that we probably lose people and good will here on the margin constantly / and that many people end up going for less ambitious / interesting integrations than they might otherwise want because they are just confused or don't know how to best leverage us.
- As a user value proposition (publishing side) — self expression via data aggregations and reports might be the right direction / I am pretty excited about it, but we aren't even close yet to users really demanding applications publish to their timelines. As you have pointed out many times, we might never be able to win at this vs. very good / vertically focused apps, but we need to at a minimum offer a certain level of quality.
 - I also think that we are ahead of the market on people wanting to use data / information to tell stories. Timeline I think has started to do a decent job abstractly getting people focused on Facebook as a store of value you build up over time rather than a stream that passes in the night... but I actually don't think that even if we had great visualizations most of the world is ready to be really excited about Feltron reports (even if they will in the future / it is the right fundamental underpinning to be going after)
- As a user value proposition (consumption side) — many people seem to be pretty ambivalent about what they are seeing / feel like a lot of the stories are noise / clutter in newsfeed.... And in many ways I think this is fair until things like browse exist / there are more interesting pivots to do on the data
 - I again feel we have the right fundamental story here around discovery, but clearly we aren't even close on things like Newsfeed and Ticker.. And I don't think there are quick fixes, I think we need a more powerful / deep approach.
- As a permissions model / GDP — we have a lot to work on here. I think we need to dramatically lower the barrier for applications being able to publish in a safe way to users' timelines (aka, we don't technically need GDP to publish / publish only me). On the model for apps requesting 'read' permission, without more nuance (e.g. You can have my 'friends' data, but not my 'only me' data) I fear our model will not scale to support communities / more private sharing (just think what would happen / how scared we would be as FB employees if we had not added the 'hack' so that FB-only & messages between FB employees don't go out when we auth an app)

- UPSHOT — I don't think the above is 'patchable' -- I don't think we can fix all the issues quickly or on the fly as we also push the OG out. I feel like it is going to take some time to be in a good place...

- (5) We generally to date have had a monolithic approach to our user interfaces (one website, one iPhone app, etc.), but (A) bite-size experiences will win on mobile platforms (B) having a monolithic approach to interfaces means you end up building ever more complex interfaces that are harder to make 'good' & fast -

- On mobile people want simple experiences that they can consume very rapidly / in intermediate time rather than constantly in the background... our mentality & app are not tuned for this. The fact that people love instagram speaks to this in my mind. Further, from an interface perspective, the larger an interface the more corners you hit / the harder it is to achieve 'quality' and optimize things like speed. In some ways, even setting aside consumer expectations / etc. I fear our monolithic approach is making it too hard for us to be 'good' even on the web (and I think you are seeing evidence of this in complex interfaces like 'timeline' on the web)

- (6) We have a ton of ideas on what to improve in our core model / business, but not the resources to do it — I feel like every week we are calling out really important and leveraged product improvements we could make (like your email re: path this last weekend) -- but because we are so heavily invested in a few very large products right now, we just aren't even close to being able to actually execute on these social changes which are core to our business.

So... the question becomes — where do we go from here / what strategy should we be running as a company? Here are a few bullets I would call out for discussion:

- (1) Invest significantly more in the core, and become a 'API first' company we talk about being a mobile first company, but I actually don't think that goes far enough... I think we need to be an 'API first' company and focus heavily on our core abstractions / enabling ourselves and others to build all the experiences we want on top simply and efficiently... perhaps even to the degree that we release new APIs for things even before we release our own interfaces to make them useful for end consumers. The reason I think this is important is that I think that for us to really win, we need to be thought of by developers first and foremost as effectively a service layer (AWS) for structured information... meaning, they put data in because the social functions and structured stores for their data that we provide are more efficient, and add social context and interfaces we add on top makes their data (& them) more valuable. I think this specifically speaks to a few projects that exist, but we need to balance resources towards / invest much more heavily in & move faster on:

- (1) BROWSE:
 - To me browse is the single most important abstraction we lack. Direct queries like 'music my friends like', 'friends who like running', 'engineers who work at google' is the cornerstone to making our app a real utility (and making Open Graph useful)... When you allow users to turn these queries into feeds & notifications, etc. -- and then allow app developers to layer on top of them, I think we will unleash an unbelievable amount of value. I would be betting the farm on this right now as a fundamentally missing part of how you look at the graph & how users and app developers should be thinking about and using Facebook.
- (2) TAGGING & GRAPH CLEANUP
 - Browse only works well if tagging works well / efficiently for end users and apps. There is a lot to fix here, we are in a pretty poor state in terms of what is possible & the current setup of OG with custom domains and us needing to do custom mapping between things. Further, we don't really have good generic tools for crowd-sourcing mapping / our current machine based de-dupe approach seems insufficient. We also really need to introduce the equivalent of 'hash-tagging' / true arbitrary structure into FB, and I think building editor plugins (so you can markup websites with FB tags, etc. would be huge coupled with browse)... I think we mostly know what to do here, but again I think we are majorly under-resourced.
- (3) LISTS / COLLECTIONS

- For privacy / publication control, and to enable collections — you can think of this as tagging or lists, but we are missing pieces here as well that aren't as fundamental as #1 and #2, but are close. I don't think we are crazy off here, but it seems on the back burner and like we are doing it to produce a few specific user-use-cases, not a generic concept that apps can use differently.
- (4) NOTIFICATIONS
 - I think notifications is a critical abstraction that we currently have basically no people working on... you can make arguments that we will lose this because of mobile platforms, but I think we need it as a core abstraction (and am happy to talk through why in more detail)
- (5) AD NETWORK & PAYING DEVELOPERS
 - We need to figure out a way to pay developers. We have the pump running on an advertising market, our data-centric model / targeting means that we SHOULD be able to do this naturally better than anyone and provide application developers with a better business model than anyone else. We need this to be true to win -- (and, on the flip side, as we discussed, paying developers for information fits on the other side of this transaction curve)
- (6) 'ROLODEX'
 - I put this towards the end of the list, partially because I am know I am biased / heavily personally invested in this.... But I think that this is critical. Our current model where nodes can only describe themselves limits our platform, and I believe is causing all sorts of pain that we don't even fully feel (including things like lacking good ways to do graph cleanup).... We bend over backwards in weird ways, etc. to try to fit revers claims into a self expression model, but we need to call a spade a spade and build a useful low-level model for claims about others
- (7) PAGES
 - To me another real hole in our core model is that pages cannot act the same way as profiles, especially WRT OG (but also tagging, etc).
- (8) SPEED & RELIABILITY
 - I don't have a lot of first hand experience here... but we should be investing heavily in speed & reliability on our APIs. My sense is we are getting better but have a long long way to go here.

(2) Build & expose a clear model for how we make money given information for ourselves and for our partners – For people to build on us we need to be predictable & trusted. The most important way to get there is to make our business model really clear to developers in the ecosystem. Right now, I believe that it is just too opaque... which means they don't trust us not to change the deal in the future (APIs , Access, etc.), and will not do serious business with us.

- The way people will trust us is if they fundamentally understand how we make money / the trade involved in using our platform. The only way we will have a stable platform is if the core economics work and scale well. I do not believe that we can win long-term at an attention based economic model... I think we can only win long-term at a data-centric model where our targeting surpasses everyone both in terms of delivering useful information when given a query, and modifying that delivery with payment / advertising buys as a core input.

(3) Become a mobile 'second' company (after APIs) and build tons of single serving apps, but stop trying to do 'takeovers'

- As I stated above, I think that our 'takeover' strategies like Firefly and min-Firefly will pretty likely not work. I would love to be proven wrong... But I think doing a good job with Firefly is currently beyond our reach, and I am skeptical that a highly incentivized and very well funded competitor will not figure out how to shut down / cripple mini-firefly before we really get it off the ground... so, in my mind a 'Facebook phone' is something that we should not be focused on.

- The next question is monolithic applications. I just don't believe in them because I think that apps are too hard to build / make fast / maintain / and use when they are really big... we end up going too slowly and worrying too much / in too many compromised states because we are making tradeoffs between functions which end up with us being great at nothing. One way this manifests itself is this zero sum game we seem to play / be talking about with bookmarks... which is just un-winnable in my mind / I think of as an interface hack that will never fully scale out.
- This leaves a model of federated inter-connected small apps built on our common backbone... which I really like as an approach. When I say this, I actually mean this to the extreme, where we build tons of interfaces which we treat almost as disposable... Let each team build things independently like a browse app, a newsfeed only app, a notifications app, messenger, a timeline publisher app, a groups app (or one app per group), a profile app (or one app per person), a 'likes an interests' app, a local app, apps which are just specific browse queries, etc. Don't even require any parity between android, iPhone, etc. except in really basic cases where you need 100% coverage for the network effect to work properly (most notably messenger and the most basic profile, NF functions)
 - Doing this well would force us to emulate developers using our apps / work almost on a level playing field with them (or at least deeply understand their pain)... which I actually think would be really helpful (especially if we could get our business model to the point that we truly want our partners to be wildly successful — which because of our current business model I am at least currently pretty ambivalent about)
 - To be able to do this we need to prove to ourselves that we have a huge ability / beyond anyone else to distribute new applications and monetize across all the apps... a tall order, but something I think we must be investing in.
 - To be able to have this scale we need to all be working against the same exact abstractions and APIs / we can be hacking too low into the fundamental model of Facebook.
 - The risk here is that we get too attached to any one app / are not willing to abandon certain ones / not upgrade them at all after a certain point over time. I think if we were good we would be willing to make this commitment & be strategic about a portfolio of apps.

- (4) Be OK with releasing different apps / interfaces with pretty significantly different feature sets based on the platform & use the web as our more 'complicated' interface of legal record also mentioned above, but I want to again call this out as a separate top level point. In many ways, especially as the desktop web dies, I think it is OK for it to be close to complete against our APIs and as a result complicated, and likely as a result a bit slow and a bit buggier than mobile (meaning, you can do ANYTHING on the command line that is allowed by our fundamental model, you can do 99% on the web, you might only be able to do 20% or 10% in any given app)... This requires a mental shift for us where we really are building single serving apps / are not duplicating all functionality in all places... and letting the web be a bigger monolith which is a fall back management interface and interface of record rather than something we expect to be pristine in the future.

- (5) Be simpler in our core model / do not create corner cases even when it is convenient at the core (but of course let them exist / leverage them on the surface) I think that as a company we systematically and massively under-estimate the cost of having multiple different sets of rules and abstractions at a low level / the cost of avoiding policy pain. This goes for decisions we make around things like project kid, social ads labeling, how we rolled out subscribe in an opt-in way, etc. I think that for developers to understand us, and for our engineers and product people to understand us themselves (and build good things), we need to have a really really simple basic model which we do not break / create corner cases or exceptions around just because it seems convenient in the short term. I think we are improving here... but we need to continue to work really hard at simplifying our core model and then get really really good at executing against it (and put real headcount against smoothing out a lot of the more crazy corner cases we continuously find in legacy interactions)... If / as we find products we want to build that break the core model, then we need to holistically re-evaluate our core instead of hacking things together or making a new exception.

- (6) Focus on key social product improvements we know provide value our mantle is people interacting with each other. We should be very focused on wins which are meaningful directly to social, like auto-checkin, notifications when a photo is uploaded by someone and looks like you, 'views' as social feedback, etc. and not lose an advantage on what we should be best at to any app.

- (7) Rapidly slow our investment of time and energy in large / established revenue sources that do not have a future (even if it is painful) and immediately and heavily hit the accelerator on unproven things in which we believe This seems like a ridiculously hard situation to manage. Perhaps your strategy here is to wait for sponsored stories / good business models to show enough growth that we can signal externally a simultaneous story of declining legacy businesses coupled with growing / better businesses, but it seems like this is going to be really hard whenever we have to deal with it, and I worry that in the meantime it is a straight (and actually pretty expensive) tax on our development.

- (8) Slow our roll on the OG in its current form Given all the above, I just think we are premature on really pushing the OG aggressively — we could spend an infinite amount of time optimizing the last mile of OG right now and trying to light up partners, but I think we have more fundamental work to do before we can do this successfully... and I think doing it now comes at the expense of our resources and the quality of the experience for users -- which sucks, but is the spade I just want to call here... I don't think we can build the platform that we want & get application partners to grow & be good right now.

- (9) Slow our roll on firefly Implied by the above. I don't know the exact numbers, but I do know that a pretty large number of our most talented people are focused on firefly right now... and while I am really excited about some of the designed interfaces I have seen, I just don't see how we are going to win here. I know that stepping away now would be an enormous organizational challenge, but I don't think we can afford the resources now or on an ongoing basis yet as a company. We can do new audacious products from places of weakness or strength, to me this feels like a project born of weakness.... And I would rather double/triple down on the information business that is our core / what we have a natural advantage in.

- (9) Buy some social tangents we admire that should be on OG this is going to be my craziest suggestion / point... but I want to put it on the table as a thought experiment. What if we took a relatively sizable percent of our value and made some major acquisitions. Twitter, Tumblr, Foursquare, Pinterest, Path, etc.... Consider this a placeholder for more discussion in person... but the quick version is that integrating them onto OG would be an interesting and valuable exercise & in my mind worth a lot.

Upshot — I think we are currently in an 'uncanny valley' of product... and we should instead go for a high-road / low-road approach where we build bullet and fully articulated low level abstractions up through partner-application facing APIs, and then move towards more vertical / more bite-sized experiences for consumers on the edge...

I am so excited about how close we are / what we can do by building a great information platform. We should be the fundamental layer of the world's information because we provide the best store, the best business model, and the best consumer experience / demand in the world. I worry that we are missing the ball on this not because we don't have a clear path to do it, but because we are fracturing our resources at a critical time. I think we are reacting to a big shift by trying to emulate the people we see as competitors with low leverage rather than double down on our core strengths where we can get huge return on being who we are / the network we have built. This leads me to think we need to invest in our core (and factor our system for the next generation of social) and then build effectively flexible / small / semi-disposable interfaces on top of that core engine.

-- I am really tempted to try to articulate the full model here as I see it, but I will refrain... instead I will just say that I really don't think we are a 'technical platform' (which I really don't understand why we would want to be or how we would be), nor do I think we are an attention/distribution business at our core... I think we are an information medium / or 'platform' if you will — and I think we should embrace that as our core strength and point of leverage and get very aggressive about being that to our core.

Team:

here is the other half of my brain in a snapshot — which is on my team & how I am learning to interact with the m-team / in the m-team conversations. I will try to walk through this with your note to me in mind / as a reference point for discussion.

(1) Design / frustration with our interaction design process I feel like there are some tactical and some broader things to discuss here and that this is a pretty high order bit...

- (A) The tactical bit is that this is all about people.... Felton is good, but as you note not an interaction designer either in terms of skill or interest. Ryan is a good helper / can do basic things, but he isn't a great designer, nor is Jez (our very young designer from a graphic design background, and Tom can be good — but is both getting married and having a child and isn't working that much / as much as he should. We need a design manager to control quality and mentor / build up the team, and it looks like we might get one soon (offer out and high probability that she does identity if she joins), -- but if you look at the non-manager design hiring priorities we aren't even close to the top — which means in my mind we will not get more real execution horsepower for months.
- (B) A broader point is that we really just need to decide how much autonomy / design oversight we allow felton / the designers to take. The more we give them clear requirements and then let them work out the decisions on their own the faster we can move... the more that they feel like you want to approve each change / you signal that you want to approve each change to them, the more they will wait for your feedback / our weekly discussions to do a full 'turn' on designs & the slower we are going to be able to progress —
 - By way of example on this — I feel like our discussion on 'only me' has been really frustrating (and I suspect you feel the same). It has gone way way too slowly, and sucked hours and hours away from a much higher order bit on the OG work. I fully understand if you want to approve each change & really own the design process here (and we can try to factor more efficiently around that type of work/feedback cycle), but I think we will be sacrificing a lot of speed / nimbleness — and I am not convinced that in general it is the right tradeoff (though happy if that is your explicit call)
- (C) A final broader point on design is that there is this tradeoff between building design 'systems' which are flexible and scalable vs. perfecting a given interaction. I feel like as a company we should be in the systems business, and only apply tweaks in the last mile where absolutely critical.... I know Felton feels this way... but I don't think we always make the right tradeoffs here
 - Again, by way of example — from our 'only me' discussion... I would argue that we need a 'system' for only me that is going to work in a variety of context, and that having one will make us move faster, lower the number of bugs, and generally be a helpful abstraction — and then for a specific case like 'shoebox' if we want to layer something on top of that it is obviously fine as a one off, but we should treat it as a one off that we apply in the last minute... not something we should be building up from as a first principle.

(2) Timeline Quality & Perf: As I frequently express, I feel like I don't have a lot of credibility with you on this, partially because I am not an engineer by background, and because the products I have worked on here and elsewhere have not ever been really polished.... That said, here are things I think about:

- (A) The user-interface complexity of the timeline product is probably bigger than anything else Facebook has done. The fact that so many different product pieces exist / interact in combinatorial ways both leads directly to 'bugs' and makes it extremely hard for the team to know when we will be 'done' (in terms of things feeling fast / good). Take by way of small example what we have done with ads — probably the correct call to optimize for revenue, but there are about 20 different ad configurations to manage on timeline, which is pretty insane / will lead to bugs on the margin and always hurts perf on the margin. The team is working hard and we are doing better, but we certainly lag the rest of Facebook as a result.
- (B) The team really is focused on this stuff / cares a lot about the product, but I think that a lot of times people like Paul / Steve, etc. hear us asking for perf improvements, but then also asking for product interactions / changes / complexity that trade off against perf focus (at least in the short term) and feel like their job is to do the best we can / get us to parity with the rest of FB... but there is only so much they can do...

- As one example, take ranking of months vs. moving to 'show all' as an example here. We got scrolling perf to a pretty good place before launch in the normal use pattern / better than it is now, and then made the 11th hour call to stop ranking the months section... which ended up erasing a lot of scrolling perf gains because it ends up loading way too much content into the DOM. With ads, transparencies, moving reports to the right, etc. perf and product do tradeoff against each other.. and necessarily slow down the process of building/rolling things out and making them faster. Again, I don't mean to be making up excuses on any of this at all, I am just trying to explain where we are with some specific examples.
- (C) re: timeline, I think there are a few specific things we should do here to help get to a better place.
 - -- (1) we should obviously keep people like steve totally dedicated to perf, and if we are really focused on it dip back into sitespeed team / though I am not sure that is the right company optimization
 - -- (2) Wherever possible on the margin we should trade away from product and towards perf... that means that even if the cost is minimal, we should not do things like transparencies on OG stories that run directly contrary to our perf goals for moderate/small product wins. I am not sure there is much more to do here.
 - -- (3) If perf and being bug free is the prime directive, I really wonder if we can't remove some of the product complexity we have built up and trade back towards perf & quality. The biggest change we could make here that would instantly return big wins would be to step away from a two column layout (or, less drastically, do more of the height calculations server side and tolerate occasional mis-balance of the two columns)
- (D) 'Quality' overall / more broadly — The thing I do worry about here is what we mean by 'quality' on our current existing product vs. building systems and making product decisions which set us up for having high quality in the long term. I actually think that the reason we have 'quality' issues in our product today across the boards is because we have over-optimized specific interactions / product functions at the expense of an overall maintainable and nimble system in many places. This is part of the longer strategy conversation above... but suffice it to say that the fewer abstractions that exist and pixel optimizations we do / the more we have a unified core / the faster we can move. This goes for everything from design all the way through to the settings we use and our policies.

(3) Timeline Rollout Speed -- I am personally pretty frustrated that we are only as of last week turning on viral channels / are still weeks away from a full rollout. At the beginning of Jan / the last time we really talked about timing / we said we would be ready to force in by the end of FEB / at a quality level to do that — I don't think we are massively off on that, but I do think we are off by a few weeks. I know getting timeline out 'well' is really important to the company (and my credibility) — I was a bit blindsided by revenue as a core factor in this as of early Jan, and I was also blindsided by early data-quality and then later-braking test bias issues... but I do think we are still doing pretty well here in terms of product reception / even if we are not moving as fast as we would like.

(4) Timeline Team Leadership Overall — I am pretty concerned about where we are with this... let me roll through each discipline:

- Product Management: Justin and Mike are good / I think are really meaningful assets, but they are not right for the timeline. I think they would both personally under-perform but for different reasons --- Mike is too new and Justin isn't detail focused enough. I have tried to put them each in contexts where they will be engaged and will succeed — and my belief is that having them on timeline will accomplish neither. I don't think either of them will end up being a product head for the group that we want (though I could be proven wrong) -- I think they are both top notch / the best ICs that can do great things if given the right framework to succeed.

- I will also note that I am really having a hard time getting a good PM resource into timeline from within Facebook. I thought Josh Williams (who is very quality and design oriented) would have been great, and in one quick conversation with him he seemed theoretically really excited about the role, but Schrep (and Peter) really wanted him on location stuff, and so that is where he went... though I am not sure that was the right call for him or the company
- I am hoping to get one of our more senior / experienced new-hires, but because timeline is seen as last year's product and Mobile / OG is where all the sex is, it seems that it will be where good people will gravitate.
- I know the primary mandate / agree with the idea that we should be hiring in great people rather than resource shifting, but especially for PM around identity I feel like we face an issue which is that we think people are good if their projects are good /going well... so the people we want we have a hard time getting, and we don't want the others.
- Eng: Boz is more engaged, but I don't think he is ever going to go deep with the identity team from a technical perspective / be deeply invested beyond as a cultural leader. While there are still rough patches, our relationship is getting better / there actually is some real mutual respect building, but given his view of himself and his role at Facebook I just don't see him ever leading on the ground / working really hard or getting into the weeds of problems (timeline or otherwise). I don't think this is me / or the org change — by my understanding it is consistent with how he was functioning reporting to Badros as well. I think he is the right partner for now, but I think it is highly likely that he will either leave or be effectively a lame duck after a point. I already feel like he isn't working enough hours / hard enough.
 - In terms of building a bench around him / the next step, I do think that some people like Paul will in time be really good, but as you have noted they probably are not there yet
 - Hiring outreach for more senior Eng leadership that Boz has been mostly doing hasn't been super hot so far... Again, to state a truism, the people that are really good are the people that are hardest to get.
- Design: Already discussed / hopefully we get this candidate in, and then she proves to be really good and will help scale out a team.

(5) My interactions with m-team / strategy vs. execution - I think there are two intersecting problems here... especially with my contributions to specifically OG conversations... one is the 'topic' / focus area, and the other is personalities. I will work on both, but let me just express where I think I am first.

- On personalities — especially within the 'small group'
 - My honest assessment is that Cox and I have a strong relationship / see eye to eye and I feel like I can have an open and clear discussion with him. I don't think there is an issue where I can't have a voice with him and I think he respects my opinion — He might not always agree, but I don't think there is a communications issue. I also think that Badros and I have worked together enough that there isn't a communications issue really.
 - I do not feel the same way about my relationship with Brett (or to a lesser extent Schrep)... I think there are a few things at play here but (1) I just haven't spent as much time with them, which I need to try to fix / perhaps set up one on ones with them for a while to try to build more of a relationship (2) I think that Cox and I tend to think much more similarly as a default, which makes bridging the gap with Brett / Schrep harder.
 - I agree with your assessment that the only thing I can do here to build trust and respect is launch timeline and do other tactically good things here. Not much more to say on this.
- Content / holding back too much on mobile & platform discussions
 - The first reason I have been a little restrained on these topics is I don't really have a sense of how many degrees of freedom we are talking about with regards to mobile or platform in our current strategy. I don't know if any of the above points are even worth bringing up, or if we are in more of an execution phase right now. I am always trying to feel out when I am 'derailing' conversations vs. when I am actually helping them along, and clearly have more to figure out here.

- The second reason I feel like I have been a bit hesitant in these discussions is that I really have felt to date like our decisions on how OG integrates with timeline (and the changes we are going to make to boost up OG) have been relatively straight forward / we have already made the calls on them for the immediate term... and that I don't know all the nuance when talking from other perspectives tactically (NF/OG core/etc) There is no question that we have things from a timeline perspective to contribute.... But I also do really feel like newsfeed & ticker are the main distribution points for OG that are more in question (and more short term) -- and so to me it makes more sense that a lot of our discussion has not been very 'identity' team focused. Again, correct me if you think I am off base here.
- Separately, on our hiring conversations of the last two weeks...
 - On the senior level I have a bit of a disadvantage here because I don't know a ton of senior people at google / in the valley that are easy to draw on. I do actually know a ton of startups / people from the wider ecosystem and have been trying to press on the areas I know and from a broader perspective I think have been funneling good prospective acquisitions into the pipe in several places at a minimum (people like chartbeat, waze, etc.)
 - I also feel a bit at a disadvantage because even more than distribution, and certainly more that mobile — it is a pretty rare breed that is going to be ideal to slot directly onto the identity team. We don't have a clear external corollary in my mind for what we do / want to do. It clearly isn't microsoft passport folk. This makes it hard to target people in particular — though to date people are really interested in what we do / excited about it — which, of course, is useful.
 - That said — again, I am working on this / want to be as leveraged as possible and will continue to do what I can.

Perhaps in overall closing, I know that this isn't a polished assessment in many places... but I really wanted to share a lot of my thinking with you. I am really concerned about the company overall being over-extended and not focused on the areas where we have the greatest natural advantage. On the team side, I am working hard on building a culture around the identity team, and I think it is going pretty well with the core members -- but I think we have a long way to go and it will take us a while to be at full steam....

Obviously happy to discuss everything / anything with you on this at any point — and, despite some of the doubts I express to you — I really would follow you on any strategy you outline / I hope you know I am fully all in & committed.

Intro (7 min): We launched high resolution photos and I'm happy with the pace of iteration there. We launched Facelift and we're continuing to roll with all of these photos things.

Spring Cleaning rolled out this week with classifying friends as Acquaintances. This is one of a few things that we're doing to encourage folks to clean up their Graph and News Feed. We'll also be rolling out things to encourage people to use Close Friends, right now 240 million use the feature and want more people to use it so it's more useful.

Another big area that is a theme over the next few months is mobile apps and the Page Admin app is pushing to the app store soon. We are rolling out a new version of Messenger with read receipt pieces, we might go with a global opt out for privacy with that, and the Photos app.

The net result is that all of this stuff is building towards social Facebook versions where you can use the individual app or the Facebook version. You'll be able to replace whole parts of your phone with these Facebook apps and will be a whole package for people.

Partner Stories – Four Square and Instagram recently switched over to Open Graph and they are starting to get to something deeper in syncing activity. This is a cool milestone for us in terms of good social companies adopting this. Today we are celebrating Sheryl's four year Face-versary and how she's been an awesome partner.

Highlights

1. Dan Rose mentioned in his weekly update that you've been discussing paid subscriptions. How does this align with what we say on our login page? At 22:00 (5 min) [Answer Summary: We are committed to a free product and we won't ever get to a state where people pay for everything. We are trying to see if we're at an inflexion point for people to pay for things in apps and is this something that we should be considering too. Maybe people would pay for an ad free version of Facebook or more storage for photos.]

2. We bought 750 patents from IBM. What is the reason and are any interesting for development? At 27:30 (1 min) [Answer Summary: Sam O'Rourke – We've done a lot of patent acquisitions and we will continue to do patent acquisitions. This wasn't motivated specifically by Yahoo. It's one aspect of building an interesting patent portfolio.]

3. Timeline was to Profile as X is to News Feed. What is the next News Feed innovation? At 48:30 (6 min) [Answer Summary: Every year is a theme and most of the work we do is more iterative. We launched Open Graph and now we have to make it work. About 80% of the work the company does is making things work really well that the world already knows that we are doing and every year I want us to expand the way people think about social. I think this year, the combination of the native, iPad first app plus the Facebook search will really blow people away.]

Full Chronological Order

As we mature, do you think we need to let go of the value "done is better than perfect?" At 8:00 (3 min) [Answer summary: "Done is better than perfect" doesn't mean that we ship crap. We should optimize our development for learning quickly. Every release won't be perfect, but we want to build the best products over the long term. So if we ship something with fewer features, but the product is well designed then we should do that and then ship other releases with more features soon after.]

The product doesn't seem to work as well for some languages or groups, how much do we push on these corner cases? At 11:20 (2 min) [Answer Summary: I think the features that we've implemented should be done well and to be relatively non-buggy, but I think having corner cases is acceptable just not over the long term because things don't get done in just one iteration. The right balance is better to have things that work and hold back the things we don't have, then push those in a different release. We should be willing to do fewer things as long as we do them well.]

What are your thoughts on Zynga buying OMGPOP and is it good or bad for our Platform? At 13:20 (3 min) [Answer Summary: It would be good to have multiple big companies besides Zynga. We have this relationship with Zynga where they integrate every game deeply with Facebook and they will do that with this game too. I also think it's cool that another game came out that uses Facebook and will be awesome for Open Graph.]

Our relationship with Zynga has been pretty up and down. Where are we at with them now? At 16:00 (1 min) [Answer Summary: I think it's good. Every relationship has some tension, but like any company they don't want to be dependent on another company and we've established ground rules for how they do other stuff. Mobile is important for them and us, so there's a lot of interest for them to work with us on Mobile use cases and making it work well. Cool to have a good partner that will experiment on this stuff with us.]

Tim Kendall (previously at Facebook) is now at Pinterest helping build their monetization strategy. What will be his challenges and how will he overcome them? At 17:30 (5 min) [Answer Summary: Advertising is a scale thing, it wasn't until we reached 350 million users did we become interesting to big brands. Pinterest's biggest issue is user growth and from a monetization perspective, they just need to work on this. Pinterest is commercially focused and I don't know how they will do it, but it will be more natural to monetize.]

Highlight 1

Highlight 2

There was an article that Yahoo licensed some of the patents. Is this true? At 28:30 (1 min) [Answer Summary: Sam O'Rourke – One of Yahoo's revenue strategies is to license people, so a lot of companies are licensed to the patents. This wasn't a Yahoo motivated purchase though.]

What will it take to make for Messenger to be seen as an alternative to SMS and even overtake it? At 29:10 (4 min) [Answer Summary: SMS is relatively expensive, so to be free like Messenger is compelling. SMS is a decentralized protocol, so no company can build on top of it to make it faster or work better. Messenger can be a more expansive and better feature network. Today we have 60 million installs, 10 million daily actives and 30 million monthly actives. We are building Messenger into the core apps on Mobile too. We are starting to integrate more interesting features, but we still have reliability issues.]

What is Google+ doing well and what you are worried about? At 33:40 (2 min)
[Answer Summary: They don't seem to be doing pretty well and I'm pretty paranoid. I want to gracefully shift to being a mobile company through building stuff and working on the success of Open Graph. They are a good company, but they are going to keep integrating their products and rolling with new features.]

They have a lot of powerful tools to show G+ down our throat. Which one do you think is the biggest threat? At 36:00 (2 min) [Answer Summary: Android is the biggest long term. Even though it's kind of weak as a product, they still have time to work on this because it's still early on. We don't need to hedge against them, we need to stay focused on the stuff that we are doing.]

If we had unlimited cash in the bank, what would be doing now that we aren't or what are we cutting back on now? At 38:10 (4 min) [Answer Summary: I don't think that we're cash constrained as business, but it's good to align all of these different constituents. When developers make money, they build more stuff on the platform and when brands build more pages then they are creating content for the graph. Growing the business shows momentum, so we want to get awesome people so that we continue building the business. If we wanted to buy a big company we could now with our equity, but we don't. We need to build the business and the mission of the company to align folks to accomplish our goals.]

What do you think 5-10 years from now will be Facebook's big management mistakes that hurt us? At 42:10 (5 min) [Answer Summary: Some mistakes are avoidable and then there are tradeoffs, but it's hard to say because it's more likely that a set of tradeoffs we make will lead to an outcome that's not great.]

Do you meet some, most, all, exceed or greatly exceed on your goal of optimizing and writing code? At 47:20 (1 min) [Answer Summary: I think I'm doing ok. The first quarter I optimized on sleep and for code writing it's just ok because I need to learn new framework.]

Highlight 3

Sheryl tells a story about how telling people the truth will avoid us from becoming bureaucratic.

Mark,

Let's meet up for a quick in person today. I think it would be easier to finish answering your questions and review the partner list for action importers in person.

Some notes on 2 & 3

2/ There are likely network affects which are still playing out. In particular, we've gotten much more aggressive on spam. Many of the videos which were getting the most clicks have now been removed from the system. We are also intentionally negatively ranking video stories in feed – we have been since these sites began to grow very quickly about a month ago. The plan was to reduce distribution until we were happy with the feed stories. The redesign of the 'trending' units went out last night, along w/ a trending unit for video. We are going to start ramping that up today, and we will begin removing the negative boost now that we have the redesigned stories.

3/ The Global Like action is planned to launch next week. If the opengraph object being liked was created by a friend they will get a notification. Tagging people in open graph actions is live – if you are tagged in an open graph action it works the same as being tagged in a post on FB (you get a notif, goes into approval queue if you have that enabled, etc). Any app can use this feature today, and Nike will be the first large partner app to launch with it.

I have a bunch of questions and feedback based on this. If we can do this over email then we may not have to meet in person tomorrow.

(1) For the action importers, we should prioritize the apps that have the most usage first. So Twitter is the most important partner here by far, followed by Instagram, then Pinterest and then probably Foursquare. What other apps do people use to post a lot of content? YouTube? Blogger and WordPress? Any particular games like Draw Something or a popular Zynga game?

If any developer doesn't want to work with us on this but still wants to be able to pull friends and other data from us, we should be clear that this reciprocity is important to us. Pinterest, Foursquare and others should understand this. Let me know if I can help out as well since I know the founders.

(2) For these video apps and removing the play button, do we expect our actions to result in continued week over week declines or was this a one-time correction? How do we expect this to play out?

(3) How far off are we from completing the OG features we discussed a while ago around connecting likes across services, enabling tagging, sending notifs, etc? I seem to remember this stuff was supposed to be finished. Is it?

(4) Do we expect Quora to launch more OG functionality soon? Do we know exactly what Path is launching? Is their upcoming release anything except just OG integration?

Below is this week's Open Graph partner update. Please let us know if you have questions.

Ecosystem update

* Ecosystem. Overall, Open Graph PUAP decreased 15.4% w/w to 21.2M. Decline driven by drop in video publishing (-21.2 % w/w) and Other/Intentional (-23.3% w/w).

Other/Intentional saw major declines due to Zoosk (-58 % w/w), Zapkolik (-48% w/w) and Chill (-42% w/w). Zoosk implemented our requested changes to only publish for users who opt-in, and Zapkolik and Chill were impacted by the removal of the play button on video attachments in their custom watch actions. Zapkolik and Chill have 90 days to switch to the global watch action (breaking change policy).

* Social video. Drop in video publishing due to: removal of play button on video attachment, continued spam reduction for major video publishers (Socialcam -12% w/w mark as spam), and Socialcam's sticky social publishing 'off' setting, modified as a result of negative PR.

Partner launches and notable updates

* Action Importer/Backdating - Kicked off conversations with Airbnb (interested), Instagram, Foursquare (tentative), Netflix (interested), and Pinterest (interested, but non-committal) to gauge interest and get feedback. Discussing with additional partners this week who we think will be forward-leaning.

* Socialcam (2.2M PUAP, -43.5% w/w): Largest decliner. Made social publishing setting sticky due to PR pressure, and along with video ecosystem changes they saw a major publishing drop.

* Netflix (115K, +1% w/w): Working to allow users to view content for free for first-time new FB connected users to drive viral loop (July timeframe).

* Washington Post (292K PUAP, +22.4% w/w): Switched to a single page canvas app to improve perf and page load. Hoping to see this increase the number of articles users read in a given session, but losing unique URLs per article (canvas URL does not change when clicking between articles).

* WeChat (n/a): They have a Path-like privacy model, and are willing to provide a setting to publish individual moment via OG. We are pushing them to also include a global setting to share via OG. They are seeing how quickly they can implement OG, and will get back to us at the end of the week with estimates.

* Twitter (n/a): They want to be a part of App Center, and have their assets uploaded. On track for an end of May release for "tweet", "retweet", "follow", and "favor" OG actions. Conversations have been engineering focused to date, and we have not inquired how they plan to market the change to OG from stream.publish (if at all).

Other partner updates

* Pinterest (786K PUAP, -2.4% w/w): Fixed stream publish issue for non-OG users. 60% roll-out of auto-FB login for already connected users (previously, even if TOS'd and logged into FB, users still had to push Login button). They are again allowing FB users to create a new account without requesting an invite.

* Quora (1762 PUAP, +471%): Quora perceives integration as going well so far. They improved the conversion rate of users publishing to Timeline. Small upcoming tweaks, including action links, but they want to observe steady-state stats. We are still investigating low FB DAU (18K).

* Foursquare (557K PUAP -0.3% w/w): Closing out requested OG features/bugs for v2 Launch. Discussed Action Importing to get feedback. Their initial reaction was cautious, and they seem more willing to do this for prior checkins that were shared to FB.

* Instagram (1.5M PUAP, +5.9% w/w): Integrating built-in likes, and new version in App Store review includes additional Timeline language/up-sell

* Spotify (1.5M PUAP, +1.2% w/w): Spotify discovered issue that caused them to invalidate tokens by mistake that was leading to decreased publishing. Issue fixed.

* Tumblr (83K PUAP, +3.56% w/w): Still focused on a few other priorities until they revisit OG in a week.

* Viddy (850K PUAP, -21.4% w/w): Seeing impact of removal of play button.

* Path (n/a): On track for early June launch.

* Airbnb (n/a): Wishlist feature taking longer than expected. 3 weeks until public launch. Started work on allowing users to add historic Airbnb actions to Timeline (places stayed, favorites, reviews).

* Draw Something (n/a): SSO enabled for Android now that SSO bug fixed in Android 1.9.2.

Subject: Re: Partner Update

On the Action Importer stuff, I think we should adjust the language to reflect the following strategy:

- 1/ We're working on the framework + UI for finding + adding action importers from Timeline. This is adequately staffed.
 - 2/ We're going to pursue both (a) having the partners build the best OG implementation possible and (b) building our own "hacky" scraper ourselves, in parallel. We already have a bunch of hacky scrapers, and we'll add in the missing ones. We'll prioritize this by the size of the partner (so Twitter first, then Instagram, etc.).
 - 3/ If a partner is unwilling to build the same quality integration that we'd build ourselves, then we'll show them our action importer and tell them we're planning on shipping ours, instead:
 - Ideally, this convinces them to make their own good
 - If not, then we scale/polish/ship our hacky one
 - 4/ In parallel, we're spinning up the effort to have a reliable backend for crawling all these sites ourselves. This will take some time, so we may have to ship some hacky importers until we have the right infrastructure in place.
- In particular, we should just make sure we emphasize we're going to pursue the hacky importers in parallel with partnership efforts. I think part of what Mark is reacting to is us serializing them (you say "first, we'll talk to the partners; if that doesn't work, then we'll build the importer.").

Thx guys, here's what I have. I would like to actually to just go through his questions in the meeting today without going over the overall stats again if that's ok. Also I ordered what I think are the most straightforward discussions in the beginning in the hopes that we get through them fast and saved action importer for last b/c they might be more discussion there.

Let me know if that makes sense to everyone.

Hey guys,

I'll make quick slides for this since I have them for action importer stuff anyway.

Mark's list is a little longer than ours for action importer but I think the strategy is the same.

Thanks Austin. I have pulled that data into this response. s

(1) Action importers

Tumblr is another good candidate, but like Twitter, they are currently not pulling data from us

- * Foursquare - we will likely need your help to get them over the fence.

- * Insagram - straightforward to integrate.

- * Twitter - we did not want to derail their OG integration, and were going to wait to get that out the door.

- * Draw Something - is still working on data storage for drawings, so will likely not be able to provide a lot of historic data.

- * WordPress - Dev Advocacy is working on an official FB Plugin, and we can see if this feature can be added.

- * Kindle, Pandora, iTunes, Last.fm, Quora, and YouTube are other companies that have rich data sets for Timeline.

(Rose/Zach - this is a more aggressive approach than we are taking. Have any other thoughts to add?)

(2) Video decline

We've gotten much more aggressive on spam. Many of the videos which were getting the most clicks have now been removed from the system. We are also intentionally negatively ranking video stories in feed – we have been since these sites began to grow very quickly about a month ago. The plan was to reduce distribution until we were happy with the feed stories. The redesign of the 'trending' units went out last night, along w/ a trending unit for video. We are going to start ramping that up today, and we will begin removing the negative boost now that we have the redesigned stories.

The play button change went out on Push on 5/9. This week's statistics is the first full week that represents the product change. We have seen the video segment stabilize, and start growing again, mid-last week.

Chad pulled some additional data. Below is the chart of OG Video.Watch Publishers on a non-averaged line. As you can see, the decline started on 5/9 the date we removed the Play button). It bottomed out on 5/13 and then has been rising since.

(3) OG Features - Tagging, Likes, Notifications

Built-in Likes launching next Wednesday. If the opengraph object being liked was created by a friend they will get a notification. We have the following launch partners lined up: Viddy, Socialcam, Polyvore, Soundcloud. Instagram is also implementing it, but it won't be live for launch. Pinterest, has not committed to implementing it, but we are pushing them to put it (and action links) on their roadmap. Once we have a migration tool to migrate previous custom likes, we plan to make this a required change within the 90 day breaking change policy.

Friend tagging and geotagging are live. To date, Foursquare and Instagram have integrated geotagging. Path and Airbnb will implement geo as well. For friend tagging, if you are tagged in an open graph action it works the same as being tagged in a post on FB (you get a notif, goes into approval queue if you have that enabled, etc). This is available to all apps today, and Nike+ will be the first partner to launch with it. Path, Viddy, and Socialcam, also plan to integrate friend tagging in the near future.

(4) Additional context on Quora and Path

* Quora - No major changes planned in the near-term other than adding Action links. They want to track stats and traffic with current integration. As of last week, they had 13K users who have enabled Timeline.

* Path - We only have context on their FB integration plans. They plan to allow users to Auth with FB, and users can share public Moments via OG (music listens, people tagging, location, thoughts/comments, and photos).

I have a bunch of questions and feedback based on this. If we can do this over email then we may not have to meet in person tomorrow.

(1) For the action importers, we should prioritize the apps that have the most usage first. So Twitter is the most important partner here by far, followed by Instagram, then Pinterest and then probably Foursquare. What other apps do people use to post a lot of content? YouTube? Blogger and WordPress? Any particular games like Draw Something or a popular Zynga game?

If any developer doesn't want to work with us on this but still wants to be able to pull friends and other data from us, we should be clear that this reciprocity is important to us. Pinterest, Foursquare and others should understand this. Let me know if I can help out as well since I know the founders.

(2) For these video apps and removing the play button, do we expect our actions to result in continued week over week declines or was this a one-time correction? How do we expect this to play out?

(3) How far off are we from completing the OG features we discussed a while ago around connecting likes across services, enabling tagging, sending notifs, etc? I seem to remember this stuff was supposed to be finished. Is it?

(4) Do we expect Quora to launch more OG functionality soon? Do we know exactly what Path is launching? Is their upcoming release anything except just OG integration?

Below is this week's Open Graph partner update. Please let us know if you have questions.

Ecosystem update

* Ecosystem. Overall, Open Graph PUAP decreased 15.4% w/w to 21.2M. Decline driven by drop in video publishing (-21.2 % w/w) and Other/Intentional (-23.3% w/w). Other/Intentional saw major declines due to Zoosk (-58 % w/w), Zapkolik (-48% w/w) and Chill (-42% w/w). Zoosk implemented our requested changes to only publish for users who opt-in, and Zapkolik and Chill were impacted by the removal of the play button on video attachments in their custom watch actions. Zapkolik and Chill have 90 days to switch to the global watch action (breaking change policy).

* Social video. Drop in video publishing due to: removal of play button on video attachment, continued spam reduction for major video publishers (Socialcam -12% w/w mark as spam), and Socialcam's sticky social publishing 'off' setting, modified as a result of negative PR.

Partner launches and notable updates

* Action Importer/Backdating - Kicked off conversations with Airbnb (interested), Instagram, Foursquare (tentative), Netflix (interested), and Pinterest (interested, but non-committal) to gauge interest and get feedback. Discussing with additional partners this week who we think will be forward-leaning.

* Socialcam (2.2M PUAP, -43.5% w/w): Largest decliner. Made social publishing setting sticky due to PR pressure, and along with video ecosystem changes they saw a major publishing drop.

* Netflix (115K, +1% w/w): Working to allow users to view content for free for first-time new FB connected users to drive viral loop (July timeframe).

Speaker Notes for Slide 20

The top line number of calls from external appids is 24B per day. I was taking the view that every single call is a read or a write.

The largest write methods from external apps are the ones I mentioned earlier (gr:post:User/apprequests, gr:post:User/feed, gr:post:User/external_edge (i.e. COG edge creation), gr:post:User/scores, etc.) and in total, account for ~4% of the total volume of api calls.

The largest read methods are fql.query, gr:get:User/picture, etc. and make up the remaining 96% of the daily volume of api calls.

See the attached for the largest 20 methods by daily call volume (from external appids). This short list accounts for 85% of total api call volume. As you can see, only one of the top 20 is a write method (gr:post:User/apprequests).

Facebook Developer Program

- Program
 - Developer pays a fee per year
 - Development is still free (so is web plugin use)
 - Allows apps to come out of developer mode
 - Provides support incidents (devsupport@)
 - Additional support can be purchased
- Benefits
 - Eliminates a class of spam/fraud apps on Platform
 - Deterministic support channel that lasts after launch
 - Cost recovery + potentially some upside (depends on model)
- Costs
 - Should be able to handle with existing HC
 - Need some additional tool/processes (dev sign-up, support flow)
 - Need to determine model for devs that generate $$ already

Paid API Access

- Program
 - FDP members provide credentials during sign-up
 - Each app gets read quota (no quota on write)
 - Devs that exceed quota are charged
- Benefits
 - Aligns incentives with developers
 - Cost recovery for API usage
 - Could reduce our massive list of whitelisted APIs
- Costs
 - Need to build auto-billing logic and usage dashboards
 - Need to determine market rates for APIs
 - Assume 60 days to build and roll-out
 - Need to determine model for devs that generate $$

Models

- Pay per developer
 - 15,000 devs * $100 = $1.5 million
- Pay per app
 - ~155,720 * $100 = $15.6 million
- Pay per app (by size)
 - $1 per MAU = $1.1 billion
- Pay per API call
 - 1.4T paid API calls at $0.05/K = $70 million
- Pay for distribution
 - Neko ($200M), Starling ($100M), App Store ($50M)

Next steps

- Price out the revenue opportunities for real
- Cost out the engineering work for real
- Determine model for devs making $$
- Talk to some developers to get feedback

Should include B in the board deck? It's another good idea for monetizing distribution that is not currently on the list.

Strongly agree that this is the crux of the issue and is likely to be a primary focus. My biggest concern here is that outside of canvas, we can't actually assign any reasonable dollar value to how much value top partners have realized as a result of this.

Backing up, my take is distribution is much simpler to think about since it is just advertising. Estimations here are a bit complicated by the fact that we are giving away so much for free today (and as we move away from this, it's not obvious how many developers who aren't advertising much today would be willing to pay), but the model itself is pretty straightforward.

On the data side, there are two primary approaches here, both of which could be framed as revenue sharing (we probably can't actually price case A based on 3rd party revenue, but I think the framing still works):

- a) Partners monetize the data accessible via our read APIs and we share some of that value (today this is mostly through users acquired due to friends/traffic)
- b) We monetize partners' data and give them a cut of the value (Amazon sponsors and appends a "Buy on Amazon" link to Pinterest stories on FB; we enable Pinterest to render the same sponsored stories idiomatically in their own Feed as well for a different revenue split)

I feel like I've become a bit of a broken record on this, but I'm honestly pretty skeptical about case A representing a material revenue stream. It's not clear to me how much incremental value our data provides to developers (especially in a world where the Address Book replaces friends.get), and I am not convinced that there are enough developers who have a high enough LTV such that percentage of (LTV * the delta in number of user signups due to FB integration) would be substantial. Premium APIs like coefficient are even harder to value and thus even less likely to represent a significant stream.

It doesn't seem like we're focusing at all on B, which while definitely a bit more complex in that it is a three-party arrangement (FB, Dev, Advertiser) instead of two has the benefit that we're not dependent on 3rd party developers being able to independently monetize their own applications in order to have a sustainable revenue stream.

So I thought about this a bit further. I think the key issue that underlies this whole discussion is whether to not we are currently adding substantial value for developers. We debated this a bit in the context of whether or not Pinterest would have been as successful without us, but I am not sure where we wound up. Slide 2 sets up the issue and I do not think the slide needs to be changed, but in terms of leading the discussion, it is hard to imagine we will not end up focused on this point. If we are not adding value substantially, then there will not be much of a monetization opportunity and the question will be how we add more value. If we are adding value, then the discussion will be more tactical on how we reap some of the value without stifling innovation. Running into a meeting now...

Here's an attempt to make slide 3 less confusing — is this better? Sam — you'll want to tweak my language but I tried to make this more intelligible for the board who is not as close to this stuff as we are Moving Forward...

1. Baseline housekeeping:

- Introduce an annual fee for developers -- reduce spam and recover nominal costs
- Charge developers for use of API's -- increase efficiency, reduce expenses and recover nominal costs
- * Deprecate API's that are not valuable — if developers aren't willing to pay for it, we should not offer it

2. Improve value exchange for non-games part of platform:

A. Distribution

- Stop artificially "boosting" distribution for free — developers can buy sponsored stories if they want more traffic from FB
- * Open up new paid distribution channels beyond newsfeed — e.g. notifications, bookmarks, messages, invitations, etc.
- * Give developers the ability to target ads to non-connected users -- e.g. users who land on their sites/apps but don't connect, friends of connected users, etc.
- * Launch ad network on mobile (and eventually desktop) -- help developers monetize their apps and give us a way to generate incremental revenue from our platform

B. Data

- Charge developers for use of API's — beyond nominal cost recovery, introduce a fee structure that will generate material revenue
- Introduce new "premium" paid API's that would be particularly valuable to certain industries — e.g. authenticity data for banking/commerce industry
- Develop partnerships with value-added 3rd-party services to supply data in exchange for revenue-share and/or equity — e.g. fraud services

All,

Still filling in blanks for the # of apps and cost of canvas games vs. rest-of-platform (since we just changed the designation) but here are basically the three slides I would like to use with the board on Thursday. Would really love any reaction / framing — doug, dan, and I spoke today and the idea we were working off of (with great help from dan) was to frame it at a level of granularity /simplicity where the conversation with the BD would be productive.

Dan, I left Sheryl off this on the assumption that you will share with her tomorrow at your 1:1....

Subject: Re: Draft Developer Monetization Deck

Sam -

Attached is the updated and consolidated draft. Hopefully this version is a bit crisper.

We were able to make most of your suggested edits. On the API breakdown, we are not able to separate User Info from Emails. The API methods that return emails do so as part of a broader User Info method call (I.e. Email address is one of about 50 fields that are returned from the call). But otherwise we have the breakdown close to what you were looking for.

On the Email API bottoms-up, rather than focusing on the number of API calls and giving those a haircut, we took a different approach. We basically said, what if email permissions were no longer provided as part of basic info to Connect developers and they had to pay for the email addresses if they wanted them? We then sized the number of currently active Connect App-User pairs and the number of all-time app-user pairs that have installed an app. By subtracting the former from the latter, you get the number of stale users (I.e. Users that had previously installed an used an app but that are no longer using it). Then you can make assumptions about what percentage of their active users would Devs be willing to pay a fee for in order to get their email addresses and communicate with them, and what percentage of stale users would apps be willing to pay a fee to get emails so they could try to resurrect them. Once again, the percentages and fees are highly debatable, but I think the framework is more sound than our previous (kudos to Chris Miller for the idea).

For the Distribution bottoms up, we identified two key opportunities (Requests/Notifications and Bookmarks), and sized them both. The details of our sizing approach are in the appendix.

We've also integrated the tops-down analyses that Gary pulled together and you'll see those at the back of each section.

Let us know if you have additional comments.

Chad

Thanks Chris.

Sam – Chris raises some points that I'd like to get your perspective on.

First, you'd mentioned in one of our discussions that you had the meta-framing of this in your head already and just hadn't put it into slides yet. Is that something you were planning to do in advance of Monday? Or did you want us to frame that up in a slide using Chris' model below of moving from "data for distribution" to "data for $" and/or "$ for distribution"? Not sure how much slide narrative you're planning to add to the deck we've been working on.

Second, how do you want to show (or not show) the 4 different potential opportunities of 1) Charging Devs for Access, 2) Charging for Data (API), 3) Charging for Distribution, and 4) Marketplace. In your comments this morning you wanted to keep the Access piece and remove the marketplace piece. Below, Chris suggests the opposite (keeping marketplace and removing access). Let us know what your preference is here.

Thanks,
Chad

Subject: Re: Draft Developer Monetization Deck

If this is going to the BOD, I feel like we're missing the fundamental story of why the incentives are misaligned today. Today the fundamental trade is "data for distribution" whereas we want to change it to either "data for $" and/or "$ for distribution." Essentially, we're looking to put a $ amount on data and a $ amount on distribution so that there is a way for those who value their data > than distribution or < distribution to get a fair deal.

I like slide 3, but in this world the first row (charging developers for access) becomes somewhat orthogonal, which I think it should be, and the size of the marketplace which is just $ flowing in/out (for distribution/data respectively) becomes the goal...which I think it should be per Sam's point the other day.

My suggestion would then be that Slide 2 is great, Slide 3 we lose the first row and insert columns for tops-down and bottoms-up opportunity sizes against read, write and marketplace. The rest of the slides become backup.

I'd then add a bit more work/thinking on 1) what competitive advantage we have to being a data marketplace. Is it Identity? Distribution (consumer or developer)? Time to market (e.g. We think this is inevitable, so we might as well be first to do it...I don't like this reason)? Other?; and 2) how we'll set this up for great execution...which leads to pricing/auction/etc, etc. If I were on the board, I think these two questions are where I'd want to spend my time.

Guys, Just flipping through these now— a lot of great stuff in here... and a bunch of questions :) - below — I feel like a story is shaping up here...

On the Market Sizings:

- Web identity & consumer information... I think we should probably just drop the 'security' segment here... the consumer info makes sense as a comp, but the security stuff feels more like software than data :)... Also, how do we think about companies like catalinamarketing.com? They seem like the primary example of a consumer information company to model after...

- On consumer market research and interactive marketing... again, the interactive media seems like something we should strip out.

- Mobile & Online marketing bit / distribution makes sense

On the platform bottoms up:

- Slide 2
 - good upfront framing
 - for simplicity of the message, I might just not even break out games vs. non-games...
 - Are there any other ways in which FB connected apps drive revenue for us in other non-obvious ways we should include here... e.g. Obviously the volume of sponsored OG content is very low, but is it zero? I would like this to be as inclusive as possible
- Slide 3

- One benefit for 'annual fee for access' is creating a 'screen' for serious developers
 - I would drop the 'marketplace' component here... it is big / actually the real goal here, but we are not going to discuss it much in the deck
- Slide 5
 - Powerful slide ... small stylistic point, I would just do 100-1K, 1K-10K, 10K –100K, 100K+ (since the bars at the top are just too small to see anyway)
- Slide 7
 - At this point, I actually get kind of confused looking at 'api usage' overall... I really think from this point on in the deck we want to be splitting everything by 'reads' vs. 'writes' at a top level cut, and then 'canvas' vs. 'non-canvas' -- so, when I see 'API calls have increased', is that because with OG people are just writing a ton more content, what is going on with reads, etc.? I would drop this slide, or ideally split it by reads and writes
- Slide 8
 - Same Thing — I think we need to split this by reads and writes for it to be meaningful...
- Slide 9
 - This 'reads vs. writes' picture starts to be pretty useful here... but it would be great to bucket this a bit differently... I would be interested to see how close we can get it to the following buckets
 - Reads
 - User Data
 - Basic info (Profile Photo, Name)
 - Email
 - Other
 - User Photos
 - Stream
 - Writes
 - Stream.publish
 - Wall Posts
 - OG
- Slide 10
 - Can you add two 'average' bars to this (one per app, and one per DAU?)
 - This slide is somewhat low-pri in my mind, but still interesting to wrap your head around
- Slide 12
 - This is so hard to approximate... I actually don't think the reduction in call volume is actually the thing that it is most important... do we have any other ideas on how to approximate this?
- Slide 15
 - Cool...
 - Can we just bucket canvas and non-canvas
 - In the non-canvas, is there any way to look at referrals to FB apps (which use connect) vs. just random websites / etc.? Or at a minimum perhaps bucket 'share' traffic separately
- Slide 16
 - What is 'web outbound' and 'mobile outbound'? Those don't seem like distribution channels but intend endpoints?
- Slide 17 —
 - so what is the revenue opportunity here in $?
 - Do we think that people are willing to pay $0.28 all day long?
 - What is the value of the fact that by targeting via ads they are getting ads clickers?

Subject: Draft Developer Monetization Deck

Sam / Chris -

Attached is a first draft of the Dev Monetization Deck. Note that this only includes the pieces that my team has been working on. Gary is following up w/ the top-down sizing piece and we can figure out how best to slot that in. A few notes:

- I tried to set up the flow of the deck to tell a story. Basically, "1) Most of our Developer Monetization today comes from Canvas Games, 2) The Canvas Games Ecosystem is flat to declining, 3) There are 4 different alternatives to generate new revenue streams from our Platform Developers, and 4) Description/sizing of each of those 4 areas"
- The areas that esp. need attention and discussion from us are the sizing estimates. Realistically, we can make these numbers as big or as small as we want by varying the assumptions.
- API Monetization: We started by trying to size the Email API based on current User API usage. We limited just to Connect App (no Canvas) and then cut the number of calls that we could conceivably monetize pretty dramatically. Then we applied a range of potential values per email address. Definitely review the assumptions and let's discuss what changes to make. We didn't attempt to size the other existing API's, but could do so as a ratio relative to our email API estimate. The other piece of API monetization would be for new APIs that don't exist today. That feels hard to do from a bottoms up (unless we model relative to the existing API monetization). Otherwise, feels like the Tops-Down might be good to insert here.
- Distribution Monetization: We broke this into two sections to start. First is the Request and Notifications monetization. There's a potential opportunity to monetize that channel to existing Canvas developers as well as to open it up to Mobile and Connect applications. The second area is Bookmarks. Since we wouldn't likely add bookmarks that led off of FB, we're assuming this is a Canvas opportunity for Devs to boost their BM placement by paying for it.

- Marketplace monetization: Will come from Tops down by Gary/Chris

Take a look and let us know your thoughts/comments.

Thanks,
Chad

I am on vacation this week (still), but happy to help.

That said, in wonder if you should just take the pen on the deck moving forward so I can have a day off and not be the bottle neck?

I can send you what I have so far in an hour when I get back to a computer.

1. Sorry I wasn't clearer about my plans / being out. That is my bad guys / didn't mean to leave this hanging (obviously super important)
2. Doug, really glad you are framing this up / working on this ...
3. Here are my notes on where things are from Friday, I think a lot of it is covered below but I just want to make sure we are in sync here, are presenting all the hard questions for this offsite

(A) How the platform / our APIs would work if we could start over / the base rules for all businesses using Facebook.

- There are two basic sides to platform that function differently
 - There is a 'write' side, whereby businesses can get permission to write to the graph on behalf of users
 - There is a 'read' side, whereby businesses can get permission to read from the graph on behalf of users
- On the 'write' side:
 - The value proposition: you can write to our system both messages 'on behalf' of users (think explicit posts and timeline boxes), and messages on your own behalf (think page posts), to drive growth and re-engagement. We give you a natural amount of distribution for free / to make our user experience best, and we charge for everything else.
 - Applications can write whatever they want to the graph on behalf of users (with the user's permission in most cases)
 - Distribution
 - All content written by applications gets the natural amount of newsfeed distribution based on the NF algorithms for maximizing engagement & user happiness
 - Any / All applications can pay to up-rank themselves in feed if they want more traffic

- Any / All applications can pay to get into premium channels (invites, inbox, etc)
 - Information
 - If you write structured data about a user in a way that other businesses want to use for targeting we will pay you (mechanism TBD) and you can set certain limitations on how the data can be used / by what parties.
- On the 'read' side:
 - The value proposition: you can read from our system. Users can always give you the information they have given us directly in order to help you customize your service / provide better service. We, Facebook, have more information based on our own derivation, as well as aggregate information about the connections/relationships of a user which we will give you if your service meets certain requirements and you are willing to pay us.
 - Applications can use Facebook for 'login' to allow users of their application to not need to remember another password, etc.
 - User-Data
 - Applications can request a user give them 'their data' in order to provide the user with a more custom experience (NB: the 'user's data' is explicitly the data which the user has entered themselves into Facebook - e.g. Name, profile photo, hometown, etc.- It is not tagged content, etc.). This effectively resolves to an improved 'registration plugin'
 - Applications cannot request users give them 'contact information' including UID, email, phone; however, we do need to allow applications some way of reaching their users in a stable manner using Facebook (e.g. At a minimum spam folder in inbox, or a proxy email, or something)
 - Applications cannot request users give them 'friends' of the user (which isn't purely the user's data because it requires confirmation, etc.) ; however, (1) we allow a given app to get 'friends of this user who are also using this application' and (2) we do provide a paid 'invite' channel whereby applications can ask a user to invite more of their relationships to the application.
 - Applications cannot request information about a user's 'friends' at all, nor can they request feed, etc.
 - Our Data
 - Facebook has information about users which can be helpful to applications, and which we provide to applications when we deem appropriate, this information includes:
 - Aggregate data about the tastes, properties, etc. of a user's friends (things this user's friends like, places they live, etc.)
 - Derived data about a user / facebook's data/opinion of a user (probable location, account trust score, account age, etc.)
 - (Data provided by third parties — information which third parties have contributed to the graph on behalf of a user)
 - We allow a limited number of calls for free to Any / All applications for this data (and always free calls for the admins of the app)

- We charge everyone on a per-call basis for this information. We have a standard rate card, but require a deal and price based on understanding of / commitment of app re: use
- We do not allow things which are at all competitive to 'buy' this data from us
- Mechanics:
 - From a mechanics perspective, the APIs function much as they do today; however, if we could start over / the way platform would ideally work, we never give applications UIDs, we only give out APP-specific hashed IDs. While more complicated, this provides a significant technical hurdle for applications trying to 'suck out' the graph and makes sure that apps using our platform are committed to our distribution channels.

(B) Extending the platform to make it more valuable for engagement by anonymous writes and targeting. The question here is what is the full opportunity / how big a deal or valuable is it for these functions to exist.

- By default / in our base case applications can only write data 'on behalf' of users, or on their own behalf, but they can't write data 'about' users without the user's express consent via GDP, etc.
- In an 'extended' world, we would do the following:
 - Allow applications to 'target' on Facebook any user that has interacted with them in a broader set of ways (visited page, opened photo, seen post in feed, etc.) -- not underway
 - Allow applications to pass us a email address and get back a hashed-ID for a user which they can then use to communicate with / advertise to / message user -- underway in basic form
 - Allow applications to drop pixels on anything they want on the web / etc. which fire back open graph edges against the hashed-ID (visited page, took action, etc.) which the app can set as 'only me' (aka, completely private to the application) or 'me + user' (which includes the user in the privacy of the post) -- not underway
 - Allow applications to write any other data they want directly in against a user's hashed-ID for their own targeting use AND which they can allow other businesses to target against given certain terms / black list & rev-share, etc. -- not underway

(C) How to properly 'sell' information so that we are happy with the results of doing this net of the cost of change.

- How much can we make short and long-term selling data
- What is the developer thrash / cost of moving from free to paid for new or existing APIs
- We know we can't efficiently price it... how do we price it at all, etc.

Doug - as context, we're having an mteam offsite on Tue + Wed of next week to talk about three-year-plan stuff, and one of the discussions we're going to have is around the Open Graph business model.

Sam is at burning man (not sure when he gets back), and we left it a little ambiguous about who was pulling together what, so I'd like to at least get started pulling together a deck that we can use to frame the conversation. Can you ask the PMs to pull together a few slides?

Ideally, I think we want to cover:

Read APIs:

- What read APIs are free*, and cost-recovery charging for free APIs
- Premium read APIs
- Rules around using read APIs

Write APIs:

- Free write APIs (specifically, the Open Graph APIs)
- Premium distribution APIs
- Monetizing this data (sponsored stories, contextual ads on FB, contextual ads off FB)

Developer Rules:

- Anyone can build for free, have to pay a developer fee to launch
- Goes through app review process, we review Facebook integration (edges it publishes) and app assets, goes into app center
- We re-charge yearly, re-review periodically

CRM / Data Exchange Scenarios:

- "Anonymous" write APIs - the CRM/data broker scenario that Sam is passionate about
- Monetizing this data

Not sure of the best framing (and I'm a little feverish right now), but it would be good to at least start pulling this together. Sam + I spent a couple of hours talking about this on Friday evening, and he had a framework for the read API stuff and the CRM stuff he was going to write-up. Otherwise, I think you/PMs have most/all the context.

For the read stuff, I think the basic framing was:

- We move all IDs from UIDs to per-app/hashed IDs in the system
- You can always bring your data to an app (your statuses, your photos, your events, etc.)

- You can bring your friends that are also using the app to the app; ideally you can't bring non-app-user-friends to the app (you have to go through us to invite them)
- We get rid of the ability for you to take your friends' data to an app
- We have a set of premium APIs like coefficient, SI, etc. where you can pay us per-user to get this data. We set the price.
- The CRM stuff I think is the idea that others can also write this data into the system and attach a charge for other people to use this data.

I think Sam is probably the right person to write-up the CRM stuff, but the rest I think the PMs have the context on.

For my other points... yes, on the same page.

- Vernal and I are spending some time today and then the Monday after thanksgiving (with doug) going over the general plan for platform in 2013 / preparing for end of H2/ beginning of H1 reviews. Why don't you let us do these meetings to prep, and then we can have the conversation about rationalizing platform in that context
- For enforcement... I will reach out to Javi and probably Dan Rose to start that conversation

Regarding my concerns on the broader points / how we are approaching platform... As you note, I am fine with giving away 'friends who are also using an app' ... I don't think we need to charge for it specifically. So functionally, when / as you are talking about giving away basic info + friends also using app, doing IP when clicks come inbound to an app via ads, and allowing apps to ask for extended user permission for free I think feels all right / is good.

Maybe I missed the point, but the thing I was negatively reacting to is that I do think we need to explicitly change our tune / framing around platform in general (and especially around our incentives / interest in 'giving out' data to other developers). I want to turn off APIs that don't fit into the category of 'basic info' for registration, or 'extended user info' which the user himself/herself has entered — and not have a general mandate around giving developers data in the name of increasing engagement on Facebook.com (which I think is tenuous at best)

I'm not sure I understand your concerns. Didn't you suggest that giving away app friends with no charge was reasonable before? Did something else change in my proposal?

For your other points:

- New APIs we offer will primarily be premium ones. I don't think we'll want to add lots of more free APIs to the package, but over time we can figure out what additional premium services to add.

- I agree platform is over staffed and stretched too thin. That's partially why I said that even though I thought we should do a few things in the future, we probably shouldn't do them now. We need to figure out a way to make platform a rational size in general though. This is probably a good conversation for me, you and Vernal to have and I'd be happy to initiate it. I'd also be interested in hearing your thoughts first.

- For enforcement, I agree we need a real framework and process here. The goal should be to be minimally intrusive / annoying while still enforcing. My sense is that our biggest issue is in clearly defining what we want and don't want, rather than catching apps soon sketchy things. It's not that the latter isn't a problem, but the former seems like where we have the most progress to make. I think you, Javi, etc should work to define a proposal here that is as simple as we can get away with while still achieving the goals.

If you think this is the right approach I will absolutely play ball / help get it done... I think it is theoretically / will ultimately prove to be a mistake to give away the 'read' side on the hope that it will ultimately drive value to us via the 'write' side — however, in a world where we are tightly enforcing 'full' reciprocity, and we control what APIs we choose to release, I see little deep risk to continuing down the path from competitors.

The two things I do want to talk about out of this become much more tactical / organizational than theoretical ... (1) how do we make decisions around resourcing vs. other teams and within platform based on this (2) how do we enforce our policies beyond saying we will enforce our policies.

On the first // how we make good decisions about what APIs we build and support going forward. This model suggests that we will over time want to open up more and more information over our APIs to drive more 'engagement' for our partners ... the question is that without hard rules on this or a direct way to measure profit being generated from it, how do we prioritize what we build & how much we resource platform vs. other things. I feel like we are already in a place where platform is working on far too many things and winning on far too few, if we do this we need to figure out another way to provide more clarity / guard-rails into what platform should be working on.

On the second // process around how we enforce our policies / make sure people are not constructing CRMs of our users using our data, matching it to other sources, competing with us, etc. It is well and good to say that we should be more dramatic in our enforcement, but every week I am hearing more stories of apps we didn't realize were doing XYZ, and we are just so incredibly slow to define and enforce competition. I might suggest that if we are going down this route for platform we should move towards a world where we ask developers for detailed descriptions of what they are doing up-front and pre-approve all apps — I know that sounds distasteful, (I don't much like it myself) -- but I feel like if we are being very open and trusting technically we need a deeper understanding and control of our ecosystem elsewhere

Subject: Platform Model Thoughts

After thinking about platform business model for a long time, I wanted to send out a note explaining where I'm leaning on this. This isn't final and we'll have a chance to discuss this in person before we decide this for sure, but since this is complex, I wanted to write out my thoughts. This is long, but hopefully helpful.

The quick summary is that I think we should go with full reciprocity and access to app friends for no charge. Full reciprocity means that apps are required to give any user who connects to FB a prominent option to share all of their social content within that service (ie all content that is visible to more than a few people, but excluding 1:1 or small group messages) back to Facebook. In addition to this, in the future, I also think we should develop a premium service for things like instant personalization and coefficient, but that can be separate from this next release of platform. A lot more details and context below.

First, to answer the question of what we should do, the very first question I developed an opinion on was what we should be optimizing for. There's a clear tension between platform ubiquity and charging, so it's important to first fully explore what we're trying to get out of platform.

The answer I came to is that we're trying to enable people to share everything they want, and to do it on Facebook. Sometimes the best way to enable people to share something is to have a developer build a special purpose app or network for that type of content and to make that app social by having Facebook plug into it. However, that may be good for the world but it's not good for us unless people also share back to Facebook and that content increases the value of our network. So ultimately, I think the purpose of platform -- even the read side -- is to increase sharing back into Facebook.

If we do this well, we should be able to unlock much more sharing in the world and on Facebook through a constellation of apps than we could ever build experiences for ourselves. We should be able to solve the audience problem partially by giving people different audiences in different apps and linking them all together on Facebook. The current state of the world supports that more social apps enables sharing, so the biggest challenge for us is to link them all together.

This makes it somewhat clearer that we want platform to be ubiquitous and to strongly encourage sharing back to Facebook, but it's not yet definitively clear that having full reciprocity and no charge is optimal.

For one thing, it's conceivable that we'd get more net sharing overall and more net sharing into Facebook if we didn't have a reciprocity mandate. This would be true if many developers dropped out over the reciprocity mandate. The reason I don't think they will is that almost no developers will even be giving us the majority of their data since many of their users won't log in with Facebook and many of those who do won't choose to share it back to Facebook. Assuming for a heavily FB-dependent app each of those is 50% participation, then only 25% of the data is shared to Facebook. As long as apps always have a sustainable advantage over Facebook, most will participate. For more sensitive companies like Amazon and Yelp that value their reviews a lot more, way fewer than 50% of their users will connect to Facebook, so this will represent a tiny portion of their reviews and social data. My guess is that they should still rationally want to connect with Facebook at these levels, but if they don't then that probably means they're competitive with us and we're better off not letting them integrate with us anyway. This all makes me think full reciprocity is the way to go.

For charging, the question is whether we could charge and still achieve ubiquity. Theoretically, if we could do that, it would be better to get ubiquity and get paid. My sense is there may be some price we could charge that wouldn't interfere with ubiquity, but this price wouldn't be enough to make us real money. Conversely, we could probably make real money if we were willing to sacrifice ubiquity, but that doesn't seem like the right trade here. After looking at all the numbers for a while, I'm coming around to the perspective that the write side of platform is a much bigger opportunity for us and we should focus the vast majority of our monetization effort on that and not this.

The last question is whether we should include app friends (ie the user's friends who are also using this app). Ultimately, it seems like this data is what developers want most and if we pulled this out of the package then most of the value proposition falls apart. This is especially true if we require full reciprocity without offering our most valuable data.

So that's essentially how I got to thinking we should do full reciprocity with app friends and no charge.

There's some more nuance to this opinion though:

First, in any model, I'm assuming we enforce our policies against competitors much more strongly. The good news about full reciprocity is that for bigger social companies we might otherwise be worried about, if they're enabling their users to push all of their social content back into Facebook then we're probably fine with them. However, for folks like WeChat, we need to enforce a lot sooner.

Second, if we're limiting friends to app friends, we need to make sure we build the appropriate distribution tools that developers want to invite the rest of the user's friends. We keep saying that theoretically this is part of the write side platform and it's a premium feature, and those things may be true, but I think we need to build them and make sure they're ready when we roll this out or else we're just taking away functionality without replacing it with something better. It seems like we need some way to fast app switch to the FB app to show a dialog on our side that lets you select which of your friends you want to invite to an app. We need to make sure this experience actually is possible to build and make as good as we want, especially on iOS where we're more constrained. We also need to figure out how we're going to charge for it. I want to make sure this is explicitly tied to pulling non-app friends out of friends.get.

Third, there's the data that suggests that if we share app friends only, then most apps will only get fewer than 10 friends from each person. If this is the case, then we may want to consider including coefficient ranking for those app friends for free -- or at least the top 5-10 app friends. This doesn't seem like much leakage and could encourage more people to use our tools by differentiation our product further from anything else that's out there.

Fourth, for products like Ansible and Newsstand, it will be very important to enable people to import their feeds of content from other apps into Facebook. That is, we'd be pulling those people's friends' data from those apps -- eg your friends' pins on Pinterest to make a Pinterest section for you in Newsstand or include the pin images on your Ansible lock/home. Since this is going to be an important upcoming push, we need to consider whether it's still the right thing to remove our own stream.get API if we're requiring full reciprocity. I still want to remove it, but if the spirit is full reciprocity, it may just be difficult to refuse access to the app that are pushing streams into us. The good news is that those services aren't the ones we're typically worried about, so we'd still get to prevent almost all troublesome apps from having it. The bad news is this would prevent us from really deprecating this. I haven't thought through this fully and need to think about it some more.

Fifth, not charging still means people will overuse and abuse our APIs and waste money for us, so I still think we should implement some kind of program where you have to pay if you use too many of our resources. That said, the goal of this won't be to charge for actual usage so we can build a less precise system of for monitoring than the full accounting systems we would have had to have built for the other system we discussed. What I'm assuming we'll do here is have a few basic thresholds of API usage and once you pass a threshold you either need to pay us some fixed amount to get to the next threshold or you get rate limited at the lower threshold. One basic implementation of this could be to have a few different fees for developers, with basic starting at $100 and then having levels at $10k, $1m, $10m, etc. This should be relatively simple, achieve the goal of controlling costs and make us some money if we want.

Finally, I want to discuss the premium read services for a bit.

One of the big ideas I took away from our discussions was Ed Baker's framing that every business wants growth, engagement and monetization. I like this framing because it explains what the read side of platform is -- it increases engagement, or more specifically, it takes a user and turns them into a more engaged user through adding real identity and social connections to them. This is real value and it's different from anything else we do. We have ads and some organic distribution for driving growth, the read side of platform for driving engagement and the ad network and payments for driving monetization. We'll offer the full stack of services.

How our premium read services add value is pretty clear -- through simply eliminating friction. Our free services let you get basic info, app friends and let you pay to get access to a dialog to invite more friends. Developers can always get these critical flows to perform better if they have more of the data and more control though. Through instant personalization, they can encourage a person to sign in more effectively and will therefore convert more unregistered users to ones with real identity and friends. Through coefficient and full friends list, they can upsell a person to invite their friends much more effectively throughout their app as well. I'd estimate that these two things alone would increase conversion by ~20-30% for developers. That means they should be willing to pay us roughly 20-30% of the value of each user who signs up. That's a big deal because engagement is very valuable.

I have a specific proposal for how to get started with this and it's that we should work with mobile games. The feedback we're getting from almost every other type of developer is they don't know how to value our services or really much of their engagement at all. But game developers generally track this and have a better sense. They would certainly be willing to try it out in new games and they'd be able to figure out how well it worked. Once it works for most game developers, then we can start letting other developers in as well.

Working with game developers has a few other nice properties. It means doing something nice for our game developers first and making them feel valued. It's fairly natural to offer IP on mobile since we already offer it to them on canvas. This could also be an important part of helping us transition our canvas business onto mobile if it effectively lets us take a 20-30% cut of the value of FB-connected users.

On pricing, there are a couple of ways I could see this working. First, we could charge based on the value our ads auction computes for each user. I'm still fairly confident that's the most efficient way to charge if we can't just take a straight rev share. That said, the second choice, since this is just games, is to actually figure out how to just take a straight revenue share. This might be possible in conjunction with some sort of publisher model for games that I know the team is already thinking about.

This all said, while I'd love to build this premium engagement model as quickly as possible, there's definitely more low hanging fruit on the growth/distribution side that almost all developers will be able to use if we build out correctly. So we should probably prioritize that before premium engagement.

We also need to first prioritize all the tools required to make these policies work, including making it so developers can actually share everything social in their apps back to Facebook if we're requiring them to offer that option, the premium invite channel that will replace access to non-app friends, etc.

Overall, I feel good about this direction. The purpose of platform is to tie the universe of all the social apps together so we can enable a lot more sharing and still remain the central social hub. I think this finds the right balance between ubiquity, reciprocity and profit.

Again, this isn't final but I wanted to let you all know where I'm leaning. I'm looking forward to discussing when I'm back after Thanksgiving.

SWL::::: I think we will get a ton of value from the companies using the 'free' APIs / non-partners... it is just that the value will funnel all directly through our ads/distribution platform... which is not a bad outcome at all / it is seeing platform as all about just making the distribution business more efficient and scale better against a model where there is natural pricing / a market. At the same time, I do think that we will also get a lot of value out of the partners / which I really see as a set of companies / producing a set of products which we would

SWL::::: Yes, the 'how does a company disconnect' bit is a really big one to call out in this context. RE: the concept that helping people sign up faster, ramp up faster, and remain more engaged as 'fundamentally valuable' -- my believe is that these things are valuable, but not at all infinitely valuable (actually, to the contrary, they are quite measurably valuable). We aren't the only ones that can help people signup/ramp up faster/ remain more engaged, we exist in an ever more competitive marketplace for these services. Also, the reality is that the value of a marginal customer / a customer that would 'bounce' without us is measurable and usually relatively low for all companies except for networks which are looking for initial traction.... Which begs exactly the question of long-term lockin.

Think of this from our perspective. If we had had some magic 'engagement' product we could have bought early on as a company it would have been worth a ton to us in the short term / we would have paid a lot for it for the first few million users (just as we are willing to pay a lot to get early users in new markets via search ads, etc.) -- once the flywheel is going, it is worth something to us... but honestly not very much, both because we would inevitably develop our own cheaper routes with time and money if the cost was anything but completely nominal OR because we would get to the point that the marginal user isn't economically worth that much to us (the situation we currently face)

SWL:..... I think we need to provide DLYD obviously, and you are right that some power-users do appreciate the ability to take data out in general / push it to other services.... I think this is something we can manage around. I do think it is basically zero cost to us to allow applications to write content on behalf of users, but we should just think of it as that -- which is allowing apps to fulfill a user need... re: the distribution, I don't think we should under-weight distribution from apps,
I just don't think we should over-weight it -- and I think that if the real value translation is apps publish data to Facebook because users want to publish data to Facebook, then we should do the right thing by users around creating good experiences vs. worrying about pushing 'traffic' back to apps (aka, go with snow-box type solutions for third party photos and pinterest pins rather than pushing the user out to the site.

SWL::::: I hear you... basically tho, my view is that we should only develop payments APIs if we have a reasonable belief that we are going to be able to provide better payments APIs than competitors (more cost competitive, etc.)... Same with an ad-network... valid things for us, but they have nothing/little to do structurally with being an information platform directly when presumably if all we want is the 'data' that comes off of having an ad-network, or the 'data' that comes off of having a payment platform we can get that information other ways.

SWL::::: I believe we should always charge what the market will bear to others companies in the ecosystem... but not more than what the ecosystem will bear. For payments, or an ad-network, we have competitors. Either we can produce better products in these spaces which in a head to head competition can beat other solutions on value, or we can't. IF we can, we can make money, if we can't then we will not. Same goes for our distribution business.

In the canvas case, developers basically had no other option when platform was succeeding for games. Now we compete with the mobile platforms, and while we still have a decent enough position for games to generally get away with taking real-estate on web + 45% of revenue, I also think the best developers / the best games have left, and what we really have is a set of games made by people who see a financial opportunity to hack our system for free attention... I am not proud of the fact that we are currently extolling 'game' companies that make online slot machines as positive examples of those willing to pay our fees (I am fine with it, just not proud of it)

I am totally bought into our identity business in the sense that giving apps the ability to uniquely get identifiers on all their users is a huge huge deal ... the question is only what do you do with that / how do you match it up with an economic model... and I think we need to couple the identity value + services, where our services are better because of identity (be they engagement / re-engagement, an ad-network, or payments with better built in fraud detection).... The only thing we should be careful of is making sure that we are selling things in ways developers can rationally evaluate and want.

SWL:::::: Obviously happy to (1) continue this conversation (2) not continue it if the marginal value is now too low.... One thing I intend to do next is basically wireframe out very roughly what our developer landing page / sales page, could look like under a more 'holistic' % fee scenario and under a more a-la-carte model. I think that putting some practical screens up on how things could look in mid 2013/2014 might be helpful...

Over time, users just want to have amazing experiences in the physical and virtual world enabled by social. They certainly don't want to have to 'sign in' to anything with different passwords, etc. Over time I think they will want applications to help them express themselves so that they can have more custom experiences / better experiences of the world, and I think they will eventually appreciate things like ever better targeted 'ads' as a real benefit. There will always be people hacking / playing, and every once in a while we will have a chat roulette, but the reality is that the app ecosystem has professionalized and anyone building anything of scale / import are going to act like rational consumers of services / APIs. To run businesses, what developers need from us is the following (1)

>>Stability. They need to be able to project / model forward for years at >>a time in order to get cheap capital to build, and know how to >>efficiently and effectively scale their businesses (2) Measurability.
>>They need to be able to know what their costs are going to be, and how to >>maximize their profits efficientlyŠ which means that the easier we can >>make it for them to tie together costs / revenues / and profits the >>better (3) Services which make them more efficient than their competitors >>at acquiring, re-engaging, merchandizing / creating great user >>experiences, and monetizing their users. (4) Strategic flexibility / >>option value that translates into valuation. There may be some minor >>value for developers in having fewer partners vs. using a wider range of >>services by different providers, but ultimately in a world of well formed >>APIs they will swap in-and-out providers at will to get the most >>effective systems / cheapest rates / etc.
>>Facebook (in a tad more depth and with a detour through our business >>model)
>>Our mission is to make the world more open and connectedŠ and the only >>way we can do that is with the best people and the best infrastructure -- >>which requires that we make a lot of money / be very profitable. My >>assertion is that for us to be very profitable over a long time, we have >>to be in businesses / have a business model where we get more profitable >>the bigger we are (a return on scale business)Š. Conversely, we cannot >>be in a commodity business or 'sell off' our assets in a way that >>transfers wealth from ourselves to others.
>>There have been three paths to sustainable robust margins historically.
>>(1) regulation / having a powerful monopoly like a state dictate that you >>are the only way to do something (2) proprietary expertise / knowing >>something or having the structural ability to produce goods and services >>that no one else can (the coke formula) (3) being in a business with >>natural return on scale dynamics (where you are more profitable because >>you are bigger)Š. Neither regulation nor expertise are actually good >>ways to be a non-commodity business for us. Regulation is obviously an >>unappealing course / not at all interesting, and is something I list only >>for completeness/looking at history. Expertise doesn't work when >>infrastructure is commoditizing rapidly & given the talent dynamics of >>the technology industry. Return on scale must be our bet as a companyŠ.
>>so, we need to focus on businesses where we are better / more profitable >>than everyone else because we are bigger than everyone else.
>>Currently, the thing which we provide which is not commodity / where >>there is real return on 'scale' is DISTRIBUTION at 'scale'Š the reason >>that distribution has return on scale dynamics is largely because a >>certain set of 'brand' advertisers crave it deeply, and they have very >>few options for buying it (Facebook vs. TV). Brand Advertisers crave
>>'scale' for three reasons (1) they are in businesses themselves where >>they are profitable enough that it is worth them talking to a huge number >>of people imprecisely in order to reach just a few new customers (2) They >>have developed expertise in generating an image / content where an >>initial paid marketing buy gets supplemented with word of mouth / free >>social diffusion of their message over time and space (3) They have >>developed the ability to measure / feel like they can measure the >>effectiveness of how they spend.

>>However, the problem is that most businesses (local, etc.) don't fit into >>the bucket where they can advertise on a 'brand' basis. (1) they aren't >>profitable enough to speak to many people imprecisely to just reach a few >>new customers (2) they don't have the expertise to generate the creative >>they need to get 'free distribution' multiplier (3) They can't measure >>well enough to know what to spend$. upshot, not everyone can be a brand >>advertiser, actually most people can't$. There are also several problems >>with 'brand' advertisers being our 'non-commodity' business $. (1) there >>are new ad networks / platforms / tools which chip away at the >>defensibility / non-commodityness of 'scale', (2) we are running out of >>humans (and have run-out of valuable humans from an advertiser >>perspective) (3) brand advertisers will get better, but they aren't that >>good at measuring their spend, so they have finite budgets. -- The >>upshot of which is that while being 'big' does provide us a return on >>scale currently, it isn't something which we are going to be able to more >>than 2X-4X in my mind anytime soon, and in some ways I think we will face >>increasing pressure on the value we derive from our distribution scale.

>>The second thing which we provide which is non commodity / where there >>may be return on scale is 'information' about people$ this is far less >>tried and true than the return on scale of distribution, which is well >>understood and practiced$. but as far as I can tell, it is the bet we >>need to make as a company if our ambitions are long-term and grand, and >>to me at least it feels right. For instance, if you look historically, >>it was in many ways information which actually got us 'scale' rather than >>visa versa. One of the things that puts us currently in a very >>defensible place is the relationship we have created between people using >>Facebook all the time, and us having the information we need to make >>Facebook a better product. This is the fundamental insight in something >>like coefficient. We know more about what people want to see because >>people look at more stuff on our platform$. In this respect, while there >>are other ways to get close, it feels viscerally correct that there is an >>ROS dynamic at play$ the more people that use the system, the more >>information we have on how to make more people use the system$.

>>The challenge comes in not when we use the scale of our own information >>to drive our own business platform, but when we try to leverage the >>information with other parties to the system / businesses $ which we >>want to do on the premise that we practically cannot build everything >>that can benefit from 'social' / the information we have for a hole host >>of reasons. The first part of the challenge is that packaging >>information alone is not valuable, rather, the value of information at >>scale must be expressed indirectly / through other vehicles. The second >>part of the challenge is that because information is infinitely copyable, >>it is hard to 'sell' without giving others 'scale', and since the value >>of scale is always relative / not absolute$ so the risk becomes that by >>monetizing your value you also destroy your value (because generally >>people only need by information once, and two entities with the same >>information will race to the bottom on the price of re-selling that >>information since there is no cost of goods sold).

>>With these challenges in mind, there are two clear channels via which to >>monetize information (1) Advertising / engagement & re-engagement

>>(Information makes distribution more efficient / effectively ads a >>multiplier to our first return on scale business) (2) Merchandizing / >>customization (Information allows companies / people to do better things >>for their customers, on top of which they can scale revenue and >>profitability NB: things like risk assessment fit in here).

>>Mixing information with distribution to create value you can measure is >>relatively straight forward. You simply allow ways of targeting messages >>extremely narrowly / leveraging everything known about any person. This >>effectively makes advertising more efficient / contextual. The >>efficiency gains in the system create more margin for us to take. The >>best part about this is that the market should 'price' the information >>efficiently over time. You do still risk 'leaking' information via >>clicks on ads, etc; however, this is a very slow leak, and can be mostly >>dealt with via policies / limiting the use of data to the party that ran >>the ad.

>>Converting information into better 'merchandizing' means giving a third >>party the data to use as they see fit. There should be a bunch of value >>here, but there are also a lot of issues. Specifically, unlike the >>distribution market where there is a real / natural scarcity and everyone >>competes in one finite marketplace (ultimately bracketed by the 24 hours >>in the day), the value to a developer of being able to provide better

>>'services' is extremely conditional on who the business is / what they >>do. It varies widely from industry to industry and company to company >>and can change dramatically based on exactly what information exists / >>is exposed to them via the system.

>>Upshot. The number one threat to Facebook is not another scaled social >>network, it is the fracturing of information / death by a thousand small >>vertical apps which are loosely integrated together. This will either >>happen because there is fundamentally no 'return' on the centralization >>of information / the graph OR it will happen because we sell off the >>graph piecemeal for less than it is worth and in the process destroy >>efficiency and value.

>>When User/Developer/FB incentives meet / come into tension.

>>Where I come out is that there are (1) parts of platform where we benefit >>from everyone interfacing with us, like apps publishing for users and >>apps having Facebook IDs for their users. We don't want to tax those >>actions directly / we just want them broadly and widely adopted because >>they drive value for our users and for us in the form of services you >>enable on top of them. That said, we also don't want to orthogonally >>subsidize them. If users don't want apps to publish for them / we can't >>create a compelling enough experience, then we should fix that rather >>than subsidizing / incentivizing with orthogonal value to developers.

>>(2) There are other parts of the platform that we currently provide which >>have some value, but the value is not very deep or meaningful (basic >>info)Š we hypothetically could charge for those parts of the platform, >>but it wouldn't be enough money to matter at this point -- it is too easy >>for applications to get it elsewhere (3) Finally, there is what I hope >>can become / will be the deep value of Facebook (something like >>coefficient)Š the problem is that where the deep value is we don't want >>to under-price the value, or over price what an app is willing to pay -- >>and that forces us to basically just give a taste and then be ready to >>negotiate dealsŠ. going line by line --

>>Applications should be allowed write to the graph freelyŠ.

>>- Currently rational applications / the free market of apps currently >>write to Facebook primarily because we give them 'free' distribution >>(engagement and re-engagement), and they do so in a way which maximizes >>the free resource we give them over user value / demand right up to the >>line where a user would 'un-install' the app / not give them the right to >>publish on their behalf. While that makes logical sense as a game plan >>for them, what we want to be the case (and is the case for some of our >>favorite apps like Instagram) is that they write to the Facebook graph in >>order to provide user value / because users demand it to express >>themselves. We are still pretty far away from being in a place where the >>app writes to the data for the publishing user, and where we show that >>content on the publishing user's timeline, and to people in feed as a >>user value, but the only way that a free and open publishing channel >>works is when it is moderated by invested users and both sides of the >>equation are factoring for their benefit. -- UPSHOT / uncontroversial ;
>>we don't want to limit the ability for apps to write on behalf of users >>openly and freely, but we need to keep investing to make sure that users >>are moderating it / want the apps to do itŠ apps also should obviously be >>able to write on their own behalf (as a page, CRM data, etc) at willŠ and >>if the data they are writing on behalf of users and or their own behalf >>helps them target ads better / acquire or re-engage users more >>efficiently, that is good / healthy for the whole system.

>>Applications should be allowed to use 'Facebook login' freely & have >>many avenues to getting user's IDs

>>- Applications currently use Facebook connect by-in-large in order to (1) >>get the 'friend' graph that enables their service to be compelling, (2) >>get the publication rights that resolve to free distribution for them (3) >>sometimes for the minor benefit of speeding signup* (though in reality FB >>converts worse than non-FB signup in many cases now) (4) sometimes for >>the minor benefit of providing easier login for users, (5) in a very few >>cases for specific access to a specific type of Facebook data (photos, >>etc.)Š what they don't do in general is implement Facebook login in >>order to get user's UIDs and thereby better engage/re-engage them, >>advertise more effectively, and/or in order to use things like a connect >>payments solution or get higher CPMs/CPCs on a future tense advertising >>network. The trade we should be pushing on / trying to establish with >>companies is not that Facebook login is in-and-of-itself good, but that >>by doing it we end up providing you as a company easy to understand, and >>easy to value benefits either on the cost side or the revenue side of >>your business. --- UPSHOT: Right now I believe that if you asked an application to implement Facebook connect but didn't give them the friend graph, publication rights in the same dialog, etc. people would have no reason for implementing it at all. There is no direct value for implementing FB connect. I think that as we add / if we add good services on top of FB connect / having users logged in like payments/ad network (which monetize on their own obviously) and better paid acquisition channels (which are easy to create a marketplace around and are easy for apps to measure / evaluate, then we have businesses in those areas, and we will want FB connect distributed as widely as possible / we will not want to charge for it.

>>Applications should be allowed to read basic information freely

>>- Applications currently get a bunch of 'basic information' and users are not confronted with exactly what they are giving to apps. We give out a lot of things under 'basic information', some of which really weaken our competitive position like 'email addresses' by opening up a non-facebook channel for applications to reach out to users. This has troubled me greatly; however, I have come to terms with the fact that for friends already using the app, we simply can't remove what we have already promised and enabling the function provides a ton of user value / value for the world while still making the app go back through our platform for real new-user acquisition. For things like email, name, profile photo, etcŠ making these signup elements slightly easier for an app certainly erases some cost / makes the app more valuable, but we really aren't in competitive landscape where these things have meaningful value / where we could charge a lot for them. First, a user will just give them to the app if the app is good. Second, tons of other people like apple can now give out the same information. --- UPSHOT, we should give this information away because it has become worthless to us and allowing users to give away their own basic info provides value to them.

>>Applications should be allowed to read/use non-'basic' Information & functions with some key caveats

>>- A scant few applications currently really use any of the APIs we offer beyond the basic information APIs. Most of the companies that use these APIs (message send, photos export, feed.get, etc.) exist in a competitive grey zoneŠ generally speaking though, there isn't currently all that much more you can do with our platform (though we have contemplated a lot of things that would add a lot of value to other partners). This is the category where I would put all my eggs in terms of building a dataset which has real return-on-scale dynamics / our actual information monetization schemeŠ As we build up value in this type of data we should certainly / will certainly feed it into the market-mediated ads system. That should easily create more value for all if enabled widelyŠ the question is who do we give the actual data out to and on what terms. Here we face an issueŠ which is that the same data is just worth massively different amounts to different players. If we price it too high apps will not consume it, if we price it too low we are giving away one of our only scaleable profit centers. If we give it to competitors we are sewing the seeds of our own destructionŠ and if we give it out on any general model we are going to lose the ability to effectively >>negotiate with people where we really want a piece of the action / a >>tight business. -- UPSHOT, we should sell this, but I just don't see >>any way we can sell it on standard terms.

>>Some select objections and responsesŠ.
>>A few things that I don't like about this proposal but I have come to >>terms withŠ.
>>We should monetize more of the 'read' side of FacebookŠ like basic info, >>or connect, etc.
>>The problem is that the basic platform just isn't worth that much outside >>of perhaps 'friends also using this app' which with the apple deal is >>rapidly on its way to commoditization as wellŠ AND every calculation we >>have seen shows either that we can't make enough money from the current >>version of platform for it to matter to us / even with generous >>assumptions over a fairly long time OR it seems prohibitively expensive / >>not worth it to our developers (with the exception of people that make so >>much money they wouldn't notice).
>>
>>BD deals / any structure that relies on them crushes innovationŠ.
>>This is generally true, BD sucksŠ entrepreneurs don't want to talk to >>people or wait days to get something they need. That said, this proposal >>is basically that the core of the APIs where there is rational value >>exchange, etc. is open and freeŠ and I would argue that the people that >>will want to use our higher end APIs are going to be more sophisticated >>people anyway / at least for a long time. We should invest to make this >>as painless as possible, have a 1 hour turnaround time, etcŠ. but I just >>keep coming back to the fact that I actually really want to / think we >>need to talk to every person who wants to leverage our higher-end data.
>>Not having transparent pricing will make people wary to invest in the >>platformŠ
>>TrueŠ again though, it is a specific part of platform which I am saying >>we require BD for, not the whole thing.
>>We suck at picking winners / BD will force us in that direction and as a >>result we will miss big opportunities
>>Probably true, but again, better than the alternative. and the APIs that >>are 'free' under this model really should be enough for all but the most >>sophisticated businesses to get up and running.

UNREDACTED VERSION OF DOCUMENT SOUGHT TO BE LODGED UNDER SEAL

OG as a business

8/2012

The core value exchange of Open Graph is centered on distribution and data...

	Value to Developers	Value to Users	Value to Facebook
Distribution Apps 'write' to facebook	-Users & Traffic (acquisition & re-engagement)	-Self expression within facebook	-User engagement - 'Boostable' content which drives spend - Targetable data which drives spend
Data Apps 'read' from facebook	- Personalization & inviting friends - Option value / monetization in the future	- Better user experiences in apps	- Presence across the web - Data Portability

We face a series of issues with the value model...

Distribution

Apps 'write' to facebook

- User engagement in many cases (not all) negative & without objective function we thrash developers on distribution
- Developers are not advertising / boosting
- Data so far not useful for targeting & face conflict with developers over 'value' of their data

Data

Apps 'read' from facebook

- We are enabling competitors / do not have rules that make us truly comfortable with path, pinterest, etc.
- Currently unclear value to Facebook
- No natural market dynamics, hard to correctly price
- Undermining user trust when developers have more data than they need

OG lacks a clear value exchange and currently drives
<$10M in revenue

The Current Opportunity Matrix:

		E		D		$		Note & Risks
Area	Product	Now	Need	Now	Need	2013	18RR
Access	Annual Developer Fee	0	5	0	1	$5	$7	Eng is mostly for support & QA. We are all agreed this is good housekeeping but not a big business.
Access	Device Integration Partners	0	3	0	0	$2	$2	Eng is mostly for support & QA. This could be an issue with integration partners / reverse of thinking.
Read	API usage fees on current	0	4	0	1	$7	$9	Majority of value at the high end / could be higher if we charge big developers more. Good housekeeping.
Read	Premium read APIs (coefficient, SI, u-to-u)	1	9	0	1	$3	$140	18-mo run-rate mostly top down with market share assumption, high risk
Write	Invitations Channel (mobile)	1	3	0	<1	$14	$28	60m outbound invite clicks -> 6m installs / mo. Assumes ~$1 / install + lift.
Write	Notifications / Paid Messaging	0	3	0	<1	$15	$30	Re-engagement charged per-click at 0.25% of install.... Competing with push notifications. Tightly tied to other paid messaging.
Write	'Apps you may like' (Neko)	3	7	0	1	$200	$260+	Based on market share analysis. Relatively high confidence in the opportunity.
Write	App Sponsored Stories	0	4	0	1	$ -	$ -	Overlaps with ads / general sponsored stories storyline. There is an opportunity with developers of TBD size.
Write	Placement in App Center	0	1	<1	<1	$18	$18	No meaningful mobile traffic / tiny opportunity now. On web is canvas focused / legacy business so no growth.
Write	Sponsored Search Results	0	0	0	0	$30	$30	Mobile outbound from search is tiny currently... Making this opportunity small in next 18 mo.
Write	Contextual Ads on FB (amazon-pinterest case)	0	10	0	2	$40	$90	Potential serious issues with partners in terms of use of / direct monetization of their data. Also user concerns. Inventory is a problem.
Write	Contextual Ads on 3 rd Party Sites (ad-network is a pre-requisite)	0	10	0	1	$4	$7	We keep a far smaller amount of the revenue here which is an issue when we have excess inventory. Also won't scale until inventory-constrained on FB.
CRM	Ad-Targeting based on own data	X	X	X	X	$-	$-	Heavy overlap with Ads team... this is a minor functional extension if we decide to build a real CRM product
CRM	Third-party data exchange	X	X	X	X	$-	$-	Heavy overlap with Ads team... not suggested until we have established

Access / Facebook Developer Program

- Program
 - Development is free (so is social plugin use)
 - Apps must be reviewed and pay a fee to go “live” to users
 - The fee covers the calendar year, re-charge on Jan. 1
 - We provide a small number of official support incidents (devsupport@)
 - Additional support can be purchased
- Benefits
 - Eliminates a class of spam/fraud apps on Platform
 - Deterministic support channel that lasts after launch
 - Sets the “paid” bit with developers
- Revenue
 - ~$5-7M

Access / Device Integration Program

- Program
 - 16+ partners that create FB experiences on devices
 - Provides paid, dedicated support for these partners
 - Provides testing to ensure that we don't break them
 - We will restrict some APIs (like stream.get) to these partners
- Revenue
 - ~$2M

Basic Read APIs

- After the developer has paid, they can request access to:
 - A user's data (basic info, photos, etc.)
 - A user's friend data, if the friend already uses the app
 - No other friend data is available (no friends.get) – discussion topic
 - Potentially for extra fees allow custom GDP to help conversion
- Once granted, we charge a cost recovery fee for data access to these APIs
 - CPU time: $.00007/s or $0.25/h
- Revenue
 - ~$7-9M

Premium Read APIs

- Provides our 'derivative' user data to apps
- Current service explorations underway
 - User Trust Service: A trust score for a given user
 - Recommendation Service: What OG objects a user may like (music, books, etc.)
 - Co-efficient Service: How strong the relationship is between two users
- Revenue
 - ramping to order of ~$140M

Write (A series of opportunities overlapping with Ads)

- Program
 - All apps can write OG and stream.publish, etc. to user's timelines for free
 - Apps get rational distribution in feed - no boosting/inflation
 - This implies throttling back from where we are in many places today
 - Apps can pay for distribution via a variety of channels
 - Invitation Channel (14M/28M)
 - Notifications / Paid Messaging (15M/30M)
 - Apps you may like (Neko) (200M/260M)
 - Sponsored Stories (-M/-M)
 - Placement in App Center (18M/18M)
 - Sponsored Search Results (30M/30M)
 - Ideally apps bid on install value and reengagement value, and we optimize across these channels
- Revenue
 - ~$300-400M, primarily driven by Neko, overlapping with ads

Become a Marketplace

- Current OG Sponsored Story Problem
 - Our best developers can generate good OG actions, but don't have money to spend on ads
 - Our best advertisers have a lot of money to spend, but can't generate OG actions
 - Many early developers have a product, but lack a business model / revenue
- Solution
 - Enable advertisers to attach sponsored actions to OG content
 - Mike reads a book on Goodreads. – Buy on Amazon
 - Sam rated a movie on Rotten Tomatoes. – Watch on Netflix
 - Sponsoring boosts story and attaches a prominent UI action link
 - Rev-share with developer to align incentives and provide revenue
- Longer Term...
 - When we become inventory constrained, enable developers to have sponsored stories / action links on their site, too.

These opportunities basically boil down to...

Basic Fees

- A fee for launching applications will not generate meaningful revenue, but it will help us focus, give support, and cut down on spam / bad app interactions

Distribution

Apps 'write' to facebook

- Stop artificially 'boosting' distribution for free: developers can buy sponsored stories if they want to drive traffic, but should be on equal footing with other businesses
- Open up new stable paid distribution channels beyond newsfeed e.g. invitations, notifications, messages
- Give developers the ability to target non-connected users via various existing channels (email import, RTB, etc.), and beyond
- Launch ad-network on mobile (and eventually desktop) to help applications monetize their apps / give us a way to get more value from platform

Data

Apps 'read' from facebook

- Charge developers for use of APIs (on a cost-recovery+ pricing model), starting with a graduated pay scale charging larger developers more
- Introduce new 'premium' paid APIs that are particularly valuable to certain industries (e.g. authenticity data) & develop partnerships / rev-share for value-added third parties
- Require data reciprocity as a principle and a policy; for top partners / competitors require a deal where we can let users import their data in return for read API access

Marketplace

- Monetize partner data + give them a cut of the value.

To make our channels effective and clarify our value proposition, we should consider certain other changes vs. cost of 'developer thrash'

Stop giving out 'contact information'

- We have no interest / incentive in apps having the email, phone of users. Taking this away makes our ability to proxy communication to users more valuable.

Shift away from UID-based APIs

- Identity is our main point of value. By giving out universal identifiers for things in the graph, we make it easy for others to both remove / recombine parts of the graph AND withhold information from the graph / trade it outside of our market.

Modify friends.get & move away from non-registration data

- Developers use friends.get to grow their apps, while we simultaneously attempt to sell the same / compete with ourselves. Apps should be able to (1) target all of the friends of a user on FB (2) get the friends of a user also using their app
- More broadly, we should deprecate users taking the data of others to apps & be selling services to help applications efficiently divine the likes and interests of a user based on those of friends, etc. rather than encouraging crawling and sucking in the graph

Over time, we should also consider anonymous writes & targeting options to extend the value of platform...

- By default / in our base case applications can only write data 'on behalf' of users, or on their own behalf, but they can't write data 'about' users without the user's express consent via GDP, etc.
- We would do the following (some of which are underway across the org):
 - On-Site Targeting: Allow applications to 'target' on Facebook any user that has interacted with them in a broader set of ways (visited page, opened photo, seen post in feed, etc.)
 - Email Matching: Allow applications to pass us an email address and get back a hashed-ID for a user which they can then use to communicate with / advertise to / message user
 - More Robust 'Conversion' Tracking: Allow applications to drop pixels on anything they want on the web / etc. which fire back open graph edges against the hashed-ID (visited page, took action, etc.)
 - Data-Exchange / CRM : Allow applications to write any other data they want directly in against any user's hashed-ID without GDP for their own targeting use that of others (with a rev-share)

These are hard to size for developers, and have other issues, unclear if we should pursue now or in the future

Subject: FBX discussion

Hey all

After our discussion on Tuesday, Sobel, Rabkin, Cathcart and I circled up to share our thoughts on FBX and I think we made some pretty good progress towards a decision framework. This is high level by design; it is easy to get caught up in the many details of these complex system. As much as possible I'd like any ensuing discussion to follow suit.

Fundamentally, we think the heart of the gamble revolves around how much Facebook believes it can shape the marketplace within which it operates. We have two options: Go For Broke, or Take The Money. I will detail those later.

We have a few advantages (in order):

- 1/ Inventory advantage. We possess a lot of inventory that we believe is very effective across every platform. This advantage is relatively unassailable barring product disasters.
- 2/ Data advantage. Our advantage with identity is strong as our results from Starling demonstrate. At the same time, our competitors are certainly working to close the gap here and we remain at a disadvantage around "closed loop" data such as purchases.
- 3/ Platform advantage. Our developer ecosystem could be leveraged to fortify both inventory (with an ad network) and data (with Neko or equivalent install focused product). While we have an advantage today it is relatively latent as those products aren't real or being developed.

We have a few threats (in order):

- 1/ Consolidation. This will reduce our data advantage and also create network effects which will reduce our ability to compete as time goes on.
- 2/ Disintermediation. If we aren't shaping this marketplace then others will do it instead and when we enter we will be constrained by them. In the worst case, we won't be able to unseat them and we lose margins to them.
- 3/ Friction. If people get very comfortable working with DSPs it will be hard to move budgets later even if we have a superior product.

Our decision to deprioritize FPAN/Starling/Neko was essentially a decision not to press our advantages but instead hope that they are big enough that even though they will decay over time (and our threats will grow) when we are finally able to staff those teams and enter the market we will still be able to compete and win.

One fundamental point of debate we saw yesterday revolved around this; people have different beliefs about the magnitude of each advantage or threat and consequently feel differently about how likely we are to win this space. Indeed, some feel that even if we had a full investment today we would not win, others feel that we can wait quite a while and still be competitive if we retain enough value for ourselves.

That led us to create this chart:

The black path is the Go For Broke path where we wait and withhold premium features from FBX. Until we actually launch our products (interfaces, fpan, starling, etc...) we all agree we will make less money than if we had released news feed and custom audiences to FBX. That Time To Launch (TTL) is the red line and it is a critical variable we will return to later. From the launch point, one of two paths emerge:

- the dotted line. In this world the features we withheld create sufficient value for us to substantially shape the marketplace and retain a higher percentage of ultimate revenue, not to mention having a simpler product in the marketplace.
- the solid line. In this world the marketplace has consolidated around us and is intractable by the time we arrive. We have forfeited the money we would have gotten by integrating with FBX sooner and have less mindshare.

The blue path is the Take The Money path where we follow the lead of Antonio and his team and integrate with FBX. We will certainly make more money in the short term and hopefully continue to be able to grow along with it. There is also a chance that this line will trend upwards if budgets are more elastic than we are assuming.

Which path you prefer will depend primarily on your sensitivity to the variables as well as your risk tolerance.

As for the opinion of our group, we have been imagining a future where we have a premium channel in News Feed to capture brand and high end DR dollars at high prices and then another channel with FPAN replacing RHC for everything else. The dotted black line appeals to us and we believe we can get to it but only if the TTL is very short. Given that we don't have enough engineers or (especially) designers right now to staff it, that is in serious jeopardy.

Consequently, we propose to reframe this choice in the following way: Are we willing to commit to fully staff Starling, FPAN, and Neko in the 3-6 month time frame?

If so, that would make TTL sufficiently small that we, as an engineering leadership team, would feel it a worthwhile risk to take the Go For Broke path. It is worth noting, however, that whether we buy a company to get this team or build it from scratch, it can't be entirely bootcampers. This path is not a small tweak, it is a substantial investment.

If not, then the risk is just too great and we should just Take The Money we can get, when we can get it, by opening up more features to FBX.

The one thing we should most likely not do is take neither path, which means making a decision relatively quickly is important. I'm going to be on a plane to Antarctica in 12 hours, but I'm sure this group can figure it out!

UNREDACTED VERSION OF DOCUMENT SOUGHT TO BE LODGED UNDER SEAL

Attached is the latest version of the deck. Key edits:

- Slide 3: rephrased "density of information shared" to "volume of data returned per call" to address Doug's question
- Slide 7: added Viddy which shared very thoughtful feedback last night on the thrash they've experienced on OG and how the value FB users (happy to forward to anyone who's interested). The headline stats are that 50% of their mobile reg now comes through FB. However, those users are 20% less engaged than ones acquired through email/Twitter and Twitter now drives more referral traffic than FB.
- Slide 9: removed the premium row because it is more consistent with the framing on slide 1 (i.e., today's discussion focuses on the Basic API portion of the "Read" side).
- Slide 10: added Shyam's revenue analysis.

Thanks for the feedback. Thoughts:

- Slide 1: (nit) API Data -> Basic API: made edit.
- Slide 3:
 - FQL queries: I will footnote the 29% stat (which seems like the broadest description).
 - Density. I'm trying to capture the amount of data returned. For instance, if you call for profile picture, we return 1 piece of data (the profile pic). However, if you call friends.get, we return ~130 pieces of data (i.e., the person's friends).
- Slide 6: column 2 was added because games devs are more skeptical on the value of incremental connected users if they already have a large user base on canvas.
- Slide 8: I will tweak to "Non-canvas is a stand-alone P&L", but think it is a mistake to remove it entirely. It feels like one of the themes Zuck has raised consistently is the desire for non-canvas to stand on its own. This column highlights that, if we only view OG as a loss leader, we would necessarily have to assess its business value indirectly. However, most options provide the ability to evaluate the non-canvas business on its own merits.
- Slide 9: will defer to Mike on whether to remove "premium" row.

Slide feedback:

Slide 1: (nit) API Data -> Basic API

Slide 3: FQL data (for a given day):

- * 29% of all FQL queries hit either the user or friend table.
- * 9% of all FQL queries hit the friend and the user table
- * Out of the 9% that hit the friend table, 75-80% correspond to info on unTOSd users
- * Out of the 20% that hit the user table and not the friends table, around 1% off those correspond to info on unTOSd users

Justin: When you say density what do you mean?

Slide 6: (nit) I don't understand why we need column 2?

Slide 8: The last column is really odd -- Platform is a standalone P&L regardless due to things like the premium APIs, payments, etc. We should remove.

Slide 9: I feel like we are only telling part of the story here, as the points in slide 18 (paid invites) are just assumed.
(nit) I would just remove the Premium Data row since we made that out of scope in the first slide.

Proposal question: there is a trend for games to be both canvas and mobile (songpop for example). Which regime do they fall under?

General: really good deck and work here.

- Doug, could you take a look at the "density of info shared" column on p. 3? I assigned initial values but want to make sure that you agree. Also, I clarified the methodology to calculate the right column. This is a daily snapshot of user-app pairs (e.g., if Spotify and Instagram both call the same get API, it sums their users).
- Page 10 is a placeholder for Chad's analysis of how much revenue we would have made from select head apps.

Quantifying the value: ad auction analysis

What premiums do advertisers pay when using different types of targeting options in the ad auction?

- Can look at this on a CPM or CPC basis
 - CPM: What extra revenue does FB derive per 1K impressions when a certain targeting option is employed?
 - Pro: Signal of dollar value realized from FB's perspective
 - Consideration: Advertisers may not think about value on a CPM basis
 - CPC: What extra cost does an advertiser pay per click when a certain targeting option is employed?
 - Pro: Signal of expected dollar value from an advertiser's perspective
 - Consideration: Doesn't account for CTR (e.g., useful targeting can increase CTR and decrease CPC in a way that is ROI-positive for an advertiser yet the premium paid relative to no targeting will be negative)

API Permission	Ad Targeting Feature	CPM			CPC			% Ads Used (Impr.-Basis)	Commentary
		$ Value	% Prem.		$ Value	% Prem.
	Baseline Bid	$1.26	N/A	*	$0.25	N/A	*	100.0%	Ex-targeting baseline bid
Basic
Birthday	Age	($1.09)	(86%)	*	$0.06	23%	*	97.7%	Actual age targeting premium hard to measure since almost all ads use it
Gender	Gender	($0.01)	(1%)	N _M	$0.03	12%	*	41.2%	Many advertisers use gender for "messaging" rather than true targeting Extended
Education	Education Status	$0.09	7%	*	$0.24	95%	*	1.9%
Relationships	Relationship	$0.12	9%	*	$0.13	53%	*	0.1%
Interests/Likes	Keyword	($0.09)	(7%)	*	$0.05	22%	*	4.2%	Surprising this is negative for CPM
Location	City	$0.06	5%	N _M	$0.17	68%	*	TBD	Region was employed as a control so "Location" represents City here
Interests/Likes	Fans Of	$1.23	97%	*	($0.04)	(17%)	*	TBD	Could be negative for CPC because "Fans Of" significantly increases CTR

Quantifying the value: ad auction analysis (cont'd)

What is the value of a user to an advertiser?

- Aside from the value of “read” data pertaining to a particular user, some user groups are more valuable to partners than others, and read data can help partners segment their respective user bases in accordance with this
 - For the current ad auction, average CPM as well as the premium paid relative to the average global CPM are broken by various demographic characteristics
 - E.g., ad CPMs run at a sizable premium relative to the global average in regions like NA and WE as well as within certain age and gender groups
 - Across the various sub-group averages, the delta in CPM paid by advertisers is as large as 5x between the high- and low-ends

CPM by User Demographic

Gender	Age	NA	WE	APAC	LATAM	CEE	ME	A
Male	<25	$0.37	$0.18
	25-44	$0.47	$0.23	$0.16
	45+	$0.50	$0.28
Female	<25	$0.37	$0.17		$0.10	$0.09	$0.15	$0.12
	25-44	$0.53	$0.26	$0.19
	45+	$0.55	$0.32

Pricing Premium by User Demographic (vs. $0.23 Global CPM)

Gender	Age	NA	WE	APAC	LATAM	CEE	ME	A
Male	<25	63%	(20%)
	25-44	104%	2%	(29%)
	45+	120%	22%		(57%)	(62%)	(32%)	(49%)
Female	<25	62%	(24%)
	25-44	134%	13%	(18%)

Games developers perceive that FB Connected users are more valuable on mobile, but question causation

Game (or Dev)	Initial platform to grow users	Connect rate	Monetization	Engagement/ retention
Diamond Dash	Canvas	64%	50% greater spend (800% more likely to spend)	n/a
Bingo Blitz	Canvas	>50%	300% more spend (80% of revenue from FB users)	200% more play
Smarter than 5 th Grader	Canvas	50%	70% of revenue from FB users	200% greater retention
Family Feud	Canvas	63%	70% of revenue from FB users	200% greater retention
Slotomania	Canvas	40%	20% of revenue from FB users	20% more engaged
Songpop	Canvas + Mobile	65%	35% more spend	35% more engaged
Dragonplay	Canvas	40-45%	169% more likely to spend	44% more engaged (30% less likely to churn)
Murka	Mobile first	n/a	500% more likely to spend (600% more spend)	150% more engaged
TinyCo	Mobile first	n/a	60% more likely to spend (138% more spend)	n/a
Gameloft	Mobile first	n/a	200% more likely to spend (500% more spend)	300% more engaged (50% less likely to churn)

- Across the board, FB Connected users are more likely to spend and engaged. However, games developers question whether this is merely correlation rather than causation.
- Smaller games developers do not track these metrics

However, non-Games developers struggle to quantify value

 = More valuable than average user
 = Unclear
 = Less valuable than average user

Developer	Value of FB Connected user	Commentary
Bing		IP users conduct 1.6x more searches and FB Connected users conduct 7x more searches
Guardian		20-30% increase in revenue/user (small sample size)
Songza		Average sessions are 20% longer
Spotify		FB users are more engaged, twice as likely to pay for music
Tripadvisor		FB users spend 25% more time onsite and are 2x more likely to contribute content
Goodreads		FB Connected users add equal number of books
Instagram		No tracking in place
iPhoto		FB Connected users correlate with earlier adopters so value is unclear
MOG		We “know there’s value” but can’t specifically quantify
Netflix		Little value now, but lots of option value in knowing a person’s friends
Pinterest		Don’t measure
Slacker		Don’t measure
Windows		FB Connected users are highly correlated with more engaged users
Yahoo		Mixed data points on value of FB Connected users
Dropbox		FB users send more invites but convert worse than other marketing channels (e.g., email)
Stumbleupon		Equal stumbling activity and return rate as an average user
Viddy		50% of mobile reg comes through FB, but users are 20% less engaged than email/Twitter

- Require data reciprocity for user extended info to ensure we have richest identity

Revenue sensitivity: friends-only data pricing model

Goal: Size the FB revenue opportunity from 5 selected apps if we were to charge those apps for access to our friends API on a per-edge connection basis

Methodology Overview: Estimated the number of friend edge connections on 11/1 and 10/1 based on extrapolation of sampled data. Key revenue driver is the cost per edge connection

Proposed policy changes

Key policies

Potential approach

Require competitive networks, regardless of size, to have a deal

“Competing social networks, apps and other services: (a) You may not use Facebook Platform to export user data into a competing social network, app or other service without our permission; (b) Apps on Facebook may not integrate, link to, promote, distribute, or redirect to any app on any other competing social network, app or other service.”

Maintain size-based restrictions (though possibly adjust thresholds)

- >100M daily API calls
- >5M MAU
- >50M impressions

Require data reciprocity

“If you allow people to bring their information and the actions they take on Facebook to your app, you must also allow them to share comparable information and actions they generate in your app back to Facebook. You must allow people to easily enable this functionality within your app, and you must allow people to enable this functionality from within Facebook by implementing our Action Syncing Protocol.”

For example, if your app accesses the social graph, you must allow users to share any new social connections formed within your app back to Facebook.”

Charge for APIs with offset based on ad spend, participation in ad network, or using FB payments

- Specific policy as we further develop business model

Proposed Changes

- Remove access to:
 - Non-TOS'd friends in friend list
 - Friend profile data
- Replace with:
 - Paid Invites
 - Premium Recommendations API

Remove Non-TOSd Friends

- IMPACT

- Eliminates growth channel use by 23% all Facebook apps.
- Eliminates custom friend selector essential to many larger games.
- Will drive more mobile apps to use the address book instead of Facebook.

- MITIGATION STRATEGY

- Larger apps on Facebook could use paid invites instead.

Sam has a ton of context (Mike used to work for him and he was involved in the planning with Zuck) and the key thing that Sam wanted to talk about was the timeline, which was not in the slides which is why he just wanted to get through the slides.

Javi has been more than clear on what he doesn't like about Platform to Mike and I on more than one occasion (if it were up to him there would likely be no platform).

This plan addresses that, but I want to make sure he agrees.

Now, I am happy for you folks to get that data however you want, but asking an open ended question to Javi may not get us the data I think we need.

In short, I this is less a "what is the problem" meeting (if we ask that way Javi is going to to say -- I have been telling you for a year) and more of a "here is the solution" meeting.

That all said, you folks should structure this how you want, but if this is your to be a "what's the problem" meeting, vlad and I should skip because Javi is going to think we both are incompetent. :-)

I wonder if we use the same format as the meeting with Sam, save for one additional, a timeline slide?

Platform 3.0 Plan

The following outlines the changes that we are planning to announce with the roll out of Platform 3.0. We will announce all of these changes out at the same time in a single blog post that starts the clock ticking on a 90-day migration. This 90-day migration window is the standard that we adhere to in Platform and helps developers handle large changes in features (this is especially important for native mobile developers which have a much longer lead time). We will make all API/permissions changes available in the migration so developers can test against these changes. We will make the review tool and new APIs available before the migration takes effect. We will make all tooling/policy changes available on the day the migration is turned on by default.

Timing

We have the following rails that will inform the timing of our announcement and roll-out. Our next migration window opens on June 26. If we decided to snap to this date that would put these changes live on Oct. 2nd. In terms of implementation, looking at the schedule for app review and SWAG for the APIs, it appears that the needed functionality should come online in August. Based on the above, a reasonable schedule is the following:

1. June 26: Announce Platform 3.0 on the developer blog, making the API/permission changes available under a migration.
3. Aug ??: Bring the App Review tool and new APIs online start testing with a limited set of developers.
4. Oct. 02: Default the migration to on and review all new apps.
5. Oct. 14: Begin to review apps for policy violations.

[Note: Need to talk to Sean about the impact of these changes on games developers to see if this schedule works. We may need to accelerate the API development. Ideally we could be in position to have the new APIs in beta when we announce the migration.]

Changes to Permissions and APIs

Facebook Replacement APIs: We are removing the ability to request permission and read data from the user's stream, notifications, and inbox (message/thread). These features are used primarily for apps that attempt to recreate the Facebook experience on other devices. We will still make these APIs available to a limited number of select partners where it makes sense (phone OEMs, etc).

Friends Data: We will reduce the scope of the friends' data that a developer can request and access from users. Specifically, we will change the /friends Graph API connection to only return the user's friends that are already connected to the app. In addition, we will no longer support friends_* permissions or data access.

New APIs: In order to help developers address scenarios for which they utilize the above APIs, we are going to make two new APIs available: Suggested Friends and Recommendations. Suggested Friends will help developers pick the right app friends and non-app friends to invite to the app. Recommendations will help developers recommend various OG objects based on their friends likes and OG activity.

App Review & Reciprocity

Since the launch of Open Graph in Jan. 2012, we have moved toward an app review model where we review and approve an app's integration with Facebook social channels (News Feed, Timeline, etc.). We extended this model to the App Center. With this announcement taking the next step in this evolution. In 90 days, we will begin to review and approve all apps that integrate with Platform. This will ensure that we are maintaining a high-level of app quality and that our user and developer interests are aligned. Developers may continue to develop and test on Facebook Platform as they always have, but before they can take their app "live" to non-developers/testers, their app must be approved and reviewed by Facebook.

As part of this review process, we will examine the quality of the app, but also if the app is in compliance with our policies. In particular, we will determine if the app is following our reciprocity and duplicative functionality policy. All apps may use Platform for Login and Social Plugins, but if the app accesses extended user information such as the friend graph, photos, etc. the app must also make it possible for the user to bring their data from the app back to Facebook. In order to help developers with this requirement, we are releasing tools collectively known as Action Importers.

Further, for the small fraction of developers whose app may duplicate existing FB functionality, we can make this determination at review time, before the app launches, to ensure that they can work together to see if we can come to an equitable resolution.

Canvas Redirect Policy

We have had a long-standing policy prohibiting canvas apps from redirecting outside of FB. As the ecosystem has developed, we have seen more and more web sites create canvas app with the sole goal of gaining access to bookmarks and requests for their web apps outside of FB. In 90 days, we will begin to enforce this policy in earnest. Canvas apps that exist that chiefly exist to redirect to external web sites will be disabled. For developers that were relying on this mechanism to gain access to requests, we recommend that they utilize the Send dialog to implement their request/invitation functionality.

Page Apps (optional/for discussion with Mike/Dan)

There are a number of apps that are utilized to manage pages. Previously, an app could ask for the manage_page permission and access the page feed, post to the feed, etc. Moving forward, securing access to this permission and the Page API is limited to specific apps that offer compelling functionality above and beyond what is available on Facebook. For developers building page management apps, they can use this permission for developer/tester owned pages during development, but need to be explicitly approved via our App Review before they can ask any user for this permission or manage pages on their behalf.

Canvas as Game Platform (optional/for discussion with Mike/Dan)

As we have watched the development of the 3rd party ecosystem on Facebook.com, a clear pattern of usage has emerged. Canvas has become the default home for social games and Page tabs have become the default home for brand, contest, etc. apps. Moving forward, we are going to codify this within our product itself. Only new game apps will be able to leverage canvas (existing non-game apps are not effected). Non-games will continue to have access to page tabs.

Platform 3.0 Rules of the Road

As we work towards implementing the decisions that we made last year, which are now known as Platform 3.0, we need a common framework by which we can make decisions about what types of app to give access to Platform. This framework must address three key questions: what are the broad principles of our platform, how do these manifest in our products/policies and how do we communicate this to developers? This document answers these questions, constituting the Platform "rules of the road".

Principles

The fundamental principle that governs Platform usage is a simple concept: reciprocity. Reciprocity involves an equable value exchange between a 3rd party developer and Facebook. This value exchange involves one of the following from developers: high-quality experiences that FB users can use to tell great stories to their friends and family on FB and/or monetary value in the form of revenue sharing or direct payment. In return, Facebook offers a developers access to our Platform.

When considering the implications of reciprocity it is important to note that a second order principle quickly emerges: competitive access. There are a small number of developers whom no amount of sharing to FB or monetary value can justify giving them access to Platform. These developers do not want to participate in the ecosystem we have created, but rather build their own ecosystem at the expense of our users, other developers and, of course, us. That is something that we will not allow.

Platform Services

In order to outline how the above principles manifest in our products/policies, we need to identify the various parts of Platform. This is required because we have a disjoint set of product and policy constraints that apply to each of these different areas:

App services: these are paid generic services (storage, compute, etc.) that apps may use to build the core foundation of their app. At present, we do not have an offering in this space, but we are close to closing an acquisition that adds these services. As such, in order to be complete and future-proof we will outline the rules associated with these types of services.

Ads services: these are paid promotional services that enable developers to drive awareness and installations of their apps using News Feed and other paid channels. We have always had an advertising business the developers could leverage, but this is increasingly an area of focus for us with the transition to mobile.

Identity services: these are the traditional identity/social services that we have provided to developers since 2007. These services enable developers to build personalized app experiences for people and enable these people to share aspects of those experiences back to Facebook. [todo: payments is here]

Application

The following outlines the application of the above principles to the various kinds of platform services.

Strategic competitors: We maintain a small list of strategic competitors that Mark personally reviewed. Apps produced by the companies on this list are subject to a number of restrictions outlined below. Any usage beyond that specified is not permitted without Mark level sign-off.

Ad services: All developers, save strategic competitors (above), may use our ads services. The reciprocity for these services is clear: money in exchange for new or re-engaged users. In terms of oversight/policy enforcement, we follow the standard ads creative review process.

App services: All developers, save strategic competitors (above), may use our app services. The reciprocity for these services is clear: money in exchange for CPU, data storage and network bandwidth. In terms of oversight/policy enforcement, we will reactive handle any strategic competitors that we discover using these services.

Identity services: this set of services is the subject of much of the rules of the road. This is due to the fact that we have a variety of mechanisms for value exchange.

All developers, including strategic competitors (above), may use the Login and Social Plugin features available within identity services. We permit this because we wish to see our core login service and basic sharing services used by users in any app, creating an equitable relationship with the all, including competitive, developers. To this end, we make these features available to developers with out app review.

The use of identity services, beyond Login and Social Plugins, is subject to app review. We review the apps usage of our APIs to determine if they are adhering to our principles. In particular, we look at the quality of the app's user experience and if there existing some equitable value exchange.

During app review, we determine the quality of the app by using the app and comparing the experience to our quality guidelines [link]. Apps that do not meet our quality bar are rejected.

During app review, we examine the APIs that the app uses in order to determine what the appropriate level of reciprocity. The guideline for this review is "take data, give data". The review tool is built to help with this assessment in that for every read API used by the app, we flag if the app has also implemented Action importers. Using this tool, as well as an examination of the user experience itself; we can determine if the app is reciprocating. If they are not, the app is a "data leach" and will be rejected.

Open Issues

There are a number of different fields like birthday, hometown, etc. that apps can request and there is no way for them to write back anything. We can do a couple of things: create an API to set this info (maybe not a bad idea for identity growth?), limit these data fields to just canvas apps (the value exchange is time on site and maybe payments), pull these fields, something else?

How do we think about the baseline level of value exchange of canvas apps due to time on site? Is that enough to forgo the "take data, give data" mandate for non-payment games/apps?

If you are offering real/world goods for sale on your web site or mobile app, in order to use identity services, you must use Facebook Wallet (Payments 3.0)?

Login (uid, name, profile pic, small # of core fields) - anyone can get this. No a priori review.

User Data - requires user_* permissions. Ability to ask for those user_* permissions requires unified review.

Friend List - Requires unified review. If you access the friend list, you must conform with Social Reciprocity, as defined above.

Friend Data - we're removing this (removing friend_* permissions)

Core Facebook Features (News Feed API, Inbox API, Full Search API, etc.) - requires unified review. Generally only available with a business deal, generally limited to Facebook replacement apps.

Write

Share Dialog - anyone can use

Open Graph (defining actions, using the API) - requires unified review

Other Write/Management APIs (events, groups, etc.) - requires unified review. Generally requires a business deal, only available to Facebook replacement apps.

Distribution

Bookmarks - limited to canvas apps + mobile games. Requires unified review.

Requests - limited to canvas apps + mobile games. Requires unified review.

Notifications - limited to canvas apps + mobile games. Requires unified review.

App Center + Search - limited to apps that have gone through unified review.

Messaging (Invitations) - will require unified review. Available to anyone who abides by our rules (does not spam the channel).

Reciprocity language: "Facebook Platform provides an extensive set of APIs that allow users to bring their data with them to your application. If you use any APIs beyond the basic login APIs, then you must also allow users to bring their data from your app back to Facebook by implementing the Action Importer spec."

In terms of plans / execution - we need to finalize our strategy and then come up with an execution plan. I expect this will take 3-4 months, and will likely consume lots of cycles in H2.

Mike Vernal

On Data Reciprocity - in practice I think this will be one of those rights that we reserve. We'll publish a spec for an API that you have to implement to integrate with us, we'll have POPS review, but we'll pay closest attention to strategic partners where we want to make sure the value exchange is reciprocal.

On Invitations Pricing - we need to sort this out.

Are there any dates as far as the change is concerned ? I agree with the direction but there is a ton of details as far as execution goes.

Greg Schechter

Two initial thoughts/questions:

- seems like #3 (Data Reciprocity) is going to require a new level of subjective evaluation of apps that our platform ops folks will need to step up to -- evaluating whether the reciprocity UI/action importers are sufficiently reciprocal.

- probably already being considered, but the pricing structure of invites to non-TOS'd friends will be very critical to adoption of this. Too high and apps just won't do it and we don't get viral app growth. Too low and we don't solve the problem. And since apps are very different in their LTV calculations of a user, it almost seems like this ideal pricing point is going to vary per app (at least up to a ceiling where we're making enough money that we're happy to cap it for that app). Could get very tricky.

As many of you know, we've been having a series of conversations w/ Mark for months about the Platform Business Model.

To give you an update on where we are -- we feel pretty confident about the business model on the distribution / advertising side. Basically:

- We want everyone to be able to publish back to Facebook / contribute to the graph
- We will organically rank content based on value to users and to Facebook (both engagement and revenue value)
- Developers can pay us to value their value (i.e., they can boost content)

There are lots of details to work out here (we need to update the feed ranking model to have a variable value for clicks, including negative value), but we feel pretty good on this front.

Longer term, I think our distribution business model evolves into the overall OG model I described below.

Most of the open questions have centered on the read side of platform. Specifically - why do we let apps access all this data today? A few possible justifications:

- Because it's a valuable standalone business (the solution we're trying to find)
- Because it's a loss-leader for the distribution business model (a hypothesis we're trying to prove)
- Because it's a social good for the world (we think apps should be social)

On Canvas we didn't have to ask ourselves these hard questions, because getting someone to build an app on canvas accrued a bunch of value. On Mobile, we need to ask ourselves these hard questions. Why let someone like Pinterest or Path read all of our data, create a separate standalone app, and then never use our paid distribution to compensate us?

There have been a few important decisions we've already made (or tentatively made) that I wanted folks to be aware of:

1/ We're going to dramatically reduce the data we expose via the Read API. In particular:

- We are going to change friends.get to only return friends that are also using the app
- We are going to introduce a paid invitations product that let users invite other users to their app
- We are going to remove the ability to grant friend data via GDP. When a user TOSes an app, they can grant access to their own data. Since friends.get will only return other TOSed users' data, that means we no longer need the friend_* permissions.
- We are going to remove/whitelist access to the Stream APIs and Search APIs (and potentially other APIs that might leak the friend graph, like reading all notifications or the inbox)

2/ We are going to limit the ability for competitive networks to use our platform without a formal deal in place.

3/ We are going to require that all platform partners agree to data reciprocity. If you access a certain type of data (e.g., music listens), you must allow the user to publish back that same kind of data. Users must be able to easily turn this on both within your own app as well as from Facebook (via action importers).

Sorry for the long note, but wanted to make sure people had context on where the conversations currently are. I think this has a pretty big impact on some of our work around Notifications, Invitations, and Mobile SDKs in particular, so I'm going to follow-up w/ a smaller note to Gareth Davis, Bruce Rogers, Vladimir Fedorov, Charles Jolley, Eddie O'Neil, and Greg Schechter.

Please comment below / lmk if you have questions.

To talk about tomorrow...

1. We agreed to let all apps use (basic) login and sharing (including messenger sharing now) without reciprocity, correct? Rhetorical.
2. If that is the case, why would any mobile social app implement full reciprocity? They don't need the friends graph (or app friends), as it is on the phone. They get the organic distribution from news feed. Invites are from messages. Why would they take the cost of implementing full reciprocity? What is the upside? Why not just take that money and buy Neko ads? What is the killer growth/product scenario for app friends?
3. Another question, are we going to require canvas game developers to publish back all the "social actions" they generate for a user if they read the friends graph? Or does the use of payments mean they don't need to do so?

I'm generally really happy with this direction.

There's a lot to process here, but one quick question on the reciprocity point.

As part of our reciprocity policy, I think we have to require that apps allow us to enable Facebook integrations _from Facebook_. Basically, we'd have the Action Importer UI on your Timeline, and when you clicked "Turn On" we'd let you login to the app and setup continual importing of your social activity from the app. I think this is really important for us to actually realize the value of full reciprocity (otherwise I worry we'll be arguing about pixels on a partner's site, which won't be that productive).

I wasn't sure if this impacted your thinking, as you assume below that 25% of data is flowing back to Facebook (which I think is too low, which is why I want the ability to upsell this from FB).

Subject: Platform Model Thoughts

After thinking about platform business model for a long time, I wanted to send out a note explaining where I'm leaning on this. This isn't final and we'll have a chance to discuss this in person before we decide this for sure, but since this is complex, I wanted to write out my thoughts. This is long, but hopefully helpful.

The quick summary is that I think we should go with full reciprocity and access to app friends for no charge. Full reciprocity means that apps are required to give any user who connects to FB a prominent option to share all of their social content within that service (ie all content that is visible to more than a few people, but excluding 1:1 or small group messages) back to Facebook. In addition to this, in the future, I also think we should develop a premium service for things like instant personalization and coefficient, but that can be separate from this next release of platform. A lot more details and context below.

First, to answer the question of what we should do, the very first question I developed an opinion on was what we should be optimizing for. There's a clear tension between platform ubiquity and charging, so it's important to first fully explore what we're trying to get out of platform.

The answer I came to is that we're trying to enable people to share everything they want, and to do it on Facebook. Sometimes the best way to enable people to share something is to have a developer build a special purpose app or network for that type of content and to make that app social by having Facebook plug into it. However, that may be good for the world but it's not good for us unless people also share back to Facebook and that content increases the value of our network. So ultimately, I think the purpose of platform -- even the read side -- is to increase sharing back into Facebook.

If we do this well, we should be able to unlock much more sharing in the world and on Facebook through a constellation of apps than we could ever build experiences for ourselves. We should be able to solve the audience problem partially by giving people different audiences in different apps and linking them all together on Facebook. The current state of the world supports that more social apps enables sharing, so the biggest challenge for us is to link them all together.

This makes it somewhat clearer that we want platform to be ubiquitous and to strongly encourage sharing back to Facebook, but it's not yet definitively clear that having full reciprocity and no charge is optimal.

For one thing, it's conceivable that we'd get more net sharing overall and more net sharing into Facebook if we didn't have a reciprocity mandate. This would be true if many developers dropped out over the reciprocity mandate. The reason I don't think they will is that almost no developers will even be giving us the majority of their data since many of their users won't log in with Facebook and many of those who do won't choose to share it back to Facebook. Assuming for a heavily FB-dependent app each of those is 50% participation, then only 25% of the data is shared to Facebook. As long as apps always have a sustainable advantage over Facebook, most will participate. For more sensitive companies like Amazon and Yelp that value their reviews a lot more, way fewer than 50% of their users will connect to Facebook, so this will represent a tiny portion of their reviews and social data. My guess is that they should still rationally want to connect with Facebook at these levels, but if they don't then that probably means they're competitive with us and we're better off not letting them integrate with us anyway. This all makes me think full reciprocity is the way to go.

For charging, the question is whether we could charge and still achieve ubiquity. Theoretically, if we could do that, it would be better to get ubiquity and get paid. My sense is there may be some price we could charge that wouldn't interfere with ubiquity, but this price wouldn't be enough to make us real money. Conversely, we could probably make real money if we were willing to sacrifice ubiquity, but that doesn't seem like the right trade here. After looking at all the numbers for a while, I'm coming around to the perspective that the write side of platform is a much bigger opportunity for us and we should focus the vast majority of our monetization effort on that and not this.

The last question is whether we should include app friends (ie the user's friends who are also using this app). Ultimately, it seems like this data is what developers want most and if we pulled this out of the package then most of the value proposition falls apart. This is especially true if we require full reciprocity without offering our most valuable data.

So that's essentially how I got to thinking we should do full reciprocity with app friends and no charge.

There's some more nuance to this opinion though:

First, in any model, I'm assuming we enforce our policies against competitors much more strongly. The good news about full reciprocity is that for bigger social companies we might otherwise be worried about, if they're enabling their users to push all of their social content back into Facebook then we're probably fine with them. However, for folks like WeChat, we need to enforce a lot sooner.

Second, if we're limiting friends to app friends, we need to make sure we build the appropriate distribution tools that developers want to invite the rest of the user's friends. We keep saying that theoretically this is part of the write side platform and it's a premium feature, and those things may be true, but I think we need to build them and make sure they're ready when we roll this out or else we're just taking away functionality without replacing it with something better. It seems like we need some way to fast app switch to the FB app to show a dialog on our side that lets you select which of your friends you want to invite to an app. We need to make sure this experience actually is possible to build and make as good as we want, especially on iOS where we're more constrained. We also need to figure out how we're going to charge for it. I want to make sure this is explicitly tied to pulling non-app friends out of friends.get.

Third, there's the data that suggests that if we share app friends only, then most apps will only get fewer than 10 friends from each person. If this is the case, then we may want to consider including coefficient ranking for those app friends for free -- or at least the top 5-10 app friends. This doesn't seem like much leakage and could encourage more people to use our tools by differentiation our product further from anything else that's out there.

Fourth, for products like Ansible and Newsstand, it will be very important to enable people to import their feeds of content from other apps into Facebook. That is, we'd be pulling those people's friends' data from those apps -- eg your friends' pins on Pinterest to make a Pinterest section for you in Newsstand or include the pin images on your Ansible lock/home. Since this is going to be an important upcoming push, we need to consider whether it's still the right thing to remove our own stream.get API if we're requiring full reciprocity. I still want to remove it, but if the spirit is full reciprocity, it may just be difficult to refuse access to the app that are pushing streams into us. The good news is that those services aren't the ones we're typically worried about, so we'd still get to prevent almost all troublesome apps from having it. The bad news is this would prevent us from really deprecating this. I haven't thought through this fully and need to think about it some more.

Fifth, not charging still means people will overuse and abuse our APIs and waste money for us, so I still think we should implement some kind of program where you have to pay if you use too many of our resources. That said, the goal of this won't be to charge for actual usage so we can build a less precise system of for monitoring than the full accounting systems we would have had to have built for the other system we discussed. What I'm assuming we'll do here is have a few basic thresholds of API usage and once you pass a threshold you either need to pay us some fixed amount to get to the next threshold or you get rate limited at the lower threshold. One basic implementation of this could be to have a few different fees for developers, with basic starting at $100 and then having levels at $10k, $1m, $10m, etc. This should be relatively simple, achieve the goal of controlling costs and make us some money if we want.

Finally, I want to discuss the premium read services for a bit.

One of the big ideas I took away from our discussions was Ed Baker's framing that every business wants growth, engagement and monetization. I like this framing because it explains what the read side of platform is -- it increases engagement, or more specifically, it takes a user and turns them into a more engaged user through adding real identity and social connections to them. This is real value and it's different from anything else we do. We have ads and some organic distribution for driving growth, the read side of platform for driving engagement and the ad network and payments for driving monetization. We'll offer the full stack of services.

How our premium read services add value is pretty clear -- through simply eliminating friction. Our free services let you get basic info, app friends and let you pay to get access to a dialog to invite more friends. Developers can always get these critical flows to perform better if they have more of the data and more control though. Through instant personalization, they can encourage a person to sign in more effectively and will therefore convert more unregistered users to ones with real identity and friends. Through coefficient and full friends list, they can upsell a person to invite their friends much more effectively throughout their app as well. I'd estimate that these two things alone would increase conversion by ~20-30% for developers. That means they should be willing to pay us roughly 20-30% of the value of each user who signs up. That's a big deal because engagement is very valuable.

I have a specific proposal for how to get started with this and it's that we should work with mobile games. The feedback we're getting from almost every other type of developer is they don't know how to value our services or really much of their engagement at all. But game developers generally track this and have a better sense. They would certainly be willing to try it out in new games and they'd be able to figure out how well it worked. Once it works for most game developers, then we can start letting other developers in as well.

Working with game developers has a few other nice properties. It means doing something nice for our game developers first and making them feel valued. It's fairly natural to offer IP on mobile since we already offer it to them on canvas. This could also be an important part of helping us transition our canvas business onto mobile if it effectively lets us take a 20-30% cut of the value of FB-connected users.

On pricing, there are a couple of ways I could see this working. First, we could charge based on the value our ads auction computes for each user. I'm still fairly confident that's the most efficient way to charge if we can't just take a straight rev share. That said, the second choice, since this is just games, is to actually figure out how to just take a straight revenue share. This might be possible in conjunction with some sort of publisher model for games that I know the team is already thinking about.

This all said, while I'd love to build this premium engagement model as quickly as possible, there's definitely more low hanging fruit on the growth/distribution side that almost all developers will be able to use if we build out correctly. So we should probably prioritize that before premium engagement.

We also need to first prioritize all the tools required to make these policies work, including making it so developers can actually share everything social in their apps back to Facebook if we're requiring them to offer that option, the premium invite channel that will replace access to non-app friends, etc.

Overall, I feel good about this direction. The purpose of platform is to tie the universe of all the social apps together so we can enable a lot more sharing and still remain the central social hub. I think this finds the right balance between ubiquity, reciprocity and profit.

Again, this isn't final but I wanted to let you all know where I'm leaning. I'm looking forward to discussing when I'm back after Thanksgiving.

OG Core: User sentiment and trust

- Goal: users trust Facebook platform; enjoy convenience of accessing and sharing from apps with Facebook.
- Key success metric: increase Platform User NSAT from 25 to 40.

Current Sentiment	NSAT
Facebook Overall	67
Platform	26
Delta	-41

- Product roadmap:
 - Anonymous logins: users can start apps with anonymous accounts and grant basic read, write, other permissions later.
 - Preview and feedback on writes: first write per action type pops up share sheet like preview; user can subscribe to notifications for first few delegated writes.
 - App settings refresh: improve discoverability, navigation, consistency of app settings management
- Note: +15 NSAT is a rough goal. We're going to look at other recent FB product launches and impact on NSAT before refining estimate in next few weeks

OG Core: Graph completeness (Identity)

- Priority fields: work, edu, hometown, current city
- Priority geos: US, Europe, Japan, Canada
- Key success metrics:
 - Basic Profile Completeness: users have at least one field filled in for work/edu/hometown/current city. Goal: increase by 25% (if today we are at 60%, our goal is to be at 75%)
 - True Profile Completeness: users (on average) have at the average number of fields filled in. (E.g. 50+ users in US should have an average of 4.2 jobs.) Goal: increase by 25%.
- Product roadmap:
 - Basic plumbing: data accuracy, metric dashboards, and a/b test environment.
 - Mobile editing: get mobile profile editing at least at par with desktop.
 - New About Profile Unit: develop a change in user expectations around profile completeness; prominent UI elements in profile/timeline which encourages users to freely add information.
 - Flexibility: Ensure that learnings and tactics can be expanded to other fields beyond current priority fields.
 - Monetization: develop and implement a major monetization use case (e.g. recruiting).

OG Core: Graph completeness (Collections)

- Key success metrics:
 - x% of FB users have at least 5 books/movies/musicians added to their timeline
 - y% of engagement for partners/apps comes from Timeline collections
- Product roadmap
 - Launch Timeline About page with books/movies/music/fitness on all platforms
 - Add custom collections, better recommendations/suggestions, and mutual collections
 - Get 3 new major partners integrated: Apple (iTunes, iBooks, iMovie), Amazon (Kindle, Amazon Unboxed), Pandora

OG Core: Content discovery

- Goals
 - Help users tell great engaging stories that contribute to their identity via OG (Creator)
 - Help users discover new content (Viewer)
 - Create a developer ecosystem that incentivizes quality content sharing with increased app discovery and distribution (Developer)
- Metrics

 - Distribution: CTR for OG objects (includes both OG objects that go to developer pages/apps and OG traffic that remains on FB to pages/snowbox experiences)
- Roadmap
 - Make mobile OG feed experience awesome
 - Great newsfeed stories across all top level verticals (books, movies, music, fitness)
 - Integrate with newsstand
 - Prototype a social collections explorer that is object rather than people oriented to help users discover new content

OG Core: Developer Happiness

Great idea. Mike, were you thinking of (a) a specific criterion (e.g., MAU) that we should use to classify the top 20 devs or (b) a more subjective list based on the "tier 0" partners which Mark focuses on (e.g., Pinterest, Netflix, etc.)?

What would be particularly interesting to me would be a list of each and every type of "social action" we'd be expecting them to publish to us. Might also be curious to know what actions on that site we would exclude (if it makes sense to call out any). This will help us establish a shared bar for what "total reciprocity" is.

Vernal had a good idea. Justin / Ime — let's identify our top 20 developers and put together a straw man for how we will enforce reciprocity with each of them. We need this for the meeting with Mark on Monday to help ground the discussion about what "full reciprocity" actually means from an enforcement perspective.

We've spent so much time framing it and it feels like so close, that I think I would basically just adopt Mark's framing below and have a really short deck that discusses his numbered points, specifically:

- #1 Enforcement and wording of the reciprocity policy
- #3 Brief coefficient discussion (whether it makes sense to give for free for small # of friends)
- #4 Mark's "News Feed" proposal below (requiring apps to give us a News Feed for the user)
- #5 How we charge for excessive API usage (either per call or tiered)
- #6 How we'd test premium engagement features with mobile developers
- Execution plan / next steps (including when we'll come back to discuss Invitations, his #2)

Does that seem reasonable?

A quick note to ensure that we're coordinated in preparing for next week's discussion:

- Blog post. Doug and I are working with Jen Taylor and Swain to update the prior draft. We'll circulate it to this team once it's ready.
- Deck? If we're preparing a deck for next week's meeting with Mark, please just let me know if I can be helpful in framing things up. Happy to work with Charles, Vlad, etc.
- Policy. There are a couple of policy issues in Mark's note: (a) implementing the reciprocity policy and (b) strengthening our enforcement approach. Specifically:

- Reciprocity. I worked with Ali to take a first cut at this policy which incorporates Mike's concept of providing us with the option to prompt users to pull in data from FB. Draft language: "If your app requests additional information beyond a user's public profile, you must provide users with a prominent option to share the social actions they take within your app back to Facebook (such as engaging with your app's content or creating new user connections). You must easily enable this sharing functionality both within your app and by implementing our Action Syncing Protocol."
- Enforcement. Historically, we've treated policy enforcement as a secondary function of platform. One of my top priorities is to significantly up level this function, and this will begin by hiring a manager with far different capabilities than previous folks. We're close to extending an offer to an internal candidate who fits this profile (e.g., HLS grad, a decade as a federal prosecutor, user privacy and law enforcement experience). I'm also working with Colin to develop a more proactive and strategic approach to enforcement in competitive and other key contexts. We met yesterday and he'll send an a/c privileged summary as a next step (I'll provide more thoughts in the context of his note).

Yeah - I've been bucketing all these changes into something I'm calling "Platform 3.0." Specifically:

- Paid Developer Model
- Removing a bunch of APIs (e.g., all the friend ones)
- New invitations model on iOS, Android, etc.
- Removing non-TOSed Friends
- API charging above a certain usage threshold
- Data reciprocity policy
- Action importer spec
- (Potentially) one premium service, just to set the tone for premium services

I think we need to roll all these changes out together as a big package with heavy messaging. This will likely be similar to the Twitter changes they just launched in terms of impact on the ecosystem.

Re: GDP - I actually think we want to get those changes out earlier, since it's a big user win.

Charles + Vlad are going to own this from a PM + Eng perspective. Starting on a blog post I think would be a really useful way of clarifying what we're doing here. I think below is a pretty reasonable starting point. Maybe someone (Doug?) could update it based on Zuck's most recent note, circulate around, and then we can circulate w/ Zuck via email to see if we are correctly memorializing what he's proposing (maybe shoot for next Tuesday, after the Monday meeting where I expect us to agree on Zuck's proposal).

Sorry, bad communication. I did this as an exercise to see what it would look like if we moved forward with our strawman proposal from the last meeting.

After you guys have a chance to review and weigh-in, we can decide whether it would be useful to send this to the group that met last week as a way to try to move the discussion forward.

We can also just use it as a way to start preparing for whenever a decision gets made. This exercise also made me realize that we might want to include other decisions — like GDP 3.0 and $49/yr — in the broader announcement so that we package all of the platform changes together at once for developers.

We've drafted a hypothetical blog post to help conceptualize how some of the decisions we're considering could be positioned to developers.

Dan would like to show something to Zuck later today. Can each of you take a look through the following (also attached) and provide feedback?

David

Next Steps for Facebook Platform

Over the past five years, our platform has evolved from an ecosystem of apps and games that run on Facebook.com. It emerged as a way for websites to personalize their experience and drive traffic, and increasingly is becoming a key way for mobile apps to be discovered and grow.

Regardless of whether you've built a web or mobile app, developers typically plug into Facebook for one or all of these things.

1. Identity and registration: people can quickly get started in your app or game through Facebook login and our native authorization dialogs.
2. Growth: you can tap into channels like news feed, timeline, App Center, Bookmarks and Requests to reach and re-engage your users on Facebook, whether they're on the web, iOS or Android.
3. Promotion: you can use products like Facebook Pages and ads to accelerate and maintain growth.

Over the next few months, we're making several structural improvements to take into account the increasing diversity of apps building with Facebook and the feedback we've received from the people who use your apps. Each change is designed to make it easy to take advantage of the core value our platform provides, improve the experience people have with apps, and build an environment that allows us to continue to invest deeply in the platform.

These changes impact web and mobile apps integrated with Facebook; they do not apply to games that run inside Facebook.com (canvas) where there are different user expectations. Similarly, they don't apply to mobile games that share the same app ID as a canvas game. (paragraph needs to be tuned)

User experience

Helping people quickly get started with apps is one of the core values of our platform, but it's also the area where there's been some confusion and, at times, frustration from users. The following three changes are designed to simplify the experience people have and build long-term trust.

- ? Improving the authorization process: We are splitting the authorization dialog into two distinct screens. By separating these dialogs, it will be easier for people to understand exactly what permissions they are giving your app. The first dialog will allow you to request permission to access the basic and extended information you need to streamline the registration process and enable personalized experiences. The second dialog allows you to request permission to post to Facebook on behalf of someone. People can choose to enable this permission if they want to share information with their friends about their activity in an app, such as the music that they listened to on Spotify or the places that they checked-in on Foursquare.
- ? Reducing what data is shared. We are selectively removing data fields to make it easier for people to understand the information they are sharing with your app. Specifically, lesser used or more sensitive information such as inbox messages; friends' basic info, contact info and extended info; and the Stream API will no longer be available. People will continue to be able to share the most commonly used information to build a social app, such as first and last name, birthday, profile picture, gender, location, user ID and extended info (likes, interests, etc.). (point to documentation for more)
- ? Helping people find their friends. People can continue share their Facebook friend connections with your app, but only for those friends who are already using the app. This way, people can tell your app that they are friends with someone using your app, but not share their entire friend list. This better meets peoples' expectations on how their information is shared. For example, people shouldn't have to share their friends' likes and interests with an app because you would already have that information from when their friend chose to connect to your app.

Shared value exchange

Facebook Platform is designed to enable rich social apps, not to be used as a data export tool. Moving forward, if you give people a way to bring their Facebook data with them to improve the experience in your app, you also need to give them a way to share their app activity on Facebook. This preserves the overall health of the app ecosystem for users, developers and Facebook.

Practically, this means that if you ask someone to share his or her Facebook information with your app to provide a more personalized and social experience, you need to give that person the ability to share the activity from your app back to Facebook. For example, Spotify uses Facebook information to customize their experience, and they allow people to share their listening activity back to Facebook.

We've updated our policies to reflect this, and you can learn more here (link).

Premium and paid services

As many of the top iOS, Android and web apps have invested more in social, one of the most common areas of feedback is related to access to stronger support, as well as the ability to use more advanced features of the platform such as Instant Personalization and our recommendation and ranking capabilities. Today we're making this possible with three paid programs:

- ? Friend connections: We will begin charging for each connection that is revealed between two users of your app. This will allow us to invest in making this functionality as advanced and valuable as possible. (Or lead with: The value of a Facebook-connected user is, on average, X percent more than a non-Facebook user (reference yet to be conducted research or study). Facebook-connected users typically share more and spend more time and money in apps. To allow us to invest in making this functionality as advanced and valuable as possible, we will begin charging a small fee for each connection that is revealed between two users of your app.)
- ? Instant personalization: This program has been used by sites such as TripAdvisor, Rotten Tomatoes, Bing and Yelp to create deeply social experiences. We will continue to roll this out on a whitelisted basis to approved partners. Learn more and apply here (link).
- ? Coefficient: We are creating new APIs to more efficiently surface a person's closest friends in your app. For instance, it could show which friends a person could look to for music recommendations, or friends who share other common interests. Learn more and apply here [link].

(Need to explain or link to how we'll charge/fees/specifics, as well as timing for the rollout)

We'll continue to look for ways to develop more advanced premium services that help you build better social apps and reach more users. By moving to a paid model for this advanced functionality, it sets us up to re-invest in the types of technologies and APIs many of you have asked for.

Professionalizing developer support

We consistently hear the desire from our developer community to fix bugs and provide higher quality technical support. Based on your feedback, we're launching a developer support program that will better match what you've come to expect from other platforms. Developers who integrate with Facebook will be required to pay a flat $49 annual fee per app. In exchange, you will receive 2 technical support incidents from our developer support team. Social plugins and Facebook login (or registration plugin / pending decision) remain free and are separate from this program.

As part of the program, we will also enhance our app review process. Learn more here: (link).

Highlights:

- Atlas (confidential, mteam only). We reached agreement with Microsoft to acquire Atlas for $100M. We now enter the diligence phase of this deal which will take a few weeks — with a goal to close before Christmas — so please keep this as a close hold until then. This was a challenging negotiation because Microsoft wasn't sure they wanted to sell us the asset, but we ultimately convinced them it was in everyone's best interests.
- Platform business model. After months of discussion we ultimately decided not to charge for access to our standard APIs, though we will make a number of changes to our read side platform which Vernal is packaging as Platform 3.0: requiring reciprocal sharing from developers, restricting non-app friends, launching paid invitations, introducing premium paid APIs, and charging developers $49/yr. Mark's insight about the purpose of our platform is important for people to internalize: "There's a clear tension between platform ubiquity and charging, so it's important to first fully explore what we're trying to get out of platform. The answer I came to is that we're trying to enable people to share everything they want, and to do it on Facebook. Sometimes the best way to enable people to share something is to have a developer build a special purpose app or network for that type of content and to make that app social by having Facebook plug into it. However, that may be good for the world but it's not good for us unless people also share back to Facebook and that content increases the value of our network. So ultimately, I think the purpose of platform -- even the read side -- is to increase sharing back into Facebook." This insight leads to the reciprocity requirement where developers who pull data from FB must allow those people to push data from the app back to FB.
- Ansible preload. We had a good meeting in Atlanta with AT&T and HTC where Mark demoed the Ansible preload experience and got people excited about launching in April 2013. We accomplished our primary goal of convincing AT&T to bet on this device as their hero phone promotion in the spring without limiting our ability to offer the software as a download for all Android devices. There's still a lot of work to do here, starting with a trip to Taiwan this week for Vaughan, Brian Corey & Mosseri to get HTC fully on board with this plan. On the product side, our key milestone is January 7 when the device will need to enter AT&T certification.
- Bing search deal. We're trying to negotiate a short-term agreement with Microsoft that will allow us to launch Facebar without finalizing the details of our web search integration until after the initial launch. This is creating some tension with Microsoft because they're worried Facebar will tax their infrastructure without sufficient offsetting revenue. Ultimately, if Facebar drives Bing search share, we should be able to work out a reasonable deal that gets both of us what we want long-term.
- Zynga.com. We renegotiated our Zynga.com partnership because it wasn't working for either of us. Zynga regretted some of the commitments they had made, and we were uncomfortable with their use of FB to promote a competitive desktop games platform. Ultimately, this partnership failed because incentives weren't aligned, and I'm glad we were able to amicably unwind it. With this chapter closed, Zynga tells us they plan to focus their resources on building canvas, mobile and real money games, with Zynga.com a distant 4th priority.
- Mobile games platform. We're taking a page from the book of Kakao and Line as we've watched them build successful mobile games platforms in Korea and Japan. They sign exclusive deals with mobile game developers to promote their apps in exchange for 30% net rev-share (net after Apple/Google's 30% cut). We're going to test this model with a few developers by promoting their apps via sponsored bookmarks that will appear above-the-fold in the lefthand shelf of Wilde and FB4A.
- Apple iTunes. Their latest foot dragging on the iTunes OG and affiliate deal came last week when they asked us for more information about our plans for mobile App Center. I don't know where this is coming from, but I suspect they might be getting nervous about Kakao and Line building platforms on top of their platforms, and they are probing to see if we have similar plans (note: this is pure speculation / paranoia on my part).

- Canvas revenue. The accounting for canvas revenue in Q4 will be a bit funky due to the 4th-month catch-up. On an apples-to-apples basis for Q4 this business is roughly flat y/y, a bit up over Q3, and trending 4% above our last forecast from October.
- Karma. The product is rolled-out to 50% of US users, generating ~$15-20k/day in gross sales. Half of all orders originate on mobile where recipient conversion is much lower than desktop, but it's expected to improve when we remove the "pay later" option on iOS and Android in the next couple of weeks. We saw our first significant fraud vector after launching iTunes gift cards where 73% of initial orders were fraudulent (we only lost $250).
- Instagram integration. Over the past few months, Jeff Marshall and others in UO have been working closely with the Instagram team. UO is now answering a large % of Instagram's tickets, we're aligning our content policies, and we've built an Instagram help center on our content management platform.

People:

- Alex Schultz. He's playing a key role in advancing our mobile games platform strategy.
- Amin and Chris D. They did a terrific job negotiating the Atlas deal.
- Karma team. I'm worried the Karma business is ramping so slowly, especially relative to expectations. I'm sure people are talking about this. It's still early of course, I just hope the team is able to accelerate growth in the next few months.
- James Mitchell (confidential). James has been at FB for 5+ years and is one the most beloved leaders in UO. Colm is making some changes to the org which are uncomfortable for James, and we're doing our best to land him in a good place.
- Katie Faul. Katie goes on maternity this week, leaving behind some nice momentum -- and a small, solid team in place -- around SDK adoption and Neko sales to torso developers.
- Monika Bickert. Monika is moving from Colin Stretch's team over to Justin's org to lead global platform policy enforcement under Ellen Silver.
- Todd Miner. Todd is moving from Tim Campos' team over to Justin's org to lead NA developer support engineering, also under Ellen Silver.

Me:

- Spent the weekend in St. Louis with our close friends, where the weather was a balmy 70 degrees and sunny. Went to the football game on Sunday to watch 49ers vs Rams. Kids and adults all had a great time, and we picked a good weekend to be away from the Bay Area (though a bad weekend to be a 49ers fan).

Rob and I exchanged IMs about this over the weekend and he's on it, but I want to make sure we don't sign off on this from a policy perspective until we have answers (and possibly a discussion with the product team) about the searchability of the "mentions." (The bullying/harassment issues need to be discussed if they are/will be.)

Nicky, am I the only one holding us up on this or do you have some outstanding questions as well?

Tag anyone: Rob and Nicky worked with the privacy and identity, legal, and PMM teams to evaluate a proposal to expand tagging on Facebook to include the ability to tag non-friends or friends-of-friends and to do so in contexts in which the tagged person may not be able to see the content. As we discussed at the weekly privacy download, we are comfortable with the approach that has been proposed. Nicky is working with the team to understand the plan for FOF tagging for minors and outlining a strategy for rolling this out, including briefing the SAB.

Highlights

World Economic Forum Annual Meeting in Davos: I thought it might be helpful to give you Sheryl's topline that she included in her HPM. (Please keep confidential.) I added a few additional policy oriented observations here as well. Last part includes the summary of the key (but not all) meetings. On the follow up for meetings, I will send individuals emails, so please look for those so that we can act quickly and build on the momentum.

Overall, the outlook on the economy is much brighter than last year. Last year there was a lot of talk about three truly bad possible events – a double dip recession in the US, the collapse of the Euro, and a hard landing in China. This year, all 3 of these seem less likely in the short run, but mostly because short-term fixes have been applied, not because any of the fundamental economic problems for any of these 3 regions have been solved. David Gergen described himself as a “short-term pessimist and long-term optimist” – with short-term meaning that he does not think we can solve our problems in the next few years and long-term meaning that despite the lack of ability to address real issues in our Congress, somehow he continues to believe in the United States. Very sobering.

Other thoughts on random topics:

- Bloomberg – They did a story on the family wealth of China’s new leader – and their website is now banned in China for 6 months as retribution. Their terminal business was not touched, which is what they care about. Sobering for those who hope China is opening up quickly.
- Obama second term – Barely mentioned at all. Not a good sign in terms of expectations on what can be done in the US or the US’s impact on the world.
- China – Huge focus for everyone both on the economic side, where the risks of slowing growth seem so large to everyone, and on the political side, where no one seems to know what will happen.

From the Facebook point of view, my top-line thoughts:

- Ads. Met with a great number of our top partners – Walmart, Pepsi, Publicis, WPP, Omnicom, Nestle, Unilever. We are increasingly important to everyone and these folks are talking the talk about making social core and their marketing social from the ground up. We are in a good place with all of these partners going into 2013 – feels really different even compared to last year. The ROI work we have done is clearly making this difference. Congrats to these teams.
- Policy-makers. We are clearly having the right dialogues around data protection. On the data and privacy front, Europe is an increasing challenge and our team’s work to keep one standard for Europe that is not overly prescriptive is critical and will definitely be an uphill battle. ML additions to this one:
 - I definitely came away with a deeper appreciation for what our EMEA team has been talking about which is European backlash against American companies and intensive lobbying efforts. I don’t want this to have a chilling effect on our activity but we should think carefully about how we engage and figuring out ways, if possible, to distinguish ourselves from the pack. It was particularly striking how Reding kept making the point to us and in sessions I attended with her that this law will happen whether you like it or not so get on board. And even when we would say, we are for it, she couldn’t really hear it.
 - More and more emphasis on regulating data usage and not data collection.
 - There seemed to be consensus that Europe is definitely setting the standard for data protection principals and that rather than moving to the lowest common denominator, companies will, out of necessity, have to conform to the highest/most conservative standards coming out of Europe. This is largely due to the in the absence of strong privacy principals/framework coming out the US.
- Partners. One sign that Davos is not as central as it used to be is that the mobile carriers were not there in force this year. Two critical meetings on our project to connect the world – Airtel of India, and Qualcomm – to start the process of exploring possible business partnerships and subsidies. Promising so far.

Summary of our Davos meetings:

- Viviane Reding, European Commissioner for Justice, Fundamental Rights, and Citizenship. She is the architect of the European Data Protection Directive which is the privacy law that is being revised right now in Europe and is expected to be finalized by 2014. We've made some progress, but generally we have a difficult relationship with her. (This is not unique to us; she is not a fan of American companies.) She attended Sheryl's Lean In dinner and we met with her right afterwards. While she enjoyed the dinner, she felt it was a very "American" discussion about women's leadership issues. Getting more women into C-level jobs and on boards was supposed to be how they bonded and it backfired a bit. (Later in the week, however, they spoke on the same panel – women economic decision makers – and found some areas of common ground.) We focused on the European Data Directive. Reding was very clear that the European Parliament and an increasing number of member states support her vision for the EU Data Directive. We emphasized that we were supportive of the regulation but wanted to make sure it was implemented in a way that did not impact on jobs or innovation in Europe. Reding was concerned that our lobbying on the issue did not emphasize our support for the broad concepts and focused only on the areas of disagreement. (For example, she noted that we are too aggressive on profiling.) She was concerned that this approach was polarizing the debate and undermining the many issues where we share a common approach on data regulation such as the "one stop shop" regulator proposal. Reding requested that we do an analysis of how much we save through the current system of having only one regulator in Europe versus having 27 different ones and that we make this part of the public debate. We need to decide whether we do something like this.
- Enda Kenny, Prime Minister of Ireland. We have a great relationship with Kenny and this year it was important to meet with him not only because of our substantial investment in Ireland, but because Ireland has the Presidency of the European Union for the next 6 months. That means they have an opportunity to influence the European Data Directive revisions. Kenny emphasized the importance of Facebook's Irish Headquarters for his country and his appreciation for the continued growth and expansion of our presence. We used the meeting to press them to make the EU Data Directive a priority for their Presidency. The Prime Minister said that they could exercise significant influence as Presidents of the EU, even though technically Ireland is supposed to remain neutral in this role. We said that the Data Directive in its current form was a threat to jobs, innovation and economic growth in Europe. The Prime Minister committed to using their EU Presidency to achieve a positive outcome on the Directive. We also attended a dinner hosted by senior Irish politicians to work through the various ways that the Irish could be helpful on the EU Data Directive.
- Michel Barnier, European Commissioner for Internal Market and Services. He is the powerful Commissioner responsible for relaunching Europe's single market. He asked how to use Facebook to stimulate a debate among EU citizens about the Single Market Act. We gave him some examples and said that we would follow up to give his office assistance on how to set up a campaign. We explained that we strongly supported the single European market and that this concept was useful in the EU Data Directive debate. We also shared our concerns about the risks of the current data directive proposal and its impact on jobs and economic growth in Europe. Europe is currently implementing an E-commerce Directive and he assured us that the intermediary liability exemptions (that we want to keep) would not be impacted as countries adapt their laws to comply with the Directive. Finally, he explained the patent reform in Europe and his work to bring down the costs of European patents (10x the cost of US patents).
- Joaquin Almunia, European Commissioner for Competition. He is responsible for anti-trust issues in Europe. Last year, we met with Almunia to share our perspective on Google's Search Plus your World which they have been investigating. This year, our only objective was to build our own relationship with Almunia so that we can address any concerns he might have. Sheryl emphasized the importance of having an open dialogue with the Commissioner. She also noted that there had been more noise about Facebook and anti-trust issues over the last year. The Commissioner assured her that there had been no formal and informal complaint about Facebook. He said that the noise was just media speculation and nothing more. Almunia said that there would always be media interest in anti-trust issues related to Facebook, Apple, Google and Amazon simply because of the size and dominance of the companies. Sheryl explained various metrics that demonstrated that Facebook is significantly smaller than the other companies he mentioned. Anticipating one area of concern for the Commissioner, Sheryl briefed him on the tools and policies we have developed to address data portability. Almunia said that the debate on data portability was only just beginning. He mentioned that in the future, it was likely that competition experts would want to explore the use of data to monetize and create competition problems but he had not yet received a case and did not expect to anytime soon. He said that the only issue he had investigated that touched on these issues was the Google/DoubleClick acquisition. He asked whether we had been investigated for any anti-trust issues in the US. We said no and explained our relationship with the FTC. Almunia said it would be useful to develop an ongoing, open relationship with Facebook so that we could exchange views on various evolving issues. He said that his preference was to discuss issues before they become investigations.

At the end, Almunia raised Google's EU anti-trust investigations and said that he would have preferred to address these issues informally, before they received so many complaints. He is looking for appropriate remedies rather than resorting to fines and hopes to reach a settlement with Google by summer 2013. He stated that this sort of investigation was helpful because it created a framework for these issues. Almunia raised Google and Android and said that no formal investigation had begun because they first need to resolve the search issues they've been investigating but after that they plan to look at Android. Sheryl noted that we were more concerned about the anti-trust issues associated with Android than with search. Next step is to set up a meeting with him and his team. Richard and Erika need to decide with Colin Stretch who should attend and how to structure the session. Colin already plans to be in Brussels April 15-17th.

- Neelie Kroes, European Commissioner for Communications Networks, Content and Technology. We have a great relationship with this European Commissioner. There is an easy rapport but we also share similar perspectives on a range of issues. Our Brussels team is very active in Kroes' CEO Coalition on "Better Internet for Children" which is working to identify best practices for giving kids a safe online experience. She is looking for additional support from us in 2 areas: 1) Wants Mark or Sheryl to attend the Leaders Meeting in June where they will clear unfinished business before finalizing their proposals and 2) Even though we took an industry leading step in introducing a support dashboard which enables users to track the status of their reports/user complaints around harmful or abusive content, they would like us to enhance this feature. They would like to ensure that all reports from minors are being taken seriously and that reports are not lost in the system. We took the time ask her thoughts about under 13s. (Many policymakers in Davos noted that their 10, 11, and 12 year old children are begging for Facebook accounts.) She and her staff seem open to some kind of Facebook lite service that provides a controlled social environment for under 13s and verifies age and identity. (Anthony, her staffer, said that if you ask people whether 6 year olds should be able to play together on the internet, they will say no. But no one objects to two 6 year olds playing together on a safe playground. That's the kind of environment we need to replicate on line. Sheryl's response: "I love you.") They also are interested in innovative digital literacy content and we are going to be introducing them to the Family Online Safety Institutes' Platform for Good which we helped start. Finally, we discussed the European Data Directive and discussed a strategy of focusing on the smaller EU countries who will benefit most from moving to a single market and single regulator system.

- George Osborne, Chancellor of the Exchequer (UK). Pitched us on 2 initiatives that are important to him: 1) He wants Facebook to join other companies in making a substantial financial investment in Tech City, the hub for digital companies near London, which has substantial financial backing by the UK government. Sheryl explained that while we are happy to review and consider any proposals, this is not something that we do at this stage. 2) He wants to see more programming training in UK high schools. We explained that we have entered into a partnership with Apps for Good to launch the first Facebook-endorsed app-building courses in schools and that we want to launch this in 12 underserved high schools in London with him. He seemed very pleased. Sheryl asked about his outlook on the economy. He explained the ways in which Europe has turned the corner and the policies he is promoting to maintain the positive momentum, including making Britain a true digital economy. We asked him to get involved in two areas that will help the economy: 1) Finding ways to expedite visa applications so that we can bring more engineers to London. He said that we should be looking at intra company transfers and high tech special visa route rules which should help. He also said that we would try to understand some of cases better to see how he could help. 2) Becoming even more active and vocal in the European Data Directive debate and to really help shape the proposals. We praised the UK's impact assessment of the regulation which described the costs of the regulation and Osborne's particular criticism that the impact assessment actually underestimated the costs. He asked for a detailed briefing on the regulation and he will figure out how to get more involved. He was very interested in Sheryl's Lena In book and the things we could do to advance women and the economy. He offered to host a reception for her book launch at 10 Downing Street. Finally, he really enjoyed his visit to Austin and the engagement announcement. His 11 year old is desperate to have a FB account. We told him that he should bring the 11 year old to the office there. He would like to.
- Fleur Pellerin, Minister for Small and Medium Enterprises, Innovation, and the Digital Economy (France). This was our first meeting with Pellerin and we used the opportunity to share our jobs and economy messaging and to identify areas of collaboration on programs such as Small Business Road Shows, Apps for Good, Be Bold Stop Bullying, Platform for Good, and Safety Road Shows. Pellerin was very interested in how these could work with her "Digital Transition" project. She shared some of the challenges in working on digital issues in France and said that it was important for Facebook to be seen as providing solutions for the digital community in France. Pellerin raised the new tax proposals that are being discussed in France but simply noted the Google and Microsoft's tax optimizing behavior meant that France had to develop new fiscal concepts for the digital economy. We discussed the Data Protection Directive and Pellerin said that she was concerned about alignment on the lowest common denominator privacy standards and the fact that the one stop shop regulator (in Ireland) could encourage this. There is room to develop a strong relationship with Pellerin and Delphine Reyes, our new Head of Policy in France, will follow up on the various initiatives we discussed. Pellerin also plans to visit MPK in April or May.
- Christian Paradis, Minister of Industry (Canada). We have been seeking a letter of comfort from the Canadian government which indicates that putting a data center in Canada would not give Canadians jurisdiction over non-Canadian user data. We were down to one issue on the letter by the time the meeting took place. Sheryl took a firm approach and outlined that a decision on the Data Center was imminent. She emphasized that if we could not get comfort from the Canadian Government on the jurisdiction issue we had other options. The Minister said that we would get the letter we needed by the end of the day. The Canadians explained that they were now using political lawyers rather than the Industry Canada lawyers (to bypass the bureaucracy) and that this gave them more flexibility to agree to our suggested changes. We got the letter we needed and are now finalizing whether we put the data center in Canada or Iowa.

- Malaysian Minister of International Trade and Industry and Minister of Science, Technology and Innovation. We met with these Ministers to discuss investment opportunities in Asia. We used this opportunity to discuss policy issues that could impact on our consideration of Malaysia as a potential site for our Asia Data Center.
- Facebook Lives: This year we interviewed a variety of policymakers and influencers to discuss the Davos Zeitgeist and highlight Facebook's influence. We discussed technology and labor issues with German Minister of Labor and Social Issues Dr Ursula von der Leyen; social media and smart power with Professor Joseph Nye; crowdsourcing a constitution and the role of social media in democracy with Iceland's President Olafur Ragnar Grimsson; social media and the internet as a tool for development with Muhammad Yunus; trade, women and the opportunity of technology with Indonesia's Minister Mari Pangestu; Facebook and Sustainability with OPOWER's Alex Laskey; Davos and Facebook Effect with David Kirkpatrick and Facebook and Disaster Relief with Secretary General Berkele Gelata of the International Federation of the Red Cross and Red Crescent.

Privacy and Policy Management:

- CBBB investigation: Erin, Rob, Susan, and Ed continued negotiations with the Council of Better Business Bureaus to conclude its investigation of our Facebook Exchange practices. Following some late-breaking demands from CBBB, the planned release of its decision is now slated for next week. At the same time, we are working with the Shark team on how to comply with self-regulatory principles when FB engages in retargeting. As part of this plan, we are mapping out a strategy and principles for a potential new self-regulatory program, which would leverage our relationships with the Future of Privacy Forum, academics, and other groups.
- Project Family external engagement: Erin, Nicky, Rob and Ed met with a group of advocates and academics – including representatives from Consumers Union, the Center for Digital Democracy, Georgetown University, American University, Northwestern University, the University of Arizona, and Yale University, to discuss Project Family and the advocates' views on the impact of advertising on children. Although we did not agree on many of the substantive issues, the discussions were positive and productive, and we believe that we will be able to move the discussion in a direction that is more supportive as we move towards our launch decision. Also this week, Rob attended a luncheon featuring the senior FTC lawyer responsible for COPPA rules and enforcement, which was positive and led to some good (private) discussions about the FTC's views on COPPA in the context of Facebook.
- Collections: The privacy team is working with the platform team to shape the roll out of the Collections product. Key issues here are helping users understand the audience of a story when they add something to a collection from Facebook (audience defaulted to public) and how the audience may be different if a story is added through an OG action. We also are working to clarify the relationship between Likes and Collections. The product team is willing to offer a NUX that explains default privacy, highlights how people can change this default audience, and educates people how privacy works differently with Likes. We have been working over the past day to bring the audience selector inline, consistent with other features on FB that have per-object privacy. The product team does not want to offer an audience selector within the "+ add" button but they may be willing to include it in the hover. We will be continuing to work on this feature over the coming days. If you have any questions, please reach out to Erin or Ed.

- Tag anyone: Rob and Nicky worked with the privacy and identity, legal, and PMM teams to evaluate a proposal to expand tagging on Facebook to include the ability to tag non-friends or friends-of-friends and to do so in contexts in which the tagged person may not be able to see the content. As we discussed at the weekly privacy download, we are comfortable with the approach that has been proposed. Nicky is working with the team to understand the plan for FOF tagging for minors and outlining a strategy for rolling this out, including briefing the SAB.
- Active status: Rob and Aldo worked with the messages team on plans to expand our use of “active” indications, such as the green chat dot and “last active” indicators, across various Facebook products. We discussed the privacy team's collective recommendations at the weekly privacy download. If you have any questions, please reach out to Rob or Aldo.
- Aura/Ansible: The privacy team is continuing to work closely with the Aura team to shape proposed changes to the feature and with the Ansible team on the new user education flow. We will provide more information during next week's privacy download.
- Facial recognition: Rob, Andrew and Jodi continued to work with the photos team to evaluate the landscape for relaunch of facial recognition technology beginning this coming week. (The plan is to launch on January 31 in the United States and in the rest of the world – excluding Canada and Europe – the following week.) We also will continue working with the policy and product teams on managing some of the later product plans that may raise policy issues.
- FB Card: Aldo has been working with the product team on the FB card project, which is a facebook-branded gift card for multiple merchants that can be filled via Facebook Gifts. Ex: Nicky can gift Aldo $10 for use at Sephora and Rob can gift Aldo $10 for Target. Both values would be stored on the card, and Aldo can only redeem those values from those specific merchants. Users can maintain their balances via the gifts UI. The product teams are working under the direction that transactional data (such as how much money is left on my card for Sephora or that I was gifted value at Target) will be used in other areas and contexts such as PYMK and Ads. Aldo has been working with the team on building in user notice for the use of Facebook data. Namely that adequate language be included in the recipient flow before gift acceptance to cover our holding of transactional data and that its use is governed by the DUP (as opposed to FB Payments Inc).
- Mobile measurement w/ Neko: Aldo and Ed have been working with the Neko team to allow all developers the ability to receive information about which ad a particular app install came from. The risk, as with view tags and click tags, is that this can enable a developer to back out the targeting specs of a converted user. We are working to ensure that we have the proper legal and technical constraints in place to prevent developers from deriving this data. We're also trying to place this in the context of other tracking methods such that we have consistent protections regardless of method used.
- Minutiae: This is a new feature within the composer that allows a user to include more structured data into their status update (see below). This is currently limited to a set of 6 actions (watching, reading, drinking, etc). The suggested nouns are generally pages and hubs or other variations on hubs ("chocolate ice cream" for example just points to "ice cream"). The feature respects the audience selected for a particular post. There may be concerns about the kind of pages/hubs we recommend or allow to be structured data via the composer, though users could just type the same status update in an unstructured format today.

- DLX Audit closeout: Aldo continued to work with the XFN team on the DLX audit, focusing on the long-term storage of data by DLX and a review of DLX's Amsterdam facility. Aldo has placed both the original DLX audit report and the Supplemental report for the UK expansion in our new Public Policy shared box folder.
- Platform Policy Reciprocity Update: We updated our Platform Policies to clarify that developers (a) must enable people to share back on Facebook and (b) may not use Platform for products that replicate core Facebook products or services without our permission. Here is the blog post announcing and explaining the new terms: <https://developers.facebook.com/blog/post/2013/01/25/clarifying-our-platform-policies/>
- Demos Hate Group Research: Ciara Lyden and Siobhan Cummiskey met with the Centre for Analysis and Research at Demos in London this week. Demos is pioneering social media research in the context of public policy and recently ran an advertising campaign on FB targeting a right wing group, the EDL, with a survey about their political sentiments. They also used our ad targeting tool to tailor the demographics. The results gave interesting insights into this obscure group that will assist the content policy team in assessing their activity and content on FB. Their next research projects include "hate speech on social media sites" and "how social media can win an election for you." The EMEA Public Policy team is following up with training and participation at conferences.
- Unauthorized Page Checkpoint: Nick Sullivan worked with the UO-IP team to launch a checkpoint for Pages that "speak in the voice" of an individual without their authorization. For example, the admin of a Page titled "Kris Jenner" (the Kardashian's mother) created by someone else as a joke will be required to either (a) specifically mention in the title that this is an unauthorized Page, or (b) remove the Page. This is similar to the way Twitter handles "fake" accounts.
- Sandy Hook: Continued support of the families from Sandy Hook, who have escalated memorial pages to us which were not created by the families. As we allow the public to express their grief through Facebook, these Pages do not violate our Terms and have remained on the site. To navigate these circumstances, we have developed a system, in conjunction with Policy Management, to ask the admins to reach out to the families, who can then request removal. Content Policy is working with legal to pursue next steps.

US Policy:

- Immigration Reform: A lot of behind-the-scenes activity this week in Washington on Immigration Reform, which President Obama has indicated is his highest legislative priority. Republican Senators Orrin Hatch (R-UT) and Marco Rubio (R-FL) have teamed up with Democratic Senators Klobuchar (D-MN) and Coons (D-DE) on a high-skilled immigration reform bill that would dramatically increase the number of H1B temporary visas and green cards available for the kinds of high-skilled engineers we hire. The group circulated the latest draft of their bill, called the Immigration Innovation Act of 2013 (or "I-squared"), late this week, and plans to introduce it early next week. They are generating letters of support from the tech industry. A number of our trade associations will send supportive letters, and we are deciding whether to send one from Facebook directly. Next week, the President is expected to lay out his own comprehensive immigration reform proposal, while a bipartisan group of Senators that has been working on the issue is expected to also announce a framework for the bill. Our goal will be to get the I-squared language into whatever bill moves in the Senate (where the real action is expected to be in the first half of the year), and we are meeting with key players on both sides to accomplish that.

- Decedents' Accounts bills: On Thursday, Will Castleberry traveled to Lincoln, Nebraska to meet with members of the Senate Finance Committee (where the bill was heard) and Attorney General Bruning. Steve DelBianco testified at the hearing on behalf of industry. The meetings were successful. There is a 50% chance that the bill will be held in Committee this year in anticipation of the upcoming Uniform Law Commission report. Regardless, the measure was amended to only allow the decedent's personal representative to terminate an account, while language allowing the personal representative "access to" and "take control of" language was stricken. In Virginia – the sponsor has amended his bill so that it only affects minors. We continue to express concern with the fact the bill still conflicts with ECPA in that it compels ICSPs to provide user content without a warrant. On Friday morning we suggested that the sponsor change the "shall" in the bill to "may" thus allowing ICSPs to provide the information (for minors) without trying to compel them to. We are still waiting on an answer. In Washington State, legislation was introduced with language relating to transfer of property after a person's death. Ann Blackwood believes it is likely that language concerning digital assets will be amended into this bill.
- Employer Access to Social Media Accounts: This year we are facing a slew of new bills prohibiting employers and universities from requesting access to an applicant or employee's social media account. Measures have been introduced in AZ, CA, CO, IL (students only), MS, MO, MT, NH, NE, NJ, NY, OR, TX and VT. We expect more states to follow. These bills have the potential to be problematic in that the prohibition is not against "requiring" access to an account but rather "requesting" access. This prohibition could be interpreted to make it illegal for a supervisor to send a "Friend" request to a subordinate. Moreover, the bills do not make allowances for employers investigating employees for activity such as IP theft, harassment and downloading child pornography. We have developed industry model legislation addressing these issues and a set of talking points. Because Facebook is the main focus of these bills, our allies in industry have agreed to lead the public effort opposing the bills while we will continue to work behind the scenes. On Thursday, Will Castleberry met with Chairman of the Nebraska Senate Judiciary Committee – where a version of the bill will be heard on Monday. Our arguments were well received. Steve DelBianco of NetChoice and Cox Cable will testify on behalf of the industry amendments on Monday.
- Virginia:
 - Trademark Legislation: Virginia AG Ken Cuccinelli introduced legislation amending the Commonwealth's trademark statute in a way that would adversely affect online advertising. The law broadly defines "trademark," "service mark" and adds a new standard of "used in a deceptive or misleading manner." The bill would create additional liability for ad networks and force them to serve as arbitrators in trademark disputes. Will Castleberry joined a conference call with the AG's staff to discuss the bill's challenges. On Friday Facebook's outside consultant in Virginia and the Northern Virginia Technology Council successfully lobbied to send the bill to summer study.

- Computer Trespass Law: Senator Mark Obenshain quietly passed a measure through his committee changing Virginia's Trespass statute by striking the "malicious" intent requirement and replacing it with "without authority." Facebook's consultant, along with the NVTC spoke with the Senator to express our concern. The Senator has agreed to call the measure back from the floor. We will work to have it sent to summer study.
- Hawaii: A bill limiting electronic communication between a teacher and a student to those resources and systems made available through Department of Education networks was introduced on Wednesday. These bills are used to prohibit teachers from "Friending" students. A similar bill passed and then was repealed in Missouri. Facebook Public Policy will make sure the ACLU is aware of this measure so they can oppose it. Hawaii has a supermajority of Democrats in both houses.
- RNC Winter Meetings: Katie attended the Republican National Committee's winter meeting where she helped co-host state party executive directors, committee staff and digital vendors at an informal gathering to share some lessons of what worked and what didn't in 2012. Katie also participated on a technology panel and spoke to over 150 Republican officials on how Facebook was used in the election.
- Political Innovation Summit: Adam and Katie travelled to NYC to participate in a Political Innovation Summit organized and hosted by Google.
- DC visits/events: The DC office hosted Rep. Leonard Lance (R-NJ), the incoming vice chairman of our key House Energy & Commerce sub-committee for coffee. Lance should be a good ally on the committee. Also participated in events with House E & C Chair Fred Upton and the House Freshman, as well as freshman Senator Heidi Heitkamp (D-ND), who is shaping up to be a good friend of FB.
- Rep Scalise speech: Rep. Steve Scalise (R-LA) is the new chairman of the influential Republican Study Committee (RSC) in the House of Representatives. This is the caucus of the more conservative-leaning members of the Republican conference—it used to be a rump group, but it now includes a substantial majority of the Republicans in the House. Over the summer, FB DC hosted Rep. Scalise for an introductory coffee in our DC office, and later he toured MPK with a small group of Republican lawmakers. This week, Rep. Scalise gave an excellent speech on Internet Freedom, in which he warned his colleagues that privacy regulation in the U.S. was a threat to that freedom. The speech included these lines: "As Congress is debating its own privacy legislation, we must keep Internet Freedom close to heart. That means always asking "what are we losing" with each new rule. That means always remembering that start-ups are staffed by entrepreneurs and engineers, not compliance officers and attorneys. That means understanding that mom-and-pop operations are not just brick-and-mortar but web and blog-based nowadays. That means recognizing the many strides that industry and non-profits have already made to protect user privacy. All of this means that I am highly skeptical that legislative and regulatory efforts to curb the collection and use of browsing activity can be accomplished without impeding user access to information on the web. I caution my colleagues in Congress, the NTIA, and the FTC to tread carefully." I'd say the visits had their desired effect!

EMEA: Didn't forget EMEA; just didn't have it.

India:

- Policy Incentives for mobile and Internet Growth : Ankhi worked with industry association IAMAI to develop and file industry representation on tax and policy incentives for increased broadband penetration, development of mobile app ecosystem and tax moratorium for online advertising by SMBs. These submissions were made to the Ministry of Finance, Govt. of India for its annual national budget exercise. Our sectoral ministry, the Dept. of Communications and IT also supported industry's demands for fiscal and non-fiscal incentives to promote growth in access, apps ecosystem and e-commerce. We will now keep up our engagement with the Finance Ministry to ensure industry proposals are reflected in the budget of the Govt. of India for 2013-2014.

- Internet Freedom : Two more third party Public Interest litigations challenging the offending sections of the IT Act which promote internet censorship were heard by the Supreme Court this week. The litigation has been filed by civil liberties NGO, Common Cause and Member of Parliament – Rajeev Chandrashekhar. The Supreme Court has issued notices to the Union of India. All these public interest litigations, a total of four against the Govt. of India, will be heard together from Feb – April 2013. The Govt. has a tough job defending itself. We had a coalition meeting and agreed to keep the issue alive in the press in order to reflect public sentiment to the Court. Minister Kapil Sibal has said that issues will now be decided by the Supreme Court; he seems to have stopped pressuring companies and civil society groups. We engaged with the newspaper Hindu to help shape this story: <http://www.thehindu.com/news/national/sibal-wants-court-to-resolve-problems-in-it-act/article4342117.ece>

Australia/NZ:

- FB+Education: we have finalized our proposal to establish an Advisory Committee to localize the FB for Educators and FB for School Counselors Guides for Australia and New Zealand and partner with the Alannah and Madeline Foundation. This will be one of our major safety initiatives locally this year.
- Online grooming: an independent senator who is very media-friendly has written us a letter requesting a meeting to pre-brief us about a law he wants to introduce that would make it a criminal offense to lie about your age to a child for the purposes of committing a sexual offense. We are going to use this opportunity to engage with the senator, who is also agitating on the issue of social gaming, and provide information about our many safety efforts but conscious that this meeting will likely be on the record and quoted publicly.
- Complaint Handling Protocol: we finalized our "self declaration" that outlines how we comply with the Complaint Handling Protocol and sent it through to the Australian Government. They will likely publish ours, together with those of Google, Yahoo! and Microsoft, next week.
- FB+Politics: met with the communications advisor for the state New South Wales Minister for Primary Industries and Small Business. They reached out to us and are interested in increasing the understanding among NSW conservative politicians about how to use Facebook effectively. We confirmed an agenda for training sessions for all communications advisors for the state government conservative politicians and are now working to identify the best date to hold these sessions.

Programs:

- Education: We're working with Andrew Noyes and Libby Leffler on a partnership with the organizers of Digital Learning Day (Feb 6th) to create a moment when we amplify our role in education. Through the partnership, we'll be culling stories for our Facebook in Education Page. We're also exploring a takeover of the Facebook in Education Page by an education VIP (DLD is approaching Sec. Duncan). This is a fairly light lift effort that should set the stage nicely for our Education and Digital Citizenship Hackathons later in the year with Gates Foundation and MacArthur Foundation.

- Privacy: Rita is driving a set of activities around privacy, including the 'Ask Our CPO' column and the Data Privacy Day livestream. The 'Ask Our CPO' column is planned to launch on Friday 1/25. It will feature a video introduction from Erin, a note answering our most commonly asked privacy questions, and an app that enables users to submit privacy questions to Erin Egan. We will select a few questions to respond to each month. For Data Privacy Day on 1/28/13, Erin will be speaking on a panel about Data Stewardship and Privacy with the CPOs of Mastercard and Microsoft. We will Livestream the event including Erin's panel (which is from 9:15-10:10am EST) on /fbprivacy and take questions from the FB audience. We're running ads to help ensure an audience for the Livestream.
- Compassion Research Day: Krista, along with Freddy and Alison, supported the 3rd Compassion Research Day at MPK on Tuesday. Overall, very positive results from a community engagement perspective: about 50-75 external participants in attendance, coming from research and medical backgrounds. We also had a handful of journalists who showed up to cover the event and are still awaiting coverage.
- Friends of Safety: Over the course of the next three weeks, we will be finalizing Friends of Safety program. Friends of Safety is a pilot program, which will allow for us to have more consistent, structured and frequent communication with the safety nonprofits. Friend of Safety will be a closed and closely managed Facebook Group. We will do an internal call for final additions to our participant list next week – please be on alert for that email.
- Sextortion: Dave worked with User Operations and Comms to finalize a Help Center page and a Family Safety Center page that provides sextortion education. The content is produced by ConnectSafely.org, a member of our Safety Advisory Board.

People

- Meredith: She worked with Camille and our team to get our policy bilat meetings scheduled. This on its own is a major challenge because they move around and logistics in Davos are complex. She organized the FB lives, dealt with WEF contract issues, and put together briefing books. From London, since things are constantly changing on the schedule, she helped trouble-shoot issues, kept us all on track, and did all of this while she had food poisoning. Throughout this whole process, while she was taking it from every direction (our team, Sheryl's office, WEF, outsiders, drivers etc), she stayed steady and cool. Heroic work, and I am deeply thankful.
- Sarah WW: Great first Davos for her. She managed our contractual obligations (pulses, FB lives, and promotion) well. She is deeply knowledgeable about our policy issues throughout the world so she was a key contributor in meetings and we were able to cover more ground because she was there. For example, she created relationships with the Malaysians at a breakfast which is helpful if we are considering putting a data center there and she spent a lot of time with the Irish and the human rights advocates.
- Our policy team: Really good line up of meetings and the briefings were high quality. Thank you for giving it your all. In addition, it was clear from each meeting that our team is making an impact and our folks are well respected.
- Chris Herndon: Chris was asked this week to be on the outside "steering committee" of advisors to Rep. Lee Terry, the new Chairman of our key House sub-committee, which is a real tribute to the relationship Chris has built with Rep. Terry and his staff. (Note: this is the same member that publicly referred to Chris as a "the guy from the movie The Hangover" at CES, so maybe he just felt bad about that). Nice work, Chris!

- Greg Maurer: House leadership asked Greg to lead the outside advisory effort on high-skilled immigration reform—another sign of just how strong our relationships are with the House R's as a result of the great team we have.

Me

- Even though I always dread it, Davos is incredibly efficient for advocacy, and has its moments of enlightenment and fun. Somehow it felt a little less pretentious this year and maybe that's because it's grown a little tired. (Not as many people asking, "How's your Davos?" Seriously.) In addition, one of the upsides is that it forces us to get really focused on our policy objectives and messages. Some highs and lows from this year (for your amusement):
 - I got a raging cold on the way over and it seemed to only get worse throughout the week, so that wasn't so fun. At one salon type dinner, I was coughing so hard while I was speaking that I almost threw up. I had the good sense to excuse myself and leave the room.
 - As usual, we ran into some speed bumps during the week. For example, when Sheryl and Charlton arrived on Wednesday, Charlton wasn't registered and didn't have a badge. Certainly not a glorious start to the conference or a career enhancing incident when your COO's key person is not able to do his job. Normally it takes weeks to get a badge issued because the Swiss police have to authorize it and they are either very thorough or slow. We got it taken care of in 4 hours. The team really pulled together in moments of "crisis" and worked well together all around. It was great to spend time with Sheryl, Charlton, and Sarah WW.
 - I attended Sheryl's businesses (ads and partnership) meetings when I could and learned a bunch.
 - I participated in 2 working groups: one on data privacy and security and the other on internet values (which focused on internet freedom, IP, and DNT. I lead the panel on internet freedom, a case study on the Innocence of Muslims, and found myself in the odd position of defending Google.) These sessions aren't particularly productive (and often dry and poorly managed) but the interaction around the issues causes you to form or deepen relationships with a variety of policymakers and influencers. One example is that in my session on internet freedom and controversial content, Ken Roth from Human Rights Watch said at least twice, "I agree with Marne." I think he was surprised and so were the others listening. I made everyone stop and take note😊
 - Irish Prime Minister couldn't take his hands out of Charlton's hair. Literally. He was fascinated.
 - At the end of our meeting with Chancellor of the Exchequer George Osborne, I brought up Sheryl's book. The discussion was going well until he was basically giving himself a pat on the back for having a woman as his Chief of Staff. Sheryl and I looked at each other and then Sheryl very nicely said, I think what we should be focusing on is whether there has ever been a woman in "your job" (the principal role and not the supporting one) and if not, why not. This had an impact on him.
 - We thought we had a very good meeting with the Canadians on Friday about the data center. Sheryl played a very mild bad cop; I played good cop; and Sarah WW played something in between. The Minister's awful staff person Sophia, who we met last week and really does not like us, reported back a completely fictitious account of the meeting which made us look like real jerks. After Sarah WW got wind of this, she forced (and I mean shoved us into the cars) to go over to the Canadian reception where the Finance, Trade, and Foreign Affairs ministers were so that we could cut the awful staff person out of the way. Sarah told Charlton to go distract one of the govt aides and she distracted Sophia. I touched based with all 3 ministers, got their cell phone numbers, and we were out of there in 20 minutes. Kudos to Sarah WW.

- Had my first interaction with Congressman Darrell Issa because we were in a working group session together. (As a democrat, I try to stay far away. Nothing good can come from being near his committee.) He's actually very smart, engaging, sarcastic and provocative. As I told Joel, he asked about the "500 cap." First I thought he was talking about shareholders and then I realized he was talking about the 5000 limit on friends. I explained about subscribe and said that we would have one of our experts help him sort this out. He picked up his phone and seemed to get pleasure out of trying to reach his staffer at 2 am. He had lots of good things to say about PIPA/SOPA, including his unusual alliance with Ron Wyden, and is very proud of his opengov.com initiative. (Is there something there for us?) During the wrap up, he was particularly provocative when he said that deaths related to controversial content protest may be the price we pay for bringing 'third world countries into the first world.' (Given Chatham House rules, please do not repeat.)
- I had heard about the Refugee Run for years which is a simulation of what it's like to be a refugee. They changed it to Struggle for Survival which was a simulation on what it's like to live on less than a dollar a day. More than a billion people live on less than a dollar a day. It was only an hour and I was emotionally and physically exhausted afterwards. It was a very powerful experience. Happy to give anyone more detail if interested. What can we do to help?
- FB Lives – Sarah WW was the biggest proponent of doing these because it gives us a way to build a relationship with policymakers and influencers, especially those who we might not encounter through our usual work. We debriefed a bit on these and we have both come to the view that it's a very close call on whether it's worth doing these going forward. We have to evaluate in context.
- It was awesome to see Sheryl sit on a panel in a huge plenary with the likes of Christine Lagarde (IMF), Viviane Reding (EU Commission), Drew Faust (Harvard President), a very successful Saudi businesswoman, and the head of a headhunting firm, and make such an incredible impact on the gender discussion. She blew everyone away and this was a topic of discussion around Davos. For the most part, we were able to successfully tie her book to job creation, economic growth and Facebook in our bilats. This helps Facebook's visibility and credibility.
- Very excited to see my boys at home.

>It is super unclear to me why this is good for us / why we should be allowing this.

>What terms are they violating? and how are we going to signal in the future that this is not ok (and, incidentally, can someone reach out to them and tell them to stop it)?

Douglas Purdy:

>The concept itself is not violating any existing policy that I see. In the new model, they wouldn't be able to get all the friends have to share back all social actions the user >took, etc.

Douglas Purdy:

Douglas Purdy:

>We could say they were a competitive social network, however or if they got big enough, invoke the size clause.

Douglas Purdy:

>Personally, I think the new model helps a great deal here, but the app could still exist, but with better value exchange for us -- today we get nothing and lose a lot.

Samuel Lessin:

>Just so I understand - what do we get in the new model of value in your mind?

Michael Vernal:

>Wouldn't lack of friends' birthdays effectively kill this app?

Michael Vernal:

>And if they could some how build a social graph and encourage gifting, they would have to publish the gift actions back to us.

Douglas Purdy:

>Exactly

Michael Vernal:

>Lastly, per Doug, I think the "competitive" policy should crib from Apple's policies. We should say you can't duplicate core functionality of Facebook without a deal. I think a gifting app is clearly duplicating core functionality.

Douglas Purdy:

>It is not a policy violation

Douglas Purdy:

>Messenger is screwed up for me....

Douglas Purdy:

>Anyway, I agree with mike.

Lee Linden:

>My recommendation would be to focus on the birthdays and life events functionality (vs. gifting) -- and prevent 3rd party apps for scrapping that data and presenting it elsewhere. That seems like core FB, part of user identity, and a key portion of our value prop to users.

Michael Vernal:

>Justin - can we compare our competitive network policy to apple's duplicate functionality policy and see if we can have a similar one?

Douglas Purdy:

>We should change the competitive network language.

Justin Osofsky:

>@Mike: Sure. I'll take a look this weekend.

Samuel Lessin:

>Ok - I hear that if we are going to have a policy about dupe functionality ... Just short of that i can't see reciprocity of who gave whom gifts being compelling

Douglas Purdy:

>I like that better than saying competitive network in the current policy. It provides a clear acid test.

Michael Vernal:

>Isn't it moot? This app can't get off the ground without friend birthdays.

Michael Vernal:

>I have zero anxiety about this app in the platform 3.0 world.

Lee Linden:

>Another example from Amazon which launched just recently:

>https://www.amazon.com/gp/gift-central/organizer/organizerref=hol_2012browse_ffgifter

Douglas Purdy:

>Me either. They could buy ads to bootstrap, but the NUX would be terrible if your friends weren't already there.

Samuel Lessin:

>Ah - duh - good point -- I forgot we were taking away all friend info, including bdays

Douglas Purdy:

>They can still get app friends, but they have a clear bootstrapping problem. I think the app pivots again

Michael Vernal:

>Amazon is a different story because they have scale. We just need to negotiate an overall fb / amazon relationship that would cover this.

Samuel Lessin:

>@doug -- app friends is fine, because that is the user's list....

Lee Linden:

>I'd be interesting if they can use a globally reserved "gift" verb and we create the story.

>Then we can create an aggregate of all gifts sent to a user and offer a "give gift" button which ties into our Gifts product (or partners who are sharing with us)

>It seems like we're going to have just a major set of changes that we're going to want to announce soon-ish, and it seems like we should probably be bundling all these changes together, giving it a name, and letting developers know that this is the next iteration of platform. Things that fall into this category:

>- Deprecating a ton of APIs

>- Introducing the Paid Developer Program

>- Introducing any API charging we end up doing

>- Explaining we'll review all apps going forward

>- Deprecating stream.publish + fully embracing OG

>- Etc.

>Is there any thinking/plan about when + how we'd roll this out? Should we maybe give this thing a name and start project managing to a launch? Do we have enough clarity w/ Mark to start this process?

>(If you guys are already all over this, even better.)

Douglas Purdy:

>Modulo the last item, yes.

Douglas Purdy:

>We will roll this all out with the paid program

Douglas Purdy:

>Which we are talking about tomorrow.

Charles Jolley:

>+1 - I have been thinking of paid program at the trigger point for this announce

Michael Vernal:

>Great. Can we name this (Platform 3.0) and start collecting an exhaustive list of stuff that will launch here? This will probably be the biggest Core Platform launch in >1 year, and so it's a thing and we should start managing it as such.

Charles Jolley:

>Yep. Tomorrow I think we should focus mainly on the Paid Program portion - even though that brings in a lot of other stuff. But I will include a slide with overall what would go into P3.0

Michael Vernal:

>Ok. I think, more than a slide, we should just pull together an exhaustive list of changes we want to make. E.g., go through every single API and decide what we want to kill.

Charles Jolley:

>Yeah I can definitely do that. I have been working on the list of APIs in the background over the last few months.

Charles Jolley:

>So tomorrow we have a review for paid dev program - do you want to reserve a little time to talk about directionally what would be in this launch or wait until I can pull together the exhaustive list and show it to you? (Probably week after next due to thanksgiving)

Michael Vernal:

>Let's use the time however you think is most useful.

Michael Vernal:

Note, I'm 110% supportive of us being really proactive and holding a really high bar for app review for both App Center and Open Graph, and working to make sure everyone we allow into those two channels are really high quality and clearly adding value to the ecosystem.

My feedback below is about going back to folks that have already launched and creating thrash. E.g., if we make Canvas "Games only," we're going to either kill Causes or make an exception, they're going to escalate to Mark, and we're going to spend 30-60 minutes talking about this with Mark instead of talking about how to maximize data acquisition or maximize revenue acquisition.

I agree this is probably a better group conversation, even though it might be less efficient.

My high-level net is that we need to be spending the vast majority of our time -- cross-functionality -- on pushing core metrics (acquiring data via Open Graph or driving revenue from games or mobile ads).

On the one hand, I definitely want to clean-up a lot of the issues called out below. On the other hand, I think we have a (negative) history of spending a lot of time "cleaning stuff up for the future" under the theory that it saves us work down the line, but I think what it actually does is create a bunch of work in the present that distracts us from our core goals. I think Mark's comfort with us not implementing Platform 3.0 in H1 is because he'd much rather us focus on moving core metrics that create value than worrying about being defensive / in clean-up mode.

So we should discuss, but my overall nets are:

- The vast majority of our time (80+%) should be spent on getting data or money from developers
- To the extent that other developers are legitimately distracting our ability to have this focus, we should fix that (I think they create little distraction for the product/eng team, but it might be higher for partnerships and much higher for ops)
- On the flip side, changing rules, deprecating stuff, etc. has very real cost -- partnership cost, ecosystem cost, PR cost, eng cost, etc. That cost also tends to be very thrashy (things will get escalated to Mark, and we'll end up spending our time with Mark talking about low-leverage things in the past rather than high-leverage things for the future).

Where we have issues with our platform that are legitimately distracting Facebook employees from being able to focus on the future we should probably fix them, but our overall intellectual energy should be focused on figuring out how to optimize for the future rather than cleaning-up the past.

As much as I hate large meetings, I think we need to have an interactive dialogue with the key folks in the room.

We have a meeting tomorrow to discuss a bunch of ecosystem issues, perhaps we can do it there.

I personally want to get the duplicative policy in place now and use it as the mechanism to implement harder reviews.

BTW: I met with Singly yesterday. I don't think we are all calibrated on them as they are decidedly in the helping us rather than hurting us camp.

On Jan 15, 2013, at 8:25 AM, "Justin Osofsky" <josofsky@fb.com> wrote:

Sam, Sean, and I had a good discussion about app quality yesterday. While we've begun to address the most significant competitive issues (e.g., Wechat), we're making less progress on (1) apps that reproduce core functionality (e.g., Mycalendar) and (2) apps that read lots of data with little reciprocal value exchange.

I think the challenge with these latter categories is that no individual case is compelling enough to address. However, collectively, these apps present a real cost. They're misaligned with our emerging overall direction, send the wrong signal to the next generation of devs and investors, and are a drain on our xfn team as we deal with them as one-offs.

One of my top goals for the Ops team in 1H '13 is to solve this issue. I don't want us to find ourselves in mid-2013 in the same place we are today, and am concerned that we will be unless we address this head on.

In the next few days, I will set up a quick 1:1 with each of you to get your input and align on a clear recommendation of how to move forward. I'm more focused on a pragmatic approach that pushes us in a direction that we all know feels right (e.g., eliminate the category of Mycalendar apps and apps which leach FB data) rather than developing a perfect philosophical framework. There are a few options (which are not mutually exclusive):

- Policy. Update our policy to (1) restrict apps from reproducing core functionality and (2) emphasize reciprocity. We would then enforce against the Singly and Mycalendar app categories. Alternatively, we could more rigorously enforce the threshold of when devs need to have a deal with us. However, if we go the policy route, I'd prefer to explicitly signal our intentions than enforce an ambiguous policy.
- Ops reviews. Implement more stringent ops reviews and prevent apps from launching in categories where we're not comfortable (e.g., reproduce core functionality). Essentially, this would make our app review process look more like Apple.
- Remove friend APIs. This is the most scalable solution, but likely requires a meaningful product give (e.g., better friend invite flows) to make it palatable to developers.
- Distribution channels. Restrict the distribution channels which enable spammy apps to grow.

- Do nothing. I think that the status quo is worse than any of the above options. These issues will only get more painful as the next set of devs raises VC to build on our platform, and we'll continue to spend internal cycles.

Platform: Three years coming, but the “Platform Simplification” initiatives finally lands this week (4/30/2015). For the last month, the team has worked with partners — e.g. Spotify, Bing, Pinterest, Tripadvisor, Tinder, Skype, Nike, Netflix, Soundcloud, Shazam, Foursquare, Flipboard, Amazon, etc. — to ensure a smooth migration. Hopefully, the outcome is people continuing to have amazing platform experiences, with more control over their profile data. Congratulations to everyone that has worked on this transition over the years.

Internet.org/FBS Content Partnerships: After launching in Indonesia a few weeks back, the team has been focused on addressing the content partners’ reaction to the net neutrality debate across the globe. In India, we had six (6) partners drop out over the course of two (2) weeks. In response, we visited and/or spoke to each of the partners in various cities throughout the country to listen and address their concerns. Overall, the India situation push the xfn team to think through our approach to 1) the content selection process and 2) the alignment of partners with our mission. In response, there are a number of xfn efforts — e.g. product, policy, partnerships, marketing -- underway. We’ve accelerated the work that we had planned to create more goodwill with the global developer community — e.g. creating publishable guidelines for iORG and delivering more developer value by launching an Internet.org package for FBStart.

FB@Work: Patrick is leading our FB@Work product integrations, focused on identity provider services that enable scaled onboarding and management of employee accounts into FB@Work, as well as partnerships with cloud storage companies to integrate popular file storage and sharing options. We are finalizing identity connectors for Okta, OneLogin, and Microsoft Azure AD (on track) while we are in early conversations with Box, Dropbox, and Microsoft on storage (in progress). In parallel, the team has been contributing with the recruitment of our platform partners to pilot the product (i.e. Dropbox, Uber, ESPN, Foursquare, Tinder, and other) against the xfn team's goal of launching 35 active beta partners by the end of Q2.

Messenger Expressions: Post-F8 focus of Messenger Expressions platform is to ensure it is performing for partners from an engagement and discoverability perspective. We fielded an NPS (net promoter score = 11) and post-launch survey; qualitative feedback was cautiously optimistic and is partially motivating our focus on 'discover tab' treatment, fan out improvements, and simplification & speed of access to content. Though we're not actively building for other categories, we are having select partner discovery meetings with games (Zynga, Scopely), music, and video partners (Meerkat).

Art & Animation: With Sean Leow assuming leadership of the licensed Arts & Animation initiatives, the team is focused on lining up licensed packs for the remainder of the year while taking a data-driven approach to determining which packs can boost Sticker sends going forward. The team has also started engaging with the Friend Sharing team to support use of Art & Animation in the composer experience (e.g. overlay your favorite sports team jersey on game day). The target goal has been reset to 5 licensed deals by 6/30 with SpongeBob releasing 5/6.

Business on Messenger: The integrations with Everlane, Zulily and Zendesk announced at f8 go live on 4/29. We received 17,881 inbound leads via the online web form since as of 4/25/15. Through our partner development interactions, we've held discussions with 79+ partners across 10+ verticals. Verbal commitments from brand partners include Hyatt Hotels, Virgin America, Blue Bottle Coffee, Abercrombie, Warby Parker, Touch of Modern, Tieks, and thredUP.

Events: There is a focus on re-launching our Events product as public and private events in late H1/early H2. For public events, the focus is on improving the publishing and distribution of public events with our existing partners (Live Nation/Ticketmaster and Ticketfly) in H1 prior to scaling out the process. The overarching goal for relaunch is on track.

FB Music: We are flushing out a partnership strategy with the newly formed music product team — who are looking to build a suite of music sharing and consumption experiences this year. Chris B. is supporting their work via through the exploration of deals and integrations with priority global partners (Spotify, Soundcloud, Apple) and select regional partners [Docomo, Saavn, Tigo, possible others].

Hello: The team is exploring the acquisition of a static directory of telephone numbers that we know are malicious or "spammy", and that should consequently be blocked on behalf of the user. Early days, but we've evaluated solutions from TeleSign, Neustar, Transaction Network Services (Cequent), Whitepages.com, and Privacy Star.

P0 Data: Our goal is to sign two (2) deals that would provide us P0 data (name & address) for social places before the end of H1. Final stages on evaluating social places data from five (5) partners, possibly move ahead with term sheet with one (1) or (2) of them in the coming week.

Platform & Messenger: I'm combining these two updates because F8 was the primary focus for both of these sub-teams all month — and, a big congrats to both. The response to F8 from the developer community, businesses community, our internal partners and the press has been fantastic. Beyond our Tier 0 launches (see chart below), we launched Messenger Platform with 42 partners — over-indexing on the goal of 5 (see chart below). We also pre-announced Messenger Business with 3 partners — and have since seen a queue of +5K other interested businesses. I'm really proud of what Dan's org was able to accomplish for our partners for F8. As we all know, the real work begins now to make these partners and our platforms successful. [\[Recap of Day One\]](#) [\[Recap of Day Two\]](#)

Internet.org/FBS Content Partnerships. F8 was also top of mind for this team. Jackie delivered a great talk on building for Internet.org and the entire team spent two days connecting with partners at the Internet.org Dev station. Outside of F8 the team has been busy, ...the momentum over the last month now has us at +80 FBS content partners (22 global; +58 local) across 8 launch countries around the world. We've seen solid FBS launches in the Philippines and in Guatemala and have been able to include great local content partners. In addition to putting local content scaling plans in place and working through an aggressive launch calendar, the team is beginning to think through the next phase of FBS and how we can start to measure the impact on lives and the outcome of our work. Over the last month, here are a few write-ups of our in-country efforts to begin to get more connected to potential outcomes of this work:

- Deepti in Bangladesh speaking at the Frugal Innovation Forum
- Francesca, Sergi and Lior in Guatemala City doing a FBS workshop for 200 women
- Jennifer at the Hack for Big Choices event in Ghana
- Deepti in Colombo, Sri Lanka at Young Social Innovators Summit
- Daud and me going back to high school in West Java.

=== People/Team ===

Over the last month, we've had two FB vets with strong track records of success join the team — Jon Park and Sean Leow. We're lucky to have both of them joining the family. Jon will focus on integrations and partnerships with our strategic platform and product partners and Sean will be focused on executing our art and animation partnerships for the Messenger team and beyond.

Messenger Conversational

Goal: Launch platform with 5 'tier 1 and 20 'tier 2' partners.

- Exceeding goal: delivered 40 'tier 1', and 7 'tier 2' apps from 42 partners.

Activities:

- DevOps and Policy: fully engaged to provide smooth review and on-boarding of partners post-F8.
- Press: Messenger continues to be a primary focus in F8 coverage overall, with articles carrying a straightforward and neutral tone.
- Builds: Partner builds available from new "Discover tab" in latest public Messenger build.

Incredible xfn'l and int'l effort. Props to the MPK/ EMEA/ APAC/ LATAM Product Partnerships, Games, and Partner Engineering teams.

Messenger: The current promising pipeline of lighthouse Messenger Expressions f8 launch partners is at a staggering 7x our goal, so the focus over the next month will be to push these ~35 potential launch partners to build in time for f8. Additionally, we are having early, but promising discussion momentum with Hyatt, Virgin America, Warby Parker, etc. on the Messenger Monetization integration. These partners would be great compliments to integrations already underway with Shopify et al.

Internet.org/FBS. We launched in India with +30 content partners that ranged from SocialBlood to HungamaMusic. Congrats, Bryan et al for pulling together such an impressive portfolio of content. As we continue to prepare content for the 25 priority FBS countries, we've also defined an initial scaling framework that includes the prioritization of 11 low-touch countries with Growth partnerships. The framework establishes a baseline set of +13 English, French, & Spanish services that scale to over 50% of our target countries. Strong work by Jackie to lead these efforts for us. Strong progress on our Tier 0 migration efforts to Login V4 and the v2 of the Graph API – 55% of them have migrated +10% of their traffic, with the rest finalizing their migration by mid March. Additionally, the pipeline of Tier 0 f8 launch partners for App Invites is healthy with 4 already approved, including Pinterest. Finally, we are on-boarding more partners to HTML5 video embeds support, e.g. YouTube rolled out this week. After successfully testing HTML5 embeds with Soundcloud for almost a year, we are finally extending the availability to more partners and verticals including video, music and commerce. Shout out to Chris Barbour for driving the partnerships work on this rollout.

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 1.23.15

[First update of the year is comprehensive (aka longer) in order to give everyone a glimpse at our comprehensive goal(s) and vision. We'll return to a condensed update going forward]

=== Summary ===

There are a few top-level commitments that we are looking to fulfill across all our H1 initiatives. First, and as always, we remain committed to driving business and product needs through deal execution and partnership. Second, we are committed to truly becoming a global partnerships team (both in physical presence and thought) by how we uncover and prioritize our deals & partnerships. Lastly, we are committed to driving more complex and collaborative partnerships — w/internal and external stakeholders — to realize Facebook's full potential.

An example of how these three commitments play out across one of our initiatives is — Internet.org/FBS. As we prepare to launch FBS around the world in '15, it would be straightforward to simply sit back and scale our current suite of content partners. Instead, we plan to collaborate with internal teams (e.g. product, eng, research, marketing, pr, policy, etc.) and external stakeholders (NGOs, local & regional developers, etc.) to understand where local digital content and services can move the needle on social progress indicators for each country. It will take time to build out this process and pipeline, but we are committed to fulfilling the "improving people's lives" promise Facebook made when we started this journey. We realize that partnerships work is on the front line of delivering on that promise.

Let us know if you have any questions.

=== H1 Partnership Goals ===

- Platform (Team: Konstantinos Papamiltiadis, Chris Barbour, Patrick Donohue, Cesi Convey):
 - Product Adoption: Drive Tier 0 partners' SDK adoption to +80%
 - Vertical Approach: Establish industry-specific product integration models (including app invites, app events/insights, login, app links, etc.)
 - New Product Launches: Onboard 5-10 lighthouse partners as Beta Testers for App Invites (by f8)
 - Scale: Create a playbook for each vertical around product fit and develop case studies to help drive further adoption.
- Internet.org (Team: Jackie Chang, Cesi Convey, Jennifer Fong, Deepti Doshi):
 - Go deep on the 25 priority countries: Create FBS content launch portfolios that meet development and engagement goals for the priority countries. Onboard core category launch partners for all H1 FBS country launches.
 - Scale for 100 countries: For non-priority countries, secure 8+ content partners per region for turnkey rollouts.
 - Outcome measurement: Develop a framework to begin to identify and measure the social impact of FBS in the 25 priority countries.
 - Narrative: Develop 2 partner case studies and establish an f8 presence.
- Messenger (Team: Sean Heywood, Bryan Hurren, Chris Barbour, Patrick Donohue):
 - Commerce: Close deals with 3 launch partners & develop action plan for driving adoption for public APIs

- Expressions (Platform): Onboard 5 lighthouse partners; build portfolio of +20 partners for public API launch
- Expressions (Stickers): Sign ~12 high-quality licensed content partnerships.
- People, Places, and Things: (Team: Sean Heywood, Jackie Chang)
 - Gravity: Execute deals with ~5-15 partners across range of businesses; successfully launch beta.
 - Ridge: Complete full US rollout; Execute deal with 7Digital to scale the content ingestion.
 - Events: Finalize the TicketMaster, Ticketfly, and BandsInTown ingestion; close Eventbrite deal.

=== Highlights ===

Messenger (Expressions): Our objectives these past two weeks were to 1) secure 5 - 7 standalone app partners 2) determine response rate for generic email message 3) determine the inflection point where a standalone app no longer makes sense. We accomplished goal #1 and #2, and in the process of cementing #3. The team reached out to 29 partners, received 28 responses (97% response rate), conducted 18 pitches, and secured 7 verbal commitments (excl. Spotify) to design a standalone app. We also received 3 verbal commitments to integrate the sharing into Messenger into their existing app. The partners who have committed to developing a standalone app are Giphy, Marco Polo, JibJab, Meme Generator, Bistrips, Imoji, and PicCollage. The partners who have agreed to integrate the share functionality are Dubsmash, Camoji, and Rithm. Next week, we will be 1) focussing our efforts on securing the 15 - 20 partners to integrate Messenger into the sharing flow and 2) finding non-photo app partners to design standalone apps for Messenger.

PPT (Gravity): The Gravity pilot is set to launch in NYC on January 29th. Our Communications team will be launching their strategy, including reaching out to Privacy experts and all of the traditional media outlets, in the days prior. We have contracts executed with seven (7) partners (Pianos, The Strand Bookstore, Veselka, Dominique Ansel Bakery, Big Gay Ice Cream, Brooklyn Bowl, The Burger Joint), and hope to finalize negotiations with The Metropolitan Museum of Art in the coming days. The time we spent building relationships with these partners and the Product team's thoughtfulness regarding merchant and user privacy were instrumental in on-boarding partners so quickly once we were able to disclose details about the hardware. From our team, Sean has done a hell of a job getting us to this point and will be flying back out to NYC next Tuesday to place the beacons with each merchant and conduct some UX research prior to the official announcement.

Internet.org/FBS: We started 2015 strong with successful launches in Columbia and Ghana. Cesi lead our collaboration with our Policy team & the Columbia government to produce 3 e-gov services for FBS, a townhall Q&A between the President & Zuck, and a framework for future government collaboration. Ghana launched yesterday thanks to the efforts of Jennifer, Chris B, and Bryan. We're now focusing on utilizing the global & regional partnerships from launches in both Africa & LATAM to begin developing a content portfolio for scaling to long-tail operator launches (targeted to launch at MWC). As stated above, we're also beginning to think deeply about how this work moves the needle on social progress indicators. In parallel, efforts are underway to launch India (Feb), Indonesia (Feb), Angola (Feb), and Philippines (March) next.

Platform. We start off the year armed with a variety of platform products that are relevant for existing but also new categories of Apps. Our objective to build industry expertise and drive adoption of suitable products across those verticals. Tactically, we will continue our efforts to get direct feedback from key partners (via the Developer Advisory Board, etc.) that will enable Facebook to integrate deeper into industry verticals and unblock innovation for users, the partners and Facebook. In the short term and leading to F8, our main objective is to migrate all Tier 0 partners to V2.+ of the Graph API and onboard up to 10 beta testers for App Invites. In the mid-term, we aim to increase the creation of content that is engaging for users via our partnerships.

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 12.23.14

== H2 Partnership Goal Progress ==

- Internet.org. Provide full free basic services (FBS) publisher category coverage for all FBS H2 launches. Complete
- Platform. Drive 50% platform product adoption across lighthouse partners (including migration to API v2.0); and increase the NPS score of our key developers by +5. Complete (127% of target;)
- Messenger. Execute 30 deals (e.g. new Sticker packs, deep integrations e.g. Uber, etc.). Complete (160% of target)

== H2'14 Highlights ==

Platform. We end the year with a Partner NPS score that increased 10 points in H2 (from the post-f8 drop to -32 back up to -22). Additionally, the % of developers that say they would "promote" our platform to other developers stayed flat at ~22% YoY. There is still work left to do to increase our developer sentiment, but both of these H2 outcomes are wins given the evolution that platform has taken this year. In additional H2 highlight, was the team's ability to continue to deliver value to both tenured platform partners (via the Developer Advisory Board) and new platform developers (via fbStart).

Internet.org/FBS. In H2, the team executed free basis service partnerships with ~20 global organizations — e.g. Wikipedia, Accuweather, etc. — and +18 local organizations — e.g. WRAPP and Kokoliko (Zambia), etc. — to unlock useful content and services in Zambia, Tanzania, Kenya and South Africa. For each country launch, we were able to tell a women's empowerment narrative and will continue to do so in '15. Lastly, the work that everyone did to help pull together the Content Summit in India and the MPK-based Free Basic Services Summit was impressive. Both events were well received by external partners and press.

Messenger. The buzz Messenger generated this year has partners excited about '15. Between the early product|commerce partnership explorations and the continued Stickers momentum (48 deals done in H2!), there has been nothing but excitement for Messenger. The team will be ramping up our efforts to support the Messenger team in '15, helping Messenger become an amazing tool to express yourself and to connect with businesses.

In the last month, we've had two new people join Facebook and the team — Jenn Fong and Patrick Donohue. They come with a blend of entrepreneurial, biz dev, international development and partnerships experiences. We are thrilled to have them join the team and the company. Feel free to reach out and welcome them.

Lastly, Dan recently posted what it means to be a partnerships company and underscored that it's about "value creation." As Facebook employees, we've been blessed with another good year of creating value for our partners and ourselves. The holiday season is always a nice chance to take stock of our blessings and share value with those of us who are less fortunate. In this spirit, it was SO NICE to see the team's holiday offsite grow in participation (5x) to include amazing co-workers from across Dan's organization and the entire company. It was a great way to wrap up the year. Some pictures: <https://www.facebook.com/ime/posts/10100698467671984>; <https://www.facebook.com/sean.heywood/posts/10152649666253897>.

Congratulations to everyone on a great '14. Looking forward to '15!

Wishing everyone a fantastic Thanksgiving.

== H2 Partnership Goal Progress ==

- Internet.org. On track.
- Platform. Complete (110% of target)
- Messenger. Complete (+105% of target)

== Highlights ==

Platform. As we approach the holiday break, our head partners have increased their urgency to migrate to the new Login. This organic momentum has allowed us to shift our attention to other f8 priorities — e.g. v2 API migration, Invites Dialog, App Events, etc. Our approach has been to make our partners aware of these products, encourage and support adoption, but most importantly, work deeply with a handful of them as part of a product research to flush out their requirements, feature requests, etc.

Last week, we held a Music Summit (a spin-off of the Platform Developer Advisory Board) with stakeholders across the music ecosystem (including talent, music discovery and consumption services, ticketing companies, etc). The purpose of this brainstorm was to learn from our close platform partners et al. and share the learnings with our product teams. Big shout out to Chris and Nada for bringing this group of people together and driving a well received conversation. Full notes, key takeaways and pictures from the event can be found here: [Chris' Post]

Project Gravity. Sean and others spent the past week week in NYC interacting with 14 of the 18 merchants we are targeting for the Project Gravity pilot. The goal is to whittle the list down to 10 partners who 1) believe in the project's vision and 2) are educated about the risks (both real and perceived) associated with the technology. To date, we've purposefully omitted the use of terms "beacon" and "hardware" in our discussions, and have only referenced leveraging "an array of location technologies" in order to pique our partners' appetites without disclosing any material information before we are actually prepared to manage its dissemination. All of the merchants, less one, have been quite bullish on exposing their customers to their businesses' After Party cards provided the user opts in to the experience. As we near launch, we will educate partners (who have signed MNDAs) about beacons as well as the steps we've taken as a company to protect user privacy. After we've fully disclosed the pilot's logistics, we will select the handful of merchants who will 1) be the strongest advocates for Facebook should we experience any negative press and 2) most greatly contribute to the pilot's public narrative. Some of the merchants we've spoken to are MoMA, Dominique Ansel Bakery, Brooklyn Bowl, Big Gay Ice Cream, The Burger Joint at Le Parker Meridien, Grand Central Oyster Bar, and the Strand Bookstore.

Messenger. Over the past two weeks, we conducted on-site working sessions with a handful of partners including Neiman Marcus, Everlane, Virgin America, Zulily and Demandware re: Messenger Commerce. In these discussions, we shared mocks of the proposed integration, obtained incredibly insightful feedback, and used the interaction as an opportunity to gauge each company's desire and ability to partner with us given the rapid pace at which we would like to move. To date, Everlane and Zulily most greatly over-index in desire/ability, and so we're pressing forward with them while simultaneously finding another vertical partner (likely travel) to balance the portfolio. Over the next two weeks, we will have a series of half to full day discussions with these partners with the objective of leveraging them to help the product team define an MVP. Separately, the Stickers team continues the steady release momentum and released Sugar Cubs, Eagle & Snake, Say Thanks, Yuttari Dragon, and Waddles Holiday.

Internet.org/FBS Content Partners. The end of the year has brought a lot of good momentum and, as a result, the team's hands have been full with the recent launches in Kenya and South Africa and preparing for India, Mexico [See Cesi's post about the team's recent trip] , Colombia, Ghana and Senegal over the next few months.

We closed the UN Women global deal that we've been working on that will help us support economic empowerment for women as we launch FBS around the globe.

Lastly, the team is ramping up it's public advocacy of our internet.org:Free Basic Services program. Over the last few weeks, Bryan has spoke at Techcon (USAID), Nethope Global Summit (Nethope), and Social Innovation Summit (UNICEF) about FBS.

Internet.org/FBS. Last week, fresh off the heels of the Tanzania launch the prior week (solid work, Chris, Jackie and Bryan), we hosted an all day summit for 25 key Free Basic Service partners — e.g. Wikipedia, BBC, UNICEF, etc.. The event achieved our main objectives of sharing the Internet.org progress, strengthening our relationships with sr. leaders at these organizations, and gaining content commitments for FBS. Big shout out to Cesi, Bryan and Nada for their leadership on this event. Below is a more comprehensive write up and some photos from the day:

Messenger. We completed our customer development discussions with 10+ partners in 3 verticals (airlines, clothing retailers, events). The conversations validated our hypothesis that partners have a strong desire to leverage Messenger for interactions such as reservation confirmations, shipment notices, flight delays, item availability, customer service, etc, because Messenger has 1) the rich presentation capabilities of email 2) the high-signal/deliverability of SMS and 3) massive adoption with +500M mobile MAUs. Next steps are conducting working sessions with each partner to better understand the scope and logistics of the integration so that we can prioritize the subset of partners to launch with initially. Everlane, Virgin America and Zulily working sessions are currently scheduled for the next 2 weeks. Separately, the Stickers team released Hello Kitty, Masked Wrestler Q and Paul Frank.

Platform. We are doubling down our efforts to drive further adoption of the products we launched at f8 ahead of the holiday season. Our main focuses are the new Login, Anon Login and the Like button.

- Login v4/API v2: Working closely with the partners to unblock migrations dependent on Common Friends (i.e dating and travel) via the introduction of a new API, invite non-app friends (social apps) via bringing forward the opportunity to Beta test the new dialog in January and others whose migration is more complex for various reasons (portfolio of apps that need to be migrated, out of date SDKs, etc.)
- Anonymous Login: Lining up partners to launch Anon Login by the end of the Nov; currently testing 2 apps (one iOS and one Web) to be launched imminently and kicking off integrations with a handful of others.

- Like button: Developing case studies with success stories from early implementations of the Like button to drive awareness of the effectiveness of the channel and socialize the impact this can have to a wider audience of developers.

== Highlights ==

Platform. We achieved our target goal for head partner adoption of f8 products and are now revisiting new goals for the EOY. We think there is an opportunity to introduce new beta products and improvements — i.e. invites dialog, Graph Search API, common friends — to partners before the holiday season rolls around.

Last week, we hosted a VIP event in Tokyo attended by 150 guests including potential and current platform partners such as Yahoo! Japan, Recruit, Rakuten, Gilt as well as DeNA, Taito, Crooz, Gumi on the gaming side. The event intended to position Facebook as a leading platform in Japan for:

1. Consumers: we announced the Safety Check product and positioned Facebook as the discovery platform for both Friends and Public Content
2. Developers: tools for partners to Build, Grow and Monetize their products both domestically as well as internationally
3. Advertisers: superiority of our Advertisement products and targeting capabilities to help Brands, SMBs, developers reach the right audience

[More info on the event can be found here] Congrats to KP, who quarterbacked this event for our team.

Internet.org/FBS. Last week we announced a content update to Zambia's FBS partners, which included ZambiaReports, SuperSport, and Ebola info from Unicef [coverage]. This content update validated our hypothesis that non-static news content could be popular. The addition of UNICEF Ebola FAQs was based on data mining done by the Growth team against Google search terms. Despite Zambia not being an 'exposed' country, these FAQs are now the #2 most visited content after Google Search.

Based off of feedback from Zambia, we've engaged three new educational partners -- FundZa (a literacy trust), Wattpad (Self-publishing & reading platform), and Scholars4Dev (Scholarships for developing countries). Given their relevance to multiple countries, we're excited to further fulfill the promise of learning through internet.org [See latest FBS Content Partnerships Update].

Last week, Cesi traveled to FutureCOM to share our FBS strategy with key Brazilian entrepreneurs + Qualcomm. The trip proved valuable as she was able to build relationships with a set of LatAm content partners that are now ready to collaborate with us on FBS in region. [See Cesi's full update on her trip here]

Lastly, Jackie posted an inspiring note to the FBS group with a few of her learnings from the Women's Leadership Day that are applicable to our Internet.org work. [See Jackie's Post Here]. The key messages are, for us to (1) recognize opportunity in failure (2) demonstrate cultural sensitivity and (3) remember that it's a long game.

Messenger. We spent the past few weeks interacting with potential partners through the "understand" phase of our customer/partner discovery process. We spoke with Demandware, Conversocial, Everlane, Virgin America, Alaska Airlines, Lululemon, IBM, Stubhub and others focussing primarily on the Travel, E-commerce, Events and ERP/CRM verticals. Most partners have expressed strong interest in exploring Messenger as an alternative communication channel. The challenge will be determining 1) which partner(s) we work with initially and 2) which partner(s) can provide us the greatest leverage from a technology and partnership vantage. Separately, the Stickers team released Waddles Halloween, Yarukizero and Fat Rabbit Halloween.

Platform. Last week, Konstantinos helped lead this quarter's Developer Advisory Board meeting that had representatives from 18 of our strategic platform partners — e.g. Amazon, King, Dropbox, Pinterest, 4Sqr, Netflix, Spotify, etc.. This forum gives us and the Platform product leadership the opportunity to engage in candid dialogue and learn from our partners. A few of KP's top line observations/takeaways:

- (1) Most partners have already moved all have started looking at migrating to the new API - thus questions and comments this time were more focused. Games partners are concerned with App Scoped IDs but we will follow up with them this week to discuss in more details.
- (2) Partners almost unanimously recognised FB as the best and most transparent partner to work with. While certain things we do may not favor legacy implementations that are based on "free" distribution, they appreciate our efforts to communicate with them promptly and transparently with DAB being one of the forums this is possible.
- (3) There were a lot of discussions on UX and their expectations for us to lead a conversation here. We are planning to do so and in fact there maybe a stream at f8 dedicated to UX Messenger. After the Product team solidified Phase 1 of Messenger's commerce strategy, the partnerships team spent the past few weeks setting timing expectations with partners with whom we previously discussed Trigger integrations (e.g. Uber). We've also spent considerable energy ramping up on the ERP/CRM ecosystem and meeting with external and XFN partners to 1) better understand how Messenger could be integrated into this complicated web of systems and 2) gauge how enthused each player would be to our participation in the ecosystem. Separately, the Stickers team released the Boxtrolls and Bee & Puppypat sticker packs and are scheduled to Release our first Japanese pack, Piyomaru, on 10/9 before the mTeam visit to Tokyo.

Internet.org/FBS. In the last two weeks, Bryan got the BBC, Perform Group (Goal.com), and ESPN to all commit to Free Basic Services contributions. Additionally, Civil Society organizations — i.e. Nike Foundation (Girl Empowerment), UN Women, and DAI — are accelerating their typically-long development (and funding) cycles to participate in Internet.org launches.

Jackie did an incredible job building commitment in the Philippines through in-person meetings and speaking at the Social Good Summit in Manila. [\[More details on the Philippines visit here\]](#). Unfortunately, we hit a setback this week when Globe decided to not accept FB Messenger for FBS, which has led to a thrashy experience for our local Philippine content partners. As a result, we are working to improve the FBS launch process through stronger XFN coordination and communication on FBS requirements with carriers. [\[Full FBS Content Guidelines here\]](#) [\[Pipeline of upcoming launches here\]](#)

Lastly, over the last few weeks, we have focused on driving the narrative around Free Basic Services by participating in: The Digital Conference & Social Good Summit (hosted by Rappler & Globe), Uplinq (hosted by Qualcomm), a BabyCenter's All-hands, UN Special Envoy Roundtable (hosted by PM Gordon Brown), and Conversation on Women and Tech: Digital Access and Inclusion (hosted by Twitter).

Internet.org/FBS. We continue to see strong momentum with our global content partners. Over the last few weeks, Bryan landed commitments from BabyCenter/MAMA (maternal health), Naspers/OLX (top classifieds provider for ~12 target countries), One Africa Media/BrighterMondays (Jobs provider in ~6 target countries), and UNICEF (commitment to health content for all future launch countries).

Additionally, UNICEF prepared ebola information content in <48 hours in anticipation of a Sept content update in Zambia...and also signed a technology partnership with Praekelt Foundation to deliver content solely for Internet.org.

This week, Wikipedia — who was our most cautious and conservative pre-launch partner — shared that their page views in Zambia grew ~50% since the FBS launch. It is early days here, but it's great to see Wikipedia even a little happy given their pre-launch stance. [\[See original post here\]](#)

Platform. Konstantinos continues to lead our efforts to drive adoption of the products we announced at f8. These efforts materialized with a few solid launches this week. Skyscanner was the first ever partner to launch Anonymous Login in India and the US, Uber went live with FB login (great job, Sean & Dhiren) and 4 apps that integrated the Beta version of the iOS Like button are waiting approval from Apple. In parallel, we are making progress with MSFT and their integration of Applinks in their native Bing app as well as the Index. We also kicked off internal conversations around the opportunity to include both MSFT and Google as equal partners in Applinks.org.

Internet.org/FBS. The solid response of the Zambian launch has positively impacted the nature of our conversations with content partners. Many of the potential partners we had been in conversations with are more keen to support the initiative. For example, BabyCenter recently signed on as a global partner that can help us scale the delivery of localized maternal health content around the globe. See Bryan's full FBS partner update here: [\[FBS Partnership Update post\]](#)

Messenger. As the evolution of this space continues, partner interest in our messenger products continues to grow. Sean leads these efforts and has met with a few partners to understand the potential opportunities, while we (FB) determine what product approach to pursue. For example, this week we hosted the Starbucks' Chief Strategy and Digital Officers. SBUX is exploring partnerships that would enable their digital loyalty currency to become more widely adopted and they believe FB/Messenger could be a good channel. On another note, the Stickers team released the Regular Show, Gumball, Pixar Expendables 3 and Power Rangers licensed sticker packs. We've also continued discussions with Asian sticker aggregators to help us source and curate sticker content with a focus on Japan and APAC.

Official Events (PPT). With the increase in referral traffic from FB and us emerging as one of their top 10 affiliates, TicketMaster continues to invest in Official Events. Jackie leads the LN/TM partnerships efforts and, along with a XFN FB team, plans to launch Ticketmaster sports events before the start of NFL season and international events shortly after. With the recent Ticketfly deal and ongoing pipeline with AEG, Paciolan, Frontgate, and Eventbrite, I suspect we'll continue to see good product momentum. Finally, we're considering a partnership with Bandsintown (who claims Ticketmaster/AEG only accounts for 10% of their events) to give them access to official event mapping in exchange for their data.

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 8.3.14

We had the entire team in MPK last week for our "on-site/off-site", which we used to finalize our H2 plans. During the offsite kickoff, we revisited an old press quote from Bob Pittman, the ClearChannel CEO, that touted Facebook for "knowing how to do partnerships" compared to other companies. Inspired by this quote, we recommitted ourselves to ensure that — regardless of the product group + partnership/deal we're driving — Facebook is seen as THE top partnerships company around.

Our H2 goals and initiatives reflect this commitment. They include opportunities to grow our community, increase utility, and improve our brand. A few of the key initiatives and metrics that we will track this cycle include:

- Internet.org. Provide full free basic services (FBS) publisher category coverage (~12 partners) for all FBS H2 launches.
- Platform. Drive 50% platform product adoption across lighthouse partners (including migration to API v2.0); and increase the NPS score of our key developers by +5.
- Messenger. Execute 30 deals (everything from new Sticker packs to deep integrations, e.g. Uber).

There are a dozen other subgoals and metrics that we'll be tracking in H2 to ensure we're driving impact. Let me know if you're interested in seeing the full list.

== Recent Highlight ==

Free Basic Services (FBS). The public's response to the Internet.org content partners for the Zambia launch of Internet.org has been great to experience. Congrats to Bryan (along with legal, product, etc.) who did a yeoman's effort over the last few weeks to gain consent from key content partners like Wikipedia, Accuweather, and UNICEF. This is important work and I'm glad we're playing an important role in these efforts. I really like the early reviews in the Google Play store; see below.

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 6.27.14

It's hard to believe next week is already July! This last half has been fast and fun with the team hitting eleven out of the fourteen stretch goals we set in the beginning of the cycle. I'm proud of what we accomplish in H1 and getting more excited about H2. A few H1 highlights include:

- f8. Oh, good ol' f8. There is too much to say about the teamwork that went into making this year's event special.
- Ridge/Snacktime. We closed deals with the top three indie music distributors (+20% of the iTunes catalogue), to help fill in the big catalogue gaps not provided by major music label deals.

- Official Events. Our longterm relationship investment in LiveNation/TicketMaster team helped close a data licensing and affiliate ticketing deal that amplified the launch of our Official Events product.

Our H2 planning is well underway. As always, our partnership goals will be aligned to support the product teams' agenda and goals. We will share our finalized goals soon. Latest Full team update: [\[Link to Post\]](#)

== Highlights ==

Free Basic Services (FBS). As the I.org team prepares to launch FOS + FBS programs around the globe in H2, our team continues to work on the identification and validation of, both the global and in-region, FBS content partners. Over the last two weeks, we have had solid Sr. level meetings with global content partners like Wikipedia, Weather.com, UNICEF, etc. to share the i.org vision and confirm their support. [\[Read Bryan's latest update here\]](#)

Platform. A few weeks ago at MPK, we hosted 18 influential platform partners — e.g. Zynga, SoundCloud, Dropbox, Uber, Pinterest — for a dialogue on the products we launched at f8 and to preview our H2 roadmap. There are several follow ups from the discussion and the partner feedback has been extremely positive. Beyond teasing out feedback, high touch events like these help us build trust and longterm commitment from these influential developers & companies — many of whom have experienced the historic ups and downs of our Platform. [\[Read Konstantinos' Full Details\]](#)

Messenger. While there has been a lot of conversation about a potential Uber + Messenger integration, our team took a step back to begin framing up a holistic view of the different Messenger partnership opportunities. We tried to call out partnerships that felt obvious; and those that felt not so obvious. Sean shared the framing with the Messenger PM team as they prepare to execute against their H2 roadmap. [\[Read Sean's post here\]](#)

Lastly, to support the World Cup initiatives, we executed two Messenger Sticker deals -- a Team USA sticker pack and a Nike Soccer sticker pack. Go Super Eagles!

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 5.30.14

With a little over a month left in H1, we are now tracking above our aggressive 50/50 goals (8- complete; 6 - at risk; 3- slip to H2). The next month will be 1) a sprint to drive our critical goals to closure, e.g. internet.org basic service partners, and 2) the beginning of us looking towards H2 planning alongside the product teams. Given the number of partner heavy products launched in H1, e.g. All f8 tools, Verified Events, Ridge, etc., our team's H2 goals will comprise of both scaling these products with other strategic partners and also supporting new initiatives. Full team update: (Link to post)

Highlights:

FOS:FBS. With Facebook Operator Solutions + Facebook Basic Services on track to launch in the beginning H2 across a handful of countries, we're moving fast to validate and on-board ~12 basic services partners in each launch country. Our aim is to have basic services coverage across five categories [education, health, finance, communication, information], by taking two approaches: (1) partner with companies that will provide global coverage, e.g. Wikipedia, WhatsApp, Weather.com, etc. and (2) partner with in region companies that provide a more micro-level & local coverage. Over the next 2 weeks, we will be doing some in country partner validation in Zambia, Rwanda, Uganda and Ghana in anticipate of a FOS:FBS launch with Airtel.

Utility. Ridge & Snacktime launched last week and the response from the consumer and tech press has been generally positive. While there is still significant partnership and deal work to be done in order to reach the global coverage that we'd desire, it's great to celebrate the months/years of work that were put into this launch. Shout out to Monica and KP who have been working with our music partners to obtain the :30sec previews for SnackTime; and special shout out to Monica who has been working to close content deals with InGrooves, TheOrchard and TuneCore. Speaking of Monica...

As many of you know, Monica's last day at Facebook will be next Monday. I'd be lying if I said that I didn't get a bit emotional reading her post this week while I was stuck in a hotel room in NYC. I really wish I had been in the office with everyone to celebrate the amazing impact that she's had on this team and the company over the last 7 years. She'll be missed!

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 5.5.14

Despite f8 gobbling up most of the team's oxygen over the last few weeks, we have been plugging away at a number of initiatives aimed to support and accelerate product strategy across FB. Let us know if you have any questions. Full team update: (Link to post)

Highlights:

Growth. During last week's product review, Mark directionally approved the Internet.org Basic Services partner matrix. With only a few changes to be made, this matrix has a list of our potential i.org basic service partners by service by country by platform coverage (see below). The next step is to validate these partners and services with in-country local authorities.

Engagement. A few months ago, we gave the video team an informal challenge to build such a great product that our team's partner meetings with YouTube became uncomfortable. Well, they are almost there. YouTube reached recently to (1) enquire about the reach and engagement on their embeds and (2) to inform us about policy changes that they are making regarding the way 3rd parties use and display YouTube embeds. Their policy changes are to "protect their video creators" and will impact the number of ads a 3rd party site/app can put around their video embeds. The changes will also require a minimum level of analytics instrumentation to be in place on 3rd party sites. YouTube signaled that these changes won't impact FB too much, but we're closely tracking to ensure that is the case. Lastly, GoPro has yet to respond to our scoped down proposal. I suspect this delay is due to a combination of being distracted by their IPO prep and GoPro being underwhelmed with our proposal.

Utility. I could not have been more proud about the way f8 went this year. The team put a tremendous amount of effort into the week running up to the event and it paid off. From the early morning VIP event to the keynote and tracks, our partner support and integrations really delivered for us this year. Many folks have claimed that this f8 was the most professional to date. Now the real work begins, as partners and developers begin to reach out to adopt the new tools that were launched and discussed at the event. Beyond f8 in the Utility world, last week, Verified Events launched in partnership with LiveNation/Ticketmaster. Jackie and others did a phenomenal job in aligning launch roadmaps with such a tricky partner.

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 4.13.14

"Can't Stop, Won't Stop" is the team's current theme song, given our steady march to f8 and the number of other hi-pri partner initiatives we are driving to support and accelerate product strategy across the company. Let us know if you have any questions. Full team update: (Link to Post)

Highlights:

Utility. While f8 is top of mind for most folks, it is only one of a few initiatives in the Utility world that are top of mind for us right now. There is also a lot of activity happening in the land of People, Places, and Things. For example, Ridge -- "Shazam in the FB composer" -- is open for employee dogfooding and only weeks away from launch. Monica has done a great job in establishing relationships with the indie music distributors and is now working on closing out deal discussions with TheOrchard, InGrooves, and TuneCore. Collectively, these top three indie music distributors make up ~20% of the music in the iTunes catalogue -- so these deals are essential for us to have solid coverage in our product. On the TV side of things, we need to reach out to the dozens of TV networks and content creators to ensure they are not surprised by Ridge.

Growth. Peter M. has a great post (link to post) that discusses the testing that he and the Messenger team have planned around the revamp of the Composer. A few recent, but brief, conversations between Mark and the CEOs of Spotify (link to post & mocks) and Uber suggest that there is strong partner interest in supporting any FB vision that we have in bringing people closer together and expressing themselves in whatever way makes sense through Messenger. We'll be kicking off a xfn effort this week to explore potential Messenger integrations and monetization opportunities.

Engagement. We'll likely present GoPro with a proposal that narrows the scope of our partnership opportunity down to three things: (1) integration of a FB video API to push and pull files from our storage infrastructure, (2) video embeds and (3) shared metadata. GoPro wants FB to help them monetize their content, which we do not have a solution for yet. It's not yet clear how much this will or will not prevent us from working together. In the short run, the direct benefit of partnering with GoPro would be to capture the value that their content generates, e.g. increased time spent on FB, engagement and data. The indirect benefit is that we could create a lighthouse integration that would influence the larger video publishing tools industry — guiding TV broadcasters, movie studios, and any other professional content creator on how to get their video content on Facebook. The key companies to influence are Apple and Adobe whose editing products, Final Cut Pro and Premiere Pro, make up ~50% of today's video editing tools market.

As an aside, there is part of me that believes that GoPro has the potential to grab a nice share of the "family camcorder of the future" market, i.e. a lot of weddings, graduations, kid's birthday party, ski trips, and special events will be recorded by one of their devices. While public content is the key focus right now, it would be great if we could do something cheaply that establishes FB as the new aged "home movies shelf" for all these personal videos. Facebook feels like a natural home for this content, not YouTube. Lastly, this content might serve as a beachhead for us in establishing more of a presence in the living room and on 10ft display devices. Potentially, bringing some real value to the terrible Facebook TV apps that every 10ft device company out there tries to build (see screenshot below).

update: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/397787503603204/permalink/649853311729954/>

Highlights:

Utility. The road to F8 has always been paved with partners. To date, we have on-boarded or discussed Login v4 with +20 partners, we have +12 partners that have adopted App Links, and a handful of partners currently exploring the Messenger Dialog. Additionally, Konstantinos has done a solid job in locking in verbal commitments from Quip, Appurify, Asana, SurveyMonkey, and Desk.com to participate in the Startup Program that we will announce at F8. Lastly, the F8 panel, Disruptive Mobile Businesses, has received panelist confirmations from senior level folks at Pinterest, Square, Beats Music, and Estimote (still waiting on Uber).

Engagement. The video space continues to heat up as various companies, including us, make moves to own different parts of the ecosystem, e.g. Disney paying ~$1B for Maker Studio and Yahoo starting to court YouTube stars. On Monday, YouTube will name GoPro as the top brand on their platform. Ironically, GoPro recently signaled their interest in working closer with FB instead of YT. The goal would be to leverage FB's infrastructure to house all content created by GoPro content creators and increase the amount of GoPro content that is shared on Facebook. Working with GoPro could be an interesting way for us to start learning about how to expand FB's infrastructure to all content creators, so that it can be easily share with the audience they care about.

Growth. Bryan has framed up an interesting FB platform centric approach to plug into basic services that are less intimidating for operators to $0-rate. The xfn team is talking through this idea with edX and Airtel to determine the viability of this approach. Also, the work to validate the basic services matrix continues. Early feedback suggests that we will have a challenge in finding a high efficacy solution that is also easily scalable.

Lastly, a few weeks ago, Sean Heywood joined the product partnerships team. Sean was most recently an entrepreneur but has previously spent time at Google, McKinsey and Morgan Stanley. It's been great to see how quickly he has been able to make an impact on the team. Make sure you welcome him to the FB family when you see him.

update: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/397787503603204/644189275629691>

Highlights:

VIDEO (Engagement). Back in 2011, this team kicked off an internal thread that flagged video apps, e.g. YouTube, as an engagement threat to FB in the long-run. Whether right or not in '11, the current video initiatives from the product and partnerships teams have created a positive momentum that should have us all confident that in our ability to shore up any strategic engagement risks from the online video ecosystem. Most recently, we met with the VEVO (YouTube's #1 partner channel) senior team, including their Founder/CEO. They left our meeting a quickly tested the native video product and were immediately encouraged by the test results. They were so encouraged that they committed to posting more native video; and just last week started paying ($$) for additional distribution of their video posts.

Below is a graph that highlights the impact of the partnerships teams' efforts on the daily Page video posting metrics. #2014yearofvideo

INTERNET.ORG (Growth). For the I.ORG/FOS efforts to truly deliver value to people around the globe, it's critical that our 'basic services' partners support the right services, specific to each country. We've built out a matrix that identifies the potential 'basic service' partners for smartphones -- broken out by 14 basic services x 6 priority countries x an average of ~10 local languages. The matrix is currently undergoing validation from 3rd parties and in- market FB policy and partnerships teams. The amount of analysis and work involved in accurately pulling together something of this complexity is non-trivial (especially when you consider that this matrix needs to be repurposed and vetted for feature phone services as well). I'm glad we're taking a very thorough and thoughtful approach towards identifying these partners -- this work is so important for the impact we can have on this planet.

[F8] (Utility::Platform). Last Saturday at SXSW, we publicly announced F8. As a result, all we heard from developers the rest of the week was, "how do I get a ticket?" Given the early partnerships traction on App Links and the team's focus on identifying the right partners for the two new Login experiences, my sense is that a solid partner narrative for F8 is beginning to materialize. T- 47 days!

FYI - In 2011, Facebook had less than two dozen people (officially) at SXSW, who simply tried to make sure FB understood the conference narrative. Fast forward three years and, last week, we had +75 employees officially attending the 2014 conference. This year FB transitioned from simply understanding the conference narrative to helping drive the narrative: We delivered keynote speeches, launched the F8 website, spoke on multiple panels, and hosted +6 developer, advertiser, press & partnership events. A few good weeks for the Product partnerships team. The team's focus remains on accelerating product strategy through partner integrations across all of our main product pillars -- but with the internal announcement of f8, we'll spend an increased amount of time over the next few weeks on Utility::Platform partnerships. #buckleupforf8. Let me know if you have questions.

Highlights:

#Shiplove, globally/The March to f8 (Utility). Part of our responsibility is to ensure FB is the best partnerships company on the planet, so it is worth highlighting some of our recent traction in EMEA. Mixcloud (UK), Deezer (FR), Shazam (UK), and many other EMEA partners, in advance of f8, that have moved fast to integrate a variety of products — including the Ad Network, App Links, and Share to Messenger dialog. See complete status of all f8 product integrations in the 'Full Update' link below.

Video partnerships (Engagement). The team's work has put FB in a position where we are now beta testing native video (or have testing commitments) with seven out of ten of YouTube's top channel partners. While our current video strategy avoids replicating YT's product, gaining traction and building relationships with these companies (see highlighted below) is key for a few reasons: (1) we've learned that more video == uplift in engagement, (2) empirical data suggests these content categories perform well on FB, (3) these particular partners' participation lends additional legitimacy to our product and (4) a strong partnership gives us the option value to expand our video product strategy in the future.

Real World Identity (Utility). Partnerships will be critical, as we begin to explore how to tactfully bring Facebook identity into a real world filled with connected devices everywhere, e.g. living room, restaurants, and SMBs of the future. Last week, we hosted a full day hack/brainstorming session with Estimote, a BLE beacon company, that is keen to work with us on this problem. Several teams all across the company were involved, i.e. Parse, HW/WiFi, iOS & Android devs, Partner Engineering, Identity/Aura team, etc.

Subject: [Product Partnerships] Update 2.13.14

The Product Partnerships team -- focused on supporting and accelerating product strategy through partner integrations -- has had a jammed packed H1'14, so I'm reviving these bi-weekly (or so) updates in order to keep everyone in the loop. At a high-level, the team is driving partnership engagements that span all four of the company's main product pillars (aka the Formula), i.e. growth/people, engagement/time, utility, and core biz/$.

Highlights:

Internet.org (Growth). The inbound partnerships interest that the Ericsson/Internet.org Hackathon generated has been incredible. In conjunction with the Mobile Partnerships team, we're exploring how to scale this experience by adding additional structure and support (e.g. Parse access, FB lab access, etc.) to future initiatives.

The march to f8 (Utility). We're currently reaching out to partners on several developer-focused initiatives, i.e. Platform Simplification (PS12N), App Links, Instant Personalization deprecation, Login v4, etc.. Individually, each of these initiatives has a strategic importance to the future of our Platform, Open Graph products, and Graph Search. Collectively, they arm Facebook with a solid f8 narrative of 'trust' for developers and people.

Video/Music partnerships (Engagement/Utility). As of yesterday, we have closed the content & metadata ingestion deals with all the major music labels -- i.e. UMG, WMG, SME. We're drifting off of these Ridge deals momentum, to negotiation the uploading of music videos directly into our native video player, similar to what the labels currently allow on YT. Outside of music -- which really matters --, the team has also gained early traction with two large YT content partners; i.e. Fullscreen (#2 largest YT partner) and Makers Studios (#4). Note: Meetings have been set with #1 (VEVO) and #3 (ZEFR) over the next few weeks.

#Ship(Partnership)Love. Part of our team's responsibility and vision is to make sure Facebook is the best partnerships company in the world. The company's #ShipLove mantra of 2014 fits well with our vision and has inspired us to go above and beyond in our interactions with partners in '14. We've started this effort by focusing on both small partners (the creation of a Start-ups Program) and large/strategic partners (creation of a key Developer Council <--name still tbd).

Quotes of the Week:

"The fact is that the apps we use and the media we consume are becoming an important way we express ourselves. Facebook wants Timeline to tell your life story, and that story would be incomplete without this data."— TechCrunch, Josh Constine

Key Articles:

TechCrunch: Facebook Now Lets You Rate Movies, TV, And Books To Turn Graph Search Into A GoodReads For Everything
<http://techcrunch.com/2013/05/14/facebook-timeline-sections/>

For the first time, Facebook users can now give star ratings to movies, TV shows, and books. That data could help Facebook show more relevant content and results in news feed and Graph Search. The feature comes alongside Facebook's announcement that it's finished rolling out "Sections" that show what apps you use. Sections let people express themselves and gives developers a new way to grow.

Facebook first started testing the new Sections in mid-March as part of a redesigned Timeline with all user posts in the right column. Now all users have the cleaner looking Timeline with posts and Sections divided rather than mixed up. Down the left column, each content type and app gets its own Section, which you can configure in your profile's About tab. The Music Section displays what musicians you Like, the Spotify Section shows off what songs you've been listening to, and the OpenTable Section features restaurants you've favorited or recently ate at.

Right now Facebook is trying to get more of your opinions codified in its graph, and Sections with ratings are a big step in the right direction. As I wrote, Sections and now ratings could be a data goldmine for Facebook's Graph Search, as they encourage people to forge connections with apps and media they care about. Graph Search relies on those connections to generate and sort search results for queries like "Movies my friends Like". Facebook would know to show your friends' five-star rated movies above lower rated flicks they've Liked.

For developers of content consumption apps like Spotify, Hulu, GoodReads and more, Sections will offer another way to grow beyond posts to the news feed. Considering people add 200 million items to Sections each day and it only just reached all users, the growth opportunity could be significant.

Facebook now has an Insights dashboard specifically for showing developers how much traffic they're getting from sections. Facebook says "more than 17 billion songs have been added to people's music sections through Likes and listening activity from apps." Now Rdio and Spotify can track how those sections are netting them new users.

If Sections catch on and people properly curate them, scrolling through a friend's sections could be a great way to discover new art and apps. Meanwhile Facebook gets to chow down on the data you volunteer. Give Game Of Thrones a five-star review? Facebook will know to show you more of its Page's updates in your news feed than a show you Like but only give three or four stars to. Add RunKeeper to your visible app sections and Facebook will probably show you more runs posted by friends.

The fact is that the apps we use and the media we consume are becoming an important way we express ourselves. Facebook wants Timeline to tell your life story, and that story would be incomplete without this data.

AllFacebook: Upworthy Uses Its Facebook Page, Social Plugins To Grow
http://allfacebook.com/upworthy_b117292

Upworthy wants to share content with the world — and use Facebook to do so. The company is in the developer's showcase for utilizing social plugins and successfully using its Facebook page to engage its audience. Facebook reported that as Upworthy.com grew to 10.4 million unique users in one year, its Facebook page grew to 1.3 million likes over the same period. Upworthy credits Facebook for a large portion of its traffic.

Upworthy's mission is to help content go viral by getting it in front of people who care. It's not a news site, but more of a transfer station for popular, thoughtful content. It seeks to share videos and stories that most people don't often see or read, bringing them to a wider audience.

One major way that Upworthy has found success is through Facebook's social plugins, such as like and share buttons. Upworthy also uses the facepile plugin, which shows people who visit the site their friends who have liked the Facebook page. Upworthy estimates that about 65 percent of the U.S. population on Facebook has a friend who likes the site.

Upworthy is also in tune with its readership. The company uses rigorous testing for headlines, knowing that the difference between a dull headline and an exciting one can mean 1,000 or 10,000 people clicking on that story. For each post, Upworthy curators generate at least 25 headlines. The managing editor picks four of those and tests them to see how readers respond. When it tests headlines, Upworthy sees differences of 20 percent, 50 percent, and even 500 percent between headlines for the same story.

Facebook praised the site for figuring out what their readers want and why they share stories:

Upworthy realized early that people post stories to Facebook to help express their identities. People post things they believe in and want to let others know where they stand. Based on this insight, Upworthy arranges its stories by topic areas that people identify with, including diversity, economy, environment, guns and crime, LGBT, science, and women.

Upworthy also focuses on quality versus quantity in stories. The curators (Upworthy's editorial group) spend their days combing Facebook and other visual sites, creating 60 pieces of topical content per week. The team uses Facebook to identify worthwhile topics. Upworthy doesn't want to be the first to report a news item, but rather to get the right piece of content published when it is most relevant and likely to be shared.

Subject: Games best practices Guide & Platform Simplification

Hi All,

I was just replying to a developer question and was about to send the dev our Mobile Games Best Practices guide. This is a doc that our team shares with devs frequently. I happened to scan through the doc again quickly, and realized that the language in here around friend permissions is very counter to our upcoming platform simplification efforts and what we're doing around user trust. Bolding is mine:

Similar in sentiment to the Make login prominent best practice, it's recommended that you make the player's personalized social context prominent within your game. When a player grants you basic read permissions, you have full access to their list of friends. Take immediate advantage of this and make it easy for them to connect to their friends within the game. Don't force people to recreate existing friendships within your game. Instead, display their existing friend connections right away.

Should this get updated? It feels against the spirit of where we are headed.

>tl;dr

>/ Our fairly pessimistic model projects a loss of $160M or 5.2% of >annual canvas revenue / Mafia Wars, FarmVille, FarmVille 2, Kingdoms of Camelot are projected to lose > 10% of their TPV. Other games will lose less than 10% and many games will feel negligible impact.

>stream publish is 1/2)

>even if so, i think Cox / Nowak would push back and say they want to >kill all implicits

>so what would you want to do for stream publish?

Ling Bao:

>@Alex - of the top 10 games that'd be most impacted if we removed implicits + stream publish, 6 get 90%+ traffic from implicit og _or_ implicit stream publish, 4 i couldn't get any publish to happen at n00b levels.

>i made the comment above to address your feedback yesterday that some of these apps may be using stream publish explicitly so we didn't need to factor stream publish into their lost traffic. but apparently those that stream publish do so implicitly.

George Lee:

>Sorry...catching up on this thread now...

>1/ According to Jake 92% of feed installs are implicit OG. That smells right. @jake - how many of those are our is-playing stories vs. actual OG publishes by the developers?

>2/ Another important piece of context right now is that we're trying desperately to work with the feed team on better ranking for feed stories. Feed installs have dropped 75% since the beginning of the year. Re-engagement traffic has dropped by 50%. AND we're being told that we might get "priced out" of feed due to direct revenue value models for advertising. We are now regularly below 10M installs daily overall and while that may not show up in the revenue numbers right now, the longer term impact of lost installs could result in revenue losses that don't show up until later.

>3/ I think we're also missing the impact to developer sentiment (not just the quantitative losses of their stories). I get emails frequently (and sat down with some important and unhappy devs this week) about how feed distribution is inconsistent and dying. You have to remember that our partner managers are still selling products that we ask them to sell, so when it comes to feed integration we're still telling people to use OG. The last f8 was all about implicit OG, so while we may have decided amongst ourselves that this is no longer the future without an alternative we don't have anything to tell current devs (so partners continue to tell them to use OG and they continue to integrate it). I believe we're at a tipping point here and if we don't manage this correctly, people will leave canvas at an accelerated pace just because we're thrashing them.

>4/ I'm actually not a fan of implicit sharing and believe we need to shut it down, but I do think we're being irresponsible to our developers if we just flip the switch and say we're sorry (I expressed this to Nowak last week). We cannot be a platform that developers believe in if we keep ripping band-aids on a whim. IMHO, we should be breaking change this OR lower the distribution over a window of time while we figure out how to offset the losses with some other distribution channel or better ranking of explicit shares.

Ling Bao:

>2/ agree George, there's risk of network effects and long term effects.

>that's why this model is ultimately brittle as noted above

>4/ i don't think we're discussing the timing yet. the first question

>we're trying to answer is, can we kill implicit sharing at all (w/ or >w/o a long breaking change window) while preserving platform

George Lee:

>re: 4/

>Let's be clear. I think this conversation is not about whether we should turn off implicit sharing...we're talking about HOW we're going to turn off implicit sharing. And IMHO, we need to do it in a way that shows respect for our partners given that we sold them on OG in the last f8 and that they put lots of time into building these integrations. The reality is that the action itself is going to cause more pain than the traffic itself might cause.

Ling Bao:

>i had not assumed we would turn off implicit sharing, but defer to Doug >on whether this is a given at this pt

George Lee:

>5/ Not sure if you guys are aware but the engagement team also wants to remove action links in the Lightstand launch. Again, this is something they were going to "just do"...another example of us being a bad partner to our devs.

>re: implicit

>In talking to Nowak, Cox wants to kill it and no one on the platform side really is an advocate for it. We're defending it as a mechanism to not hurt partners, not because we think it is a good product.

George Lee:

>(at least that is my interpretation)

Douglas Purdy:
>I think I debugged our communication problem. Has really had me stumped on how I failed to communicate my state effectively to you. In the end, I think it is because I failed to communicate that I wanted something new that wasn't platform. I am just tired of fighting on the developer front of the company. I wanted to lead another front or open a new one. I just really understood this myself, so it is mostly my fault. I kept telling you what I didn't like about the platform front, not why I wanted to start a new front. That is an important difference. That was the communication error. Everyone thought I just wanted to run the developer front, rather than get a break. Thought it could be interesting for you to think about. I imagine I won't be the last person you work with that has this pattern of behavior. This is also why I am not as passionately driving the platform 3.0 effort as I could be (but I will get it done for you -- note the motivation).

Douglas Purdy:
>I had basically given Platform to Vlad because I didn't want to fight anymore and wanted to do something else. This has hindsight bias, but I think it accurately represents my current understanding of the failure here.

Douglas Purdy:
>This also explains why I was so deflated on Friday after my meeting with Zuck. He basically told me that I had to "get back to digging ditches before you can do anything new. Oh, and I don't believe you can start a new thing anyway because you can only work in developer and in large teams". Creative license there, of course, but I hope that communicates my takeaway and why I made a commitment to Ethan the day after (which I will honor, this is just for my own learning and perhaps yours).

Douglas Purdy:

>Platform 3.0: we are still iterating and I want vlad and Vishu to see it before you see it for signoff. So likely tomorrow unless you want us to add you with them at the same time?

Michael Vernal:

>Makes sense on the failure mode.

First, you are reading things in the wrong order and this email only makes sense in the context of the first mail.

Second, I don't want to get to this level of detail with Dan and Justin. I have 2 PMs working on this issue and I want them to help determine the right thing to do based on core principles we construct and really usage data (we make dumb decisions in the room with a bunch of directors and no data).

In terms of reciprocity, I work here and I don't even know what you said (hyperbole), so I think the model you outline is really hard to follow so we should discuss.

On Apr 10, 2013, at 11:34 PM, "Mike Vernal" <vernal@fb.com> wrote:

Thanks for writing this up.

I have a lot of thoughts. I'll try to keep this succinct.

Reciprocity - as the inventor of reciprocity, I think the vision I had for this has gotten distorted a little bit. Here's where __ think we ended-up in November:

- User Data - users can always bring their data to third-party apps (the photos they uploaded, the likes they made, etc.)
- Friend Data - we are removing the ability to access non-PAI for friends

- Categorical Reciprocity - if an app developer reads a certain type of user data (e.g., photos), and the user can also create new data of this kind in your app (new photos), the developer must:
 - Offer a prominent way to share this back to Facebook
 - Implement the Action Importer API so that users can import this type of data into Facebook
- Social Reciprocity - if an app developer reads the friend graph, then they must also:
 - Offer a prominent way to share all social actions back to Facebook
 - Implement the Action Importer API so that users can import their actions into Facebook

The really important difference here is that I (strongly) think we should continue to support apps that offer compelling, social experiences, even if those apps don't have any natural sharing back to Facebook. If an app creates data or creates social actions, I think users need to be able to bring that data back to Facebook, but if an app doesn't create any data or social actions, we shouldn't ban that app. I feel really strongly about this, but I think there's either disagreement or confusion on this point (you wrote this below, I've heard Justin say this, I've heard Dan say this, so we may need to discuss).

Strategic Competitors - I think your wording/framing below is too nuanced. I think this is basically "there is a very small number of apps that have been flagged as strategic competitors. All of their uses of our platform (ads, identity, and app services) require prior review/approval from Mark."

API Classes - you are correct in channeling me. I thought about this for a little while, and here's a suggested framing:

- Read
 - Login (uid, name, profile pic, small # of core fields) - anyone can get this. No a priori review.
 - User Data - requires user_* permissions. Ability to ask for those user_* permissions requires unified review.
 - Friend List - Requires unified review. If you access the friend list, you must conform with Social Reciprocity, as defined above.
 - Friend Data - we're removing this (removing friend_ permissions)*

- Core Facebook Features (News Feed API, Inbox API, Full Search API, etc.) - requires unified review. Generally only available with a business deal, generally limited to Facebook replacement apps.
- Write
 - Share Dialog - anyone can use
 - Open Graph (defining actions, using the API) - requires unified review
 - Other Write/Management APIs (events, groups, etc.) - requires unified review. Generally requires a business deal, only available to Facebook replacement apps.
- Distribution
 - Bookmarks - limited to canvas apps + mobile games. Requires unified review.
 - Requests - limited to canvas apps + mobile games. Requires unified review.
 - Notifications - limited to canvas apps + mobile games. Requires unified review.
 - App Center + Search - limited to apps that have gone through unified review.
 - Messaging (Invitations) - will require unified review. Available to anyone who abides by our rules (does not spam the channel).

Your Open Questions:

- Non-Writeable Fields - I think we should continue to expose birthday, hometown, etc. We can add write APIs whenever it makes sense, but we shouldn't remove these fields because we don't have write APIs today.
- Canvas apps - I think they're just subject to the same rules as above. I don't think this is an issue if you use my definition of reciprocity.
- Facebook Payments - I think I'd let this stand on its own legs and not couple it to login.

For the meeting tomorrow, I (personally) think the two biggest issues to probably get agreement on is (a) the crisp definition of reciprocity and (b) something like the API classes thing I mention above. Your call - not trying to be prescriptive, but trying to make sure we have an effective conversation.

[Below is an broad summary of our app review guidelines. I really want to encode most of this in the devops review tool. Could you folks look at this and comment, flame, whatever?]

As we work towards implementing the decisions that we made last year, which are now known as Platform 3.0, we need a common framework by which we can make decisions about what types of app to give access to Platform. This framework must address three key questions: what are the broad principles of our platform, how do these manifest in our products/policies and how do we communicate this to developers? This document answers these questions, constituting the Platform "rules of the road".

Principles

The fundamental principle that governs Platform usage is a simple concept: reciprocity. Reciprocity involves a equalible value exchange between a 3rd party developer and Facebook. This value exchange involves one of the following from developers: high-quality experiences that FB users can use to tell great stories to their friends and family on FB and/or monetary value in the form of revenue sharing or direct payment. In return, Facebook offers a developers access to our Platform.

When considering the implications of reciprocity it is important to note that a second order principle quickly emerges: competitive access. There are a small number of developers whom no amount of sharing to FB or monetary value can justify giving them access to Platform. These developers do not want to participate in the ecosystem we have created, but rather build their own ecosystem at the expense of our users, other developers and, of course, us. That is something that we will not allow.

Platform Services

In order to outline how the above principles manifest in our products/policies, we need to identify the various parts of Platform. This is required because we have a disjoint set of product and policy constraints that apply to each of these different areas:

App services: these are paid generic services (storage, compute, etc.) that apps may use to build the core foundation of their app. At present, we do not have an offering in this space, but we are close to closing an acquisition that adds these services. As such, in order to be complete and future-proof we will outline the rules associated with these types of services.

Ads services: these are paid promotional services that enable developers to drive awareness and installations of their apps using News Feed and other paid channels. We have always had an advertising business the developers could leverage, but this is increasingly an area of focus for us with the transition to mobile.

Identity services: these are the traditional identity/social services that we have provided to developers since 2007. These services enable developers to build personalized app experiences for people and enable these people to share aspects of those experiences back to Facebook. [todo: payments is here]

Application

The following outlines the application of the above principles to the various kinds of platform services.

Strategic competitors: We maintain a small list of strategic competitors that Mark personally reviewed. Apps produced by the companies on this list are subject to a number of restrictions outlined below. Any usage beyond that specified is not permitted without Mark level sign-off.

Ad services: All developers, save strategic competitors (above), may use our ads services. The reciprocity for these services is clear: money in exchange for new or re-engaged users. In terms of oversight/policy enforcement, we follow the standard ads creative review process.

App services: All developers, save strategic competitors (above), may use our app services. The reciprocity for these services is clear: money in exchange for CPU, data storage and network bandwidth. In terms of oversight/policy enforcement, we will reactive handle any strategic competitors that we discover using these services.

Identity services: this set of services is the subject of much of the rules of the road. This is due to the fact that we have a variety of mechanisms for value exchange.

All developers, including strategic competitors (above), may use the Login and Social Plugin features available within identity services. We permit this because we wish to see our core login service and basic sharing services used by users in any app, creating an equitable relationship with the all, including competitive, developers. To this end, we make these features available to developers with out app review.

The use of identity services, beyond Login and Social Plugins, is subject to app review. We review the apps usage of our APIs to determine if they are adhering to our principles. In particular, we look at the quality of the app's user experience and if there existing some equitable value exchange.

During app review, we determine the quality of the app by using the app and comparing the experience to our quality guidelines [link]. Apps that do not meet our quality bar are rejected.

During app review, we examine the APIs that the app uses in order to determine what the appropriate level of reciprocity. For apps that do not use our payments service (which is direct form of equitable value exchange), the guideline for this review is "take data, give data". For example, if the app accesses the user's photos, the app must offer a prominent mechanism for the user to share new or modified photos back to Facebook. The review tool is built to help with this assessment in that for every read API used by the app, we flag if the app is also writing this data back to Facebook. Using this tool, as well as an examination of the user experience itself, we can determine if the app is reciprocating. If they are not, the app is a "data leach" and will be rejected.

Open Issues

There are a number of different fields like birthday, hometown, etc. that apps can request and there is no way for them to write back anything. We can do a couple of things: create an API to set this info (maybe not a bad idea for identity growth?), limit these data fields to just canvas apps (the value exchange is time on site and maybe payments), pull these fields, something else?

How do we think about the baseline level of value exchange of canvas apps due to time on site? Is that enough to forgo the "take data, give data" mandate for non-payment games/apps?

If you are offering real/world goods for sale on your web site or mobile app, in order to use identity services, you must use Facebook Wallet (Payments 3.0)?

I don't think that's how Mark defines total reciprocity - he defines it as every piece of content _by that user_ that can be seen by another user.

What Mark is saying is he wants certain partners (I assume not all) to give us news feeds on behalf of their users, which is kind of crazy.

He mentioned it once before, and I'm not sure of the backstory here.

I think the news feed scenario ties to Mark's concept of total reciprocity. His definition of "total" is that the app sends us every piece of public content that can be viewed by that user. For apps like Pinterest, this essentially equates to their entire feed. So if we require them to send us their feed, it would be awkward to take away our own feed at the same time.

Adding a couple of more thoughts. Again, really excited about this direction:

- As context, we've been talking about all these changes as "Platform 3.0," as it really represents a substantial relaunch of platform. I think there are a lot of changes we'll need to bundle into Platform 3.0, including the Invitations feature. To really be able to take away non-app-user friends, we also really need to make Invitations an effective channel (requests are really ineffective, especially on mobile). We'll come back to you with mocks and a more concrete product vision in the next few weeks.

- Our intuition around # of friends and usefulness of coefficient was the opposite - if you only have 5-10 friends in an app, then providing coefficient isn't that useful (especially if we're just giving ranked coefficient). It only really becomes useful when you have 20+ friends and you have to rank them for engagement reasons. Given I think it would be awkward to give coefficient free to some threshold, then take it away, then charge for it, I'd probably just keep it as a premium feature.

- We agree we should charge for API usage above a threshold. No strong opinion on tiered model vs. charging above a certain usage level. We should just make sure the tiered model doesn't have weird arbitrage loops (e.g., the top tier makes people feel they can make an infinite # of calls or prices good apps out of the market, etc.).

- I think partnering with mobile games on premium read/engagement features is a really good idea/framing and probably the right go-to-market for these features. Also agree this is lower priority than getting the base model right.

The only thing I was surprised / confused by was the News Feed scenario below (letting a user import everything they can _see_ from another app onto Facebook, e.g., all your friends' pins). We haven't talked about that before in-depth, I'm not really sure why Pinterest or others would allow us to do this, etc. Would be good to dive on that use case in person (or if there is someone who can educate me about it in the interim, that would be good).

Like I said, feel really good about that rest.

There's a lot to process here, but one quick question on the reciprocity point.

As part of our reciprocity policy, I think we have to require that apps allow us to enable Facebook integrations _from_ Facebook_. Basically, we'd have the Action Importer UI on your Timeline, and when you clicked "Turn On" we'd let you login to the app and setup continual importing of your social activity from the app. I think this is really important for us to actually realize the value of full reciprocity (otherwise I worry we'll be arguing about pixels on a partner's site, which won't be that productive).

I wasn't sure if this impacted your thinking, as you assume below that 25% of data is flowing back to Facebook (which I think is too low, which is why I want the ability to upsell this from FB).

Subject: Platform Model Thoughts

After thinking about platform business model for a long time, I wanted to send out a note explaining where I'm leaning on this. This isn't final and we'll have a chance to discuss this in person before we decide this for sure, but since this is complex, I wanted to write out my thoughts. This is long, but hopefully helpful.

The quick summary is that I think we should go with full reciprocity and access to app friends for no charge. Full reciprocity means that apps are required to give any user who connects to FB a prominent option to share all of their social content within that service (ie all content that is visible to more than a few people, but excluding 1:1 or small group messages) back to Facebook. In addition to this, in the future, I also think we should develop a premium service for things like instant personalization and coefficient, but that can be separate from this next release of platform. A lot more details and context below.

First, to answer the question of what we should do, the very first question I developed an opinion on was what we should be optimizing for. There's a clear tension between platform ubiquity and charging, so it's important to first fully explore what we're trying to get out of platform.

The answer I came to is that we're trying to enable people to share everything they want, and to do it on Facebook. Sometimes the best way to enable people to share something is to have a developer build a special purpose app or network for that type of content and to make that app social by having Facebook plug into it. However, that may be good for the world but it's not good for us unless people also share back to Facebook and that content increases the value of our network. So ultimately, I think the purpose of platform -- even the read side -- is to increase sharing back into Facebook.

If we do this well, we should be able to unlock much more sharing in the world and on Facebook through a constellation of apps than we could ever build experiences for ourselves. We should be able to solve the audience problem partially by giving people different audiences in different apps and linking them all together on Facebook. The current state of the world supports that more social apps enables sharing, so the biggest challenge for us is to link them all together.

This makes it somewhat clearer that we want platform to be ubiquitous and to strongly encourage sharing back to Facebook, but it's not yet definitively clear that having full reciprocity and no charge is optimal.

For one thing, it's conceivable that we'd get more net sharing overall and more net sharing into Facebook if we didn't have a reciprocity mandate. This would be true if many developers dropped out over the reciprocity mandate. The reason I don't think they will is that almost no developers will even be giving us the majority of their data since many of their users won't log in with Facebook and many of those who do won't choose to share it back to Facebook. Assuming for a heavily FB-dependent app each of those is 50% participation, then only 25% of the data is shared to Facebook. As long as apps always have a sustainable advantage over Facebook, most will participate. For more sensitive companies like Amazon and Yelp that value their reviews a lot more, way fewer than 50% of their users will connect to Facebook, so this will represent a tiny portion of their reviews and social data. My guess is that they should still rationally want to connect with Facebook at these levels, but if they don't then that probably means they're competitive with us and we're better off not letting them integrate with us anyway. This all makes me think full reciprocity is the way to go.

For charging, the question is whether we could charge and still achieve ubiquity. Theoretically, if we could do that, it would be better to get ubiquity and get paid. My sense is there may be some price we could charge that wouldn't interfere with ubiquity, but this price wouldn't be enough to make us real money. Conversely, we could probably make real money if we were willing to sacrifice ubiquity, but that doesn't seem like the right trade here. After looking at all the numbers for a while, I'm coming around to the perspective that the write side of platform is a much bigger opportunity for us and we should focus the vast majority of our monetization effort on that and not this.

The last question is whether we should include app friends (ie the user's friends who are also using this app). Ultimately, it seems like this data is what developers want most and if we pulled this out of the package then most of the value proposition falls apart. This is especially true if we require full reciprocity without offering our most valuable data.

So that's essentially how I got to thinking we should do full reciprocity with app friends and no charge.

There's some more nuance to this opinion though:

First, in any model, I'm assuming we enforce our policies against competitors much more strongly. The good news about full reciprocity is that for bigger social companies we might otherwise be worried about, if they're enabling their users to push all of their social content back into Facebook then we're probably fine with them. However, for folks like WeChat, we need to enforce a lot sooner.

Second, if we're limiting friends to app friends, we need to make sure we build the appropriate distribution tools that developers want to invite the rest of the user's friends. We keep saying that theoretically this is part of the write side platform and it's a premium feature, and those things may be true, but I think we need to build them and make sure they're ready when we roll this out or else we're just taking away functionality without replacing it with something better. It seems like we need some way to fast app switch to the FB app to show a dialog on our side that lets you select which of your friends you want to invite to an app. We need to make sure this experience actually is possible to build and make as good as we want, especially on iOS where we're more constrained. We also need to figure out how we're going to charge for it. I want to make sure this is explicitly tied to pulling non-app friends out of friends.get.

Third, there's the data that suggests that if we share app friends only, then most apps will only get fewer than 10 friends from each person. If this is the case, then we may want to consider including coefficient ranking for those app friends for free -- or at least the top 5-10 app friends. This doesn't seem like much leakage and could encourage more people to use our tools by differentiation our product further from anything else that's out there.

Fourth, for products like Ansible and Newsstand, it will be very important to enable people to import their feeds of content from other apps into Facebook. That is, we'd be pulling those people's friends' data from those apps -- eg your friends' pins on Pinterest to make a Pinterest section for you in Newsstand or include the pin images on your Ansible lock/home. Since this is going to be an important upcoming push, we need to consider whether it's still the right thing to remove our own stream.get API if we're requiring full reciprocity. I still want to remove it, but if the spirit is full reciprocity, it may just be difficult to refuse access to the app that are pushing streams into us. The good news is that those services aren't the ones we're typically worried about, so we'd still get to prevent almost all troublesome apps from having it. The bad news is this would prevent us from really deprecating this. I haven't thought through this fully and need to think about it some more.

Fifth, not charging still means people will overuse and abuse our APIs and waste money for us, so I still think we should implement some kind of program where you have to pay if you use too many of our resources. That said, the goal of this won't be to charge for actual usage so we can build a less precise system of for monitoring than the full accounting systems we would have had to have built for the other system we discussed. What I'm assuming we'll do here is have a few basic thresholds of API usage and once you pass a threshold you either need to pay us some fixed amount to get to the next threshold or you get rate limited at the lower threshold. One basic implementation of this could be to have a few different fees for developers, with basic starting at $100 and then having levels at $10k, $1m, $10m, etc. This should be relatively simple, achieve the goal of controlling costs and make us some money if we want.

Finally, I want to discuss the premium read services for a bit.

One of the big ideas I took away from our discussions was Ed Baker's framing that every business wants growth, engagement and monetization. I like this framing because it explains what the read side of platform is -- it increases engagement, or more specifically, it takes a user and turns them into a more engaged user through adding real identity and social connections to them. This is real value and it's different from anything else we do. We have ads and some organic distribution for driving growth, the read side of platform for driving engagement and the ad network and payments for driving monetization. We'll offer the full stack of services.

How our premium read services add value is pretty clear -- through simply eliminating friction. Our free services let you get basic info, app friends and let you pay to get access to a dialog to invite more friends. Developers can always get these critical flows to perform better if they have more of the data and more control though. Through instant personalization, they can encourage a person to sign in more effectively and will therefore convert more unregistered users to ones with real identity and friends. Through coefficient and full friends list, they can upsell a person to invite their friends much more effectively throughout their app as well. I'd estimate that these two things alone would increase conversion by ~20-30% for developers. That means they should be willing to pay us roughly 20-30% of the value of each user who signs up. That's a big deal because engagement is very valuable.

I have a specific proposal for how to get started with this and it's that we should work with mobile games. The feedback we're getting from almost every other type of developer is they don't know how to value our services or really much of their engagement at all. But game developers generally track this and have a better sense. They would certainly be willing to try it out in new games and they'd be able to figure out how well it worked. Once it works for most game developers, then we can start letting other developers in as well.

Working with game developers has a few other nice properties. It means doing something nice for our game developers first and making them feel valued. It's fairly natural to offer IP on mobile since we already offer it to them on canvas. This could also be an important part of helping us transition our canvas business onto mobile if it effectively lets us take a 20-30% cut of the value of FB-connected users.

On pricing, there are a couple of ways I could see this working. First, we could charge based on the value our ads auction computes for each user. I'm still fairly confident that's the most efficient way to charge if we can't just take a straight rev share. That said, the second choice, since this is just games, is to actually figure out how to just take a straight revenue share. This might be possible in conjunction with some sort of publisher model for games that I know the team is already thinking about.

This all said, while I'd love to build this premium engagement model as quickly as possible, there's definitely more low hanging fruit on the growth/distribution side that almost all developers will be able to use if we build out correctly. So we should probably prioritize that before premium engagement.

We also need to first prioritize all the tools required to make these policies work, including making it so developers can actually share everything social in their apps back to Facebook if we're requiring them to offer that option, the premium invite channel that will replace access to non-app friends, etc.

Overall, I feel good about this direction. The purpose of platform is to tie the universe of all the social apps together so we can enable a lot more sharing and still remain the central social hub. I think this finds the right balance between ubiquity, reciprocity and profit.

Again, this isn't final but I wanted to let you all know where I'm leaning. I'm looking forward to discussing when I'm back after Thanksgiving.

It seems like we need some way to fast app switch to the FB app to show a dialog on our side that lets you select which of your friends you want to invite to an app. We need to make sure this experience actually is possible to build and make as good as we want, especially on iOS where we're more constrained. We also need to figure out how we're going to charge for it. I want to make sure this is explicitly tied to pulling non-app friends out of friends.get.

Third, there's the data that suggests that if we share app friends only, then most apps will only get fewer than 10 friends from each person. If this is the case, then we may want to consider including coefficient ranking for those app friends for free -- or at least the top 5-10 app friends. This doesn't seem like much leakage and could encourage more people to use our tools by differentiation our product further from anything else that's out there.

Fourth, for products like Ansible and Newsstand, it will be very important to enable people to import their feeds of content from other apps into Facebook. That is, we'd be pulling those people's friends' data from those apps -- eg your friends' pins on Pinterest to make a Pinterest section for you in Newsstand or include the pin images on your Ansible lock/home. Since this is going to be an important upcoming push, we need to consider whether it's still the right thing to remove our own stream.get API if we're requiring full reciprocity. I still want to remove it, but if the spirit is full reciprocity, it may just be difficult to refuse access to the app that are pushing streams into us. The good news is that those services aren't the ones we're typically worried about, so we'd still get to prevent almost all troublesome apps from having it. The bad news is this would prevent us from really deprecating this. I haven't thought through this fully and need to think about it some more.

Fifth, not charging still means people will overuse and abuse our APIs and waste money for us, so I still think we should implement some kind of program where you have to pay if you use too many of our resources. That said, the goal of this won't be to charge for actual usage so we can build a less precise system of for monitoring than the full accounting systems we would have had to have built for the other system we discussed. What I'm assuming we'll do here is have a few basic thresholds of API usage and once you pass a threshold you either need to pay us some fixed amount to get to the next threshold or you get rate limited at the lower threshold. One basic implementation of this could be to have a few different fees for developers, with basic starting at $100 and then having levels at $10k, $1m, $10m, etc. This should be relatively simple, achieve the goal of controlling costs and make us some money if we want.

Finally, I want to discuss the premium read services for a bit.

One of the big ideas I took away from our discussions was Ed Baker's framing that every business wants growth, engagement and monetization. I like this framing because it explains what the read side of platform is -- it increases engagement, or more specifically, it takes a user and turns them into a more engaged user through adding real identity and social connections to them. This is real value and it's different from anything else we do. We have ads and some organic distribution for driving growth, the read side of platform for driving engagement and the ad network and payments for driving monetization. We'll offer the full stack of services.

How our premium read services add value is pretty clear -- through simply eliminating friction. Our free services let you get basic info, app friends and let you pay to get access to a dialog to invite more friends. Developers can always get these critical flows to perform better if they have more of the data and more control though. Through instant personalization, they can encourage a person to sign in more effectively and will therefore convert more unregistered users to ones with real identity and friends. Through coefficient and full friends list, they can upsell a person to invite their friends much more effectively throughout their app as well. I'd estimate that these two things alone would increase conversion by ~20-30% for developers. That means they should be willing to pay us roughly 20-30% of the value of each user who signs up. That's a big deal because engagement is very valuable.

I have a specific proposal for how to get started with this and it's that we should work with mobile games. The feedback we're getting from almost every other type of developer is they don't know how to value our services or really much of their engagement at all. But game developers generally track this and have a better sense. They would certainly be willing to try it out in new games and they'd be able to figure out how well it worked. Once it works for most game developers, then we can start letting other developers in as well.

Working with game developers has a few other nice properties. It means doing something nice for our game developers first and making them feel valued. It's fairly natural to offer IP on mobile since we already offer it to them on canvas. This could also be an important part of helping us transition our canvas business onto mobile if it effectively lets us take a 20-30% cut of the value of FB-connected users.

On pricing, there are a couple of ways I could see this working. First, we could charge based on the value our ads auction computes for each user. I'm still fairly confident that's the most efficient way to charge if we can't just take a straight rev share. That said, the second choice, since this is just games, is to actually figure out how to just take a straight revenue share. This might be possible in conjunction with some sort of publisher model for games that I know the team is already thinking about.

This all said, while I'd love to build this premium engagement model as quickly as possible, there's definitely more low hanging fruit on the growth/distribution side that almost all developers will be able to use if we build out correctly. So we should probably prioritize that before premium engagement.

We also need to first prioritize all the tools required to make these policies work, including making it so developers can actually share everything social in their apps back to Facebook if we're requiring them to offer that option, the premium invite channel that will replace access to non-app friends, etc.

Overall, I feel good about this direction. The purpose of platform is to tie the universe of all the social apps together so we can enable a lot more sharing and still remain the central social hub. I think this finds the right balance between ubiquity, reciprocity and profit.

Again, this isn't final but I wanted to let you all know where I'm leaning. I'm looking forward to discussing when I'm back after Thanksgiving.

For Ads Targeting - in spirit I'd be ok saying that if the majority of an actions in a cohort are sourced from one of these providers, we wouldn't allow targeting here. My real concern is about the complexity of the Ads system (both technical complexity and to users). E.g., what if there's an ongoing campaign and suddenly it crosses the threshold. Does that campaign pause? Etc. My suggested next step here would be to get someone on Deb Liu's team to work on a proposal here whose two primary goals were (a) minimize complexity on the ads system and (b) be acceptable to these partners, with a secondary goal of maintaining option value here.

For competitive services - unless we very narrowly define what this means, then no, I don't think we can sign-up for this. E.g., I think we could sign-up to not hosting / selling music directly (where we were merchant of record) or selling video / video subscriptions (again, where we were merchant of record), but I'm certain we will be facilitating the sale of this content within the next 2-3 years in an affiliate and advertising-oriented way. If they view that as competitive ... well, they're right. We are going to be doing this in the next few years.

Is it worth (at this point) actually spinning up some PM/Eng work on what these targeting restrictions could feasibly look like? If so, I think we should start w/ Deb and have her work with folks on Gokul and Sobel's team.

I think that it would be 40% of users that have taken an action in the [advertiser's targeting segment]. [advertiser's targeting segment] could be a country, age group, gender, etc. This would lead to the situation that depending on mix of action takers, an advertiser could be restricted from targeting Males in Germany who are readers, but not Females in Germany who are readers (assuming % of male Kindle readers is over the threshold, but female % is not). This could be an ad UI nightmare as options appear/disappear as one changes the targeting segment.

I don't think OG writing developers would understand the argument for the thresholds/rules for actions not applying to objects. What is different in your mind?

Separate question that Comcast and Amazon have asked for: Would we be willing to sign up for not using the data they give us to compete with them? i.e. We could compete, just not using the data that they provide us. For comcast, they worry that we'd be an over-the-top video content provider and use all of the content that we collected to seed recommendations for our service. For Amazon, they worry that that we would become a music or reading alternative. I think its a legitimate concern on their part, but the trouble with signing up to a restriction is that we may indeed stumble our way into competing in N years. But net, I think that we may have to consider signing up to something like this. As an analogy, we publicly stated that we wouldn't build games which was assurance for Zynga.

What would the % threshold look like? Is that global (40% of actions globally)? Is it for a given user? A given user and their friends? A country or a locale?

I could imagine restricting action-targeting only if actions were predominantly / entirely tied to one app (e.g., reads for Kindles), but I wouldn't want to restrict objects or anything more, if possible.

I think you're right on us being in transition and that is what is driving frustration with Xbox and Sony.

I agree that we need to give up on portability and the context API can ease that. We will need to put the right anti-abuse protections against that. This helps with Comcast and Amazon specifically (and I'm sure others who will figure this issue out in time).

I think that we are on the right track for ad protections with what we discussed in a room a couple of weeks ago w/r/t different levels of protection for different data, i.e. A) no targeting ever against an app id, B) for TV one can target show and genre...etc. The one corner case that Amazon wants to protect against is what we do when a single provider is greater than X% of all actions (i.e. Amazon may be 50% of all read actions) and therefore targeting against an action (read) or object (Game of Thrones) effectively gets one to targeting against an app ID. I think we need to pick the percentage that X is equal to. I would propose a line at ~40%. Note than Amazon proposed 33%. I pick 40% because 50% seems equally unfair as it is fair and I think we need to err on the side of being fair here given that the competitive threat is existential for some providers. Open to feedback.

This gets me comfortable with Xbox, Sony, Amazon, Apple. It does not mean that they'll all sign up today, but I at least feel like we're being principled and fair in all areas. Bing will always be a special case given the depth of gives and gets there. Comcast may not sign up for this, but they are going to be over-protectionist of their positions given their market dynamics.

how_am_i_connected($user, $object_id)

Returns info about how you're connected to this thing. Whether we return the best one, all of them, is tbd.

But it would basically return things like (in structured form, not as text):

"Doug Purdy and 10 of your friends watched this movie."

(Where it would only name friends that are also using this app, so it might be "11 of your friends watched this movie." or "Doug Purdy, Chris Daniels and 9 of your friends watched this movie.")

It might also decide to return "Mike Vernal and 3 friends like this movie." or "You saved this movie last Thursday." Etc.

If the object was a person instead of a book, it might return mutual friends or other ways you're connected.

Etc.

A few thoughts:

1/ I think we are mid-way through a painful transition. We gave away a bunch of stuff "for free" historically (data, distribution) and we're now making you "pay" for it via reciprocal value. I think the confusing thing here is that we haven't really announced these changes publicly/broadly yet (because the products aren't done), but we know they're coming and so in long-term negotiations with key partners we're trying to lock them in to the model that is going to be, rather than the model that currently exists. That makes these negotiations difficult, because they look at what the general platform is and think we're giving them special negative treatment. This will be a lot easier when we broadly announce our policies (and once the implementation mechanisms, e.g., action importers, are seen as value-add rather than taxes).

2/ I think we should give up on the data portability thing, too. It's principled but against our self-interest. I'm hoping the Context API will ease this change.

3/ On the advertising front, I don't think we're there yet, but I'm not sure of the answer. I think the principle has to be that whatever users share on Facebook is targetable (but we'll withhold the app_id business). I think there's data that apps store with us that isn't user-visible (Parse data, custom events, etc.) that we probably need to be 100% clear is only the app's data and we'll never expose to other parties (either directly, or indirectly through things like lookalike groups).

I think the big risk on the advertising front is that we're asking folks like Amazon and Apple to let users share all the stuff that they're reading (instead of them asking us to get more distribution), so this sets up the dynamic where they feel like they can ask for data protection. I don't have a good solution for this yet.

But, net, I think we really need to finish building the products/model that we want and launch them, and then these negotiations will get a lot easier.

Cool, will send along when I write it up.

On the OG portion of platform, I think that developers are reasonable with their discomfort around two things: 1) data portability, 2) use of their data for ad targeting. Note that on #1, we aren't consistent with our own policies as we require quarantining of contacts. On #2, we expressly prohibit any of our data being used in an ad network, but I think that a developer could target based on info we give them...we just don't give deep data to anyone of enough size that it is useful for them so the situation is not analogous.

I think we should consider dropping our requirement on data portability so that one developer doesn't fear FB being a data passthrough to a competitor.

I need to put more thought into the advertising issue – I think we're headed down the right track on disallowing targeting on app ID, but we can target on other attributes (i.e. actions and objects).

I need to think about consistency with our policies on SSO, content creation integrations (like the Kindle custom share sheet), login, etc., so I have more work to do before I'll feel like I have a clear picture of everything.

In particular, wanted to call out the lines I highlighted. I am feeling like our value exchange on platform is simply not working for partners (Amazon, Xbox, Sony, Apple, Comcast, Bing...) and will find some time to chat with you guys after I have put some structured thought into whether this is a short-term or long-term issue and what we could choose to do about it.

...its been a few weeks, so apologies for the length.

Maps: As maps becomes a strategic control point for Google services on Android, we need to think about a world in which Google uses its leverage with maps to degrade (or at the unlikely extreme - disallow) Facebook on Android devices. Therefore, Rob and I are engaged with Apple and Nokia on possible map licensing deals that would give us the option to have a fb map app on Android (and other platforms for consistency in experience) in exchange for empowering their mapping solutions with social data.

Amazon: Amazon responded to our proposal for publishing read actions from Kindle. Their asks were too broad and misaligned with our goals, so we will likely walk away (for now). The interesting part is that they bought Goodreads which currently has an integration that is under our standard terms, so they'll get antsy as we refuse to move Goodreads off of our standard terms. Great xfn work by Jackie to keep everyone aligned on what we will (SSO, OOBIE) and won't (custom apps, broad permissions, etc.) do with Amazon given the situation.

Microsoft/Bing: It looks like Bing is going to want UX control, a CPM fee for giving us web search results and/or a revenue share that is far above market (40% to them) for continuing to work together on search. Web search may not be necessary for our search experiences, so to the extent that they stick to these positions, its unlikely that we will come to a deal. The only catalyst for movement on their side is if we pull the platform cooperation from them at the end of the year when its up in exchange for them being too rigid on the terms they offer us. On the other hand, we're still reliant on them for maps (on m-site, web), so getting a mapping deal done with Apple or Nokia will strengthen our resolve for walking away confidently.

Microsoft/Xbox & Sony: Xbox changed the technical implementation of friend finding which had the impact of our graph not being protected. Unless we reevaluate our platform policies or they reevaluate their desire to protect our graph, the deal is not on track to get done which is a shame. Sony is working through similar issues.

Microsoft/Windows Phone: Doesn't seem like we'll get what we need on Home from them, so the tension will remain or increase on an Instagram app for Windows Phone. We need to be sure they don't launch one built by them like they did for YouTube.

Google: Priti continues to lead progress with Google on measurement, FBX, and ads API access for Google. While we want to work together on measurement to move offline $ online, we are not yet clear on where we stand on FBX and API access. On the one hand, we have successfully split the ads market and weakened DCLK by not allowing them to buy on FBX (see <http://www.adexchanger.com/agencies/vivaki-aod-ends-reliance-on-googles-ad-stack/>). On the other hand, a truly reciprocal deal with them may be great for our own ad stack ambitions to ensure that we have access to buy/report/measure, etc. ad spend that goes through Google.

Wifi: After signing and announcing with Meraki, a fire has been lit under the industry and Yoav is cranking on adding our capabilities to the rest of the router market including Cisco, Netgear, D-Link. After these top ones, there will be a standard form for the rest of the industry. Awesome momentum here.

Gifts: Gifts continues to hover in the mid to high-6,000/days range. We don't look to be on track to hit our goal of 15,000/day. The product team is currently putting thought into how we can improve or re-focus efforts to have the best impact.

Platform: The state of our partnerships with Amazon, Bing, Xbox, Sony and Comcast all point to me that partners are not seeing value in our current incarnation of platform. We may just be in a transition period where we used to give more and now give less or require more so partners are squirming, or we may need a re-boot of the value exchange. I plan on putting some thought into this (alongside Justin) and taking the thoughts to Vernal & Doug. Any input is welcomed.

D Conf: The D conference was time very well spent for seeing our key partners in person as well as taking a pulse on the industry. Two industry trends stood out for me: 1) Wearables could be the next wave of computing (see Mary Meeker's presentation), and like every other wave, we should expect 10x the units sold versus the last and a step change in how we interact with computers. Things like Jawbone Up, Google Glass, GoPro are the start. When these get more wearable and less dorky, they'll take the market by storm. ..watches are on the way. 2) Tim Cook's discussion was really uninspiring. Apple spent a decade being the company to look at for innovation (iPod, iPhone, iPad) and that meme has shifted to Google (Glass, Wifi balloons, Now) and others. Time will tell if this is a press cycle and quiet time at Apple or a real shift that will eventually be traced back to Jobs no longer being at the helm (regardless of whether that is fair or not).

People:

Congrats one last time to Lauren for launching the cooperation with Universal and Gifts to give Fast and Furious gift cards. While it didn't move huge volume, it is just the type of xfn cooperation and fast movement that embodies our culture, and I believe that more of our commerce activities will look like these types of advertiser/merchant cooperative initiatives in the future.

Me:

A couple of weeks ago, we took the kids to Bolinas to hike and play on the beach all weekend. We spent the entire day Saturday outside and Katie logged 4 miles of hiking and about 3 hours on the beach. After dinner at ~7pm she was streaking through our rental house naked begging for her lamby (which was in her hand) and telling us that she needed to go to bed and was "really tired and never stays up this late". She's usually up until 9 or 10pm. With both kids in bed by 7:30, we thought that we were screwed for Sunday activities as we had pushed them too far. When Katie woke up Sunday, I asked her what she wanted to do and her response was "Go hiking, then to the beach". That's my girl.

>As a concrete action item for this, I'd love to go to our top 100 non-canvas developers and ask them how much more valuable or engaged their Facebook connected users are than non-connected users. Once we have this data, we can try to see if any interesting trends emerge.

>How quickly do you think we can do this exercise?

Samuel Lessin:

>I think it is hard to do an assessment of the value of "connected" users vs. non-connected users because everything I have heard (and what makes intuitive sense to me) is that the extra value of Facebook connected users today is far more about correlation than causation. So yes, those that are connected to Facebook are worth x% more, but that is not "because" they are connected to Facebook and not, as a result something we can meaningfully "tax"

Justin Osofsky:

>While I agree that there are issues around correlation vs. causation, I think that it will be a useful exercise for a couple of reasons. It will be helpful to understand:

>(i) the proportion of top developers that can immediately offer a perspective on the value of FB-connected vs. non-connected users. Developers will definitely be able to articulate the value of FB as a distribution platform (e.g., "FB drives x% of referral traffic or xK installs"). However, it will be useful to get insight into how many developers evaluate the value of FB users beyond those top-line distribution metrics.

>(ii) the ways in which developers measure value. As we develop potential options to align economically, it will be important to be able to put ourselves in their shoes. We'll likely hear quite different framings of the value of FB users. For instance, Daniel Ek has stated that FB-connected users are 3x more likely to convert to paid subscribers while TripAdvisor focuses on FB users being 27% more engaged and 2x more likely to contribute content.

>We actively work with a bit over half of the top 100 non-canvas developers (we don't currently engage with developers like Birthdays, eBuddy, etc.). We'll reach out to those developers and should have initial data to discuss by mid-next week.

Michael Vernal:

>I would submit there are two exercises we could/should do:

>1/ What is the marginal value of a Facebook user vs. a non-Facebook user? Doing a solid, comprehensive analysis might take a very long time, so we might have to start with anecdotal data and go from there.

>2/ What value do we get today from Identity as a loss-leader for our Advertising business? My intuition is that this should be an entryway to our revenue businesses, but we should be able to better quantify that. I think we could classify our advertisers into "potential developers" vs. not, and we could then try to understand if having Facebook Connect helps (or even hurts) their revenue spend with us.

Michael Vernal:

>Whoops, simul-post.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>Sure, I think doing that second analysis would be helpful too.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>The only other alternative approach I can think of is pursuing Dan's idea of 100 deals (fewer to start) as a path to figuring out the real market value and then setting a public rate. The goal here wouldn't be the deals themselves, but that through the process of negotiating them we'd learn what developers would actually pay (which might be different from what they'd say if we just asked them about the value), and then we'd be better informed on our path to set a public rate.

>The reason I'm somewhat optimistic about this is that we basically did this with payments. We developed a theory for what we thought we should charge, then we got our biggest partners on board and then finally we made it public and got everyone on board. That could work here as well.

>If we did this, I'd recommend beginning to negotiate some of these deals with 3-5 companies while also reaching out to all top developers to get their anecdotal sense of the value we're providing them.

>Does that make sense?

Samuel Lessin:

>I am very in favor of deals, I am extremely skeptical that we will be able to extend from deals to a generic answer

>-- just as I would argue that with payments we ended up in a local maxima for games, but missed / are missing the larger frame.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>I don't understand your response about games. I'm not suggesting we have one rate for everyone. I'm suggesting we have different revenue shares for different categories.

>Do you think we're at a local maximum for games or for payments overall since we only did games?

Samuel Lessin:

>I don't think we are at a local maxima for canvas games currently with payments.

>I think we are at a local maxima for payments overall.

>I also think that there are tons of things we could / should want to provide to games in the future that make us more valuable to games than 30%...

Daniel Rose:

>The reason I'm advocating for deals is that I think there's a big difference between starting a platform with monetization in place vs introducing it after 5 years. If we were starting with a new platform, we could do whatever we want. Given our situation, I prefer to iterate our way into the model by getting large devs signed-up first.

>Our policies have always said that you have to have a deal with us if you're big, so we are not changing the rules on large devs by doing this.

>We will learn a lot from these negotiations. I would start with 5-10 devs and go from there.

Michael Vernal:

>I think doing deals first is a good tactic either way and I'd be in favor of doing that.

>I think it's worth us having a philosophy around these deals (eg, rev share, data reciprocity, etc.) before/aw we do these deals so that we generally have a consistent template for deals.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>Sam: I agree we're at a local maximum for payments, but I think what I'm suggesting breaks out of that cycle rather than perpetuates it by charging different amounts for different categories.

>I guess what I'm arguing is that the best equilibrium here is we find a consistent rate per category. I definitely don't think it's optimal to charge one rate for all developers (what we're doing now), nor do I think it's optimal to give up on being able to charge a fixed rate per category and resort to having this only be a loss leader or essentially shutting down platform and only working with a small number of companies. Having a different fixed rate for a bunch of different categories seems like the best option to me.

>I do think Dan's approach of doing some deals to figure out the right set of rates is reasonable, but I'd do that as part of the path to having a public rate rather than just to do the deals themselves.

>Separately, for what it's worth, I think we generally get 40-50% of the revenue from games including ads, not just 30%.

Douglas Purdy:

>In general, I am not a fan of per partner opaque deals as this is counter to the notion of a platform that treats developer equally. That said, I feel like we have the cost side of the equation nailed down, but we are flying blind on the value side. As such, I think exploring deals with some top devs will give us the data we need to resolve the 'profit/loss leader' question we are circling around.

Douglas Purdy:

>My biggest concern with this approach is that it may be hard to generalize the results into a program that is simple and transparent for the entire developer audience, but we can cross that bridge when we come to it with data in hand.

Daniel Rose:

>We get ~45% of revenue from canvas games if you include payments, canvas ads and developer ad spend.

>I think we will get to a standard rev-share on payments and ad network by category. We can get to answer on that pretty quickly (though let's keep in mind that we don't have these products built to scale yet).

>I don't think we'll be able to convince developers to pay us for every user who signs-up w FB. If we try to enforce that regime, I believe most developers will unplug from our platform. If we want to try to negotiate for this, we should choose devs whom we would be most comfortable losing. If you disagree with me, let's ask Kevin how he would respond if he was still independent and we approached him with this proposal.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>Dan: to be clear, what I'm proposing is that developers would have to pay the max of their API costs or some negotiated revenue share per user. Since Instagram makes no money, they'd just be covering some multiple of the API cost and I bet they'd be willing to do this. The real question is what revenue share we'd try to get from them when they do try to make money, and that's where it gets tricky. Ultimately though, I bet they'd give us 20% of the revenue for FB connected users. I'll ask Kevin about this, but my guess is his answer will be heavily influenced by how the question is asked.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>It seems like we're converging on trying to do deals with the top 5 companies as an immediate next step for figuring out our value.

>To do this, I'd suggest the following:

>- We need to identify which five companies these are.

>- We should get clear on our hypothesis of what we want to get these folks to agree to give us in these deals. It can be a bit different on a company by company basis.

>- Finally, while I agree this will help us determine whether we provide enough value for this to be a profit center vs a loss leader, I think we need to go into this with the assumption that it can be a profit center and let that hypothesis be disproven if developers won't take that deal.

>Make sense?

Daniel Rose:

>Justin & I will bring the list of top developers to our next weekly meeting on Monday with a strawman proposal for deals that we should try to sign with them.

>I agree with you that the answer we get depends on the way that we ask it. Let's discuss this in the specifics of the deals that we're trying to sign.

>I'd love to hear Kevin's input since he will give us the most honest answer. Should we invite him to the meeting?

>I personally believe that we can make a lot of money from platform, but I prefer a model where we use platform to make our payments, ad network and ad system more compelling to developers (including a requirement to use them) vs. taxing developers for every user that connects or charging developers for api access.

Mark Zuckerberg:

>Adding Sheryl since she's interested in this.

UNREDACTED VERSION OF DOCUMENT SOUGHT TO BE LODGED UNDER SEAL

[Slide 1] Where the last 200M Facebook MAU came from

Let's talk about the first component of our business formula - growing the number of users using the site/ connecting everyone. As Mark mentioned - we added 200M MAUs over the past 12 months. Over the same period of time we also added 150M Daily active users.

If you look at how they were registering to the site, mobile registrations represented 45% (growing from only 30% a year ago).

Biggest contributors to our growth were US, Mexico, Brazil, India, Vietnam, Indonesia, and Japan. Basically still a mix of developed world and emerging world

[Slide 2] Where the future growth is (India and Africa)

In the developed world, where the majority of population has access to the internet, we see numbers as high as 80% of the population actively using Facebook to connect with the people they care about. There is about 20% that is either too young, or simply do not want to connect. Now – if you assume 80% of the population is the natural ceiling for Facebook, India, Africa and Southeast Asia are where the most unconnected people are, not because they wouldn't want it if they could have it, but instead due to major economic and technological barriers that prevent them from even basic use of mobile phones. Indeed - around 50% of population in India and sub-Saharan Africa do not even have any sort of mobile device, let alone access to data.

[Slide 3] In order to grow we have always focused on breaking barriers, fixing stuff over and over

One of the main things we have done over the years to ensure that we continue our growth and don't plateau is breaking barriers that prevent people from using Facebook and constantly improve and optimize over and over, 1% after 1% key elements of the FB experience, like the ability for users to sign up, find their friends or be notified when interesting things happen.

Over the years we have broken many barriers that applied to both the developed and emerging world – e.g.: the language barrier unlocked a huge growth acceleration during 2008. Over the past three years as we saw these trends we have been gradually shifting our focus to the barriers preventing users from using FB in emerging markets. In the absence of this work, the red line could bend like the blue line at any moment, before we have had a chance to connect everyone in the world.

In 2010 as we were saturating the # of people connecting from desktop computers in emerging markets, we saw the need to create a great user experience on feature phones – the majority of phone shipments at that time, still almost 50% shipments and still the largest install base of mobile phones by far.

Snapchat as solution to fix that and today I am really happy to see that more than 100M people rely on Facebook for every phone to connect with their friends on a monthly basis

[Slide 4] Feature phone barrier – solved. Facebook for every phone reaches 100M

- 30% apk size reduction from 18MB to 13MB
- P75 cellular data usage on FB4A from 10 to 6MB/day
- Extended language support:
 - Launching Facebook for Android v3.5 in Hindi, Bengali ,Marathi , Tamil , Telugu , Kannada, mallyalam, gujrati, Punjabi (1 Billion+ people speak these languages) mid August through a joint product marketing campaign with Samsung. They are announcing Android phones supporting these new Indian languages. Great collaboration between our India growth manager Kevin, i18n team and Android core.

Transition to messaging / why is related with growing the number of daily active users.

[Slide] We have been growing fast, but competition has been growing faster

4.4B messages sent from mobile, but only <1B of those were sent from a mobile pushable user to another mobile pushable user. Mobile to mobile is the area we need to focus moving forward.

[Slide] Messaging – why does it matter? (optional slide)

It will be an animation of the next 4 images attached – will explain to Anish

Mobile to mobile messaging is one of the most common, highest frequent ways people connect. Competitors are using this way to grow, but they see themselves as more than SMS replacements, they see themselves as fully fleshed social networks

FREE call and text unlimited, whenever, wherever

Home / Timeline

Share the moment with friends

[Slide] Strategy moving forward – this charts explains it all.

Good news – our messenger app’s engagement increases as more users use messenger in a given country. This is great since not all messaging apps follow this path

Bad news – for same reach, competitors have more engagement. This signals that the quality of our app isn't where it needs to be yet. We need to invest in performance and reliability of our app and that is what we are doing. Lots of progress here (mention specific examples)

More bad news – we have not reached more than 40% messenger penetration in a given country

Good news – our FB main app reaches much higher penetrations / we can leverage it to increase messenger app adoption. Unfortunately despite our efforts to make messaging more prominently on our main app, we have not managed to achieve this dynamic of increasing engagement with increasing reach on the main app

Close with why I care about each 1% improvement and why they matter as they compound over time.

Quick summary and relevant data I could find – sorry for any duplication with what Chris wrote.

Overall

Agree with Chris that it feels like too much and could eventually be supplanting some FB functionality. They have some traction, but not dominant – Go Contacts appears to have similar downloads (though they are more on Android). Funding is substantial and quite surprising. Also interesting that this is the 3rd contacts app from Israel. It would be very interesting to see Onavo data on engagement – if it is used simply to sync, one thing, if it is has high time per user usage and users are using it to message and interact, I think we should be scared that the threat of supplanting some FB functionality may be real. Currently the report shows 18% D/MAU which isn't too high, but this metric isn't measured in a standard way and could be overstated. Time spent would be more instructive and I think should be available via Onavo.

What it does:

You link it to your FB (or LI or G+) account and it matches the contacts that it can to your FB friends. Then it syncs them with your contacts and creates an alternative contact view that mashes up the info in your contact with fields from each contacts' social accounts. So for my buddy Brian whose number I have in my contacts app, I now have a view within the app that shows the following:

- a) A picture taken from one of the social networks
- b) The option to write on his timeline
- c) An option to design and send a card that would post to his timeline
- d) Which social networks Brian and I are connected on
- e) Composite contact info from all sources (including hometown, birthday, email, etc.)
- f) A business card if I took a picture of it

It will also send reminders about updates and birthdays. The idea is that it replaces your contacts, rather than simply updating your iOS contacts. The low matchrate for me emphasized the wide difference between my phone contacts and my fb friends.

Company:

Based in Israel and was founded in 2011.

They have raised $4M(!) 11/12 from undisclosed investors.

Team of 9 with 7 technical folks who at first blush appear to be of medium strength (profiles attached for the five I could find)

Quick traction data I could find:

- iOS/Android rank: 4.5 with 23k ratings / 4.5 with 15k ratings
- Per the "Early Detection" report 1.1M MAU
- "Over 6m people with iPhone and Android love sync.me" <-not sure what metric this refers to
- 500k-1M installs on Android; 502k (according to XYO)
- 9.5M installs on iOS (according to XYO)
- 229k FB likes
- 1.3M contacts syncd (per website)

A few thoughts:

- Its asking for a huge number of permissions: public profile, friend list, news feed, birthday, work history, status updates, hometown, current city, photos, website, likes, friends birthdays, friends work histories, friends status updates, friends hometowns, friends current cities, friends photos, friends websites. This feels like too much. In particular, not sure what they're doing with newsfeed.
- Platform 3.0 friends API restriction is going to severely limit the functionality of this app.
- I believe that it could be undoing all of the good work we have done to limit the amount of data that gets from FB to the contacts list (at least in my test in iOS). This is really bad. Javi's team should look into this.
- If we remain passionate about owning a contacts app, they seem to have the momentum that we should be evaluating them.
- They haven't done a great job of de-duplication. I'd think that this would be key for contacts.

TL;DR

- The apps highlighted this week have shown the ability to gain users with interesting use cases including:
 - making your FB contacts phone contacts – Sync.me
 - using FB to enhance in-store commerce offers – Cartwheel by Target
 - offering users a passive recruiting solution – Silp
 - offering a freemium video editing solution - Magisto

- Dating, photo editing, and TwitchTV, a gaming video network, all continue to be strong, consistent performers

Early Identifier Dashboard and Noteworthy Apps and Trends

https://tableau.thefacebook.com/views/Corp_Dev_Dashv6/FBEnabled-Leaderboard

The applications highlighted this week have features that Facebook is currently investigating or pursuing. These apps have already exemplified the ability to perform well within these spaces, having consistently growing user bases.

- Sync.me is a contacts organizer that maps Facebook data to phone contacts and automatically refreshes data as Facebook users update their information or even status updates. This is a good example of how Facebook could help users get more utility out of their phones or make additional inroads in the messaging space.
 - 1.1M MAU | 23% average weekly growth | Top Countries: USA, Israel | Top Demo: Males 25-44
- Cartwheel is Target's coupon service that uses Facebook login and other social integrations (e.g., feed, collections, friends). The application is very mobile-friendly and is an interesting example of how to integrate social with commerce. The app is built for users to collect and share coupons and then redeem them in Target stores.
 - 1.0M MAU | 15% average weekly growth | Top Country: USA | Top Demo: Females 25-44
- Silp is a professional networking site that uses Facebook data to help match users to open positions. While this isn't a great example of integrating professional networking with Facebook, it is interesting to see there is an appetite for this functionality. Also, with scale, Silp has the potential to begin gaining clients/businesses to make a more complete experience.
 - 0.9M MAU | 12% average weekly growth | Top Countries: India, Indonesia, Brazil | Top Demo: Males 24 & Under
- Magisto is a video editing application that adds visual effects, music, and allows users to compile clips and photos into one video. An app like this shows that users might want more robust video editing features, like compiling several clips into one video, having the ability to save projects to publish later, or adding music (sometimes for a fee) to their videos.
 - 0.6M MAU | 4% average weekly growth | Top Country: USA | Top Demo: Females 24 & Under

I wouldn't say it's well designed, but it is fast and feature rich. I can't help but wonder how much of the fun is the fact that they have a clean graph and there's a novelty about a new system that your friends are joining.

+ Monika, Swain

Monika, who leads platform policy enforcement, is on it. In the first week after launch, MessageMe actually didn't make any friends.get calls. However, MessageMe is now up to ~350K MAU and made 333K friends calls last week. We will restrict their access to friends.get shortly.

In terms of next steps, Monika is working with Mike Nowak to see if there are any other messenger apps which have hit the growth team's radar recently. If so, we'd like to restrict them at the same time to group this into one press cycle.

As context, platform is in a tough broader press cycle right now around how we engage the developer ecosystem (there was a Reuters piece earlier this week and we expect a negative WSJ piece shortly). We anticipate that Arjun will go to the press given the history with LOLapps, and likely will also need to chat with Chamath given that MessageMe was developed when Arjun was an EIR for Chamath. Monika is coordinating with Swain on how best to handle this from a PR perspective.

Monika, please chime in if I missed anything.

Heads up, I caught up with Allison today and she is of the opinion that we don't need to change our policies to enforce reciprocity. The interesting thing she mentioned is that she is also putting pressure to Justin to enforce sooner rather than later to Contacts app, especially as they are violating data leakage related policies.

We can talk tomorrow, but I think we should be taking to Justin before we finalize the audit and get his view.

We also need to go back to Sam with this proposal, as I would feel more comfortable to get his buy into this given he is the customer for that.

Hello Ellen,

All very valid points. I will try to provide some context in case it helps... Unlike platform simplification where the objective is: "We generalized the Platform 3.0 changes (removing non-app friends and stream.get) to a broader pruning of platform to accomplish two things: (1) get it to a manageable # of APIs where we can commit to certain levels of backwards compatibility, bug support, and documentation quality and (2) move API decision-making (and eventual ownership) to the appropriate product teams." to copy Mike's post... this exercise is triggered by an initial review we did for apps in the identity space.

Apps that provide Context like Refresh app, Contacts like sync.me or Reputation like Tinder present a significant overlap with our product roadmap, access sensitive data from the graph without reciprocating and last but not least a few of them are competitive in nature, like LinkedIn.

You are right to say, that we could theoretically kill two birds with one stone when we roll out platform simplification, but at this stage, I wanted to ask for your help and support to uncover any potential competitive threat and if significant enforce sooner.

Let me know if this makes sense,
kp

Thanks for looping me in Michael

Agree with your comments that we should have a clear proposal/recommendation of what we're trying to achieve with this. If it's to inform the breadth of impact to strategic partners, then I think we need to work closely with Eddie on PS12N on understanding if we have product or processes solves, comms plan and migration plan laid out. Can we do this with a light audit? @Michael to determine what that would consist of and what the tradeoff would be to other enforcement efforts we have underway. If we want to take early action on these developers, we would need a strong recommendation of why now and not wait until PS12N for Justin's review. If we want to roll out new policies early and then take action, again, we'd need a strong business case of why now and not wait until PS12N.

I realize I'm coming in late to the thread so apologizes if this has already been defined. I'd love to read the 'cliff notes' then ☺

Thx

I am half way through the apps list. I may be able to send it to you earlier than the end of the week after all – so far I have identified 110 apps out of a list of 1,100 I have checked.

At the same time, we have already received feedback from Chris on the plan, but I did not have the chance to synch up with Ime on whether this is in good shape to be shared with Justin just yet. I would like to think we will be able to send the same or an updated version in the new few days to ensure we have his feedback/blessing before we can kick off this exercise.

Looking forward to going through those apps together – some of them are really interesting.

Best,

Hi KP,

Thanks for putting this together! A few notes from our end:

- I'll be your point of contact for the audit moving forward.
- Once we have a list of apps from you, we can determine the timeframe and scale for the audit. If you get the list to us by the end of this week, we can have a workplan for you early next week.
- While we're happy to do this audit to inform strategy/policy interpretation/Unified Review, it might be best to first align this initiative fully with Platform Simplification before we begin. We enforce I.10 sparingly, often only after extensive consultation with Justin on a case-by-case basis. We should probably reach out to him with this proposal before our team begins investing resources in the audit. Not sure who the best POC for this is, but I defer to you, Ime, and Ellen.

Let me know if you have any questions. Thanks!

Best,
Michael

Hello guys,

Thanks again for your feedback last week. I have attached our current thinking with regards to the plan – a simplified and cleaner view of what I have previously shared with you . Just fyi, I have also share those with Chris Daniels for his feedback.

At this stage, I wanted to get an idea from you for the timing of the audit. When would be the earliest we can start and who should be the point of contact in the team to help me run this?

I think I can provide the list of apps we should review by the end of the week.

@Ali, if you have some time to look at those slides, could you please let us know if there would be a requirement to change the policies if we wanted to enforce our recommendation to those apps outside platform simplification?

Thanks a lot,

Hello Chris,

A quick update from my end. Please let me know if those regular updates are useful btw, I don't mean to litter your inbox otherwise.

We managed to pull the data for the rest of the apps last night and I have already started analyzing the different apps that request permission for read_stream and consequently make calls to the API.

Quick stats:

Total: 6K+ apps in the list

Apps with more than 10MAUs: 2.2K

Apps with 0-3 MAUs: 3.7K but still call the API a lot. We need to kill those asap.

Categories:

Based on the top 200 apps there are a few buckets identified, namely:

1/ "Un-authorized" FB replicas or aggregators: Majority of the apps reviewed fall under this category

2/ Games & Media & Astrology & Lifestyle: A lot of apps here as well – a bit surprised, especially with the Media folks, but I think we know those folks don't need access to the newsfeed

3/ Unknown: lots of apps with unclear objectives that should not be there. I think at the end of this exercise, I will forward the list to Policy Enforcement, to take some of those apps down

4/ Social Influence: Also a few entries here, not sure what's your view on those, but without access to the user's news feed there is no business for those apps

Mobile, TV, etc are repetition of the list we looked at yesterday.

Last but not least, I am checking manually all those apps to ensure we have a good understanding of the verticals so this is quite time consuming. I think we may need to decide what the cut off limit is below which we won't spend considerable time.

Nada kindly booked time for us to catch up on Tue morning, I will keep on working on the list and the recommendations and have a proper update for you by then.

Thanks a lot,
Konstantinos

Following the same grouping as the mobile folks, I have added a few more apps in blue in the attached spreadsheet that have been whitelisted for the read_stream API.

I am still trying to work out how best to pull all the Apps that read_stream after having obtained user's permission. Data lives in different places and it's more complex than I thought.

On #1, lets include everything to be comprehensive. Given that Aaron and Vikas did a great job bucketing the mobile apps, I'm mostly looking for you to bucket the non-mobile ones and incorporate their thinking into a combined framework on how we think about value exchange with these APIs.

On #2, are these developers actually making calls to receive the stream? If yes, then we must include them in the analysis. If no, then lets note them, but I think we'll just cut them all off and it shouldn't impact their integrations.

Hello Chris and all,

Just a quick update on this topic, after having spent some more time digging into the data.

1/ read_stream (API): Besides the mobile apps listed on the spreadsheet, there seems to be a number (small) of other non-mobile apps that have been whitelisted for this (Karma, Playstation, Xbox to name a few). What I wanted to bring to your attention is that the spreadsheet list does not include apps such as Facebook Pages Manager for iOS/Android, FB for Google Glass, the FB app for the Blackberry Playbook that have also been whitelisted. Should I include those for the benefits of our audit or do we think the previous list is sufficiently accurate?

2/ read_stream (extended permission): Now this is an interesting one. While the API whitelist provides access to Newsfeed for the whitelisted apps, there are a lot of developers that have opted-in to ask for the user's permission to gain access to the same content (Yahoo!, MSN, Flipboard, etc). I have found almost 21K of those apps, and some of them should not be asking for this kind of permissions to be honest (Candy Crush Saga, Horoscope apps, etc to give you an idea).

My take on this, is that we should consider Apps that fall under #2 as part of our audit – maybe the top 1000 if not all. Especially if we decide to deprecate access to the permission for "read_stream" as part of Platform 3.0 we need to have an idea of how their products will be affected and what kind of comms we should plan.

Thoughts?

Thanks a lot,
konstantinos

I think it's feasible to have an answer to both #1 & #2 later this week. We can pull the data from existing tools while waiting for the new more accurate iteration of this to finalize the audit.

I'll forward you the analysis that Vikas pulled together for mobile developers using the app – I'd love to get the same for non-mobile users and understand for each user of the API, is their use something that a) we get value from, and/or b) we would be hurt by turning it off. My default stance will be if we're not "yes" for a) or b), then we should turn off access. Happy to chat and give more context if needed before you get started.

Simon, Konstantinos -- Can you two work together to get a comprehensive review of the Platform APIs, FQL calls, and permissions that will be impacted by Platform 3.0 and, more generally, by our evolved thinking on what data to expose to our developers/partners? I'd begun pulling this work together but need your to help pull it over the finish line while I'm out. I think the initial framing that we're looking for is:

- Slide 1. A break out of (1) all private/whitelisted apis and (2) the public apis that will be impacted by Platform 3.0 changes. For (1) I've referenced this url (<https://developers.facebook.com/docs/guides/mobile/dig/privateAPIsList/>) and also looked at some of the REST APIs that developers still have access to per contractual agreement. There are probably more private APIs that I have not included in my attached doc, so please review. For (2) according to Constantin there are only 3 public APIs that will be affected by the changes — read_stream, *friends_ (many friend_apis) and friends.get.
- Slide 2. A list of all the developers/partners that are using (1) and (2). After flushing out the list, I think we should highlight (a) all the apps that are delivering us value by using these apis (e.g. all the mobile companies that we're not going to build a FB native app for — like BlackBerry; or developers that demonstrate a great use case, like Flipboard) and (b) apps that aren't using it well but could cause a PR storm if we turn them off.

Chris is interested in getting a simple framing like this pulled together to share with Zuck and others. As mentioned, I've started working on this but know that it will be difficult to finish up while I'm out of the office. Do you two think that we can have a draft pulled together by the end of next week?

Attached:

1. A spreadsheet of the Private APIs and the Grandfathered REST APIs that we've given to partners. It also includes the public permissions and apis that will be impacted by Platform 3.0
2. A email chain that has all the partners that are using read_stream and some thinking on which are valuable to us vs. not.

Subject: Quick sync on Identity?

Hey Sam – We're beginning to make decisions about how to navigate the different categories of partners during the Platform 3.0 changes being announced in Q4. We won't be able to make sound decisions on how to treat Identity/Lifestyle platform apps without the latest understanding your team's roadmap/vision. Can I grab 15mins with you this week or is someone on your team we should connect with?

Subject: Re: T0/Special Cases for P3 consideration

Thanks for driving this work, KP/Jackie/Simon. This is nuanced stuff to think through, so I'm glad there are a couple of us thinking about it.

A couple thoughts:

1) My sense is that we'll need to talk to multiple stakeholders before making decisions in the Strategic bucket. We should collectively form opinions on as many as possible, but I think there will be other folks that will push in opposite positions, e.g. ppl might not be so keen to let Path have the permission.

2) Lifestyle. To make decisions on what we strategically should/shouldn't support, do you feel like we have a strong grip on the Identity teams' product focus and direction? You might have been able to bridge that gap in the last couple of weeks, but if you haven't we should find time with Sam or Matt soon. I think clear understanding from them is critical to make the right decisions here.

Thanks again for driving this, folks!

Thanks a lot, Jackie. This is great – I have included the additional info for the strategic partners in the attached spreadsheet as well (for completeness).

A little update from my end, and how I think we should tie this to what Jackie has put together. Simon managed to pull a list of 40k+ apps that request and make use of the friends_permissions. You can see all of those apps in the attached. The most interesting data points having reviewed the top 250 apps are the following (I took the liberty to make a recommendation as well btw – the numbers in the brackets are the percentage of the apps reviewed under this category):

1/ Games (25%): All games request access to friends lists and on top of this friends_games_activity. The main reason is user acquisition through social referral. Typical example is Candy Crush, invite your friends to get an extra 5 lives. Removing access to the full friends list for those app will seriously affect this vertical and how they see FB as a platform for growth via organic and paid for channels. My recommendation is: KEEP ACCESS

2/ In-house App/ Mobile (12.5%): No brainer this one, we need to maintain access for all our apps as well as the "approved mobile ones". Recommendation: KEEP ACCESS

3/ Strategic (12.5%): From MSFT, to Yahoo!, to Pinterest, Path, Klout and the likes. Some of them should obvious not have access such as Myspace, Twitter, Youtube, etc. In particular for Strategic partners we should use the framework developed by Jackie.

RECOMMENDATION: User Jackie's framework

4/ Comms (6%): Unlike the other audit, a lot more Comms apps appear in this list. If we restrict access to user's friends that already use the app we would seriously affect the growth of their business. However, I think we need to take a hard stance on this one and don't offer any exceptions given they are not contributing with edges and/or NEKO spend. Recommendation is: REMOVE ACCESS

5/ Lifestyle (18%): Surprising a lot apps listed here, mostly focused on Dating, and to a lesser extend on social influence (this was the dominant category for newsfeed inside Lifestyle). The use of Friends list is totally justified here, if I may say. I would love to know if Girl A is a friend of a friend before I approach her and ask her to meet – I suspect this use case is even more important for female users of those apps that want to have a degree on confidence on the quality of their data. My recommendation is: KEEP ACCESS. This may surprise you, but I am working on a deck to assess the opportunity for this vertical and I think besides NEKO, we can really tap into this vertical and improve the Identity data we hold for our users, while increase our revenues. My plan was to finish this before the end of the week (when I am off on holidays), but most probably I will conclude it when I am back.

6/ Photosharing (7%): Also a surprising number of apps fall under this category. Friends list is core to sharing photos and video with people that don't necessarily use the app. Us removing full access to the friends list would require significant changes from those devs. Recommendation is: REMOVE ACCESS

7/ Astrology (4%): Considerable number of apps on this vertical. They need access to friends bdays to come up with predictions. They products will be broken without this, however, I am not sure if it's a vertical that makes sense for us. Recommendation is: REMOVE ACCESS

8/ Media/Music/Books/Fitness (7%): Invite friends, mention tagging are the main use case here. However I don't think we should allow them access to this and we should treat partners and devs in this vertical fairly with no exceptions. Recommendation is: REMOVE ACCESS

9/ Unknown and Replicas (8%): Most of the unknown are in fact developed by the same PMD, investigating. In any case, those apps should not be able to access the full friends lists anyway. Recommendation is: REMOVE ACCESS

As a general note, I think we need to carry on with this exercise to figure if there are more apps falling under different verticals that we have not identified yet, before we can make a decision for all the apps in this vertical. For both the Newsfeed and the Friends permission audit, we can use Jackie's framework to assess KEEP/REMOVE for those partner falling under the Strategic tabs and then make up a decision based on the criteria outlined by Jackie below.

Let me know what you think,
kp

Thanks, Jackie. Glad you two linked up on this work. Looks like you have the right buckets flagged. One nitpick suggestion would be to consolidate the last two categories in the risk assessment tab under some term that represents "significant partner thrash." We know that there is going to be some partner thrash coming out of these changes, but we're just looking to minimize it and navigate it thoughtfully.

KP is working on the pulling the same analysis of the friend data, but we're also working in parallel to parse out key partnerships/scenarios that we should be solving for:

<https://docs.fb.com/sheet/ropen.do?rid=osbge9fce0156e72340bc9b80ea4fa6bdc2f8>

T0 Tab:

- Partners with non-standard agreement and their backward compatibility clause.
- Existing integrations impacted
- Future integrations in planning

Risk Assessment Tab:

- PR risk: Potential partners/cases that may cause negative press
- Strategic Value: Key integrations that use read stream or friend data and drive value to fb. Should decide if we allow certain use cases that are of strategic value to fb.
- Competitive/Not Useful to FB: Key integrations that are competitive or drive little value to fb. Good that we're removing, but may need some additional considerations on wind-down time.
- Major Business Disruption/Kill: Noticeable integrations who's whole business is built on stream or friend data. Should be part of PR flag.
- In the Pipeline: Partner integration in the works where they've been working with someone at fb. This may be difficult to message as our sales team went to some of these partners a pitched and opportunity that they worked with them closely on.

This should be complete by EOW; however, Constantin will be using this on Thurs for a discussion with Vernal on how to tackle edge cases. Let us know of any feedback.

Thanks!

Unfortunately, I can't find API logs beyond the last 30 days. Need to double check with someone from the e-team in case I am missing something though..

In the meantime, as far as I can tell from Insights, around mid April, the API calls LinkedIn makes have doubled while the number of DAUs remained flat. The attached slide may give you an idea of this increase.

I will revert back with an update if I can pull more specific data.

Thanks a lot,

Thanks KP. I'm really uncomfortable with LinkedIn. Can you easily find out when they started to pull friends, etc.?

The reason I ask is that we had discussions with them 6-9 months ago where we told them not to access our APIs until we worked out an agreement both ways, but it seems they unilaterally decided to do so.

Thx,

Thanks for the feedback, Chris.

While LinkedIn and Sync.me are definitely in the list of apps to include in the audit, I would not have considered Airbnb. That said, you are right to suggest there is an element of reputation building and as such we should definitely include it. The original list of apps I had in mind for this category included Tinder, HotorNot (badoo), Lulu, Truths about you (an app that tells you what your friends think about you), Klout, etc

As for the process, I have set up a reminder for myself to check the logs bi-weekly for LinkedIn and can extend it to the rest of the apps listed below. To give you an idea, in case you can access the link for youtube:

They pulled feed data for 212 users in the last seven days – much less than I would have thought to be honest.

While LinkedIn:

Has requested friends lists from 176K users.

Last but not least we are in total agreement on questions 1&2. Thanks again for adding your perspective.

I will be sending you a sample of the apps we are planning to audit by the end of the week if that's alright.

Cheers,

This is great. I'm most interested in seeing what apps that we are going to put into the audit in each category. For example, some apps I do want to review and keep an eye on include:

- LinkedIn (I assume falls into "reputation"?)
- Sync.me (contacts)
- Airbnb (I assume that this falls under you're "reputation" bucket?)

What is our standard process to see what competitors are accessing / trying to access on a regular basis, i.e. Google/YouTube, LinkedIn, Path, etc.?

To weigh in on your two questions at the end:

1. The prevailing opinion by Vernal/Justin O seems to be to wait to bucket all changes with Platform 3, but we should feel free to have a contrasting opinion. To me, it depends on the level of competitive threat that we uncover (i.e. If more, we should enforce sooner).
2. What would the philosophy be around forcing spend for access to permissions? I think that we should separate Neko spend from platform access. The latter should be standard and based on what we're comfortable with partners using. The former should be very open except to direct competitors.

Hello Chris,

As a follow up to our conversation with Sam last week, we have come up with a plan that I have attached here for your review. In short our current thinking is to:

- 1/ Carry on an audit of the top 500 apps that fall under the 3 main verticals within identity that Sam is mostly concerned about, ie. Context, Contacts and Reputation with support from the Dev Ops team
- 2/ Communicate this plan with Vernal and Sam to confirm whether the timing of the enforcement for those apps should coincide with the roll out of Platform Simplification or if we should act independently

One other thing I need to double check with Ali Hendrix (when she is back from Jury duty) is the possibility of further clarifications on our Policies document if we wanted to enforce now.

Please let us know what you think,

In terms of next steps, continue to take lead for the team on this thinking. Refine your recommendation on how Unified Review should handle Identity App submissions based on the roadmap that Sam shared with us — ie. context, contact, reputation, productivity.

Lastly, based on Sam's input, we should also consider if we need to move a bit faster on certain apps, e.g. Refresh. Once you pull together a recommendation, we should circulate it with the broader partnerships organization before taking any action.

Again, great job with this.

Hello Ime,

A few more data points I think we can use for the meeting with Sam.

Engagement: The apps in questions are not spammy or crap, but apps users like and use a lot

Benchmark: Pinterest DAUs are 30% of WAUs and 13% of MAUs (23m) - 43% of lifetime users are MAUs

- Refresh: DAUs are 95% of the WAUs and 83% of the MAUs (1.6K) - 80% of lifetime users are MAUs
- Tinder: DAUs are 60% of the WAUS and 37% of the MAUs (2.1m) - 64% of lifetime users are MAUs
- Wrapp: DAUs are 25% of WAUs and 20% MAUs (800K) - 50% of lifetime users are MAUs

Spend: Dating apps are bing spender on NEKO

NEKO Spend: Only in Q1

- Zoosk: #14 top NEKO spender with $ 655K - more than Spotify did (530K)
- Lovoo: $ 273K - more than Scramble with Friends (271K), Path (172K) or NIKE (170K) did
- Lovestruck: $ 110k - more than Fab did (96K), Rdio (63K)

Hello James,

As I have mentioned to you yesterday, I am looking at the Identity space within lme's team, where Login is the #1 enabler.

We have reviewed this space to identify new opportunities as well as threats and came up with a master plan that I have also attached here – still tentative as it is heavily linked to PS12n.

I hope it gives you an idea of my current thinking for this vertical but also a few ideas of things that may be important for us to deliver to create an opportunity.

Let me know if this is useful,
konstantinos

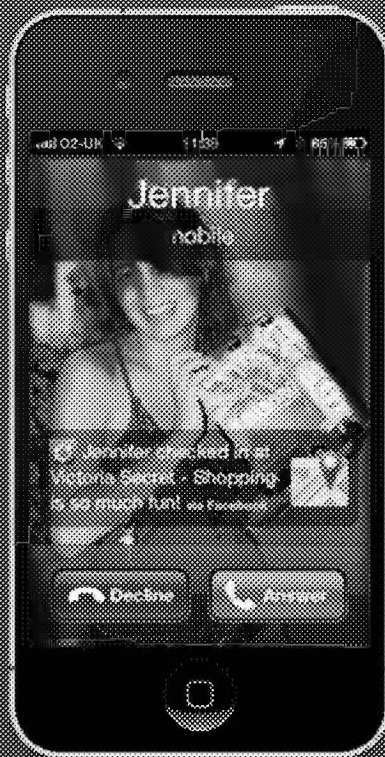

Identity Apps

Context

- Apps that aggregate data on friends or contacts to provide contextually relevant summaries
- Link data from Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and G+ with Calendar info

Contacts

- Apps that pull friends data (mainly photos) from Facebook to enrich contact lists on user's phone

Reputation

- Apps in the dating and/or recruitment space
- Develop a reputation score around the user based on data pulled from Facebook and other social networks

Calendar/Productivity

- Bday reminders, gifting apps or Horoscope Apps
- Link data from Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and G+ with Calendar info

Why do we care....

Data privacy

- Apps build experiences using private data that users have made available to Facebook with different privacy settings
- Control/prevent data leakages and set examples for the ecosystem
- Reduce PR and Policy risks

Overlap with Facebook Products

- Significant with our own Product roadmap that could compromise our success in those areas
- The apps come with good UIs but no new ideas - no real opportunity to find out about things that would be engaging and useful to use in the long term

No reciprocal data

- No value from the data they could provide even if they did

Data “leakage” ...

Identity Data

- Sunrise (35K MAUs): 4.82M requests in 30 days – 138x
- Friendcaster for Android (334K MAUs): 131 M requests in 30 days – 392x
- Yahoo! (11.4M): 474M requests in 30 days – 42x
- IFTTT (170K MAUs): 365M requests in 30 days – 2,150x

User Feed

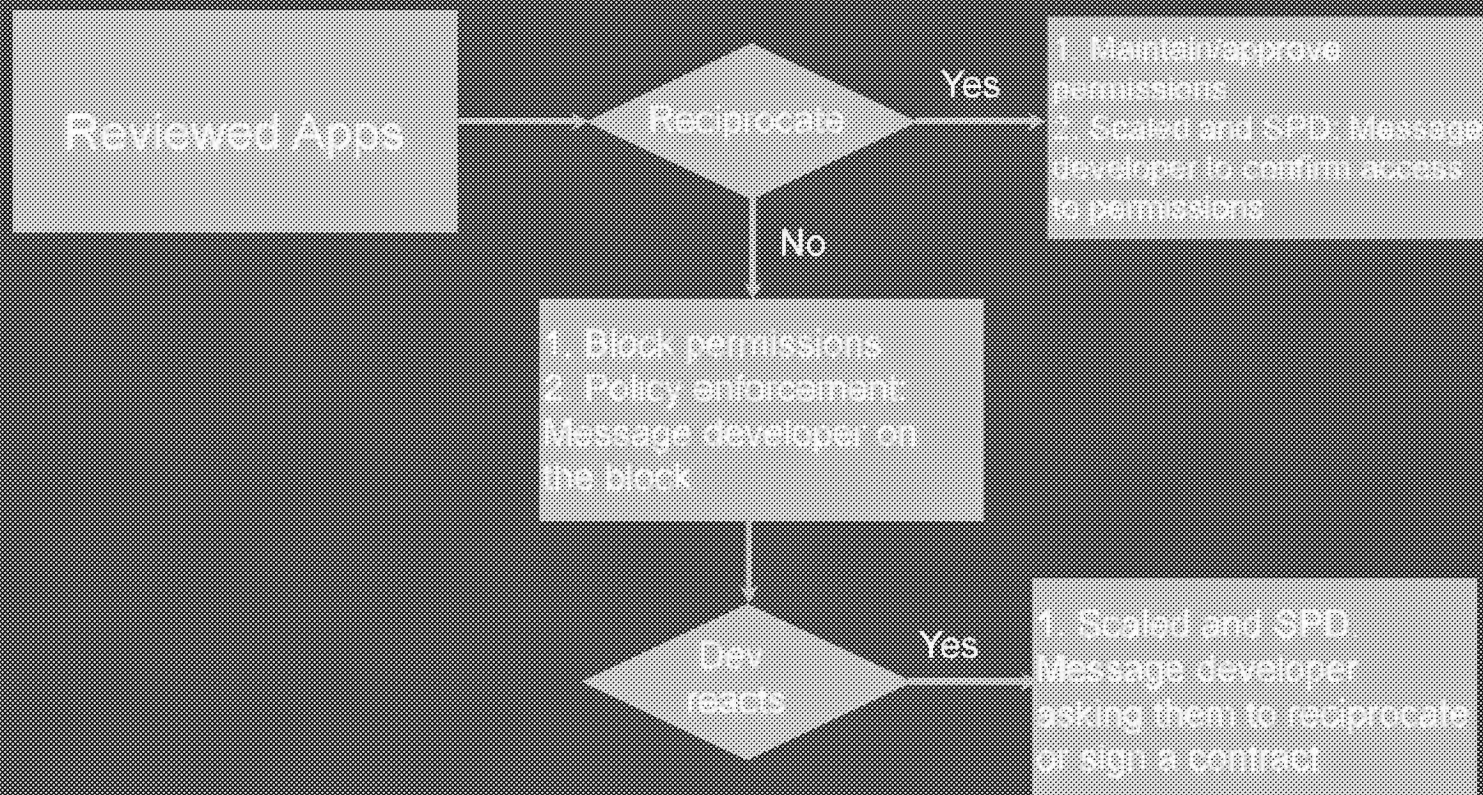

- MyLife.com (420K MAUs): 21.3M requests in 30 days – 51x
- Synch.me (1M MAUs): 985K requests in 30 days – 1x
- YouTube (8.5m MAUs): 1.1B requests in 30 days – 130x
- IFTTT (170K MAUs): 31M requests in 30 days – 182x

Friends List

- MyLife.com (420K MAUs): 10.6M requests in 30 days – 25x
- Contacts+ (265K MAUs): 5.6M requests in 30 days – 21x
- Bittly (245K MAUs): 1.6M requests in 30 days – 6.5x
- IFTTT (170K MAUs): 268K requests in 30 days – 1.6x

So.. what are we going to do?

Audit existing/future apps that fall under those verticals

Stakeholders: Product, Policy Enforcement, Partnerships, Comms

Plan & Timing

Audit: 2 weeks

- Query apps that request permissions in question
- Identify apps that fall under Context, Contacts and Reputation (top 500)

Communications to affected developers: 1 day

- Co-ordinate between Product/PMM and Comms on plan to notify all affected developers simultaneously
- Blog post and PR outreach if size of affected developers is significant

Monitoring: 4 - 12 weeks

- # of developers that react and request help with NEKO
- % of increase on NEKO spend from apps that have spent less than $ 250k earlier
- % of change on Developer NPS score

Open Questions

Do now or wait for Platform S12n?

- Do we need to go through this exercise now or can we wait till those permissions are deprecated for all in Jan?

Should we make NEKO spend a prerequisite for access to permissions?

- Are we at risk for alienating developers or creating a platform that favors the guys with the deep pockets?

All on a list for pre-launch outreach

Model changes: highlights

1. App scoped user IDs

- Each partner has a unique ID space for users
- Makes on-trivial to connect graphs across apps
- Makes it possible to audit data leaks

2. By default, apps can only read app friends

- Common case for most apps
- More difficult to grow Lulu, Circle, Klout, BranchOut, etc.

Speaker Notes for Slide 7

Example: A TOS's w/ all friends, B TOS's w/o friends. if app doesn't know NAF, /A/friends didn't already include B

Affected Apps

1. Difficult / impossible to build [without contract]
 - Alternate FB clients [Flipboard]
2. Hard to grow
 - Messaging apps, contact sync apps, horoscope apps, birthday notifiers, gifting apps [ex: Wrapp]
 - Lulu, Klout, BranchOut
3. Good apps
 - Venmo

Wrapp: <http://crunchbase.com/company/wrapp>

Impact

1. Canvas Games that use Credits:
 1. Adopt app scoped IDs
 2. Adopt new model for cross-app promotion
 3. Adopt new model for custom MFS
 4. Loss of ranking signals for friends

Impact

2. Non-game apps / non-Canvas games

1. Lose access to non-app friends
2. Adopt app scoped IDs
3. [harder to build] FB replacement clients [e.g. Flipboard]
4. [harder to grow] Lulu, BranchOut, Klout, messaging / contact sync / gifting / horoscope / birthday notification apps
5. Casualties: Venmo, etc.

Wrapp: <http://crunchbase.com/company/wrapps>

Login v4

- First screen
- “App can’t post” text
- Second screen
- People have line item veto on permissions [except public profile]

Launch Timing

- ~March 12: launch Login v4
- April 30: developer event [f8?]
- Want 6-8 week separation between events

Questions

1. Acceptable to deprecate Feed given broad impact?
2. How quickly should apps lose access to Feed?
3. Acceptable to make medium-term trade of Trust for Games?
4. Commit to never removing basic Login from an app?

Appendix

Canvas Games using Credits

1. Goal: minimize impact to Canvas games
2. App-scoped IDs for new users
3. Access to all friends for custom MFS [invites]
4. Data
 1. ~900 financial entities [80% associated w/ multiple apps]
 2. ~2,300 active payment enabled apps [last 7d]

Speaker Notes for Slide 15

Changes from Vernal:

1/ use a Social Context API for cross app promotion

2/

Non-game apps / non-Canvas games

1. App scoped IDs for new users
2. Apps limited to reading app friends
3. Review
 1. [low bar] Access to API for tagging people
 2. [very high bar] Access to non-app friends
 1. Venmo: yes

Social Context API

- GET `/ {id} /social_connections`
- Callable if TOS'ed user grants `user_friends`
- Returns detailed data for AF. Summary data for NAF.
- May end up with legal / policy requirement to disclose access to this data :\

Example: Social Context API

GET https://graph.facebook.com/ironman/social_connections?
fields=name,action_type,friends.summary(1)& access_token={user-token}

Redacted – Source Code

`/ {user-id}` supports

Issues

1. Complexity of migrating to opaque IDs
2. Perception of omitting NAF from /me/friends
3. Game adoption of Login v4
4. Semantics of x'ing out user_friends
5. Does not address Page API data leaks [major issue]
6. Login v4 support for web / Canvas
7. Documentation

New Constraints

1. [policies] Login
 1. No infinite loops
 2. Additional password only if required, must be explained
 3. Cannot re-prompt for data available through FB using empty form
2. [policies] user_friends
 1. If apps can access NAF: for users that x-out friend permissions, apps cannot use data from FB to bootstrap social connections between users
3. [pTOS] Once apps can read X% of the graph, they must talk to us. Akin to the MAU cap.
4. Contract required to read NAF

Login v4

1. Model for x'ing out user_friends

1. Two choices

[assume A TOS's w/ friends. B TOS's w/o friends.]

1. If apps get app friends: B is never in A's friend list
2. If apps get all friends: B is in A's friend list. Policy prevents apps from auto-wiring $A \Leftrightarrow B$ [ex: auto-follow, TOS notifs]

2. Users who revoke can be found in app's search + followed

3. Users who revoke cannot send Requests via Custom MFS

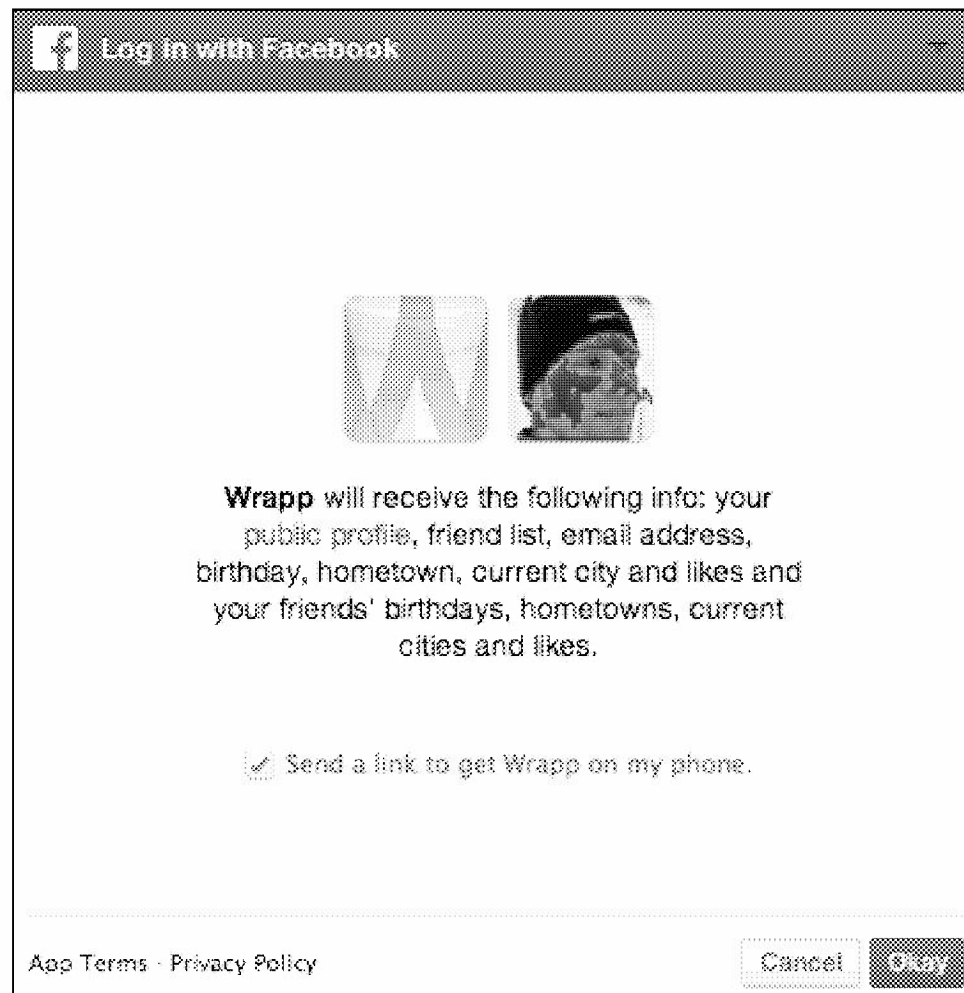

4. For A: B.installed = true

5. iOS Login Dialog disabled for v4+

Hello Ime,

As a follow up to your feedback and the call with the DevOps folks, I went ahead and updated the slides. Attached.

There are a few things we need to talk about, that I did not realize, that you may be aware of.

Should we use our 1to1 on Monday to go through those? Do please (provided you have time), send me any further thoughts you may have on those in the meantime.

Once you are happy I think we will need to share those with the following folks:

- 1/ Allison when she is back from Jury duty as we need to review potential changes on the policies
- 2/ Chris and Justin to address open questions
- 3/ Sam, Vernal and Doug for final sign off

Thanks a lot,
kp

Hello Ime,

I spent the best part of today thinking about the process as well as the requirements but the attached is still an early draft.

Still, I wanted to get your initial thoughts as I was planning to use those slides when I talk to DevOps and Allison tomorrow morning (at 11am if you want to join) about this.

Key points:

1/ Find out what other apps like Refresh are out there that we don't want to share data with and figure out if they spend on NEKO

* Communicate in one-go to all apps that don't spend that those permission will be revoked

* Communicate to the rest that they need to spend on NEKO at least $ 250K a year to maintain access to the data

2/ Review future submissions and reject/approve as per the requirements above

3/ Update our policies if need be

4/ Comms / PR plan if # of apps affected is significant

Just fyi, we will be at an EMEA offsite tomorrow – but will be online late in the afternoon.

Thanks a lot,
kp

Oh, just seeing this but sent a separate response.

I'm ok with the outcome but let's just figure out how to do things elegantly. I don't think he denied option A. I think we should adjust that approach to being a bit more aggressive with our data restrictions, to protect our strategic goals.

Great job.

While I can't say mission accomplished (given Sam did not go for option A), I think overall it was a good half way solution. Would you agree?

As for next steps, I will put a few thoughts together on:

1/ How to make this elegantly

2/ The specific requirements for our review team and SPDs to counter offer to developers

Thanks for setting this one up,

Id say for now, just list out the capabilities/Gks/Sitevars we want to audit – but don't actually do the audit - that's what we'll do in the hack. We need to build collective experience on how to review the access that's been granted, and how to make decisions about keep/kill/contract.

This review cycle should include whats currently in Capabilities, as well as whitelists administered via Gks and Sitevars. I don't want us to have to go through this excise ever again. For example, we should appraise what Netflix (for example) has across all these three whitelisting mechanisms in one go.

Awesome. I could try either of the following two options:

- 1/ Identify capabilities that matter and find out which companies use them and audit those
- 2/ Audit Tier 0 and 1 partners across all the capabilities

From previous conversations with Marie adding the GKs into the Talent tool is still a few months out, so we may need to repeat the process then.

Any thoughts/preferences mainly on either 1 or 2 above?

Cheers,

Subject: Re: P3.0 Rollout Planning

Sure!

The main thing is planning for the "Capabilities Cleanup".

As we discussed, probably the best way to do this is to attack it as a 2 day (?) hackathon. We should involve some guys from the scaled outreach team and the PMD team too, and possibly others who are still at the company who used to be involved in Partnerships.

What we need to do to make this happen is the following:

- Draw up a list of the Capabilities, the Gatekeepers and the non-capability sitevars that we want to include in the audit – perhaps tiering them by significance.
- Draw up a list of the high-risk/threat companies (and their apps) that we want to audit – we should order these by MAU
- Build a spreadsheet for use in the hack where we list out the apps, companies and capabilities we've audited, and our decision about any action we take. I think this comes down to 4 options:
 1. Keep access (and verify we have an agreement with them)
 2. Revoke access
 3. Keep access, but need to get an extended Platform agreement with them
 4. Escalate (need someone else to make a call, or to provide more context)

The first two bullets will be the place to start.

Want to take a stab at that?

We should also check with Marie about the scope of what the Talent tool covers, and if they have imminent plans to migrate whitelists currently controlled by Sitevars or Gatekeeper into this tool.

Subject: Re: P3.0 Rollout Planning

This is SUPER, Simon. You nailed it.

A few recommendation on minor issues:

1/ Slide 2: I think you are right to suggest that a full audit is a huge task with unclear value. I certainly agree with your recommendation, however I would recommend that we do a thorough audit on the apps that have been whitelisted for capabilities equivalent to the public APIs we will be deprecating, i.e apps that have been whitelisted for read_stream API should be audited the same way as those that request the read_stream permission. Same for friends_*, read_mailbox, etc. My take is that if we deprecated the permission, there is no point maintaining access to the capability all together.

Agree we should review these – however, the capability will remain to give access features which are publicly deprecated, but available to whitelisted apps.

2/ Slide 3: How did you come up with the Tiering & SLA here? My 2cents is that this is a bit confusing and I would stick to the classification outlined on Slide 4.

This is actually the classification the PM team are using. They're separating partner APIs (titan api, auth.login) from the set of APIs you need to rebuild a Facebook client (FB in-house apps, BlackBerry, Windows Phone). The aim is to reduce the # of third party 'internal' apps and manage them more strongly.

3/ Slide 4: Should we add a few examples next to the 4 categories, i.e Pre-enforce: Twitter, Standard: Amazon, Extension: Samsung TV, Exception: HTC

Yep - done

4/ Slide 5: I am not sure about the revenue saved. Is this really a cost-cutting exercise? Removing access to all_friends lists seems more like a indirect way to drive NEKO adoption.

Jackie and I discussed this – I think most people here have no idea of the cost we expend running these APIs or which apps cost use the most. I agree with Jackie that instrumenting this gives us a great line internally about the money we're saving as well as cleaning up the platform.

5/ Slide 7: I think the XFN team should also include the TV and Mobile folks together with Games.

sure

6/ Slide 8: We need to make a recommendation on who can help us with the audit. Would that be dev ops? As per the discussion with Allison, they have no capacity to help us. Could we ask for Justin's help with the UO team?

Agree we need help – not sure which team is best as it depends on how deep we decide to go, will leave as open question.

I hope this feedback is useful. Thanks again for putting those together.

Cheers,
kp

Highlights

Launches: Launched Object API, Object Browser, GDP 3.0, iOS SDK 3.5 and Facebook Technology Partners program at Mobile Dev Con. Dev and press reaction to launch was good (attached). Great work by everyone that designed, built, doc'd, supported, etc. these products.

Mobile Dev Con: ~300 developers in NYC for an all-day event. Launched the above. The event itself rocked. In the post-event survey, attendees gave Platform a strong NPS of 57, and 90% agreed or strongly agreed that they gained valuable guidance at the event.

Platform Strategy: We locked our top-level platform strategy with Mark on Monday (doc + talk attached). Key thing is that platform is not just an identity platform, but now includes paid app distribution experiences (neko, etc.) and will include foundational app services to help developers build x-platform apps.

Roll-outs: Collections rolled to 95%, GDP 3.0 rolled to 90% (non-canvas).

People: Core Platform and OG Engineering teams (too many people to list) for the great products we launched. Fran Larkin, Ben Chiaramonte, Jillian Stefanki, Anish Bhasin and Vijay Shankar for an awesome Mobile Dev Con keynote and blog post. Rose Yao and Eddie O'Neil for their talks at Mobile Dev Con. Christine Abernathy for the Facebook Tech Partner program. Simon Cross for driving the event. Last but not least, Nicol Wilson for making the event happen. I am sure I am missing folks, absence here is not a function of contribution, merely my poor memory.

Lowlights

We took a overall NPS hit when we excluded all the lower quality apps recently removed by Developer Operations. Good for users and good us to know where we stand with more real devs. As we start to roll out more aspects of Platform 3.0, I expect their to be an NPS hit that we hope to address with better communication and more success with paid distribution services.

Object Browser: Launched to all developers on 4/18. Initial response from press has been positive. The team executed against an aggressive timeline and we're all extremely happy with the result. This is one of the best tools DevX has released to date and sets the standard for level of quality we expect to deliver moving forward. Next 2 weeks will be focused on features that didn't make release; notably search, browser history support and additional polish.

Unified Review: Marie and Constantin are close to finalize the "feature" buckets for platform. DevX is completing CROW integration and will be demoing at XFN next week. In parallel XFN group is working on defining an objective quality metric that can be applied to apps and assist with Unified Review, as well as defining the app guidelines developers will be graded against.

Amazon SSO Integration: Meeting with Amazon on Monday to discuss their plan to pre-load a hidden version of FB4A. They say they have "already started working on it" and we will review the design on Monday.

Payments Growth: Several logging features launched this week, specifically to help us understand funding method selection. Testing of Boleto as a payment method in Brazil is also expected to launch this week. Tests Closed This Week – The one button plus x-out design test was turned off. While it did show higher new paper conversion, we also saw 20% higher refunds for the test group. Began country interviews for the "second tier" of countries - NL, FR, ID. Wrapped up first sprint – Will roll out three of the sprint initiatives because they were successful. Currently calculating the impact on overall TPV to be included in profit goal. Zip Code Test – Collecting Zip code in credit card flow resulted in 2.8% increase in payers. Credential Removal Test – Messaging at the point of removal that a user's CC info is safe with FB resulted in a 4.85% increase in active credential users. Post Transaction Address Collection – Asking users to add their address post-transaction resulted in 60% of users adding addresses with no impact on TPV or payers Payment Engine: Developers Ramp - Currently 0.22% TPV flowing through PE. Focusing on getting 5 partners onboard quickly with at least 50/50 traffic in at least one game. At that point, we will announce breaking change. Plarium = Launched with 2 games (1 at 90%, 1 at 50%). Peak = Launched 1 game at 50%. EMEA developer. Playdom = Slated for 4/24. Happy Elements = Slated for end of April. APAC developer. Either Nordeus (good alt-pay traffic) or King (slated for end of April). Implemented the JS callback requested by King. Mobile shortcutting bug fix will be pushed out next Tuesday. Cross datacenter payment id infrastructure is code complete - setting up environment and end-to-end testing. Logging is now at parity between PB vs. PE. Allocating fbid for all credentials will make building Vishnu easier. A/B testing API to be worked on this month to help developers with more randomized test groups.

Payments 3.0: Finalized agreement with Braintree

Neko Product: Deferred custom audiences until the London MDC event. Ads is also instituting a platform-esque launch review process, which we'll take CA through before launching it. Past couple of days have been soft due to a pull back from Android spenders, and some weakness in iPad. Internal bug on April 16th which caused us to count invalidations as clicks. It was fixed quickly by eng, and we worked to pulled impacted clients to issue refunds. Android performance – Referrer test show that we may be under reporting installs by about 30% compared to ref tracking. Working on parallel measurement solution. Feed Supply/Demand Analysis Update: Trying to understand whether targeting is an issue, looking into specific large client budgets to see if it is targeting or pricing affecting their delivery. Developers Live + Mobile Dev Con Update: We have gotten some great client feedback and questions from both Developers Live and Dev Con. Updating our marketing and comms to address the questions directly. One-Link Flow: Code went out in native clients and the team still needs to build UI. Enabling Neko data use - Opt-out: There are more questions from privacy, and we are hoping to close this out next week. Android Tablet targeting: this is progressing, pending any legal issues and should be ready ~ end of month. Neko X-out: For iOS is ready, working on m-site and Android. Send-to-mobile: Zoran has collected data and has suggestions for product and go to market. Neko Page Post Ad Tests: Poshmark Page Post test went live yesterday and Clash of Clans Video page post is going live next week when client is ready to post to their Page. App of the Day: Emma has been gathering feedback from clients on this. Developers see the value and understand the service. Brands don't value charting but value CPI transparency and predictability. Pain points clients feel with existing charting options are 1) long lead time, 2) only promoting for a day, 3) targeting, and 4) fragmented industry. So this could be short-term rev opportunity for existing spenders with frequent launches. Next step is to test with 2-3 clients, Zynga planning to launch their next game with us. Auction in Bookmarks – Testing started yesterday to 10% in France, full details here: <https://www.prod.facebook.com/groups/nekoeng/permalink/500022206713066>. Platform Custom Audience: A new mobile app targeting field is being added to custom audiences. Developers will be able to reach people who have taken specific actions on their mobile app (such as installs or purchases) with our ads. This feature is still internal only. Announcing in a couple of weeks

Collections: at 95%, 5% holdout to work on photo engagement. Next step: native mobile/ratings/portrait mode/snowlift UX

GDP v3: Launched to 95% at MDC, 5% holdout for few more days of monitoring. Next up: 1/ crank up reliability and perf so login can be really dependable as a utility 2/ working w/ Games so v3 can work positively for games ecosystem & KPIs

Native Collections : Supporting product in release branch on iOS and Android for May 9th release. Planning v1.1.

OG Growth: Initial netego stats are encouraging (.21% conversion rate), and we increased to 25% of of users who have seen the Collections NUX. Iterating on NetEgo design, and building first Socrates question for Collections. UI experiments on Recommendations + Empty Collections leading to ~7.5% in edge creation. Analyzed change in baseline of metric (due to counting inactive pages, and removing users who have not opted in to 3rd party apps), and current trends for Collections against goal.

OG Fitness: Fixing Collection ordering bugs, and met with Nike to hear their roadmap for the rest of the year. NikeFuel App with OG track actions going live on 4/22.

OG Music: Live Listen code removed from code base (10K lines of code), after the GK being off for a few weeks. Added additional scuba logging for the play button across the site, and built support for music partners to not use the music bridge (and kicked off testing with Spotify, Rdio, and Deezer.)

OG Entities: Started working on Rovi tasks. Creating API for Rovi ID / FB ID mapping as per agreement. Had a call with Random House to understand best way to ingest their data. Continued work to deep-link author in book pages. Made progress getting OG books indexed so that they can be surfaced in the typeahead. Aggregated OG data into a single Hive table for Unicorn purposes. This is required to enable canonical data queries. Starting an experiment to test crowdsourcing duplicates (https://www.dev.facebook.com/me/books?qrt_taste_version=62)

Social Plugins: non-ui work on sanitizing plugins and sharer.php such as migrating to sticky composer setting while continuing to iterate designs for www esp. on buttons and branding.

Mobile Platform : Up next parity on Android (share dialog, SDKs, etc). Deep links. Messaging is currently third after those.

Insights: asked platform / games team to help fix native mobile logging for hi-pri metrics (impressions, NF clicks, bookmark / search clicks). A bootcamper broke out OG impressions for TOS'ed / non-TOS'ed users, which we should be able to launch soon. Continuing to fix the mobile referrals dashboard. Daniel is supporting the new logging coming from other teams.

App Feeds: Harsh and Voja are going to do the infra work here. Starting with an API to accept tokens for a service from the device.

Testing

Major bugs found in testing this week:

T #2293491: GDPv2/V3: Android/iOS : Clicking on connect to facebook doesnt redirect to the app

T #2310175: GDPv3: All Browsers: Beta only: Security warning page is shown on clicking 'Cancel' Button

T #2303692: Android: Get Login Status : ClickingFB.getLoginStatus does nothing

Apart from daily and weekly testing, team also tested:

Native collections and og stories for may iOS and android release

Mobile Games Distribution – Showing megaphone, bookmarks, notification for mobile game ads gdp v3 100% rollout

Native gdp on iOS

UNREDACTED VERSION OF DOCUMENT SOUGHT TO BE LODGED UNDER SEAL

DRAFT

Mobile Publishing: Last 30 Days/ Next 90 Days

David Engelberg
Strategic Partnerships, Mobile Games
December 17, 2013

Speaker Notes for Slide 1

Context:

- We've had one semi-global launch... we'll talk about that in a bit.
- For the new people, this is basically an opportunity to redirect the thrust of the program. The intent is to get to a point where the initial version of this program shows a clear path to something that is scalable and repeatable.

DRAFT

Context

Twice-weekly check-ins – are we on the right path?

Make sure we are reporting things relevant to you

- Effect of bursts
- Effect of sustains
- Insight into mobile ecosystem
- Etc. etc.

DRAFT

Agenda

- 1 Background
- 2 The Last 30 Days
- 3 The Next 90 Days
- 4 The Model

What do we mean when we say publishing?

DRAFT

Right now...

- We provide initial marketing phase for high potential titles
- Facebook takes 30% of NET revenue

This is to prove that we can pick winners

- Winners are ROI+
- Winners are healthy NEKO spenders

Speaker Notes for Slide 4

Effectively, we want to prove we can provide the core element of a scalable solution. That's games.

DRAFT

If we can prove that we can identify winners:

We can start to explore scaling the program via projects already underway:

1. Ad network
2. Product innovations
3. Games hub
4. We can publish more games

Speaker Notes for Slide 5

The key to this entire program is to identify games that return our investment through ROI+ spends. We need games to have a long lifecycle (365+ days). Once we have that, this whole thing becomes a lot more interesting.

facebook

DRAFT

The last 30 days have been busy

DRAFT

- Redesigned program
 - Redefined revenue model
 - Established gates and process
 - (Almost) finished contract
- Globally burst Wind Runners
- 4 geo-beta games

Speaker Notes for Slide 7

- Wind Runners – more on this in a minute
- Geobeta games include: Draconus Rex, Dawn of Dragons, Time Quest Slots, Monster Legacy
 - Geobeta games coming up include: Age of Booty, Dr. Who, Lucky Play Casino

DRAFT

Previous Contract Structure

The goal of the contract is to help dev “cross the chasm”

1. Burst to drive organics ($100k with Fiksu)
2. Sustain growth ($400k in ad credits, operated by Ampush/PMD)
3. Subsidize continued growth for both publishing and ad $$$
 1. 100% of rev share earned in 60 days redeemed if on-FB spend
 2. 10% of net revenue earned on day 61 to day 365 rebated if on-FB spend

Complicated

Not scalable

Not enough $$$

Speaker Notes for Slide 8

A couple of big issues with this:

- 1) Scalability problems were problematic all over the place, including within the group
- 2) Due to Apple billing issues, it's possible this deal wouldn't be super helpful for developers
- 3) This isn't enough money – this deal attracts a specific type of developer we aren't ready to work with
 - 1) This is a nice template for a later version – it's absolutely something that some of the bigger developers (Kabam) were interested in

The first part of this project is really about proving only the core competency of picking winners – there isn't a need to overcomplicate the issue.

DRAFT

We weren't giving developers a chance

$500k budget isn't enough to boost and sustain a title

- Wordly spent $175k in 2 days = no.2 in free games
- Deer Hunter spent $950k in 15 days = no.1 in free games
- Wind Runner spent $100k in 1 day = no. 10 in free games for <24 hours

DRAFT

Restructured Contract

Previous version

- 8 total developers (6 hits)
- $500k per developer
 - $100k to Fiksu, $400k to Neko
- 30% rev share
- 100% NEKO subsidy first 60 days
- 10% subsidy last 305 days

Current version

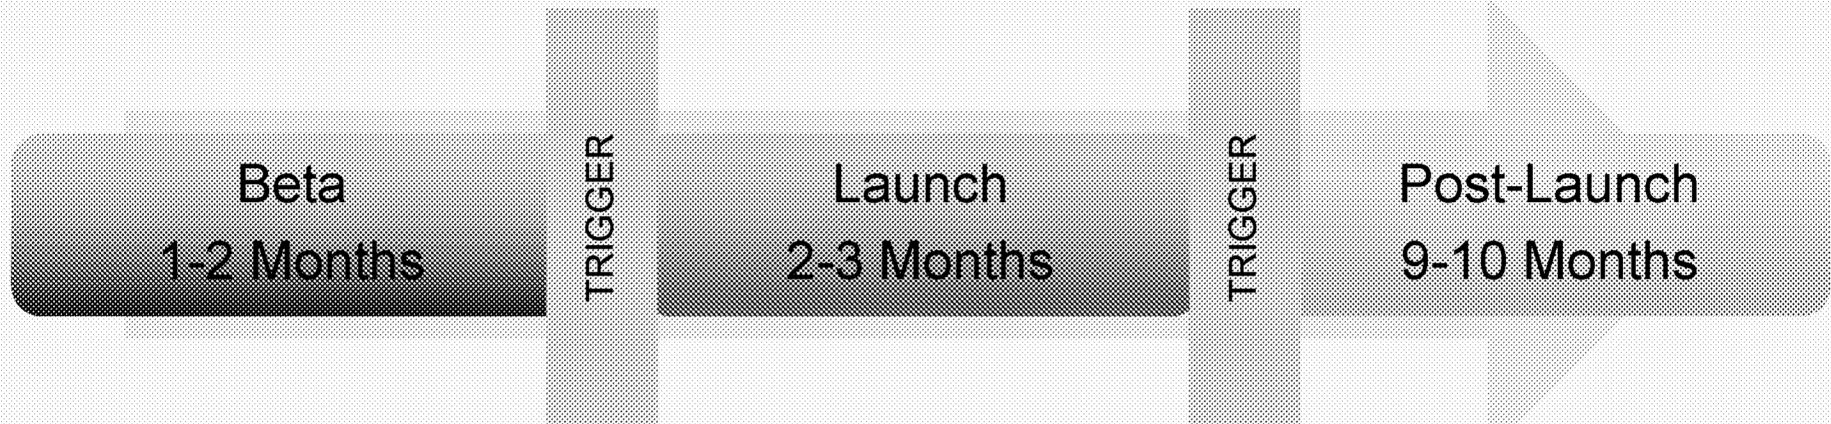

- 4 total developers (3 hits)
- $1m per developer in 2 installments
- 30% rev share

Speaker Notes for Slide 10

- Reduce the developers
- Focus on only one platform for titles
- Make our money go a lot farther
- Prove out core competency

DRAFT

Program and Objectives

DRAFT

Details

DRAFT

2014 Q1 Portfolio

We'll be focused on a diverse portfolio for Q1.

Each genre gives us insight into the $LTV > CPI$ calculus.

Some bets are safer than others.

Speaker Notes for Slide 21

When you take a look at models, it's a lot harder to make more casual titles (below a 0.10 ARPDAU) make sense without REALLY low CPIs.

I think that we should figure out what genres work too - a critical piece of the puzzle is figuring out if we want to do this program if we can only make midcore titles work.

DRAFT

Our Partners

We will be working with one burst vendor and one PMD

1. Fiksu will be handling our burst off-FB buys
 1. Days 0 to Days 2
2. Ampush (PMD) will be handling our FB sustain campaigns
 1. Days 3 to Days 59

Speaker Notes for Slide 22

We will be able to negotiate a lower-deal with Fiksu due to volume + FB

Ampush will be a valuable partner because we can hand the developer off to them after our 60 day responsibilities are up.

They are also very focused on proving out this relationship.

DRAFT

Our Methodology

Modeling

1. Biz Ops has created a 365 day benchmarking model to help us make bets
 1. Based on monetization, retention, and install volume
2. Will help us make smarter bets and sets tracking expectations

Geo-Beta

1. Ensure that metrics hold at scale (most critical for CPIs)

Speaker Notes for Slide 23

For each genre, there's typically one wild card that a developer can REALLY control.

We can talk about this model in-depth if you guys want.

DRAFT

Our Reporting

Contract defines a required daily reporting

We plan on using AppAnnie or asking for direct credentials

This is not a scalable solution

DRAFT

People to Know

DRAFT

People to know in mobile publishing

Primary point of contact:

- David Engelberg (MPK) – reach out to me and I can put you in touch with the right person. I am eminently available. Swing by.

Brains/Brawn of publishing:

- Sheila Rathnam (MPK)
- Aman Ghei (London)
- Dan Morris (MPK)

Speaker Notes for Slide 26

Sheila and I will be running a lot of our campaigns and executing on the devs we bring in...

Aman and Dan are the driving force behind the strategy of the publishing effort – they will be doing a lot of lead generation on the publishing front...

DRAFT

Why Mobile Publishing

DRAFT

Mobile Games Opportunity

1. SuperCell sold 51% of company for $1.5B

2. GungHo has a larger market cap than Nintendo

3. King.com planning IPO

Games drive lots of revenue.

FB doesn't get a lot of it.

Speaker Notes for Slide 28

You all know this, but FB currently derives 20%+ of its revenue from games. A small piece of that is mobile-focused, despite mobile+tablet growth accelerating.

Publishing is one way to explore alternative ways to monetize on these devices and lets us explore something that is not advertising.

DRAFT

Why Mobile Publishing?

Facebook can drive revenue on mobile in a few ways

1. Make games
2. Process Payments
3. Developer Ad Spend (MAIA/NEKO)
4. Mobile publishing

Speaker Notes for Slide 29

Processing payments is tricky right now developer ad spend is very profitable but highly commoditized and we are inventory restrained. It's a good thing to build and grow, but it's also good to have other options.
we aren't a games company nor do we want to be...

Mobile publishing is an opportunity to diversify our portfolio and move away from being strictly an ad network on top of other mobile platforms.

DRAFT

Mobile Publishing Opportunity

There is a growth opportunity in identifying these high ROI+ games and becoming a distribution channel

Kakao made $311 million as a games distributor in H1 2013

Line brings in nearly $100 million games

<http://thenextweb.com/asia/2013/07/16/korean-messaging-app-kakao-talks-games-platform-grossed-311-million-in-h1-2013/>

<http://techcrunch.com/2013/07/11/times-sunday-app-line/>

And their growth is accelerating!

DRAFT

Some background:

The Key to Mobile F2P is $LTV > eCPI$ (ROI+):

1. You need healthy game metrics
2. You need to have organic traffic
3. You need to buy high-quality users
4. You need to be viral

Every step costs $$$$. Most developers run out at Step 1.

Speaker Notes for Slide 31

Some background:

You need to design a game with high retention and high ARPDAU – we are leaving this up to the developer

Organic traffic comes from being noticeable. This means having a spot on charts on the Google Play store and Apple iTunes. It also means that you're reducing the burden on buying users / viral channels, which means eCPI is going up.

Buying high-quality users comes from ad networks, but realistically, it comes from FB. This is the ONLY channel right now that effectively gives you high-value users.

Step 4 is an arguable one – card battle games like RoB and RTS like Modern War aren't viral, but they can get away with it with very high LTV. It will probably be important for some of our titles.

Facebook can solve a discovery problem here, while encouraging best in breed FB integrations and evangelizing the value of our FB ads solutions.

DRAFT

Our approach

For each game, we focus on three phases

1. Modeling

1. Produce 365 day game models from dev expectations/benchmarks

2. Geo-betas

3. Global rele

Speaker Notes for Slide 32

We'll start with a model that will become more sophisticated over time...

We also need to discuss how geo-betas are going to be handled.

Why do you have to listen to this?

DRAFT

Weigh in on the program direction and goals

Inform reporting to best fit your needs

Ensure we are asking the right questions / driving to the right conclusions

Speaker Notes for Slide 33

This is a nascent program and we can adapt. We're still relatively nimble and lean.

DRAFT

KPIs of Mobile Publishing Program

By the end of 2014 Q1, we want to prove we can pick “winners”

1. We can choose 3 ROI+ games ($LTV > eCPI$)
2. We can be revenue neutral (minimum revenue to FB = $5m)
3. We can create new NEKO spenders (grow the system)

Speaker Notes for Slide 34

So, to start to test that model, we have a (hopefully) achievable goal in the next 4 months. That is to produce the following:

DRAFT

New Contract Structure

Geo beta with closely monitored KPIs

Global launch ($200k Fiksu + $200k NEKO)

- Prior to global launch, dev + FB agree to a internally generated revenue model supplied by biz ops
- This model will have revenue projections for the year

TRIGGER – if developer is within 15% of rev projections at DAY 30, then they get $600k NEKO. If not, we have the option of walking away.

ALL NEKO SPEND IS PUT INTO A BUDGET FOR ACTUAL

DRAFT

Wind Runners Burst

Only pushed 33k organic installs

Only stayed in top 10 for 18 hours

@Bryan - can you take the lead on getting this agreement written up?
@Eddie - Doug gave approval for for Royal Bank to use Titan API and they're now ready for launch. As a heads up, Bryan will take the lead in getting the agreement in place with RBC, but worth putting on your radar that there are now 2 partners with this whitelist api.
@Sachin & Ashley - once Bryan get's the agreement, can you get your partner to sign the agreement and do not let them launch until they get the agreement back to us?

Sachin and I were chatting on another trail, and I spoke to Eddie yesterday briefly.

Eddie's view is that this is a good use case, but would like to see the experience.

From a PR perspective, the story is about the app, not the API, so the fact that it uses Titan isn't a big deal.

From a legal perspective, they need an "Extended API agreement" (we used with Netflix) which governs use going forward and should provide us the freedom to make the changes that Simon mentions below (without being too explicit). One thing that's not clear to me: I'm not sure how Titan will interop with a hashed version of the FBID.

Happy to help facilitate getting an agreement written up. Suzie and Frank were the BD and legal folks I worked with.

I mentioned to Sachin yesterday that I would like to speak via phone with Simon re: the potential contract needed. Jackie, please let me know if you would like to be involved. Note I have no issue suggesting this to the RBC clients, however want to be sure I understand what purpose it serves and what this will protect.

Please be on the look out for a meeting maker...

Hey sachin,

Do we have a contract with them that covers the use of the messaging API?

As that's already a private API it shouldn't be affected by ps12n.

The big change you should quietly ensure they'll be ready to handle is the move to hashed uids. This means that once the migration is enabled, un-ToS'd users' ids will change.

But the good news is that because of this change, we'll continue to return the users full friend list. The message API allows users to send messages to un-ToS'd friends today right?

As Jackie says, we shouldn't give them a heads up that change is a-coming.

Let's ensure we have a contact with them which sets us up to keep them on our whitelist post ps12n.

Developers are allowed to develop under the current framework. We ask that no discussion of PS with partners until messaging is fully prepared, etc.

When it comes time for PS, we'll figure out paths to unwind partners in a reasonable time, but because nothing is solidified yet, we can't guide anyone on what or what not to do.

We'll just flag this integration with Simon as one of the apps we'll need to work closely with on providing a reasonable unwind path when it comes time.

Hope that helps. Thanks!

I saw Eddie's post

As a reminder, they are using friends list + messages API to allow an authenticated user to send money to a friend (regardless of whether the friend is authenticated or not).

Hope things are well. Let me know if there's anything we need to do here.

Hey Jackie -

Do you have an estimated time frame on when we might have a better understanding of whether or not the Messages API will include the ability to access non-app friends? I'm a bit anxious about this given how close we are to launching and how much is on the line for the partnership. Any update (if we haven't figured it out even just an estimate on when we might) would be great. Also, if there is anything I can do to help (provide more info, etc.) please let me know.

Launching iPad on October 1, then iPhone in November. Also to clarify – it will be an update to their existing iOS app (<https://itunes.apple.com/ca/app/rbc-mobile/id407597290?mt=8>).

They are not using our payments system. Banking in Canada is semi-regulated, and every bank banded together to create a system called Interac (<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Interac>). Interac powers the back end of all debit purchases and also allows anyone with a Canadian bank account to send money to anyone else with a Canadian bank account. Every bank has a function in their mobile app and website called "Interac eTransfer" that lets you send money to another person via their email address (powered by Interac). Their FB integration is simply allowing this transfer to happen over Facebook Messages as well.

Thanks for the quick response. Answers below:

1. Correct, partner is RBC Royal Bank (RBC_payments group in the whitelist tool) and their AppIDs (dev, staging, prod) are here https://our.intern.facebook.com/intern/capabilities/group.php?group_name=RBC_payments
2. They did not sign an extended API agreement. Should they have? I didn't know about this – I was following this doc: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/420494141332540/doc/421300334585254/>
3. Doug gave the approval. Permalink in group: <https://www.facebook.com/groups/420494141332540/500405533341400/> and also attached a couple of email threads where he comments that it's a great use case.
4. There is budget tied specifically to this app update (all mobile app install ads to existing RBC customers, via custom audiences). I believe it will be one of the biggest neko campaigns ever run in Canada (Ashley can comment with more details).

Thanks again!

Sachin

Sachin, thanks for the below details. What would really be helpful for us is if you can provide the below details first:

- 1/ what's their app id? (Partner is RBC Royal Bank)
- 2/ did they sign an extended api agreement when you whitelisted them for this api?
- 3/ who internally gave you approval to extend them whitelist access? Can you send me email or permalink from the Platform Whitelist Approval group.
- 4/ is there budget tied specifically to this integration? How much?

We need the above info foremost and we understand the context below. Thanks!

Hey Jackie & Constantin,

Long time no talk, hope you guys are doing well.

Wanted to follow up about on this thread https://www.facebook.com/groups/platform.fyi/permalink/550920554956564/?comment_id=551335571581729&offset=0&total_comments=8 about the upcoming Platform 3.0 rollout. Overall, I'm really pumped about these changes and I think they definitely represent a positive direction for user trust.

It seems like the main use case for an authenticated user to be able to access their entire list of friends (including non-app friends) is invites, so glad to see that we'll be creating a specific invite solution to meet this case. Another valid use case is messaging, although there are only a handful of partners who have access to the Messages API (as far as I know only Dropbox, RBC, and our own first party apps?). I want to see if I can work with you on managing this use case with the upcoming changes. My initial thinking is that the ability to access friends list can be coupled with the Messages API (and in this case, you can only access friends list for the purpose of messaging a friend as opposed to invites, etc.). I'm guessing the invite solution will be similar (only access friends list for the purpose of inviting them to the app in a safe manner).

Without the ability to access non-app friends, the Messages API becomes drastically less useful. It will also be impossible to build P2P payments within the RBC app, which would have dire consequences for our partnership with them (each side has been invested in this since the beginning of the year, and there is a big financial commitment from them). They are the biggest bank in Canada, a top 20 global bank, and the Platform, Payments, and Messages teams are all really excited about this use case for its potential to (a) have the finserv industry re-think the role of Facebook in retail banking, and (b) act as a test case for more compelling high signal 'transactions' over FB messages (sending money, sharing files, customer service with a business, etc.).

The user flow of the app is attached (basic flow is a user authenticates, sees a list of their friends, chooses a friend, enters the $ amount, and hits send. Their friend receives a FB message with a link to claim the money). Besides icons and names, it's accurate and finalized and had been approved by Doug & the payments team a couple of months ago.

We're a little anxious about this change – and hoping to see what I can do to help manage the transition. I'm actually in MPK this week if you want to catch up live... let me know.

Also cc'd Ashley who leads the relationship with RBC and Neil who is the vertical solutions lead on Financial Services.

Thanks -

Sachin

Hi,

Developers are looking into it and they coming back with report of API returning error.
Also according to doc we will not be able to show name/profile pic and even people who granted permissions will be hashed?
Because your original explanation was about existing users will be opened?
Anyway if for "hashed" we can only say: you have 2 levels of connections it will be kind of not trustworthy for the end users.

The docs are here: https://developers.facebook.com/docs/graph-api/reference/v2.2/user/hashed_friends – only visible to people listed in the roles section of your app.

Please start testing this API as soon as can – and feel free to give feedback or ask any questions you have.

We sincerely hope that this API along with the All Mutual Friends API https://developers.facebook.com/docs/graph-api/reference/v2.2/user.context/all_mutual_friends means you have everything you need to upgrade to Graph API v2.x.

Subject: Re: Changes to FB API April 2015 - Hashed Anon All Friends API

Hello Michelle and Sergey,

We have now approval from our internal stakeholders to move ahead with a new API – working name Hashed Anon All Friends API. The new API as well as the relevant docs will be ready next week.

How would this API work... For each of the FB logged in users, the API will return:

FBIDs: App friends that logged in before your migration to V2:

App Scoped IDs: App friends that logged in after your migration to V2:

Anonymous one-way hashed IDs: Non-app friends

This API will hopefully let you understand some of the structure of the graph in order to determine which non-app friends to recommend to a given user, and thus which pairs of users to call the All Mutual Friends API on behalf of. These hashed IDs will be in an entirely new namespace (i.e. Different to anything you have today). its purely for matching 2nd and 3rd order mutual friends etc.

The following example may help...

<7A763973-555B-4DCB-BB50-2CBC18D49B38.png>

For u1, we'd emit hashed IDs for: u8, u5, u4 & app scoped ID for u3

For u2, we'd emit hashed IDs for: u6 , u4 & app scoped ID for u3 and u7

For u7, we'd emit hashed IDs for: u5 & app scoped ID for u2

Thus, the app could determine that u1 and u2 are related:

- * via u3 (2nd order via app-user)
- * via u4 (2nd order via non-app user)
- * u5 and u7 (3rd order).

Note, the relationship via u6 would not be known as u6 is not friends with ≥ 2 app-users.

Based on the above, the number of API calls you will need to make against the Mutual Friends API will be drastically reduced as well.

Let me know if that would work.

Hi KP

Hope you're well.

I know you've had a chat with Andrey about the changes coming up to the FB API. I was planning to send an email along the lines of the draft below to the platform team, and specifically Sean Ryan (VP of Platform Partnerships) and possibly Nicola Medelsohn Head of EMEA.

Could I ask a favour of you? Firstly, do you think they're the right people, secondly, do you think the email below is along the right lines? Any feedback greatly appreciated!

Best

Michelle

Dear Facebook Platform Team

We write to you with regard to the v2.0 API which will be in effect from April 2015.

We understand, and commend the steps being taken by Facebook to tighten security around the use of user data, and indeed limit opportunity for abuse of user friend lists. However, we have been compelled to write to you to explain the hugely detrimental effect that removing friend permissions will cause to our hugely popular (and profitable) applications Badoo and Hot or Not.

The friends data we receive from users is integral to our product (and indeed a key reason for building Facebook verification into our apps). Without the ability to access and use social graphs, applications become not just generic, but the "social" aspect is removed. Specifically in relation to our applications, the reason that Friends data is crucial to our product are:

a. User engagement is increased by users being able to see shared/mutual friends. This is because for applications like ours, where users are meeting and chatting, a huge element of trust, and engagement is created by showing users shared friends. To reiterate, within this process, we don't abuse any data, we simply show users a name and photo of the friend and demonstrate the connection.

b. We use friend lists to enable users to 'recommend' friends to other friends. This is an exciting feature of our applications, and enhances the user experience, again, by bringing in, and supporting the element of trust on the application, but also as a fun engagement feature.

c. In order to reduce and limit fraudulent/Spam/Scam on our applications, we also analyse friend lists by cross referencing against our maintained lists of known fraudsters, in order to verify the safety of accounts. This improves the user experience and improves the safety of our site.

In our view it is a misperception that friend permissions are used to add virality of an application/spam users. They are vital to the integrity, trust and engagement of a product, and it is for these reasons alone that we use the friend social graph in our application. We would therefore be very grateful if you could reconsider how the proposed changes will be applied to our applications, and whether there are any assurances we can give to you that would support a change in your decision.

We look forward to hearing from you, and would be happy to set up a call/arrange a meeting to discuss in more detail.

Kind regards

We'll hang tight while Simon is OOO but in the meantime, I've got a few more notes from my team to share:

1/ Manage_Groups - given the anticipated scope of work required to integrate this permission, our dev team will need access by the end of next week to make the 2.0 deadline.

2/ User ID Mapping - based on most recent conversations with Global Relay, they don't actually support e-discovery and do not need to be included in the legal agreement. This change has been reflected in the overview of compliance use cases & data-flows we shared earlier.

Hi Monica & Simon, wanted to check in on a few items required to inform client messaging + development efforts:

1/ Manage_Groups

- Still on track to release this week?
- Can you please clarify whether the core functionality listed below will be supported by the new permission? This info is needed for the communications (in-product, email, help article, etc) we're preparing to notify users of upcoming changes:
 1. View content in a groups that the user is an admin of
 2. Interact with content (like, comment, etc) in a group that the user is an admin of
 3. Publish messages to all groups a user belongs to, even if they are not an admin

2/ User ID Mapping Agreement

- Any updates on timing you can share?

Thank you!

Hi Alanna,

I took a quick look, and your app – 183319479511 has enabled the default admin to v2.0 feature which can explain the behaviors you are seeing.

To turn it off, simply to go your app's dashboard > Settings > Migrations and set “Default Admins, Developers and Testers to Graph API v2.0” to OFF. Note – this toggle gets automatically reset to ON periodically, the next time it will be toggled to ON is this Thursday April 9th, 2015. So you will need to take these steps again on that day. FYI – We send out Dev Alerts on the day where this gets automatically re-enabled, so make sure you check your app inbox.

Hope this resolves your issue.

Hi Simon - we've seen occasional deprecation notices being returned for Facebook Searches. In debugging this development, we haven't been able to find any commonalities between the users seeing it (Graph 1 token vs Graph 2 token, or user account vs developer account).

As such, my we're wondering if Facebook is rolling out a broad deprecation for this endpoint ahead of the Graph 2 changeover on April 30th? If so, if there is any info on this development that you can share with us? And if not, do you know what else may be causing these irregularities?

We're planning on starting our phased technical rollout of API changes timed against controlled in-product & direct client messaging, but this development (+ the manage_groups release) impacts plans so we're hoping to have more clarity w/in the next few days.

Thanks Simon, really appreciate the updates.

Hi Simon,

Agreed--getting a better understanding of context will definitely help when we move towards a firm agreement. To get there, Hootsuite will be summarizing everything in a doc this week, to be more easily shared.

In the meantime, I can answer your question. We haven't finalized the integration specification yet, but we are definitely leaning towards translating App-Scoped IDs into the Partner value at application borders. This will be a cleaner solution, allowing each app to deal w/ IDs in their own format, and allowing us to minimize the number of modules that have access to the ID translation API.

Thanks,

Hey John, yes, this should be enough.

Architecturally, we're still deciding the details of how this mapping would work in detail – for example: do you sent a HS ID to NexGate which they have the ability to resolve into their namespace, or do you translate to a NexGate ID before sending the data to them. This architecture depends very much on how data flows between you and your partners, and if any further data exchange happens between them.

Thanks for this – as I say, we're really on hold here until after F8, but I really appreciate this context.

Subject: Re: Hootsuite: 2.0 next steps

Hello Simon,

Data-flow diagrams might be a bit of overkill for these scenarios. Perhaps a simple text sequence might be easier:

Pre-Review (NexGate)

1. In Hootsuite, a message is authored and user clicks Send Now or Schedule
2. Message, with Facebook Profile ID, is sent to NexGate
3. In NexGate, message body is compared against compliance policy configured for that Facebook ID
4. Result (success or failure with context) is returned to Hootsuite
5. In Hootsuite, message is then either sent/scheduled on success, or a notification of failure is sent to the user on failure

Post-Review (Global Relay & Actiance)

1. In Hootsuite, a message is authored and user clicks Send Now or Schedule
2. Message is sent by Hootsuite to the selected Facebook Profiles/Pages
3. In Hootsuite, a digest of that message is prepared, including information on the user who published the message and native network ID (Facebook ID)
4. Hootsuite sends this message digest to either Global Relay or Actiance for archive
5. Some time later, during an e-Discovery investigation, the Facebook ID associated with the message is used to determine the actual Facebook account published to

In some cases, a partner like NexGate might have additional partnerships with archiving providers like Global Relay. In that scenario, the data would be further sent from NG over to Global Relay for archiving. NexGate would need to resolve the App-Scoped IDs in that scenario. A client might elect to use this workflow instead of directly archiving from Hootsuite (or directly archiving via just Global Relay) for any number of reasons (existing workflows, different network support, etc). It's important to note that these configurations are entirely up to the client, and are implemented at their direction.

Our proposed changes for App-Scoped IDs would involve Hootsuite using the ID mapping API to resolve the Hootsuite App-Scoped ID into the appropriate third party App-Scoped ID prior to sending information to our partners. Thus, the message would arrive at our partners APIs with their own App-Scoped ID in use.

We don't have any problems with pre-review. And we don't have any problems with post-review, as long as you're meeting our bar for use of the permissions: i.e. Making visible use of them to enhance the user's experience – and you've now been approved for us for all the permissions you should need to power these experiences – although as you know we can't grant read_stream, user_groups and read_mailbox for the post-review use case as per our previous conversations. There's no additional contracts needed here.

Re user-ID sharing between you and your partners, I do understand the timing issues, but our legal and partnerships teams are swamped with F8 so we're unlikely to make progress here until after that.

Yes – it would be super-valuable if you guys can share some info - perhaps data-flow diagrams that will help our legal and privacy teams understand how data flows between you and your various partners. It's also important for us to understand any ways data could flow between you and multiple compliance partners (NexGate + Global Relay etc)

As you know sharing user ID-level data between companies is against our policies, so granting exceptions under a contract requires us to really understand the systems in use here to ensure people's information is being properly protected. That said, I'm confident we can find a way to support your needs here.

Could you guys get some details to us towards the end of next week? Thanks for offering to put this together.

Best,

Simon

I just want to ensure your team is fully supported & that legal review goes as quickly + smoothly as possible.

Hey Alanna,

I sadly can't provide any written guarantees that your use of our platform, or the use cases you outline, are within our policies. But I can say you're likely to be approved via Login Review for user_posts for these purposes as long as the data obtained via this permission is visibly used to enhance the experience of people who log into your app, and you follow our normal data-retention policies.

As to user ID sharing between you and your compliance partners, that is currently against our policies, but we hope to work up an agreement to cover this – though this is likely to be after F8.

That said, as the API v1.0 deprecation deadline is approaching, I suggest you begin the engineering and product work to migrate away from read_stream, user_groups and the Post Search API so as to avoid any disruption on April 30th.

With that timeline on legal, looks like we'll need to run development and legal work on User ID Mapping in parallel to make the migration deadline.

Though before Hootsuite and our compliance partners' technical teams can begin investing the engineering resources, they'll need explicit assurance that Facebook approves of the use cases we outlined (pre & post-review + archiving). Can you provide email confirmation of that approval for Hootsuite & our partners?

If so, Greg will take this solution back to technical execs and see if that provides enough confidence for engineering work to move forwards.

User ID Mapping API:

- 1/ Yes, any solution will involve the Business Mapping API so you should start scoping out that work now.
- 2/ This will be a very manual process. The contract will likely list all the app IDs in play, and the mapping won't be provisioned until the contract has been signed by you and each of your partners.
- 3/ We're working through this now, targeting 3-4 weeks. As you'd imagine, F8 is our #1 priority right now and that's taking up much of our legal and partnerships team's bandwidth

New permissions:

1/ `user_posts` is now live! You can start using this now and add it to your Login Review submission. This permission has been auto granted to anyone who already has `read_stream` i.e most of your existing users. This means, assuming you get approved via Login Review, your existing users won't have to re-logging and grant this perms for your app to retain Timeline access. You should update all your login flows to request this permission as you move away from `read_stream`.

2/ `manage_groups`: We're still working on this and will share details in the next few weeks. Its likely that people will have to manually grant this permission in order for apps to retain access to some groups – as theres no other way for us to know which groups a user wants to grant the app access to without them explicitly saying so.

Hope that helps.

Bi-directional Business Mapping API > given the complexity of implementing this solution - in particular coordinating engineering work across multiple compliance partners and drafting a legal agreement - we need to move fast on this.

- Technical - will the solution be based of the Business Mapping API? And if so, what will the registration process look like for Hootsuite & our compliance partners?
- Legal - is there an approximate timeline on the drafted legal agreement?

New Permissions (`user_post` & `manage_groups`)

- User Migration - if an existing user has authenticated v1, what will the migration to net new permissions look like? Will these be granted automatically, or will a user need to re-auth?
- User_post & manage_groups - update on release timelines for these permissions?

Hey all,

We've had one other small request come up.

Facebook's API currently provides some great functionality for creating development accounts. This has allowed us to do a significant amount of testing signup flows and various scenarios without having to create fraudulent users. However, when talking with our QA team we've had some issues using the current development accounts with the new mutual friends API which has made testing some of the flows rather difficult. We've been creating additional accounts in the Facebook production context which then of course gets hit because QA is going to behave a little strangely.

Is there some way to enable the API to also work with the development accounts to reduce friction with our QA team? We'd really love to leverage our existing development users since we have a really robust setup with our development accounts that we can't currently leverage with mutual friends.

Hi Evan -

I checked into this. No bug. :)

You need to call the API from your server and supply and appsecr_proof param.

From the docs I sent:

"Securing Your Request

If you want to call this API on behalf of two users who are not friends, then you must provide the app secret_proof parameter along with the user access token when making the request. This means the API cannot be called from client code (e.g. from the Javascript SDK or an iOS or Android app) and must instead be called from your server.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Warmly,

Cesi

Hey guys,

Thanks for the follow up on grandfathering permissions. I wish it was an option, but doesn't sound like there's any flexibility there.

On a more important note, I have an urgent problem we ran into: The API seems to only show mutual friends between User A and User B if both users are actually Facebook friends with each other. The point of the mutual friends feature is to reveal mutual friends to people who don't already know each other, so I'm sure this must be a bug.

Can you check this out as soon as possible? We're starting regression testing on this today and then shipping it to the app store, so I want to make sure this feature works properly. I'm guessing there's just some kind of bug in the API right now.

As an example, when I use the Graph Explorer (see query) to see mutual friends with my fiancée (we're Facebook friends, of course), I get mutual friends returned in the API: <https://www.evernote.com/shard/s31/sh/bc833d38-712a-4fc3-8a0c-d451b7444350/3824e12f3af909a8f8019816c56e2df2>

When I do the same query (see query) on a coworker who I am NOT Facebook friends with, there are no results returned, despite the fact that we share many friends in common: <https://www.evernote.com/shard/s31/sh/0433cc4e-eb86-40c3-ae13-763a39e19370/3078cbbad7cf4cb7726012876ae12c64>

If you could check this out quickly and let me know, I'd really appreciate it. I have a less-pressing question I'll start a separate thread about to keep things organized.

Hi Insiya -

We are not grandfathering in anyone for permissions. Since people will need to login using the new version of the API they will ask for the you to share this info. We are seeing very low opt out rates and do think it will impact the use of the service.

Let me know if you have any other questions.

Cesi & KP,

Following up, I had a couple questions for you guys or your team. For context, I'm the PM on the Profiles & Mutual Friends feature and I'm working through the implementation details. Would love your help here.

1) Full API access. It looks like we still don't have proper whitelisted permissions for the mutual friends API. Those of us who are admins of our Facebook app can use the API, but when we test it with someone who is just a regular user of our app, we get this message:

"(#10) To use all_mutual_friends on behalf of people who are not admins, developers and testers of your app, your use of this endpoint must be reviewed and approved by Facebook. To submit this feature for review please read our documentation on reviewable features:
<https://developers.facebook.com/docs/apps/review>"

2) Login. I wasn't totally clear what you meant by "Everyone will be given the opportunity to opt out or give permissions through the new login. All users will be required to use the new login. There's no way to have current users opt in for the feature." Could you explain this a bit more? I was confused by conflating login with the permissions. My understanding is that users, even those who already log in with Facebook, will need to grant an additional permission for Lyft to have access to mutual friends. Is that "new login" or are you referring to something else?

3) Grandfathering permissions. Today, we're getting the default Facebook permissions from all users, which includes the mutual friends feature. We'd like to roll out the Mutual Friends feature on the Lyft platform, with all existing users opted into it. Can we grandfather over our existing user base, so we don't have to re-ask all users for permissions they've already been granting? Not doing this would massively cut the likelihood of seeing whether your driver or fellow passenger has mutual friends, because both sides will have to opt in.

4) Opt out. Is there a way for the mutual friends themselves to opt out of being shown as mutual friends in the Lyft app? I couldn't find any such preference, but I figured I might just be missing it. Also, is there a way for users to revoke the mutual friends permission from the Lyft app if they decide they no longer want Lyft to have access to it, without revoking access to the entire app?

Would love to sort this out so we can lock down our launch plan. If any questions are unclear please let me know!

Thanks all,
- Evan

You don't need to worry about any contracts for the api. This is a product we are testing and will be rolling out slowly.

This is not a focus for F8. Have you spoken with the events team on how to promote Lyft life for F8? If you want me to speak with them and find out more let me know.

Everyone will be given the opportunity to opt out or give permissions through the new login. All users will be required to use the new login. There's no way to have current users opt in for the feature.

Great on the meeting. What time works? The following week on Monday would also work for us.

1. Just checking if the whitelisting is complete. We would like to request whitelist on the prod (275560259205767) and dev (137321729768368) apps.
2. Are there any contracts or other steps besides whitelisting to launch a feature using the APIs?
3. Is this a focus for F8? We are planning to launch the friends feature in 3 weeks and can time it for F8. Any promotion opportunity would be great. We are providing the transportation at F8 and so it might be cool to have the attendees use Lyft Line while in SF and show them mutual friends!
4. In addition to being whitelisted to test the API, we also realised that the Apr 30th change that requires users to "opt in to" the mutual friends permission, will require us to go back to our entire userbase that signed up via FB, to opt in. This can be a sub-par experience if some users do and others don't. Is it possible to have the existing userbase stay opted in?
5. Re. your email about Mar 20th meeting:
Good idea! I can certainly set that up. Depending on the features we want to discuss, I can invite the responsible PMs. Which ones should we plan to discuss. On our priority list right now are:

Mutual friends - ongoing
Events integration - Pending your feedback

Allow users to "share ride status" on messenger/timeline/whatsapp - I think we have all the info for that Messenger - smart prediction for transportation if passenger is planning to travel.
App Invites - to invite Friends - Waiting for the iOS fix that Brendan talked about.

Please let me know.

Unfortunately, the current social graph APIs only allow us to surface FB friends who are also using Lyft. In our case, knowing mutual friends even if the mutual friends don't use Lyft would be a great ice breaker between the riders. Your response on the possibility that we can work with you to get a special access API and timing of it would be super helpful.

Hello Anu,

Could you please give me some context here? What is your App ID and where those permissions are going to be used would be very helpful. The reason I am suggesting having more context is based on the fact that every App Developer that request extended permissions will need to go through Login review now and is important to know how those permissions are in use before you can submit for approval by our review team. Net you may have been requesting user_location before, but if there is no product featured powered by this, then the permission will be rejected. With regards to the specifics:

- 1/ The table below is correct in terms of mapping, but please note that read_stream permission is going to be deprecated and as such non FB branded Apps will not be given access to it.
- 2/ Besides the format of the response changing the other significant change is that me/friends will only return app users (i.e. User that have authorised the app)
- 3/ User_friends permission does not require Login review. However be aware that people can x-out from this. In this case the API will return no results.
- 4/ User don't need to re-auth when an access token that has not expired acquired against v1 is in us – however the API will behave as if this is a V2 access token.

I hope this helps,
kp

Thanks folks for your responses. Here are a few more questions that we have:

1. For the login review, the table below is the list of permissions that we came up with. The V1 permissions are the ones that we have been using so far and the table translates them to the V2 permissions.
 - i. We just want to confirm if that's the right mapping.
 - ii. For the permissions highlighted in yellow:

Friends_xxx: Are there any other permissions that replace them? Do we need a different approval process for these permissions or is this completely going away?

Offline_access: What is the purpose of this permission? We see it used in our product code however not sure of the exact purpose.

2. With the change in permissions will the data that is returned change? Will we get different/more/less name-value pairs in the responses of the queries we send? If so, can you provide the details of these changes?
3. Do we need to specify any permissions for the request https://graph.facebook.com/v2.0/me/friends/{user_id}? What about user_friends permission, is this required? I don't see this permission in the login review list, how do we get it approved if its needed?
4. You mentioned below that the legacy access tokens remain valid, however if we use these tokens which have the v1 permissions in the post April 30th API's, what's the expected behavior? Will there be an error or a re-auth? Will the return values be different?

Thanks,
Anu

Hi Dhiren,

I'm Anu's manager and reaching out as she is currently on vacation. Our devs are working to implement upgrading graph API changes from 1.0 to 2.0, a change that we understand is taking effect at the end of next month.

We've accumulated a fair amount of questions which I'll list below. However, if a phone call would make more sense to quickly go through these, we can certainly get that set up.

Thanks a bunch for any help and insights!

Gruia

1. We would like confirmation that we will be able to simply change graph api by adding versioning with no additional changes to functionality or return type.
 - a. <http://graph.facebook.com/me> to
 - b. <http://graph.facebook.com/v2.0/me>

Yes, adding the version number will force the API to behave in the version specified. If the specified version is deprecated, the call will be defaulted to the next oldest version available. If you do not specify a version number, we'll also default the call to the next oldest version available. This means that calls to <http://graph.facebook.com/me> will automatically switch to v2.0 on April 30. We do recommend that you specify a version number, to better control which API version is being used and try to use the latest version whenever possible.

More information here: <https://developers.facebook.com/docs/apps/versions#versioning>

For Fql.multiquery calls such as <https://api.facebook.com/method/Fql.multiquery>

Do these need to be changed as part of the graph 1.0 deprecation?

FQL does not change but will completely go away after we deprecate Graph API 2.0. We recommend that you use the "batch" Graph API for querying multiple requests: <https://developers.facebook.com/docs/graph-api/making-multiple-requests>

What is the date when this type of api is no longer supported by FB?

Same day as for API v2.0, which is available until Aug 7, 2016.

If they need to be changed, is the correct mapping <https://graph.facebook.com/v2.0/fql>?

Continue to use <https://api.facebook.com/method/fql.multiquery>

i. If this is the case the return data structures are different (XML vs graph). Can we get details about the response structure?

There are fields we see in existing request and response that we have been unable to find any documentation about (for example) `is_pushable`.

Is there documentation on this?

We do not provide general documentations on private APIs, but i'm happy to provide details on a case-by-case basis. "`is_pushable`" is a boolean value telling you whether or not the user is capable of receiving push notifications to any mobile device.

What would be the FB behavior if we continue to pass this parameter, but FB no longer supports it?

The behavior would be different depending on the type of query. If you try to fetch an invalid field, we would return an error code 100, with the message "(#100) Tried accessing nonexistent field (<fieldname>) on nude type (<nodetype>)". It's unlikely that we would deprecate a private API without letting you know in advance. We generally only allow specific developers to use private APIs and we monitor their usage. For example, we know that you are making 8.5M requests/day for this specific field on average.

Additional fields requiring clarification

Publish_stream

This permission is no longer available, please use 'publish_actions' instead.

Publish action

Extended user permission required for publishing on their behalf: https://developers.facebook.com/docs/facebook-login/permissions/v2.0#reference-publish_actions

Offline access

This permission is usually automatically granted when using APIs that rely on it. You shouldn't be using it, but i may need to understand your specific use-case to provide a definitive answer. Can i ask which product this is for?

Is there a testing server available which is already set up in the post 4/30/15 configuration so that we can confirm the validity of our changes?

The online developers.facebook.com graph api explorer is insufficient for running testcases.

We've been live since Apr 30, 2014. You can force API v2.0 calls by specifying the version number to the call (per your question above).

You can also force test users into the post 4/30 configuration and test end-to-end scenarios:

- Go to https://developers.facebook.com/apps/<your_app_id>/roles/test-users/
- Click "Edit" on specific test user

- Select "Override the API version in Graph API requests for this test user"
- Enable "Override" and select the API version you want to target

I can also enroll specific 'real' users into the post 4/30 configuration if you think that would simplify testing but would strongly recommend to use test users.

Need clarification on changes required for authentication. Are there changes required for obtaining the access token?

We currently use https://graph.facebook.com/oauth/access_token are there any changes beyond updating the url https://graph.facebook.com/v2.0/oauth/access_token required?

Any changes to parameters, permissions

No change to access tokens, or authentication parameters. However, you may want to consider the following:

- Login review. All apps must go through "Login review" to be able to continue to use specific permissions post 4/30: <https://developers.facebook.com/docs/apps/review/login>. Because your case is special we will have to work together to get you approved (but you'll still have to submit your app).
- App-scoped User IDs. People authenticating your app for the first time will be issued App-scoped User IDs with API v2.0. This means that IDs for the same user will be different between apps.

Will the response structure change?

No.

Is there documentation of private Graph API, especially /me/importcontact. How does it work? What's the update in v2.2?

This is to upload contacts to Facebook. I'll see if we have a doc for you, otherwise i can provide more information. Is this for Office365?

This endpoint should not be affected by the Graph API v1.0 deprecation in any way - you're sending us a list of contacts and we're returning the number of contacts processed.

On May 1st, will the existing valid user token in user's mailbox become invalid since our app retrieved the token using v1.0 API? Do users who use our app need to retrieve tokens again? What error code will the API return if there is any?

Access tokens remain valid and are portable across API versions.

In the meantime, if they can create a unique URL for the object that would allow them to somehow uniquely identify the user. So here is the scenario

Scenario: KP bought tickets for Jon, Patrick and Chris.

Sender Flow: KP tags Jon, Patrick and Chris and they are now notified on Facebook when the activity is posted there.

Receiver flow: Jon clicks on the URL and ends up back on TM. TM knows the name of friends tagged on this post based on the URL posted, and asks Jon if he is Jon/Chris or Patrick. Jon can then say, I am Jon, login or not and claim the seat.

Makes sense?

Interesting use case, we would like to consider this use case in the near future, based most probably on Opaque IDs that would let you map a non-app friend back to a seat/event, etc without disclosing or sharing any non-app friend data.

That said, we don't have the time to dig deep into this use case before the end of April and we would recommend that you factor the existing API restrictions into your migration efforts and then discuss about how we can support this use case once the migration is complete.

Feel free to wordsmith this as you see relevant, but certainly let them know that they are not going to be whitelisted.

Hello Jon,
Thank you very much for support.
Here is the page with interactive seat map, where each marker represents Facebook user by ID.

Below you can see common use cases:

1. When I'm going to attend the concert, I want to know, if my friends on Facebook are also going.
On the interactive seat map there is a filter, that shows seats of all Facebook users or only the seats of my friends.
Every seat on the map is associated with Facebook user id.
After upgrade we'll be unable to see all friends, only app-scoped friends.
2. When I want to tag my friend on the seat map,
I chose a friend from the full list of friends, then put a marker on the seat.
For this we need friend's id.
3. When a Facebook user opens our website, if someone had tagged him on the seat (his id was found), then we ask him to confirm/remove tag.

If you allow, I would like to ask your assistance with access_token API.
I hope we will find the way to tag all friends.

Thanks,
Lena

Hello Jon,
On interactive seat map we store user ID, associated with a seat and we need only ID.

Please take a look at response that we are getting from taggable_friends:
It returns access_token, instead of ID.

  "id": "AaKJ-QN8OIY3m-
2DHeVnc5oQZFnx_V0ptUF8XFestr3EcS1lItvAx0_xptve3DWc_vl1zP0s4RhVMOTk1EqDvzCHMkEqFRMIku
XtyXe5d9O1-Q",
  "name": "Somenome someSurname"

Is it possible to get ID?

  "name": "Somenome SomeSurname",
  "id": "100007797060798"

I suppose, we cannot get ID, because our test apps did not pass review of extended permissions
"user_friends".

Facebook app ID for example: 1553007824950655

Thank you very much for help!

Hi Elena -

Can you elaborate on how Ticketmaster's tagging system is different from Facebook tagging, and why friends' FBIDs are required to be stored in your DB to enable this feature? While I understand that there may be some complexity, it would help us understand the challenges you may be facing with the current integration using the taggable friends API.

However to reiterate, since the taggable friends API was created to prevent unnecessary exposure of user data, by principle we wouldn't expose friends FBID data via another endpoint and we should look into an alternative solution.

Thanks,
Jon

Hello Joyce and Jon,
Thank you very much for help.
This is a bit confusing, probably, but we have our custom system of "tagging", different from Facebook tagging. We "tag" friends on our interactive seat map.
We store friends ID in our DB, and now we cannot store access_token because it cannot be compared with other user_ids.
Is there any other end point, that allows to get all friends ID, not only those, that have used this particular Facebook application?

Thanks,

Hi Jon,

Our dev team is asking how to get friends' IDs that have not accepted this app? Right now, they can only get an access_token which doesn't work for us. Any ideas on how to resolve this?

Here is the response from Dev in case this is helpful:

We are still unable to get friends id, taggable_friends doesn't return id, it returns only access_token, which we cannot store in our db.

<http://stackoverflow.com/questions/23784661/facebook-getting-user-id-from-graph-api-via-tagable-friends>

From the information about taggable friends api

<https://developers.facebook.com/docs/apps/upgrading>:

"New endpoints

/me/taggable_friends: The new Taggable Friends API. In the past if you wanted to tag friends in a post, you had to get their IDs, names and then pass that information into the post to tag them.

With this new API you get a set of tokens that identify friends along with their names and pictures. Using this, it's easy to build a custom tagging interface from your app. If you use this feature, your app will have to go through review before it can tag people in posts or photos.

Please note that the tokens returned through this API are not the same as the IDs returned via /me/friends."

Also we found a petition <https://www.change.org/p/simon-cross-allow-developers-to-access-the-list-of-friends-from-users-of-their-apps?lang=en-US>

This is all that we have for now.

Looking forward for an answer from facebook team.

Thanks!

1. If a user gives permissions to use user_friends, they would be able to tag friends that have not yet accepted the TM app permissions, correct?

2. Today we ask for access to friend list (see attached). Would current app users still need to accept the user_friends permission?

Hi Joyce -

Thanks for your email. Please see my responses below:

1) You could use the Taggable friends API for this use case, but the user will need to give permission to use user_friends. Our recommendation is for you to request this permission in context again if you want to enable this feature for people that have declined user_friends earlier. Since <5% of the users decline access to this permission, re-requesting user_friends permission shouldn't be a concern.

2) I'm confirming that FB IDs acquired before their migration won't be updated to App Scoped IDs.

Please let me know if you have any questions!

Subject: API upgrade questions

Hi Jon,

We're in the process of upgrading all of our Ticketmaster apps to Graph API v2.2 and our dev team came across some possible limitations. Here are the questions they have asked me to reach out about.

1. We are trying to retrieve friends IDs who have not accepted user_friends permissions. The reason we need to do this is because we have functionality that allows users to tag FB friends in seats once they have purchased tickets. Limiting to only friends who have accepted the app is not a good user experience for the ticket purchaser. Is there a way to get all friends via taggable_friends or any other endpoint?
2. We store user_id in our database. Can you confirm that a user id that has logged in with this app before we upgraded to v2.2 will not change to the app_scoped_user_id and we won't lose our information?

I'm also attaching screenshots of our tagging flow so that you can better understand what I'm asking in #1.

Once I have purchased tickets and land on our purchase confirmation page, I am prompted to RSVP to the event:

After clicking Attending, I can tag any of my Facebook friends (regardless of whether they have accepted the Ticketmaster App permissions):

Restaurants, bars and night clubs are places where most people on Facebook check-in and is really important for us to ensure we have good coverage.

Assuming this is of interest to you, we would like to confirm the coverage and the richness of your data for London, NYC and San Francisco. Could you please complete the attached spreadsheet for each of the named cities? In addition it would be very helpful, if you could also give us access to sample data (all restaurants in a neighborhood).

Finally, we would like to understand the working model for licensing your data, so any information you can provide here would be very helpful.

Looking forward to working with you,
kp

As promised, please find attached the docs for Hashed Friends API that can be used for social ranking.

Let us know if this would be of interest for you, as we will need to sign an agreement that would allow you access to this API.

In the meantime, let's please defer any convo on the API that could return signals about the authenticity of the account post f8.

Any questions, let us know.

Thanks KP,

Just trying to understand this better from the technical side of things.

If I understand correctly under the covers app scoped user ids can be still connected to actual FB user ids. App scoped user ids are there to prevent leaking user ids from one app to another. However, FB still can figure out what actual user id corresponds to an app scoped id (and figure out user profile creation date).

Is my understanding wrong? Or is it technically infeasible or otherwise not considered as a option? If so why?

Hi Kp,

Yes, that is correct. As our hosts invite guests to stay at their home, building trust is of utmost importance to us. A central piece in this context is our product "Verified Identity", where users verify a piece of their online and offline identity.

A Facebook profile without a creation date is losing one of the best signals to evaluate the authenticity. While the number of friends is definitely one of the signals we evaluate, it's much easier to create for a fake account with a profile picture of a pretty girl or so.

Best regards,
Roman

Hello Roman,

I suspect you use the creation date as a signal for authenticity of the account; please correct me if I am wrong.

We are aware this is a useful signal for a few of our partners and are working on getting a solution in place that will address this.

However, until then, the only signal that you can use that comes from free is the number of friends a user has. The reason creation day can't be used as a signal any more is related to the fact we use app scoped ID that are not generated randomly and don't reflect the date the account was created.

Hi Francesca,

This is really unfortunate to hear, as it's probably the most successful signal right now to verify a Facebook profile.

Also, the mutual friends API doesn't seem to be fulfilling our needs. Imagine we want to surface hosts in London, that you have a social connection with. We are obviously not able to query this API endpoint for every host in London with your access token individually.

I would assume this is a common scenario for other companies as well. I remember, when I worked at Bing, we had the same scenario as well. How do other companies solve this?

I've included the information on the mutual friends api below. This will be important to roll out as your currently ask for this permission and it will not work with the new version of login how you are doing it. I've gone ahead and proactively whitelisted your app.

1/ API

Endpoint: graph.facebook.com/v2.2/USER_B_ID?fields=name,id,context.fields\(all_mutual_friends\)&access_token=USER_A_TOKEN&access_token=USER_A_TOKEN) – where both user A and B must be app users

Note that this API is available in v2.0, v2.1 and v2.2, but not v1.0. By default it returns a total count, and up to 5 mutual friends. If you want more mutual friends, you can specify a limit param:
...?fields=name,id,context.fields(all_mutual_friends.limit(200))

2/ Sample response:

NOTE: we only return the ID field if the mutual friend is an app user. We return a token in all cases. The token will eventually be usable to redirect the user to the FB profile for that person i.e. www.facebook.com/<TOKEN> but that's not done yet.

Hi All,

We've spent some more time working through our upgrade path, and have a bunch more questions. It might make sense to actually meet on this, but here are the questions:

1. Since we will be whitelisted for getting all friends, not just connected friends, when user A connects for the first time, who was previously seen in the friend list of a connected friend B, should we assume in a subsequent request for the friend list for user B, friend A's id will change from an old id to an app scoped id?
2. We currently use the "installed" permission to determine which friends are connected. If we're whitelisted to get all friends, will this be a different API than the current friend API? If so, we can just make two calls, one to each API, and compare to determine which friends are connected and which aren't. If not, will we be able to get the installed flag, or do we need to look it up on our side?
3. In order to support a variety of image sizes, driven by a plurality of device requirements, we construct profile image urls using user ids and image size parameters. We do this so that we don't have to store 10s of image urls per user, and so we don't have to update our DB when a new image size is needed. Will there be any issues with constructing these urls, some of which will be using global ids (for non connected friends or old users) and some of which will be using app scoped ids?
4. We are currently whitelisted for certain graph API calls. Will the transition from global user ids to app scoped user ids affect these APIs or can we just assume that they will work?

1. Graph Get Permanent Access Token ("oauth/access_token") - used by connect flow
2. API Grant Permissions ("method/auth.grantExtendedPermission") - used by signup flows for devices that don't have a permissions dialog (TV UIs, etc.)
3. API login ("method/auth.login") - used by connect and sign up flows.
4. Graph post message ("<TO_USER>/threads") - used for 1-1 recommendations.
5. Graph Ordered Friends ("me/orderedfriends") - used by connect/refresh flows.

5. What is the impact of upgrade on realtime updates? Specifically, will we get live updates for "user_friends" permission?
6. Do UI changes have to be coupled with backend? In particular, what happens if our website switches to using v2.0 SDK but backend has not, would connect still work?
7. Is there any change to where an app token can be used instead of a user token?

Thanks,

John

Hi John,

You are correct, but to clarify: The IDs will stay the same from the point of the initial "contact" with the API, and with all future versions. You don't have to migrate all at once, you can make 1.0 calls with a 2.x ID. Maybe it will be easier to demonstrate graphically with my poor Excel skills:

<F32A309E-8B62-4D1D-B568-F9B4F1EB37E8.png>

Connects/disconnects don't matter here, if you installed Netflix with 1.0, you'll get the 1.0 IDs even if the user goes to their FB app settings, deletes the app, and reinstalls/authenticates with 2.x.

Hope I'm covering your main question here; if not, happy to discuss further.

Subject: Graph API 2.0 Migration

Happy new year, FB folks,

We've been looking at what we have to do, server side, to upgrade to Graph 2.0. We have various database tables that are either keyed off or contain FB user ids, so the biggest risk for us is if these ids can ever change, for a given user. From the docs, we found the following statement:

"No matter what version they originally used to sign up for your app, the ID will remain the same for people who have already logged into your app. This change is backwards-compatible for anyone who has logged into your app at any point in the past."

Does this mean that, regardless of a user's connect behavior (i.e sequence of connects/disconnects that may occur before, during, or after the Graph 2.0 migration), the first time Netflix sees a given id for a user, it is always valid to use this id when making calls to Graph 2.0 APIs (before, during, and after migration), and Netflix will always see this same id in friend lists of the user's friends (before, during, and after migration)?

Thanks,

John

PRIVATE EXTENDED API ADDENDUM

This Private Extended API Addendum (this "Addendum"), dated as of March 16, 2015 (the "Effective Date"), is made and entered into by and between Facebook, Inc., a Delaware corporation and its affiliates ("FB"), and Nuance Communications, Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Developer"). FB and Developer are sometimes referred to in this Addendum individually as a "Party" and collectively as the "Parties". FB and Developer hereby agree as follows:

A. FB and Developer are parties to FB's standard online Statement of Rights and Responsibilities (as modified by this Addendum, the "Agreement") which sets forth the terms and conditions for Developer's use of the Platform (as defined in the SRR). Capitalized terms not defined in this Addendum or its exhibits have the meanings given to them in the SRR.

B. Developer wishes to use and access the Private Extended APIs in connection with its use of the Platform and agrees to the additional requirements herein.

Developer and FB hereby agree as follows:

1. Developer Application Development and Distribution.

a. Development of the Developer Application. Subject to the terms of the Agreement, Developer will develop one or more Developer Applications as specified in one or more mutually executed documents in the form attached to this Addendum as Exhibit B (each a "Developer Application Submission Form"). Developer will ensure that all Developer Applications are in compliance with the terms of the Agreement and the SRR, including the Platform Policies and Private Extended API Guidelines.

b. Developer Application Certification. Developer will: (i) at least thirty days prior to any public availability or launch of a Developer Application make such Developer Application available (along with all necessary hardware or software) to FB for FB's certification and approval of the Developer Application in FB's sole discretion (a "Developer Application Certification") (for the avoidance of doubt, Developer is solely responsible for complying with this Agreement and the SRR notwithstanding any such certification or approval); (ii) periodically provide FB with Developer Application development progress updates; and (iii) promptly provide to FB upon its reasonable request from time to time, access to the latest development version of the Developer Application.

c. Distribution. Upon successfully completing the Developer Application Certification, Developer will use commercially reasonable efforts to distribute and provide access to the Developer Application to Facebook Users in accordance with the distribution and access plan described in Developer Application Submission Form (the "Distribution and Access Plan"). Unless and until FB issues a Developer Application Certification for a particular Developer Application, Developer will not distribute or otherwise make available such Developer Application to the public. Developer will provide written confirmation to FB of the commencement of such distribution or access.

2. SRR and Policies. Developer agrees that any distribution of a Developer Application will be subject to an appropriate end user license agreement or similar terms and conditions which (i) disclaim all liability on behalf of FB and (ii) do not contain any language which would cause such terms to supersede or modify in any way the SRR, privacy policies or other terms applicable to all Facebook Users.

3. User Data. Developer agrees that any use of Facebook User Data shall be subject to the SRR and the additional restrictions set forth below (which for the avoidance of doubt, do not limit the SRR):

a. Notice. Developer must prominently display to users a notice that Developer (and not FB) is making the application available to end users and make sure that the user has the opportunity to review Developer's privacy policy. Developer shall submit such notice to FB for FB's review and approval (in FB's sole discretion) as part of the Developer Application Certification Process.

b. Purpose of Use. Developer will only use the Facebook User Data it receives in connection with an approved Developer Application for the purpose of providing such application to the Facebook User.

c. Restrictions on Use. Developer will not use, display, or share Facebook User Data in a manner inconsistent with Facebook's privacy policy or the applicable Facebook User's privacy settings.

d. No Transfer. Developer will not transfer to any third party (other than its agents and contractors for the sole purpose of providing services to Developer hereunder) any Facebook User Data.

e. Deletion. Developer will delete Facebook User Data upon termination of this Addendum or the Agreement, or if requested to do so by FB in writing.

f. Safeguard. Developer warrants and represents that Developer will establish and maintain diligent safeguards that are compliant with applicable data privacy laws, and that protect against the destruction, loss, disclosure or alteration of Confidential Information, including Facebook User Data, in the possession of Developer or to which Developer may have access.

4. Access to the Private Extended APIs. Subject to the terms of the Agreement, FB may, in its sole discretion, make specific Private Extended APIs available to Developer for use in connection with Developer Applications. This permissions won't be available to anyone post 04.30, so inevitably all similar integrations will be subject to the same deprecations/restrictions.

Is it possible for you to assure us that no other in-car systems are exempt from this restriction? I want to make sure I have all of the facts when we explain this issue to our OEM.

Thanks,

Hello Keith,

Trust me when I say this, but this is not the first time, I have a similar conversation with a partner of an in-car integration.... We have considered all those points below, but ultimately we think the experience of the in-car integrations Vs what people can experience using the main FB app is sub-optimal.

For that reason, we have decided to include in-car head units, in the list of platforms we won't be supporting with access to the newsfeeds any longer. Please note, people should not use the FB apps while driving, this is a given, but at the same time, we want them to get the full experience when they are legally able to do so.

Best,

kp

KP,

I'm sorry to be so insistent, but I don't agree with this reasoning.

1/ FB apps provide a better user experience overall

I would agree with this if we're only talking about the UX on the phone. Users, by law, aren't supposed to be using their phones while driving, so the UX while driving is zero. Our solution allows them to continue using FB safely while driving.

2/ FB adds features on the mobile apps every month – the release cycle of in-car integrations is way slower than that
Our solution utilizes the cloud, so we can update our Head Unit Platform (HUP) software whenever necessary and do so frequently. We don't rely on HU manufacturers, or car makers, to update the software we need when changes need to be made whether these are new features or bug fixes.

So, as you can see, we feel that we're providing a safe solution for Facebook users while driving. I would appreciate an opportunity to speak with you or the Automotive team so we can explain our reasoning. Please let me know if this is possible.

Thanks,
Keith

Hello Keith,

I appreciate your feedback, but we have made a decision not to support rendering of newsfeed inside in-car head units and thus we won't be approving those integrations. A few reasons below:

1/ FB apps provide a better user experience overall

2/ FB adds features on the mobile apps every month – the release cycle of in-car integrations is way slower than that

So all in all, read_stream will only be approved for FB branded apps for platforms we don't have the resources to build the native apps on our own (Windows, Blackberry, etc).

Existing apps based on the v1 of the API will also need to go through Login review and as such read_stream will not be approved, so we are actively working with partners to migrate them to different solutions.

I hope this makes sense,
kp

KP,

I'm confused about why `read_stream` wouldn't be approved. The purpose of our app is to reduce the use of the phone while driving to avoid driver distraction. If a user's Facebook feed is important to them, we think it would be better to display or use TTS to read the feed from the car's head unit rather than have them fumble with their phone while driving. As far as I know, there is no other way for them to access their Facebook account while in their car. Millions of Nissan drivers are doing this today with our app (based on v1.0 APIs) and Facebook and we believe they will want to continue doing so. Without the News Feed, there doesn't seem much utility for our users and we will have to recommend to our OEM that this app would be seriously degraded.

As for photos, we were considering asking the user to approve the Photos permission, but we've decided that our use of photos is in-coming rather than out-going. As long as our user's friends have included them in sharing their photos we would be able to display them in News Feed updates. This goes away if `read_stream` is not approved however.

I'm really concerned that the new rules will prevent us from supporting Facebook for our OEM customers. It is a highly desirable application but not if we are limited to Messages and Events.

Hello Keith

As per my previous note, `read_stream` won't be approved for an app like yours.

`Read_mailbox` could be because eventually we may allow in car-apps with voice dictation to let people to reply to messages, but until then you can request for `read_mailbox` if you want to render messages on the screen.

No issue with `user_events`.

Not sure about the photos that you mentioned on the previous email... Can you please clarify?

When people go through Login and x-out from the requested permissions, the API will return an error. You can find more info here on how to handle missing permissions:

<https://developers.facebook.com/docs/facebook-login/permissions/v2.2#handling>

I would advice you to go ahead and submit for review, for everything listed below with the exception of `read_stream`. With that in mind I would not submit screenshots where you render the newsfeed or interactions of people with their friends stories.

I hope this helps,
kp

KP,

We have not submitted our app for review yet as we want to make sure we are capturing the correct screens for the permissions we need. The purpose of our app is to allow the user to view, or listen to via TTS, the most important Facebook information to them without having to use their smartphone while driving. Focusing on driver safety, we use TTS to listen to the News Feed, preset comments, and disable the Head Unit keyboard when the vehicle is in motion. In one of your last emails you had mentioned that read_stream might be approved if we were using TTS rather than just visual text. We're not aware of any other Facebook in-car solutions, but our OEM customers feel this app is very important to their customers.

The permissions we're asking users to approve are:

- read_stream – Lets driver listen to their News Feed updates
- read_mailbox – Lets driver listen to their Messages
- user_events – Presents upcoming Events

The status that I included in my previous mail was regarding expected error scenarios when permissions were either On or Off. We think we may have misinterpreted the information on your developer site as our app is different from a typical smartphone app.

I've included some screenshots that we're planning to include with our submittal. Please let me know if you have any questions about this or anything else.

Thanks,
Keith

I am afraid I have hard time to follow what's going on here.

Could you please:

- 1/ List the permissions you are requesting from the users?
- 2/ Confirm you have gone through Login review?

From the below it seems that you are requesting read_stream and user_events... which is not what you have originally suggested a few emails back.

Thanks a lot,

Hi KP,

It's taken some time but we believe we're close to submitting our app for review. We do have some questions and I'm hoping you can direct me to the right resource to get some answers. It may be that we're just misunderstanding how the permissions are to be used, but the following comes from one of our developers who is commenting on the behavior we see in our testing. Choreo is our cloud app that uses the smartphone as the conduit to the car's head-unit.

Please let me know what you think,

Thanks,
Keith

Brief Summary of API Expectation

- Our expectation is that when we request content which the user has turned off, we will get a 31509 error code, and will then be able to show the user a popup.

Actual Implementation

- Messages
 - Works. We receive the error code, and we show the popup.
- Events
 - Instead of receiving the error code, we receive an empty response. We can't use that as a determining factor for showing the popup, because the user may just have zero events.
- News Feed
 - All feed data still shows up even when it is turned off. There is nothing in the response to indicate that the permission for this feature has been denied by the user.
- Photos
 - All photos still show up even when they are turned off. There is nothing in the response to indicate that the permission for this feature has been denied by the user.

Possible Solutions?

- Choreo has filed tickets for these issues with Facebook. Currently they are saying, look at the ICD - it's implemented correctly.
- We will just have to live with the following behaviour until we get a resolution from Facebook.
 - Events will show empty list
 - News feed will still show up

- Photos will still show up

Access to read_mailbox provided the users can reply via VR would be approved then.

Let me know when you go ahead with your submission and I will make a note to the team that does the Login review.

Please ensure when you are about to submit that you provide screenshots for every place where those permissions are in use. If you are also considering asking for publishing permissions, please provide screenshots of how stories shared through your app will show up on Facebook.

KP,

Yes, Voice Recognition is supported in most modern head-units today and our app supports VR for responding to texts, messages, email, etc. As I said, we follow strict driver distraction rules, which OEMs require, so we utilize TTS and VR whenever possible. It is possible that some HU's won't support VR or TTS, but those are on the lower-end.

KP,

So, we won't be able to display a user's messages from others on the HU? We are trying to limit the functions to those that don't cause driver distraction, and on most HU's, messages user TTS technology. Our goal is to limit the need for the driver to access their phone while driving. I'm concerned that we may not have a very useful FB tool if we can only display News, Status, Events, and Check-ins.

Here is an example of the Message and Message Details HU screens today. The user can tap the "right arrow" button to start the TTS feature.

We will plan on providing the screen-shots for the other permissions we need, but please let me know if you think we can make a case for Messages as well.

Thanks,
Keith

Hi KP,

Thanks for getting back to me. I will forward your responses on to our development team. As for permissions, in addition to public_profile, email and user_friends, we will ask for these:

user_checkins
read_mailbox
uuser_photos

Our understanding of the user_friends permission is that it will only return those friends who use Facebook and our application. Since our app is used only by owners of late-model Nissan and Infiniti vehicles, we believe the user base will be too small to make this feature useful. We will drop the "Display Friends" and "Nearby Friends" features we currently have and will focus on the features above.

Please let me know if you think sending screen-shots of these features will be sufficient when we ask to have our app reviewed.

Thanks again for your help.

Hi Bryan,

Thank you for offering to help us find the right resource to answer our questions.

1. Our Facebook app is deployed in vehicles world-wide in production today and we integrate with unversioned graph api of Facebook. We would like to upgrade our apps to V2.0 one country at a time. In that context, will Facebook pose any limitations on talking to multiple versions of graph API until all the users have upgraded to V2.0?

{kp} Not really. It's up to you to change the end points at your own convenience, considering the restrictions/content available in the V2 of the API.

2. Do access tokens obtained through unversioned API work with V2.0 of graph API? As unversioned api will be deprecated on Apr 30,2015, will the tokens that are valid beyond Apr 30,2015 work with V2.0 after Apr 30,2015?

{kp} I believe the answer is yes here, as access tokens are not API dependent.

3. Is there any limitation on tokens, generated through a specific version, have to be used only with that version of graph api?

{kp} Same as above, I don't think this is tied to a version of the API, but I can double check.

4. We noticed new error codes were introduced in V2.0 of graph api and we didn't find any information online regarding the codes. Is there any documentation that provides this information?

{kp} We are constantly updating our docs with the error codes, best to search developers.facebook.com with the specific error code you are getting.

5. We understand that our application will need to be reviewed by Facebook due to the permissions we're asking of the end-user. As our application sends Facebook information to a vehicle's head-unit, testing our app without a head-unit is not possible. We can offer screen-shots of the head-unit display for each element which requires a permission if that's acceptable. Otherwise, we will need to make other arrangements.

{kp} Can we please confirm what kind of permissions you ask for? Provide screenshots would suffice for our review team, but please ensure those are all documented and screenshots are attached. If you can tell me which permissions you are asking for, I can give you an idea of which ones may or may not be approved.

Please let me know if any of these are unclear and I will get a clarification.

Thanks again for your help and we look forward to the response.

Steve,

Thanks for getting back to me. Airbiquity supports about 5M cars right now, globally, for OEMs like Nissan, Chrysler, Renault, etc. We support FB now in our solution but we're still using the v1.0 APIs. We're going to migrate to v2.0/2.1/2.2 but we have some technical questions that we can't get sufficient answers to on the forums. Our previous contacts there are no longer with the company so it would be helpful to know who we can contact. I don't anticipate we would need much more than a few email exchanges to get the answers we need.

I really appreciate your offer to help and I hope you are doing well.

Cheers,
Keith

Hello All,

I hope I am not missing something here, but the attached addendums (only one is fully executed btw), do not specify access to any private APIs in particular.

The latter may be specified in the original contract which we have not been able to locate on our end and I guess they have not either.

@Eddie, any chance we can go back and ask again?

Is it possible to ask them to send us the contract they are referring to as I think our copy may have been misplaced?

Yeah, pulling the contract would be good.

I'm cool with them keeping auth.login as they already have it – removing it would be a distraction at this stage.

Can we see what perms they're using? Obvs they may be affected if they're using friends_photos.

Lastly, we need to get them Login Reviewed ASAP.

Hi all – see blow for a question from a developer about their use of auth.login.

Their scenario is a Walgreens photo kiosk with FB Login. Sounds like they are covered by a contract.

He's asking if anything will break with the migration – my sense is “no”, but wanted to make sure before I respond.

Hello Eddie,

I'm still trying to get an official answer if you have a few seconds to read my previous email. Thank you for your time.

I hope you're doing well. I'm following up to see if I could get an answer regarding the private login API. Thank you for your time and help.

I work for DNP developing a printing solution that has been deployed to one of the largest pharmacy chains in the US. In 2011 I went to the Facebook Open Graph Technology Day in Austin, TX and met Aryeh Selekman. Aryeh helped us gain access to the private API for logging into facebook so customers can download and print their Facebook photos from our kiosk software. The private API made sense because these systems don't have keyboards attached and an open browser window is a security risk. I'm trying to understand the future of this API as FB moves forward with oauth 2.0 and the latest graph API. Does Facebook have plans to shut down this private login method?

Wonderful thank you, and I'll wait to hear more tomorrow!

Grace Molnar: Feb 11, 2014 12:44am

I'm waiting for some final input from PR in terms of Lulu (it may color our reply to Chicklopedia but unlikely) so let's wait a little longer. I'll circle back tomorrow morning regardless. In the meantime, I would edit the reply (hold on sending though) by removing the word "unfortunately":

Dear Eduardo

Thank you again for your prompt response, and for clarification of your opt-out procedures. To clarify, Facebook's Community Standards prohibit the rating or ranking of individuals without their consent regardless of geographic location. This means that in order to be compliant with Section III.A.1 of Facebook's Platform Policies Chicklopedia must obtain opt-in consent from all individuals who are rated or ranked within the app, regardless of region of the app or of the user. Again, you have discretion as to how you address this issue, and can make the necessary changes to ensure your app provides an opt-in experience, or you can stop using data obtained from Facebook within the context of your app.

Thank you for highlighting other apps within the same use genre as Chicklopedia though we cannot discuss enforcement of other applications. I hope this provides further clarification of the issues.

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 11, 2014 12:39am

Update on the apps referred to by the dev: LuluTubby has 117 MAP and is not on the Apple or Google app stores. The app was up at some point but is currently nonfunctional. The Clube de Bolinha app is not on pops or any app stores whatsoever and the link the dev provided to this app is broken, so this app is similarly nonfunctional. While there are likely other date-rating apps in existence the dev could cite to, two of the three referenced in the dev's last messaging are nonfunctional apps (the other being Lulu).

Are there any thoughts on my suggested response to the dev? It would be great to be able to follow up soon!

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 10, 2014 5:44am

Yes, the dev is citing the app's compliance with regional legal regulation, whereas the issue is that they are violating Community Standards irrespective of region. This is their confusion. I tried to clarify the issue by restating the violation of community standards and noting that they are applied irrespective of geographic region, though can be more explicit if needed.

As I understand it, not all similar apps will currently have friends.get restrictions applied as we are handling these cases on a reactive basis, rather than performing a sweep of the ecosystem, though all similar app violations that we encounter will be enforced in the same way. I shall look into the LuluTubby and Clube de Bolinha apps referenced by the dev and enforce as needed. It is my understanding that ROW Lulu is still in the 'warning' period before friends.get restriction is applied.

Grace Molnar: Feb 10, 2014 4:18am

While places such as Brazil have legal complexities, our decision here, and with similar apps, is based on the fact that all users of the app must have signed up with the app in order to be rated correct? We're not making our decision solely on law. I assume that means the friends.get restriction stands. Please confirm that Lulu (outside of Brazil) and similar apps have the same restrictions as we placed on Chicklopedia.

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 10, 2014 3:59am

Hi All,

The Chicklopedia dev has provided a lengthy response which I have included at the end of this update, but which may be summarized as:

- Asserting the application complies with regional legislation by only allowing rating and ranking of users in US and Canada
- Pointing to comparable apps (Lulu, LuluTubby, Club de Bolinha) to suggest Chicklopedia is in compliance if enforcement has not been taken on such apps

I have crafted the following language though would appreciate any suggested edits to wording, particularly in addressing the dev's strong requests that we address the continued existence of comparable apps (such as Lulu).

Dear Eduardo,

Thank you again for your prompt response, and for clarification of your opt-out procedures. To clarify, Facebook's Community Standards prohibit the rating or ranking of individuals without their consent regardless of geographic location. This means that in order to be compliant with Section III.A.1 of Facebook's Platform Policies Chicklopedia must obtain opt-in consent from all individuals who are rated or ranked within the app, regardless of region of the app or of the user. Again, you have discretion as to how you address this issue, and can make the necessary changes to ensure your app provides an opt-in experience, or you can stop using data obtained from Facebook within the context of your app.

Thank you for highlighting other apps within the same use genre as Chicklopedia though unfortunately we cannot discuss enforcement of other applications. I hope this provides further clarification of the issues.

"Dear Linden and the Platform Policy Team,

Regarding the prohibition of rating/ranking individuals without consent. We have taken every precaution ensured that our App Chicklopedia is in line with regional legislation, Facebook's Community Standards, as well as being consistent with several existing Facebook Apps (all with enormous user bases). These are gender-specific Apps that allow the rating and reviewing of members of the opposite sex. Specifically, these are:

Lulu:
https://www.facebook.com/appcenter/lulu_app?fb_source=search&fbid=1101&fref=ts

LuluTubby
https://www.facebook.com/appcenter/lulutubby?fb_source=search&fbid=1101&fref=ts

Clube De Bolinha
https://www.facebook.com/appcenter/appclubedobolinha?fb_source=search&fbid=1101&fref=ts

Lulu has over 1 million users in the US alone, Clube De Bolinha has approximately 500,000 in Brazil.

The requirement for Opt-in consent has regional basis, although individuals must universally be allowed to opt-out. We studied the regional legislation and for this reason we only allow the use of Chicklopedia in the US and Canada where opt-in consent is not required. (Specific Law).

To address the Opt-in requirement, we enforce this through:
1) Our EULA, which states that clearly that:

"Territory: You may not be allowed to use the Chicklopedia Application in territories where offering or using such services is forbidden by law. By agreeing to these Terms, You have explicitly agreed that You have verified in Your own territory if the offering and use of the Chicklopedia Application is legal."

2) The regions that the Google Play Store permits users to install from and the Google Play Store's respective terms and conditions.

3) Our within-App permissions that check the location of users and grant them permission to use the App only if they are within the US or Canada. This filter is not used in any of the above Applications.

As noted, have been careful to ensure that our enforcement of use in these territories is significantly more comprehensive than the equivalent Apps we have listed. However, if there are any specific differences that you note between Chicklopedia and these Apps we will be happy to make adjustments.

We honestly do not see how the referred apps have solved the issue that you point out in your email. We would like to suggest to please specify if you are saying that Lulu, Lulu Tubby and Clube de Bolinha are not using data generated or collected by facebook as base or inspiration for ratings of people who did not have the chance to opt in, thus making it, in principle, not compliant with your community standards.

We would like, if possible, a clear explanation of why the aforementioned apps are compliant with facebook's community standards and we are not. We kindly ask for such an explanation from your side in writing

In order to make sure there is perfect understanding, we would like to put our Legal Team directly into contact with the responsible of Facebook legal department concerning Facebook's community standards, if possible. We are totally available for a phone conference if you deem it suitable.

Furthermore, we also outline two simple methods to Opt-out in these territories in our EULA:

*Changing or Deleting Your Information: Because Chicklopedia is based on the Facebook Platform, You may change Your Information by accessing Your Facebook account. You may terminate your Chicklopedia account, or the use of your Facebook Profile within the Chicklopedia App by either:

- 1) E-mailing a clear request to Admin@Chicklopedia.com asking to be removed with a confirmation of the removal to be sent to Your email, Or,
- 2) Logging in with <http://www.chicklopedia.com/> and choosing the option to remove your profile and follow all steps until confirmation of the removal is sent to Your email.

If You terminate Your Chicklopedia account we will delete personal information about You within a reasonable period of time after termination, except for that portion of information which may be needed or appropriate for legal compliance purposes."

Our website allows the deletion of user profiles in two simple steps, 1) Logging in to a clear "Girls Login" menu item 2) Deletion of the Profile. We also allow users to view all data associated with the use of their profile and ensure that the process of deletion is significantly simpler than all equivalent Apps.

Finally, we have also been careful to adjust our EULA to ensure that Facebook bears no responsibility for User Generated Content within the App and that all users must agree to its Community Standards.

*Responsibility for Content: Chicklopedia is responsible for all content of and within your application, including advertisements, user-generated content, and any content hosted, streamed or otherwise delivered to users by third parties. To clear all possible doubts, THIS CONTENT IS NOT PROVIDED BY FACEBOOK.

By previewing, using or downloading Chicklopedia You agree that You are responsible in the exact same amount as described in the paragraph above and agree that THIS CONTENT IS NOT PROVIDED BY FACEBOOK.

Facebook Community Standards: Chicklopedia complies with the Facebook Community Standards and You, by previewing, using or downloading Chicklopedia You agree to comply with the Facebook Community Standards in the exact same conditions."

As outlined, our legal team has been explicit in making both the terms and use of Chicklopedia consistent with all relevant policies. We both enforce this more strictly than equivalent Apps, have a more limited use of information, and a significantly simpler method to Opt-out. Given this, we apologise if there was a misunderstanding or miscommunication by us of either our EULA, the territories in which we operate, or our functionality.

We would greatly appreciate it if you could outline the concise and exact details as to what we can do to ensure that the application is in compliance to meet the same standards as the aforementioned Applications. We will gladly address and solve these in the shortest time possible.

Kind regards,

Chicklopedia"

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 8, 2014 12:08am

Wonderful, thank you. The messaging look great to me and I have sent to the dev.

Allison Hendrix: Feb 7, 2014 11:07pm

Hi Brie - Thank you for being on top of this and for drafting a proposed response. I have made a few minor revisions, and propose we respond with the below. Don't hesitate to propose edits, or let me know if you have any questions. Thank you! - Ali

Dear Eduardo,

Thank you for your prompt response, and for your effort in ensuring compliance with our policies. Section III.A.1 requires compliance with Facebook's Community Standards, which prohibit the rating or ranking of an individual without that individual's consent. In order to bring the Chicklopedia app into compliance with our policies, please ensure that you obtain opt-in consent from all individuals who are rated or ranked within the app. For example, if an individual does not use the Chicklopedia app, then people who use the app should not be able to rate this person using data obtained from us. Please note you have discretion with respect to how you address this issue. For example, you can make the necessary changes to ensure your app provides an opt-in experience, or you can stop using data obtained from Facebook within the context of your app.

I hope this helps to clarify the issue and I appreciate your cooperation.

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 7, 2014 6:18pm

Hi All, In case my earlier wording wasn't clear I will await confirmation from you (to ensure all is well in case of a PR blowup) before sending the following messaging:

Dear Eduardo,

Thank you for your prompt response, and for your efforts. Unfortunately our community standards prohibit the rating or ranking of an individual without that individual's consent. In order to come into compliance with our policies you will need to obtain opt-in consent from all individuals who are rated or ranked within the Chicklopedia app. To be clear, this means that any person rated or ranked within the app who is not an app user themselves must give consent to be rated by app users.

I hope this helps to clarify the issue and I appreciate your cooperation.

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 7, 2014 3:49am

Hi All,

The developer has responded with the following:

"Dear Facebook,

Our App Chicklopedia was temporarily suspended. We apologise for this and our company Lawyer made sure to fix it immediately as soon as you made us aware. We'd greatly appreciate it if we could be reinstated as soon as possible because we're in the launch phase of our marketing plan and are wasting a significant amount of our marketing budget each hour the App is offline.

Our Lawyer has addressed the following issue as clearly as possible:

"FPP III.A.1: Responsibility for content: You are responsible for all content of and within your application, including advertisements, user-generated content, and any content hosted, streamed or otherwise delivered to users by third parties. You must make it clear that this content is not provided by Facebook. You must also comply with the Facebook Community Standards."

The EULA has been re-written include this paragraph, clearly stating that user-generated content is solely our responsibility:

"Responsibility for Content: Chicklopedia is responsible for all content of and within your application, including advertisements, user-generated content, and any content hosted, streamed or otherwise delivered to users by third parties. To clear all possible doubts, THIS CONTENT IS NOT PROVIDED BY FACEBOOK."

By previewing, using or downloading Chicklopedia You agree that You are responsible in the exact same amount as described in the paragraph above and agree that THIS CONTENT IS NOT PROVIDED BY FACEBOOK.

Facebook Community Standards: Chicklopedia complies with the Facebook Community Standards and You, by previewing, using or downloading Chicklopedia You agree to comply with the Facebook Community Standards in the exact same conditions.

Acknowledgement and Acceptance: By previewing, using or downloading Chicklopedia You agree that You have read, understood, and accepted the Terms of this EULA as a condition to the license of the Chicklopedia Application ("License"). Neither Facebook, The Google Play or Apple Store nor any of its subsidiaries are a party to this EULA and CHICKLOPEDIA LTD as the Licensor is solely responsible for Chicklopedia. Finally, by accepting these Terms, You hereby waive any rights or requirements in any jurisdiction which requires an original (non-electronic) signature or delivery or retention of non-electronic records, to the extent permitted under applicable mandatory law.*"

Secondly, we changed 7 other sections of the EULA to specify that Facebook is never responsible for any content within the App. E.g.

YOU SPECIFICALLY ACKNOWLEDGE THAT NEITHER CHICKLOPEDIA LTD.INC. NOR FACEBOOK, THE GOOGLE PLAY OR APPLE STORE SHALL BE LIABLE FOR USER GENERATED CONTENT OR TRANSMISSIONS OR THE DEFAMATORY, OFFENSIVE, OR ILLEGAL CONDUCT OF ANY THIRD PARTY AND THAT THE RISK OF HARM OR DAMAGE FROM THE FOREGOING RESTS ENTIRELY WITH YOU. YOUR USE OF THE CHICKLOPEDIA APPLICATION YOUR ONLY RIGHT OR REMEDY WITH RESPECT TO ANY PROBLEMS OR DISSATISFACTION WITH THE

CHICKLOPEDIA IS TO DEINSTALL AND CEASE ITS USE. In the event of a damage claim, the maximum amount of damages which CHICKLOPEDIA LTD. shall be liable for shall NOT exceed the value paid for the License."*

I plan to respond to the tps with the following messaging:

Dear Eduardo,

Thank you for your prompt response, and for your efforts. Unfortunately our community standards prohibit the rating or ranking of an individual without that individual's consent. In order to come into compliance with our policies you will need to obtain opt-in consent from all individuals who are rated or ranked within the Chicklopedia app. To be clear, this means that any person rated or ranked within the app who is not an app user themselves must give consent to be rated by app users.

I hope this helps to clarify the issue and I appreciate your cooperation.

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 6, 2014 10:42pm

Chicklopedia has been disabled. I will close this task for now and reopen upon any response or further updates.

Thank you all for your strong insights and support.
Brie

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 6, 2014 6:23pm

Hi All, No response from Chicklopedia and the 48 hour warning window has now passed. Our III.A.1 enforcement rubric suggests disabling apps for which >5% total app content violates Community Standards. As rating users without their consent is a primary function of the app it seems that far more than 5% of the app violates the Standards. I will disable shortly.

Brie

Brie Noel Taylor: Feb 3, 2014 11:24pm

Hi All,

Thank you for this. For clarification, we give III.A.1 violators 48 hours as standard. I have reached out to the dev offering the 48 hour window (tps 190668134) and set a target date for this task. I will provide updates as needed.

Grace Molnar: Feb 3, 2014 11:10pm

Let's go ahead and enforce any violations this app has per our normal rubric (nothing more extreme). If and when they correct them, then we can remove any restrictions (as appropriate). Please let me know if you hear anything from the dev once action is taken. In this case do they have 48 hours or is enforcement immediate? If it is 48 hours, that's fine. If immediate, that's fine too. I do not want to give them two weeks and if they bring anything up about other similar apps, we will not discuss it with them. Thank you.

Tera Randall: Feb 1, 2014 12:40am

Ok with this from a PR perspective as long as we're enforcing this app in the same way that we enforced against lulu.

Allison Hendrix: Jan 30, 2014 11:16pm

Adding Tera from PR since she worked on Lulu and can provide PR perspective on this similar issue.

I think we should proceed with enforcement. If the developer points out Lulu or other apps, we can respond with our boilerplate message that thanks him/her for the report and confirms we'll pass it on for our teams to review. Our focus with this developer should stick to addressing the issues we surfaced in his/her app.

Brie Noel Taylor: Jan 30, 2014 8:21pm

Given that there is such a clear similarity to Lulu and that Chicklopedia has been marked as the male version of Lulu in the press (<http://sultr.com/chicklopedia-set-first-ever-app-lets-men-rate-hookups-women/>) there seems a high likelihood the dev will point to Lulu still existing in response to our warning. As long as this seems ok to you Alli from a PR perspective, I will reach out to the dev offering a two-week warning period.

Allison Hendrix: Jan 30, 2014 7:25pm

Grace - Confirming it is just like Lulu, but worse IMO. Agree we should take the same approach to enforcement. - Ali

Grace Molnar: Jan 30, 2014 5:32pm

Hey all - I haven't had a chance to read everything but if this is just like Lulu then we should take the same action as on Lulu - with no delay (assuming no additional PR issues). Do let me know if there is a fundamental difference and if so, what it is and why we would take a different approach. Thank you.

Brie Noel Taylor: Jan 30, 2014 4:56pm

Hi All,

I have tested the app on Android and it essentially functions as a male version of Lulu (as per description). The Chicklopedia user logs in and can 'rate' female FB friends from 1 to 10 based on a set of criteria (face, body, sex appeal, sex drive, kissing ability, etc), and then chooses 'best' (positive) and 'worst' (negative) 'hashtags' from a list to describe the friend. The criteria and hashtags available for rating are determined by a 'relationship' the user selects for the Fb friend (friend, hookup, ex/boyfriend). There is also a 'Leaderboards' capability which won't be available until official launch (unsure whether this is 'leaders' among friends or all rated individuals).

Though this currently has low MAU it could be an issue if picked up due to level of similarity to Lulu. The app also seems a little sexually aggressive - the option to 'filter friends by kinkiness' pops up immediately open opening. I will attach screenshots of flow shortly. I second Charlotte's suggestion of offering a two-week warning before enforcement.

Thanks,
Brie

Charlotte Edelson: Jan 30, 2014 4:05pm

Gillian and Grace -

This application is reminiscent of the dating/rating app Brie, Michael and I investigated yesterday, MySleo.pl (task #3608323). We decided to issue a warning and give the developer two weeks to come into compliance with FPP III.A.1. (Responsibility for content and compliance with Facebook Community Standards). The two applications look similar in terms of reach (MAU):

- Chicklopedia: 663 MAU and no AQS
- MySleo.pl: 665 MAU and no AQS

If the app does not come into compliance after this two week period, then we can choose to take stronger enforcement action. Thoughts on maintaining this approach for consistency?

On a separate note, it would be interesting to see if we could identify or develop a mechanism that would allow us to proactively detect similar applications (by looking at comments on a specific app's page, trigger words, user complaints, etc).

Thanks,

Charlotte

Gillian Dunne: Jan 30, 2014 2:13pm

Hi all,

There is low MAU, but there has been recent growth in the last few days. Andy says that as this isn't a game it will not feature in App Center. Also it is highly unlikely that Katie would choose to feature it.

In the new policy re-write are we able to take actions on an app and kill it if it will harm user trust?

I tried to download the app onto my test phones, but I cannot find the app (think it's geogated, so maybe Brie or Charlotte can see if they can do a full policy check on it?)

Basic Permissions as outlined in the App Page:

Your basic info
Your email address (qaqdfnfdff_1383172924@tfbnw.net)
Your birthday
Your location
Your events
Friends' birthdays
Friends' locations

Let me know if you want to reach out to PR. The app is originally Portuguese if that makes any difference.

Best,

Gillian

Gillian Dunne: Jan 30, 2014 11:49am
Just as an FYI the app has passed the App Center review process and will be considered by the Games Team to be listed and show up in App Center.

Description	We have a whitelist only API called orderedfriends. In API v2.x it returns non app friends. The expected behavior is that it should return only app friends. As an alternate solution, we should just not support this endpoint anymore after v1. The only partners using it are Pinterest and Netflix, as listed here: https://our.intern.facebook.com/intern/platform/talent/capability_details.php?cap_id=ordered_friends_api

Simon Cross: Oct 9, 2014 2:51pm

Harshdeep, Benjamin Eddie - guys, /v2.x/me/ordered friends returns non-app friends.

We could a) make it return app-friends only or b) deprecate this in v2.0 up.

Only Pinterest and Netflix are using this right now.

I've vote for removing it entirely as part of the transition to v2 - thoughts?

Alberto Tretti: Oct 9, 2014 2:58pm

My only concern is Netflix using this API in conjunction with the Titan API for their "send a recommendation" feature.

Konstantinos, do you know what's the action plan with Netflix and API v2? I am ok with removing it if they are only going to get app-friends.

Konstantinos Papamiltiadis: Oct 9, 2014 3:03pm

My recommendation to Eddie and team has been that we preserve access to this API for Netflix, including non-app friends as part of their TITAN API integration for consoles.

I am 100% in favor of the idea of removing it for Pinterest for 2.0 but i would not recommend removing it for Netflix going forward.

kp

Eddie O'Neil: Oct 9, 2014 3:08pm

What does Pinterest use this for?

We're vetting questions like this with Mike in ~2 weeks, so let me know.

Konstantinos Papamiltiadis: Oct 9, 2014 3:09pm

Mainly to provide recommendations for app friends - who to follow once you have an account set up.

Simon Cross: Oct 9, 2014 3:13pm

Konstantinos - how does Netflix use ordered friends?

They'll likely need to keep all friends to allow their titan integration to work, but not sure they need to retain access to ordered friends

Konstantinos Papamiltiadis: Oct 9, 2014 3:15pm

You are correct Simon. Most importantly they need access to the full friends list before they can make use of orderedfriends.

As part of Titan they use this channel to message friends (app and non app) to watch movies on devices we don't currently offer invites dialogs or even message dialogs.

Simon Cross: Oct 9, 2014 3:17pm

Sure, I get they need all friends to render typeaheads etc.

But how would their integration be different if they didn't have ordered friends?

Alberto Tretti: Oct 9, 2014 3:17pm

They use the precise version of orderedfriends (bucket of ~10-20 friends I think) because the real estate on devices is small and it would be a pain to browse many friends. They try to show you the ones that matter.

Simon Cross: Oct 9, 2014 3:20pm

Alberto Hypothetically, if we removed Ordered Friends, how long do they need to react? is this a serverside change for them or is the call to `ordered_friends` baked into the client?

Alberto Tretti: Oct 9, 2014 3:30pm

If I interpret this data correctly <https://fburl.com/60997669> they only make server side calls, so they should be able to react quickly.

Simon Cross: Oct 15, 2014 8:15am

So i'm game to keep this for Netflix, but think we should remove for Pinterest as they won't continue to get full friends, and it'd be better to avoid the eng work to scope this to app-friends only.

Eddie - can we ask Mike this question as part of the mutual friends discussions

Subject: confirming data protection language for amazon

Dan,
(Doug/Vernal – message to you guys at bottom),

Immediately below is language Chris, Justin and I (along with our legal and policy teams) have vetted for a response to Amazon's request to receive protection on continued use of friend connections made within their apps. As we discussed, this isn't the entirety of their asks but will help them make progress internally.

Language

Facebook will provide Amazon with thirty (30) days prior written notice of any changes to the Facebook Platform Policies before such changes are binding. Such changes will apply only if and to the extent that they apply generally to other developers.

Updates to the Facebook Platform Policies, unless made due to changes in applicable laws or regulations, will not apply to Amazon if such changes further restrict Amazon's ability to use friend connections, established during the term, between users of a Developer Integration. For sake of clarity, Facebook may change such policies after the term but such changes will not impact Amazon's use of the user connections established during the term.

Doug / Vernal -

Dan has been in talks with Russell Grandinetti, a VP for Kindle, about ways forward on our platform agreement. We're providing the above language in response to a specific concern Russell raised with Dan. It's just one piece of the puzzle, and a somewhat easy protection to provide as "friend connections established between users of a Developer Integration" isn't something we'd require Amazon to delete if they violated our platform terms today. Further, this 'data' is really a derivative of the data we'd provide Amazon (the friend's list), and represents an explicit connection made between two consenting users of an Amazon application.

No worries. Know Monica is reaching out to Rdio. Who can connect with PicCollage?

No offense, Evan – but would prefer not to use Zynga as that comes with other baggage.

Scott/Monica do you think ESPN/Rdio are good candidates here?

To clarify a bit -- (and please holler if anyone wants off this thread)

The NYT reporter is close to finalizing his story. One of the last bits missing is his request to talk to one of the four partners who are testing Login v4 (Rdio, Zynga, ESPN, PicCollage). Based on this thread and a conversation with Peter, it sounds like no one has any hugely impressive stats to share. But that's Ok — if there is a partner we can point him to that's willing to say they don't have any new stats to share just yet because it's early days with testing, but that they're excited to be one of the first people to try this out and that they believe it will help their users better understand how they're using the app, etc --- that works.

I would connect with the product person and the PR person for this partner, talk them through our messaging and the status of the NYT story, and then if the partner agreed, I would share their contact information with the reporter. We don't need a partner quote — we need someone who we've vetted who is willing to talk to the reporter and to speak positively on our behalf about Login v4.

And there's no indication that this will be a NYT cover story. :) This is a NYT piece that we pitched and have been working on for a couple months.

Graham, are conversion stats flat for all of our Login v4 partners? Without positive stats can we get a partner quote for the NYTimes reporter? Jillian can coach the partner on the proper quote.

As context, the NYTimes reporter is writing a cover story on the login ecosystem comparing us to Google. So the more positive stats / quotes we can provide the better we'll look.

Thank you,
Peter

Graham sent me the Rdio data and it looks like conversion for iOS is down 1.7% but up for Android +.2%. We haven't shared this with Rdio just yet and not sure they would have much to say about this that would be positive. We also didn't make email revokable in this Rdio test.

Volume's pretty much the same as the below.

We've got a data update going out Monday so might be better to wait until they've seen that before pinging them about talking to the press (in case they haven't paid much attention to the beta, which I suspect they haven't)

That said, ESPN has been the most in touch / interested in it and would be good, Rdio might be a good 2nd, but in both cases would probably be best to filter the idea through their partner managers to get a read on what they might say first. ESPN is Scott Hershkowitz, Rdio is Monica Mosseri

Hi Graham -

Confirming the below is still accurate with regard to rollout. (The NYT reporter has asked for an update.)

Reporter has also asked if he can speak with the companies who are testing it. Think this would be good for us, assuming they're happy with results so far. Is that the case? If so, who are the best two partners to put him in touch w/? We'd of course connect with them first to talk through the story.

Thank you, and hope you had a nice holiday!

We're at about 5% of english-only, new-users-only, iOS-only, android-mobile site only (not fb4a on android)

We should try to keep the % to ourselves since we've found that this almost always gets misinterpreted as % of all current app users (several million) when in fact its just % of new registrations in certain locales on certain phones (a 100-200 / day)

We've been talking to beta partners in absolute #'s, not % Latest is

Rdio – 150/day
PicCollage – 350/day
ESPN – 500/day
Zynga Poker – 150/day

This will increase slightly as we add other languages in the next week or so

PRODUCT PARTNERSHIPS & BD UPDATE (11/11-11/22)

OG Entities (Jackie)

/DATA & AFFILIATES/

- Live Event Ticketing (Hunch & Events): Addressed TM's blocking concern around our product's good faith effort to test a 1-click primary ticketing experience with a verbal commitment. Final deal points being reviewed by leaderships with path still set for early Dec. close. Eventful discussions currently paused, optimal ticketing attribute coverage of 9% for the ~5-7MM US/CAN events with majority as non-ticketed long-tail events. Presenting to Paciolan (Primary College & Pro-Sports ticketing) leadership tomorrow on integrating their upcoming ticketed game feeds in Q1 '14.

- Movie Ticketing (Hunch & Pages): Fandango working through final concerns around ads & targeting; presented to their leadership team in NY this week. Still on path to closing before year end.

- Media Consumption (Hunch): Netflix still stuck on strategic concerns around being commoditized, had leadership meeting. Will know their position early next week. Apple has the latest mocks and we're expecting them to send an updated terms draft this week.

- Music (Ridge & Minutiae): All three majors -- UMG, WMG and Sony — pushing towards closing out the deals before the holiday. Still the farthest apart with WMG, but pushing hard on the last couple of points.

- Location (Hunch & Places): Engaging with Nokia on a reciprocal data deal - terms & details still in negotiation. Simon & Rob will be leading partnerships in this area and working with the Location team to spec out POI data needs.

[QUALITY]

- Compound Eye: Provided partners recommendation for three methods of executing a crowdsourced quality assessment pipeline: (1) In-house using open-source solutions (2) Using full-service provider (3) Using free-lancing providers and building in-house.

*PLATFORM (Simon & KP)

[PS12n]

- Capability Audit: Audit of 5200 existing whitelisted apps with the goal to put 80% into sandbox mode or remove them from the whitelists altogether and mapping remaining to Salesforce.
- New Whitelisting process: Designed a more formalized process for whitelisting internal & external apps with Legal & Privacy XFN. Working with Product (Marie) to reflect updates needed to the Capability tool to support.
- API Privatization: Finalizing with Product (Eddie) a set of 54 apis to become privatized. Working on the first cut of top tier apps to be evaluated for extension/exemption.
- Unified Review: Preparing post-PS12n appeals workflow with DevOps.
- Deprecations (Instant Personalization): Established a Jan 31st deadline for Tripadvisor with our commitment to help them optimize their Login flow to counter this change.

[LOGIN]

- Login v4: Rdio to roll-out to users this week for initial testing. (Monica)

*MESSENGER (Bryan)

[STICKERS]

- Disney/ Frozen launched last Friday. Big win for the stickers program – got the assets for free. Viacom on hold due to product gaps. Current funnel: Lego, Muppets, Asterix, Mr. Men, Peabody & Sherman, Garfield, Nike/Jordan.

[TITAN API]

- Extended API Agreement now in place to support RBC's Mobile Money Transfer experience set to launch planned Dec 9.
- Caught Spotify misusing as a growth channel by only sending to non-Spotify users. Working with them to fix asap. (Monica)

*INTERNET.ORG (Bryan)

- Presented a proposal around partnership strategy, but still working on finalizing approach. Met with Reuters Market Lite, Jana, and Idiro to assess compatibility with I.org objectives. RML seems to be a good candidate to enable India, while Jana's CPA model doesn't map to our goals and Idiro making for a better PMD partner.

*VERTICALS (Ime)

[MUSIC]

- SoundCloud weeks away from launching their new album-art image HTML5 widget. Ramping to 100% of users (currently at 1%). (Simon)
- Testing OG for Pages with Bandsintown revealed some new opportunities to enhance Page aggregations for key verticals such as music artists for H1'14. (Jackie)

[FITNESS]

- Nike hit some engineering delays that may push their full fix around long-runs and login out to March. Working with their tech team to figure out how to shorten this window. (Jackie)

[BOOKS]

- Goodreads on Kindle rolled-out to Kindle Fire users and set to roll out to e-Ink users by beginning Dec. Login to GR via Kindle is still low with less than ~3k a day, expecting first bump post-black friday. (Jackie)

[IDENTITY]

- Assessing LinkedIn's extent in over-permissioning users for non-experience enhancing data collection. (KP)
- Working with Coursera to use FB as part of their verification program. Additional interest in partnering on i.org initiatives. (Monica)

PRODUCT PARTNERSHIPS & BD UPDATE (10/28-11/8)

OG Entities (Jackie)

[DATA & AFFILIATES]

- Movie Ticketing (Hunch & Pages): Fandango working through final concerns around ads & targeting. Still on path to closing before year end.

- Media Consumption (Hunch): Netflix still stuck on strategic concerns around being commoditized, but now escalated on both sides and determining next steps. Positive signals from Apple moving towards closing as they've signaled intent to get this done. Remaining questions around attribution and commissionable links.

- Music (Ridge & Minutiae): UMG and Sony still close to closing; WMG still holding out.

[QUALITY]

- Compound Eye: Pulling together POV and options around microtasking/crowdsourcing search quality rating.

PLATFORM (Simon & KP)

[POLICY & ENFORCEMENT]

- PS12n: Formalized work-streams and leaders to tackle (1) pre-PS12n whitelist approvals (2) post-PS12n appeals (3) post-PS12n whitelist process (4) capabilities deprecations, and (5) capabilities auditing with respects to games, non-games, mobile, and pmd/marketing partners. Follow progress here.

- Instant Personalization Deprecation: TripAdvisor thinks this deprecation will materially affect their business, working through a reasonable path by Jan 31.

[LOGIN]

- Login v4: Rdio will participate in beta. Foursquare to provide feedback this week.

- App Events for user studies: Discussing with Spotify next week about instrumenting App Events to better inform them about their login/reg funnel and help us better measure login preferences and pre-login behavior.

[Parse]

- GAP Analysis for eComm: Working with local CTOs to provide a POV on entering the eComm space. Feedback so far is to integrate into well known eComm platforms like Magento.

MESSENGER (Bryan)

[STICKERS]

- Collaborated with Public Content team on a World Food Program in the recent Pusheen pack. Received Disney (Frozen) assets. Viacom (SpongeBob) needs PM ratification on expiration terms.

INTERNET.ORG (Bryan)

- Receptive initial conversations with Twitter and AccuWeather. Working with XFN team to define/ identify additional candidate projects. World Bank working on updates that better support country requirements. Assessing partnering with their local incubators/ accelerators (MSFT, Google, Nokia, and BBRY all participate already) given low-cost to engage.

VERTICALS (Ime)

[MUSIC]

- Mobile Music Previews: Spotify provided 50 track sample and negotiating attribution for album art. Rdio still blocked but got interesting feedback from Sony around full-length tracks for single play in FB.

[FITNESS]

- Working with Nike to optimize (1) long runs through returning smaller data samples and (2) consistency in following login policies and best practices for various brand apps.

[OTHERS]

- Justgiving worked with us on being a featured case study for the new Share icons. (KP)

PRODUCT PARTNERSHIPS & BD UPDATE (10/14-10/25)

OG Entities (Jackie)

[DATA & AFFILIATES]

- Live Event Ticketing (Hunch & Events): TM still on path to close end of Oct. Ticketfly sent over data sample and syncing next week around affiliate relationship. Ticketfly would bring in around 70k+ local US/CAN club & festival events in the system. Broader data & affiliate discussion with Active stakeholders EOW. Lowering priority of Eventbrite and Stubhub as launch partners.

- Movie Ticketing (Hunch & Pages): Fandango stuck on branding/reference on linking experience, data usage, and exclusivity. Still aiming for EOY close, but need to get a better signal from Fandango for movement on the above sticking points.

- Media Consumption (Hunch): Rob D closed TMS. Netflix asked us to not display their links on entity cards - escalating to determine next steps. Positive signals from Apple in targeting Nov for agreement close, current sticking point around branding/reference on deep-linking experience.

- Music (Ridge & Minutiae): Close to closing UMG and Sony (a couple weeks out); WMG hitting bumps as they're asking for licensing fees.

PLATFORM (Simon & KP)

[POLICY & ENFORCEMENT]

- Instant Personalization Deprecation: Yelp & Flixster/ Rotten Tomatoes committed to turning off by EOY. Bing TBD until new Search/Map Agreements close. TripAdvisor discussion being scheduled.

[LOGIN]

- Auth Referral Deprecation: Spotify & iHeartRadio are 100% removed, which closes out overall deprecation.
- Login v4: Rdio reconsidering with dependencies on their legal's assessment of the new user age handling. Pitched Foursquare & Shazam, both initially saw v4 limiting the scope of how they currently use login. However, waiting for final feedback. Email address is a consistent sticking point given that it's a primary benefit/purpose in using fb login.

[MINUTIAE]

- Minutiae API: Expanding partner testing after Runtastic saw positive results around increased story engagement. Pitched Foursquare, Shazam, Zeebox, and Musixmatch. Positive reaction with Zeebox committing to integrating. (KP)

MESSENGER (Bryan)

[STICKERS]

- King.com (Candy Crush) and Iconix (Peanuts) launched. Agreements with Disney (Frozen) and Viacom (SpongeBob) are near final.

[MSG PLATFORM: TITAN API]

- Royal Bank of Canada launching a mobile money transfer experience using private inbox messaging apis. Working through agreement requirements and PR plans.
- Netflix private sharing implementation continues to perform well (4x connect rate) compared to OG.

INTERNET.ORG (Bryan)

- Collaborating with Growth (Shirley Sun), Mobile Partnerships (Steve Jarrett/ Ameet Suri), and Mobile Growth Partnerships team (Laura G-E) to assemble a cohesive partnership strategy beyond OEMs and Operators.

VERTICALS (Ime)

[MUSIC]

- Mobile Music Previews: Spotify has coverage for 80% of their catalogue, but waiting for product mocks to unlock required label approvals. Rdio blocked by labels.
- Event Playlists: Rdio experience working end-to-end, but launch paused due to project resourcing, will revisit EOY.

[MOVIES & TV]
